WASHINGTON, August 19.—The chairman of the committee of five appointed by the recent Mississippi convention writes that there is an evident intention on the part of the Democrats of the excluded States to vote at the coming Presidential election. If the least encouragement is given by President Johnson they will undoubtedly vote. The chairman adds that fears are entertained that the bill passed by Congress is not sufficiently explicit in all respects, and in conclusion he says: "The Republicans of Mississippi are anxiously expecting a September session of Congress. Their very existence as a party and as individuals depends upon Congressional measures of relief."

Butler directs his attorney to apply to Evarts to assist in his (Butler's) defense in Baltimore, under a law passed during the war, requiring the Attorney General to defend officers or ex officers against whom suits may be brought by civilians for arrest, imprisonment, etc.

No progress was made to-day in perfecting the machinery for the enforcement of the new tax law.

Internal revenue receipts to-day: $335 000.

Generals Hancock and Rousseau were among the President's visitors to-day.

Grant's Adjutant General Rawlings has recovered from his recent illness. Rawlings' wife is also better.

By a recent order issued by General Sherman the Cheyenne, Arrapahoe, and Comanche Indians are given a reservation lying between Kansas, Texas, Arkansas, and the 100th meridian. General Hagle commands the reservation.

Later advices indicate the reports of Indian outrages exaggerated. Adjutant General McAfee reports eight buried, three missing, and five wounded on Solomon's river. Other reports claim twenty killed.

This evening's Express says: The Indian Bureau insists that the telegraphic reports from the West relative to Indian hostilities are either greatly exaggerated or wholly untrue, as official information leads to different conclusions.

It would seem that there are certain speculative interests to be served by getting up and circulating reports of Indian outrages, and the department here has ceased to credit any rumors of hostilities unless received officially.

Regulations for the preservation of fur bearing animals in Alaska will issue shortly from the Treasury department. The penalty for their violation is $500 to $1000 fine and six months imprisonment.

The property of the Alexandria and Georgetown railroad office, cars, engines, etc., at Alexandria were seized to day under an order from the Circuit Court of Alexandria county by William H. Marbury, Receiver.

Incipient Riot at Atlanta--General Howard off for Vicksburg-Presidential Electors at Large.

ATLANTA, August 19.—The Republican celebration yesterday closed with a torchlight procession composed of some three hundred negroes. Between 10 and 11 P. M. a drunken, unruly negro was arrested by two policemen in front of the National Hall. The police were proceeding to the guardhouse with the prisoner when a mob of negroes pursued and attempted to rescue him. The police resisted. The negroes commenced using their clubs; the policemen were knocked down and the prisoner escaped. At this time some person in the mob gave word to fire, and the negroes fired, wounding one of the police. The fire was returned by the police, and discharges followed in rapid succession. One negro was killed and two wounded.

At this juncture the negroes fled, but rallied near the guardhouse, and moved forward to attack the police. By this time the whole police force and a large number of citizens were on the ground, prepared for the conflict. The negroes saw the determination of the citizens to protect the lawful authority, and rapidly dispersed.

At one time apprehensions of a serious riot were entertained.

General O. O. Howard, Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau, left here last night for Vicksburg.

The Republican convention nominated H. P. Farrow and Amos F. Ackerman electors for the State at large.

Malcontents in Vera Cruz--Mexico Mixed.

HAVANA, August 18.—From Mexico we have the following additional intelligence: Governor Hernandez y Hernandez, of Vera Cruz, had returned from the expedition to Madelin, where he made an ineffectual attempt to capture the insurgent leader Prieto.

The land and sea operations undertaken against the rebels of Alvarado and vicinity had all failed, and the city of Vera Cruz was full of malcontents. The French, German, Spanish, and American business men had espoused the cause of the Governor, and were aiding him to raise men, and feed and pay the troops punctually.

The Governor had ordered the cattle, etc., in the suburbs to be seized.

The rebels make raids within musket range of the city, and the local authorities do not interfere.

The press of the capital forbear to mention the defeat of General Alatorre by Negrete; the only exception is the Orquesta.

The Tolonia chief, Colonel Jean Francisca Lucas, had proved a powerful auxiliary to General Negrete. The defeat of Colonel Dominguez by the Yucatan Indians is officially reported; also the death of Mr. Markoe.

The British mail steamer of September 2 will take a million and a half of specie to Europe.

Kidnapping is still of frequent occurrence.

Rains are deluging the roads, and rendering travel difficult and dangerous. The weather at Vera Cruz is stormy.

Alarm among Planters.

HAVANA, August 18.—Advices from Kingston, Jamaica, to the fourteenth report the planters very much alarmed owing to violent speeches by the Judge in the parish of St. Thomas, the inhabitants of which proved themselves most dangerous during previous rebellions.

The Judge declared he did not come to administer planters' law, but English justice, and exposed the system of jurisprudence in such a way that the negroes misinterpreted his remarks, and commenced to insult the whites, and demand satisfaction of their employers for past alleged grievances.

Highwaymen abound on the island.

Rushworth, the financier, had gone to England for the purpose of negotiating a loan to carry out certain public works.

Salnave to be Married—He is about to Come to the United States.

HAVANA, August 18.—Advices from Port-au-Prince to the eighth report that the Cacos, after capturing the war schooner Sylvain, found on board the Minister of War and Salnave's mother.

Salnave was preparing to marry a wealthy lady and embark on a United States man-of-war for the United States. He is constantly insulting foreigners.

The British Minister protested against the imprisonment of an Englishman, and demanded protection for British subjects in the country, but Salnave threatened his life. The inhabitants of the capital are in constant fear.

Yacht Challenge—Rising against Turkish Authority in Bulgaria—Crisis in the Spanish Government—Election in France.

LONDON, August 19.—The yachts Aline, Cambria, Onward, and Condor accept the challenge of the yacht Sappo just arrived at Cowes from New York. The race will come off on Friday.

PARIS, August 19.—The following are among the promotions and honorary appointments decreed by the Emperor on his fete day:

Count Sartiges, formerly Minister to the United States; Charles Etienne Conti, Councillor of State and Private Secretary to the Emperor; and Auguste Nelaton, the eminent surgeon, were made Senators.

Bourdillon and Lyon de Jordin, Vice Consul at New York, were decorated Chevaliers of the Legion of Honor.

FLORENCE, August 19. — Apprehensions are entertained that the recent attempts at rising against Turkish authority in Bulgaria will be renewed. Accounts represent that the country remains unsettled. Though the insurrectionary bands have disappeared or been dispersed, indications are that secret preparations of a formidable character are being made for another more extensive outbreak.

The attention of the Austrian government has been called to this threatening state of affairs in the unusual demand for firearms from the other side of the Danube, and orders have been issued prohibiting their exportation from the Austrian territory into the Danubian principalities.

LONDON, August 17.—Dispatches from Madrid state that the crisis in the Spanish government is at hand. The Minister of War had withdrawn, and the Captains General of Madrid and Barcelona had resigned.

PARIS, August 19.—The election for members of the Corps Legislatif in the Department of Jura resulted in the success of M. Grevy, the candidate of the opposition, by 11,000 majority, over M. Huot, the official candidate of the government. The success of Grevy is the more signal as the other candidates of this department, M. De Broissia, and M. Vantherin, both supporters of the government, had previously withdrawn from the contest in favor of Huot.

Rain at Mobile—Pendleton Going to Maine—Ashley Renominated—Vallandigham Nominated for Congress—Sheriff's Posse Firing on Masked Men in Tennessee—Fears of a Fenian Raid in Canada.

MOBILE, August 19.—It has been raining since yesterday morning.

BOSTON, August 19.—George H. Pendleton, responding to a serenade at the Parker House, said he was going to Maine to speak.

TOLEDO, Ohio, August 19.—Impeachment Ashley has been renominated for Congress by acclamation.

CINCINNATI, August 19.—The Democrats of the third district have nominated Vallandigham for Congress.

NASHVILLE, August 19.—A party of men in mask approached a furnance in Wayne county, where the employes were armed and drilling. A compromise was effected whereby the furnacemen cease drilling and surrender their arms to the State authorities. The maskers on their return were fired on by the Sheriff's posse from ambush, and after returning the fire they dispersed. Three citizens were wounded—one seriously. Several horses were killed.

TORONTO, C. W., August 19.—The Globe professes to have positive information of extensive preparations made on the other side for a Fenian raid. It also states that furloughs have been withdrawn from regular officers, and the forces in garrison have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to move at a moment's notice.

HAVANA, August 18.—Clear bills of health will be issued to-morrow to vessels sailing from this port.

A Soldier's Opinion of Seymour.

General Woodford, Lieutenant Governor of New York, made a speech at Brooklyn, N. Y., a short time since. His opinion of Seymour is that of the vast majority of the Union soldiers everywhere. He said:

You can now understand how we soldiers feel toward His Excellency, Horatio Seymour. In the hour of our sorrow and weariness he had no encouragement for us, no faith in our courage, and no faith in the final victory. Now, in our triumph, when the flag streams on every breeze, and all our land is one again, we have no need for thee, Horatio Seymour. Let Southern rebels shout thy praise; let the burner of orphan asylums, and the deserter, and the skulker from the draft, twine laurels for thy brow; we will stand by the old flag, all battle-scarred, but glorious in victory, while we follow the great Captain of our armies, our own Ulysses Grant.

At the battle of Lookout Mountain, as, following the line of fire, our surgeons climbed up the hilly steep, they met four soldiers coming down and carrying in a blanket a shapeless mass. Laying their burden tenderly down, they asked the doctor to look at their wounded color sergeant. His shoulder and forearm had been torn away by a shell. The surgeon knelt, and putting the hair back from his manly brow, asked, "My brave fellow, where were you hit?" His eye unclosed for a moment, and he faintly answered, "Almost at the top." "No, my good man, whereabouts are you wounded?" Again his dying eye opened, again his pale lips moved, as he whispered, "I was almost at the top, sir, bearing the flag when the shell struck me. One moment more and I should have been clear up." He gave one gasp, and his brave spirit was gone forever.

And so, dear friends, it is with us to-day. We are almost at the top. In faith and love we have carried the dear old flag for four long years of struggle until we are above the clouds, fighting as Joe Hooker fought up in the clear sunlight of absolute justice and right. Only once more close up the ranks. Only once more press up the mountain slope, and we shall plant our dear old flag clear up on the mountain top of a final victory for liberty and the rights of man.

Is Seymour Going to Decline in Favor of Brick Pomeroy.

[From the New York Sun.]

We notice a banner up town illustrated with the likenesses of the Democratic candidates for President and Vice-President. But instead of the face of Horatio Seymour as the candidate for President there is painted unmistakably the face of Brick Pomeroy. No one can be deceived; the open, manly countenance, the sparkling eyes, the peculiar, knowing look, are plainly Brick Pomeroy's.

The question arises, is Seymour about to retire quietly from the canvass in favor of the young champion of the Democracy?

Several circumstances indicate that he is. First, there is the fact which we mention that the painters are beginning to put Brick Pomeroy's likeness on the banners in place of Seymour's; secondly, there would be a great accession to the party in consequence of the increased enthusiasm of the numerous subscribers to Brick's paper; thirdly, neither of them can be elected, and Brick is young and strong, and can bear defeat better than Seymour.

Governor Seymour is esteemed a man of truth and veracity. We have always considered him such—even more decidedly than have some of his political friends. Now Governor Seymour certainly meant something when, amid the sobs and the choked utterances of the anxious and disconsolate delegates, he emphatically declared on the floor of the national convention: "Your candidate I can not be."

What he meant precisely it has been rather difficult heretofore to determine. At one time there was a rumor that he would decline in favor of Chief Justice Chase; but that soon died out. Now, the appearance of Brick Pomeroy's portrait on the banners seems to afford a key to the mystery. The face of the candidate having been changed, it will be a simple thing to substitute the name of the one for that of the other.

Brick Pomeroy's political sentiments seem to correspond more nearly with those of General Blair than Mr. Seymour's. The two men differed during the war, but Blair has come round now to the position which Mr. Pomeroy has consistently occupied all the time.

We do not mean to intimate that the proposed change—while it is a very good one—is the best that the Democrats could have made by coming to the Sun building; but then it is the best they could have made without going a story or two higher. And the most suitable candidates are never nominated for President; leastwise they never have been since the time of Washington.

A man in Springfield, who some time ago was blessed with a pair of twins, has just received the offer of a thousand dollars for them by an elderly gentleman, who, recently married to a second wife, deemed that this addition to his family would be an augmentation of his bliss.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

LOST ALL HIS MONEY—An Old Game Played on a Ruralist.—On Thursday evening a young ruralist named Alexander Carter came to the city on the steamer General Quitman, from Natchez, with a little cash, for the purpose of having a spree and a good time generally. Carter was a stranger, this having been his first visit to the city. Yesterday morning while he was, to use his own words, "in the yard where the man on a horse is" (meaning Jackson Square), he was approached by four strangers, who entered into conversation with him, and learning he was somewhat green pulled out a tobacco box and asked him if he would take a chew of tobacco, to which he readily consented. The box was handed him, but he could not open it. The man who offered him the tobacco then opened the box, and he took a chew and then shut it up again, and handed it back to the owner, who showed him how to open it. One of the party then said, "I'll bet you (meaning Carter) twenty dollars that you can not open the box." Carter said he had only thirteen dollars and a gold cross, but that he would put that up as a bet that he could. The bet was accepted, and of course Carter lost his money. Carter then made complaint to the Second District police station, and the officers succeeded in apprehending two of the offenders, named William Harris and Albert Jennings, but neither the money, cross, nor tobacco box was found. The parties were locked up to await an affidavit by Carter.

STEAMBOATMENS' COLORED DEMOCRATIC CLUB.—There is an inchoate formation with some such name as the above, which has attempted more than once to make a demonstration at the corner of Poydras and Front streets. So far their success has not been encouraging. A meeting for last evening was advertised, but at the time appointed only seventeen colored persons could be mustered; and of this number, which afterward increased to nineteen, a portion were mere boys.

No speeches were made, but a gentleman went about among the "boys" and talked bread and meat to them. He told them that every member of the club would receive a certificate which would always insure him work; and he titillated the imaginations of his hearers with the idea that Seymour and Blair if elected would always produce good crops, and abundant prosperity. The meeting broke up at an early hour. A force of policemen were about, but happily their services were not put in requisition.

In relation to the high pressure story about a "riotous demonstration" upon which some of yesterday's papers indulge in a poetic frenzy respecting "fifty or sixty Radical negroes," it has since been ascertained, partly from investigations by the police and partly from facts communicated by the president of the club, that the trouble was attributable to the members of a down town Democratic club who bore an ill feeling to a colored orator who was about to address the meeting when the disturbance began.

The "fifty or sixty Radical negroes" appear to have consisted of a couple of boys, one of whom threw a stone or brick into a window of the room where the club was meeting. This is all. If the "b'hoys" who "run" with certain Democratic clubs will let alone the colored men whose votes their party are endeavoring to obtain, there is no danger that such colored men will ever be disturbed by Radical colored demonstrations, either riotous or otherwise.

PIONEER GRANT CLUB.—Carroll Hall was filled Friday night with members of the club and gentlemen who were there to hear some good speaking. Hon. Thomas W. Conway led off, and made a very forcible speech, in which he did not spare the Democrats, but showed up their inconsistencies and shortcomings in such a way as to leave them without a leg to stand upon. He evidently thought they did not deserve to be handled with gloves, and hit them in the most artistic style, exposing them thoroughly to the public gaze, and from the enthusiastic manner in which he was applauded by that portion of the public present it may be safely said that his work was well done.

The president of the club, J. M. G. Parker, then arose and stated that he had received by mail a very handsome large steel-plate engraving of General Grant, forwarded by Hon. John S. Harris, United States Senator from this State, for the purpose of having it presented to this club. The engraving was then exhibited and admired for its truthfulness by all present, and in a short presentation speech, made by Hon. O. H. Hempstead, it was formally delivered into the hands of the club.

Hon. Hugh J. Campbell, of the State Senate, then spoke, and was followed by M. Carr, Esq., also a member of the Legislature. They were both much applauded in the course of their remarks. Messrs. Conway and Campbell having been made the particular targets of the enemy's sharpshooters, they poured in a raking fire on the Democracy. A committee of three was appointed to take measures to have a Grant wigwam built; and a committee was also appointed to make preparations for a grand illumination and torchlight procession, to take place shortly.

A THROWER OF VITRIOL.—The plight in which Marie Oscar presented herself yesterday morning in the Second District was horrible. Her face and clothing bore witness to her assertions that she had been wounded and maimed by a vitriol assassin. Her story is that while she was minding her own affairs on Basin street, between Bienville and Customhouse, she was approached by a colored man named Walter Murray, who threw over her the contents of a vial of vitriol, which ate her flesh, and ruined her clothing, disfiguring her for life. What demon could have tempted Murray to this terrible deed has not been shown, but Marie is positive in stating that she gave no provocation for the awful assault. She lives at No. 39 Rampart street, where she now lies, with little probability of ever recovering her sight. Murray was promptly arrested. It is said he possesses great powers of ventriloquism. As soon as the poor woman recovers she will appear against her assailant.

PARISH EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—At the regular meeting of the Parish Executive Committee, held on the evening of the thirteenth instant, the following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, The General Assembly of Louisiana has passed an act legalizing the sale of lottery tickets on the policy plan,

Be it resolved, By this the Parish Executive Committee of the Radical Republican party of Orleans, that we disapprove and condemn the action of our Representatives in securing the passage of said act, knowing the same to be injurious to the best interests and welfare of the people of this parish and State.

DEATHS IN THIS CITY LAST WEEK.—According to the report of Dr. G. W. Dirmeyer, Secretary of the Board of Health, the total number of interments in New Orleans last week was 128. Of these 4 were drowned, 4 died of congestion of the brain, 1 sunstroke, 1 softening of the brain, 12 consumption, 1 fracture of the spine, 1 bilious fever, 7 congestive, 2 pernicious, 2 intermittent, 2 brain, 1 nervous, 1 scarlet, 4 typhoid fever, 4 pneumonia, 4 premature birth, 18 were stillborn, and the balance died of various ordinary diseases. Sixty four were males, sixty females, and 4 not stated. Ninety-three were whites, 21 blacks, 8 mulattoes, and 6 not classified. Seventy-four were natives of the United States, 13 not stated, and 41 were foreigners. Forty-one were under 1 year, 19 between 1 and 10, 4 between 10 and 15, 15 between 20 and 30, 14 between 30 and 40, 11 between 40 and 50, 8 between 50 and 60, 4 between 60 and 70, 5 between 70 and 80, 1 between 80 and 90, 1 upward of 100, and 5 whose ages were not reported. This is an increase of thirty-three over last week's returns.

DEATH OF A SCHOOL TEACHER.—We are sorry to announce the death of Miss Cecelia McQuaid, an interesting young lady who has for a few years been a successful teacher in our public schools. She was one of the very few who had patriotism and womanhood sufficient to face frowns and jeers of acquaintances, and accept a position in one of the schools after this city was redeemed in 1862. As a teacher she was superior; as a young lady of refinement and pleasant company she was appreciated.

Grain Gambling.

The month of June, 1868, will be recalled for years to come by hundreds and thousands as filled with bitter memories.

With strong hopes of making fortunes in the promised abundance and supposed consequent decline in the price of wheat, there was scarcely a town in the Northwest that did not furnish one or more persons who "sold short." Selling short in speculative circles is gambling. It is selling an article which you do not own, but which you promise to deliver on a certain day, at a certain price, to a certain man. Thus, wheat may be worth to-day two dollars per bushel, and I bargain with you to deliver at your store thirty or sixty days hence, one thousand bushels for two thousand dollars. I do not own a bushel, but I give my guarantee that you shall have the thousand bushels at the time named. I go on the presumption that wheat will fall by the time I am to deliver it ten, twenty, or thirty cents per bushel, and so I hope to clear, as the case may be, one hundred, two hundred, or three hundred dollars on the transaction. But the wheat may not fall at all; it may take a turn and go up. My written contract, however, to deliver is out, and I must meet it, no matter what I lose.

A sort of fever, as stated, swept the Northwest in June, and men by the thousand, nearly every one of them inexperienced, made a strike at "selling short." It was, indeed, "short" with multitudes. There was the farmer and the clerk and the tradesman and the teacher, and the minister even, all tempted by the golden offers of commission men "to go in" and "only pay a small per cent for the trouble." The ink was scarcely dry on the contract papers till signs of a storm were visible on the horizon. The men of "the ring" were astir. They had eyes of the lynx, with thews of steel and hearts of stone. They knew their time had come. So they bought up the contracts, and bought up at the same time all the wheat in the market, and the "sellers short" were bound hand and foot, and were in the hands of their tormentors.

On Tuesday, June 30th, the Chicago speculators in grain held contracts for nearly a million bushels of wheat to be delivered to them by three o'clock by parties who did not own a bushel. They themselves had sold about two hundred thousand bushels at from $2 10 to $2 20 to fulfill these "short" contracts made at about $1 70; and they had on hand, as it is estimated, on Tuesday night, full three hundred thousand bushels, for which they had paid from $1 80 to $1 95, wherewith to control the market. Demanding for this $2 20 just before the close of the market, they offered it ten minutes later for $1 85, with no buyers. The gross gains of the operation were estimated to be full a quarter of a million dollars, all of which came from the pockets of the professional "short sellers," the merchants, professional men, and others aforesaid.

Ruin, positive and remediless, was the fate of families by the score and hundred. The slow, hard-earned savings for years were gone in a breath. A Chicago paper gives, among other incidents, this, "which," says the editor, "is of our personal knowledge:"

"An aged missionary in India, who has given all of his best years to that arduous work, and is still at his post, had saved a few hundred dollars as a reserve for old age, when he might have to throw off the harness and return to America to die. It had been committed in trust to an old friend in one of our interior towns, a gentleman of the highest reputation in social and business circles. Like many other professional men he was seduced into the quiet attempt to make a fortune outside of his legitimate business, in grain gambling. The late corner caught him. He lost not only every cent of his own money, but staked and lost that which he held in trust for his friend, and in the tardy course of an ocean mail that missionary will hear that all the carefully kept savings of years are gone, and a penniless old age is before him."

It may be said that this sort of gambling is anomalous or at least local. But is it so? The wisest heads declare that two-thirds of the business failures in the towns, large and small, throughout the country, are caused by the vice—nay, the sin, the crime—of risking money on speculative chances outside of men's legitimate business and foreign to all their usual sympathies, training, and habits. What shall we say of "throws," and "grab games," and "chances in lotteries," and all such devices for making money for personal or other ends? They are neither better nor worse than "gambling in grain." They are all hideous and fatal expedients of raising money. Why can not honest and Christian men be content to live by honest and Christian methods? Why walk so close to the edge of the precipice that one little misstep will send us reeling and plunging to a bottomless abyss, when the way for our safe walking is so plainly marked?

THE GERMANIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, established in 1860, and based upon the most approved principles of Life Insurance security, presents its claims for consideration, believing that its solid foundation already secured by the faithful and efficient management of its officers and Board of Directors will give it the preference above all other similar institutions.

It is purely Mutual, as the net profits are distributed among the parties insured, the interest of the capital stock being only five per cent according to its charter.

It assumed the system of cash payments at the commencement of its existence, and maintained it faithfully until now, and promises the same for the future, thereby securing to policy holders the full amount for which they are insured. The advantage of this system over the half cash and half note system is patent to every careful observer, but will be more fully illustrated by the following statement and table:

If a person of thirty years of age insures his life for the amount of $1000 in one of the credit companies, and pays a premium of $28 30 per year, with a note for half of the premium, then by means of this note and interests thereon the amount will become less and less in the following proportions:

| | |
|---|---|
| After 10 years the $1000 will amount to | $887 44 |
| After 15 years the $1000 will amount to | 795 28 |
| After 20 years the $1000 will amount to | 666 02 |
| After 25 years the $1000 will amount to | 484 73 |
| After 30 years the $1000 will amount to | 230 47 |
| After 33 years the $1000 will amount to | 32 53 |
| After 34 years the $1000 will amount to | Nothing. |

So that after a lapse of 34 years the whole amount will be eaten up, notwithstanding the parties insured paid their money in good faith.

The large dividend of 40 per cent declared last January is evidence of the care and success with which the Managers have conducted the enlarged and rapidly increasing interests of the Company, and vouches for its future brilliant and permanent prosperity.

Parties contemplating an assurance on their lives will do well to examine the status of this Company, every facility for which will be given by the ## Poetry.

THE VAUDOIS MISSIONARY.

Not only did preachers go out from the valley, to proclaim the glorious gospel, but humble, pious peddlers, or itinerant merchants, of whom there were many in the middle ages, scattered the truth by carrying some leaves of the word of life, or some manuscript tracts beneath their merchandise, which they engaged those whom they found favorably disposed to receive and read. The following beautiful lines, descriptive of this traffic, were published a few years since in the London Christian Observer:

"O, lady fair, these silks of mine
Are beautiful and rare,
The richest web of Indian loom,
Which beauty's self might wear.
And these pearls are pure and mild to behold,
And with radiant light they vie,
I have brought them with me a weary way—
Will my gentle lady buy?"

And the lady smiled on the worn old man
Thro' her dark and clustering curls,
Which veiled her brow, as she bent to view
His silks and glittering pearls,
And she placed their price in the old man's hand
And lightly turned away:
But she paused at the wanderer's earnest call—
"My gentle lady, stay."

"O, lady fair, I've yet a gem
Which a fairer luster flings
Than the diamond flash of the jeweled crown
On the lofty brow of kings—
A wonderful pearl of exceeding price,
Whose virtue shall not decay,
Whose light shall be as a spell to thee
And a blessing on thy way."

The lady glanced at the mirroring steel,
Where her youthful form was seen,
Where her eyes shone clear and her dark locks waved
Their clashing pearls between.
"Bring forth thy pearl of exceeding worth,
Thou traveler gray and old,
And name the price of thy precious gem,
And my pages shall count thy gold."

The cloud went off from the pilgrim's brow,
As a small and meagre book,
Unchased with gold or diamond gem,
From his folding robe he took.
"Here, lady fair, is the pearl of price,
May it prove as such to thee,
And keep thy gold, for I ask it not,
For the word of God is free!"

The hoary traveler went his way,
But the gift he left behind
Hath had its pure and perfect work
On that high born maiden's mind,
And she hath turned from her pride of sin,
To the loveliness of truth,
And given her youthful heart to God,
In her beautiful hour of youth.

And she hath left the old gray walls,
Where an evil faith hath power—
The courtly knights of her father's train
And the maidens of her bower.
And she hath gone to the Vaudois vale
By lordly feet untrod,
Where the poor and needy of earth are rich,
In the perfect love of God!

Religion and Politics.

The Western Christian Advocate in a recent issue delivered itself thus:

We are not persuaded that our brethren who are conducting the Advocates in New Orleans and Charleston have done the wisest thing in hoisting the names of their favorite candidates for the Presidency to the head of their columns, according to the style of political papers.

The Charleston Advocate vindicates its course in a long and able editorial, from which we make extracts. Some of the thoughts given will suit this latitude:

Its management (the Advocate) has heretofore been local, and to a great extent personal, and of necessity, to a much greater extent than its managers desired, political. It is the only paper published in the State upon which its readers could rely for political or religious information or instruction, save the publications which are bitterly hostile to the M. E. Church, and the reconstruction acts of Congress.

* * * * * * *

Our people here are far more ignorant in political than they are in religious interests, and no pains is now spared to deceive them on the great questions involved in the present political struggle that is now agitating the country. Many here are learning their political alphabet, and in connection with an effort to spell their own names they are trying those of Grant and Colfax, and our humble Advocate would be untrue to God, Methodism, and the country if it did not aid to make familiar to its confiding readers the men and the principles on the success of which must depend the fondest earthly hopes of the freedmen for future years of national history.

* * * * * * *

If the bishops know of any able minister of unquestionable fidelity to the M. E. Church, whose political sympathies are with the Democratic party, let them send him here to defend and vindicate Wesleyan Methodism in the editorial columns of the Advocate, and he will find himself in direct antagonism with his supposed political friends and sentiments. If he did not abandon Methodism he would be as sure to slightly change his political views as to find it impossible to serve God and mammon—mix light and darkness or fellowship Christ and Belial. Our experience at the South has taught us something we could not have learned at the North, and we are now ready to vacate our place here to make room for some who might greatly profit by a position on the skirmish line in the van of our Church in its Southward movements.

Rev. Thomas Fuller, of the Liberia Annual Conference, and pastor of the M. E. church at Cape Palmas, Africa, died in Christian triumph April 2. The workmen fall; the work continues.

Letter from New York City.

NEW YORK, August 18, 1868.

In and about such a great city as this there is always much of which to write that might be of interest to the readers of the ADVOCATE, had one the faculty to discriminate among the many items that are pressed upon the attention. Beginning with the usual subject, the weather, we can really say that it is delightful. Though some time since there were two or three weeks of the warmest weather known here in many years. The health of the city is good. Business also seems to be good, as the streets are crowded with people rushing to and fro as though each moment lost was equivalent to the loss of no small sum of money. However, all departments of business are not good. Being down on Wall and Broad streets, and calling on a prominent banker and broker, we were informed that there was no business being done by them now, that they could not make a living, etc., yet to the uninitiated there seemed to be considerable doing even here.

In the vicinity where is made and stored so much of the "filthy lucre," the love of which is the root of all evil, stands the old North Dutch church, where, since September 23, 1857, have been held the "Fulton street daily union prayer meetings." From twelve to one o'clock the prayer room is crowded with business men of the city and strangers from all parts of the country. The invitation is to come in and spend five, ten, twenty minutes, or the hour. The meetings are of unusual interest. Short prayers, short hymns, short speeches being the order. All are expected to confine their exercises to five minutes duration. If any trespass beyond the limits, the chairman of the meeting has before him a little mallet, and down it drops, warning the offenders that they are transgressing on the time of others.

A full description of the meeting might be of interest had not most of your readers read something of the same in former issues of the ADVOCATE. The hour seems to fly quickly by as we listen to the fervent prayers, the earnest speeches, the hearty singing, the reading of requests that prayer be made for certain unconverted friends, and again the thanks of those whose friends have been converted in answer to their prayers.

THE SING SING CAMP MEETING

Has been one of great interest this year. There were over three hundred tents on the ground. Wishing to see the editor of the New Orleans ADVOCATE, and hearing on Sabbath that he was at the camp meeting, we started the next day for Sing Sing. But on our arrival we found that he had just gone to Albany. But the influence of his Sabbath day's sermon, preached to about ten or twelve thousand people, still remained. They were loud in his praises, and declared that he had carried the palm there in preaching, that his sermon, for pathos and power, exceeded all others. Just before leaving on Monday the friends testified their interest in him and his work in the South by presenting him with a collection of several hundred dollars for the Orphan's Home.

On the last day of the meeting a great love feast was held in which, in the space of an hour and a quarter, three hundred and eighty-one persons briefly testified their love for Jesus. Rev. Dr. Bowman, of the South Carolina Conference of the Church South, was present, having spent some time on the camp ground. He arose and said that he had come North with a prejudice against the Northern Church, that he had supposed that most of the spirituality had departed therefrom, etc., but his prejudice no longer existed. He saw, indeed, that they were a spiritual church, and the cordiality with which he had been received made him love and respect them. He remarked, farther, that he felt as much at home as in his own church in South Carolina, and he hoped and prayed that the time would soon come when there would be no Church South and Church North, but when they all should be united and laboring for the same great object, the conversion of the whole world.

The minister who had charge of the meeting immediately made his way to the Doctor, and as brethren they embraced each other. We were not present at the time, but were told that it was what might be truly styled "a melting season." Tears flowed freely from all eyes, and when the brother spoke of a united church the hearty amens arose until the woods rang.

THE OLD JOHN STREET METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

This society, the oldest one of our Church in America, still worships on the same ground where the first church edifice was erected. We were invited by the pastor, Brother Depuy, who is also the associate editor of the New York Advocate, to preach on Sabbath morning. The audience room is undergoing repairs, and the services were held in the lecture room in the basement. The pastor informed us that the pulpit board before us was the one made by Philip Embury and covered by Barbara Heck about one hundred years ago. The clock behind us was the one Wesley sent over to the first Methodist society in America.

Surrounded with so many associations of early Methodism, we could but feel thankful for the opportunity of preaching where so many of the fathers of Methodism had proclaimed the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, and where so many saints, long since in heaven, had worshiped.

We understand that this church was placed in the hands of the General Conference of our Church at its last session, and can not now be disposed of unless it be by that body.

In the evening we preached at Washington Square Methodist Episcopal Church, the last charge of Dr. Newman in this city, and where he, in the morning, had preached to a large congregation of delighted hearers. After the services were over we walked a few squares to Bedford street church, another of his charges, and where he was to preach that evening. The services were just closing. We found that not only every seat of the large church was filled, but that all the standing room in the vestibule was occupied, and we were further informed by those in the vestibule that many had come, and not even finding a place to stand within, had gone away.

Aid was here given also to the Orphan's Home in New Orleans. The interest felt here in our Southern work is great, and we hope that the Church South will soon learn to appreciate our work among the colored people, a work which they at the present time are unable to perform, yet a work that needs to be attended to now. And with the brother from South Carolina we say, "May the time speedily come when there shall be no Church South nor Church North," but when we shall all be united and working for the same great object, the conversion of the world.

Revivals in Texas.

The Texas Christian Advocate reports a revival in progress at the Galveston M. E. church South, and in many other parts of the State. The writer very wisely and piously adds:

Shall we not have a revival in every circuit and station in the five Conferences? Every heart in the land is longing for the return of quiet and peace to our distracted country. But the manifestations of Divine Power in the Church is far more important, and possibly, until we esteem the value of these higher blessings, and invoke their presence, the lesser mercies of temporal prosperity, in mingled mercy and judgment, will be withheld.

In the same paper an ex-Confederate chaplain is giving the world his "Reminiscences of the War" in quite a sensational and partisan style. Returning home a released prisoner of war, he says:

Sixty or seventy sick were sent South with me. Some of these, reduced to mere skin and bones, had to be lifted as tenderly as possible into the boat, and from thence to the cars. Some died on the road, others rapidly recovered, and were able to walk a little before reaching Richmond. We arrived at Baltimore, my native city, on Sunday, and were marched under heavy guard to a warehouse on the wharf. We were allowed to communicate with friends outside under rigid restrictions, but were not permitted to see any one. Provisions of the best sort were sent us by relations and loved ones, which with pipes and tobacco in abundance, made us feel good once more. The next day after our arrival we were placed in the hold of a steamer, and sent on to Fortress Monroe. We remained here a day and night, during which time the privilege was granted us of going out of prison and enjoying a short walk. In one of my rambles I saw long ranks of men hand-cuffed, two and two, and surrounded by guards. I asked an officer who they were. He said, "they are drafted men being sent on to Grant's army."

Illustrations of Progress.

BY MRS. L. M. CHILD.

How wonderful is that power which we call thought! What a slight impetus sometimes sends it whirling through the ages! On last New Year's Day I received copies of Tait's two pictures, "A Group of Chickens" and "A Group of Ducklings." The original paintings were admirably true to nature; and chromo-lithography had repreduced them from the press of L. Prang & Co., so accurately and beautifully, and at a price so much less than oil paintings, that thousands could have the pleasure of possessing them where one could afford to buy the originals. Another specimen from the same press ushered the Middle Ages into my little parlor. It was "The Beatitudes of our Lord," printed in imitation of the old illuminated manuscripts. As I examined the richly tinted pages, I seemed to see that dear old artistic monk to whom Mrs. Stowe introduced me in her charming prose idyl called "Agnes of Sorrento." The convent of San Marco, in Florence, rose before me, and I seemed to see the brethren at work on its parchment treasures, painting the letters in blue and crimson and gold, bedding them in bright flowers, twining them with vines drooping into festoons for birds and butterflies to swing on, and leaving loop holes here and there for angel faces to peep through.

From that monastic retreat my soul returned to Boston with the miraculous swiftness of clairvoyance. Indeed, it was a kind of clairvoyance which made so distinctly visible the small printing room of Mr. Pendleton, as I saw it in 1826, when he first introduced lithography into Boston. I was much interested in the process, and on the first day of that year I received from him two specimens of his art, done in simple black and white. One was "Newstead Abbey," the residence of Lord Byron; the other was "Abbotsford," built by Sir Walter Scott. There was a soft haziness about them which pleased me more than the sharp distinctness of line engravings. But they grew pale in the presence of the New Year's offerings I received forty years later; and who can foretell what another half-century may produce?

Lithography was first suggested by accident, as is often the case with inventions. A German named Senefelder wished to become an author, but was too poor to print his productions: so he set himself to work to procure small editions of them by writing them on copper plates, and himself transferring them to paper. But in order to take readable impressions it was, of course, necessary that the letters should be reversed, and it required practice to learn to write backward. Copper being too expensive, he smoothed the surfaces of stones and practised on them. One day his mother asked him to write a list of articles to be sent to the wash, and, not having paper at hand, he wrote it on stone, intending to copy it at his leisure. Afterward the thought occurred to him how convenient it would be if he could transfer it to paper without the trouble of copying. He applied a kind of acid to eat away the stone between the letters, and thus raised them above the surface. When he produced a legible impression by this process, he thought he had made a great discovery. It was, however, merely a small beginning. It would be tedious to relate all his experiments to manufacture the right sort of ink, and find the right sort of stones to receive it. He met with almost as many impediments as did the brave old Palissy in his invention of ornamental china. He soon found that there was no need of raising the letters above the surface, because suitable chemical qualities in the ink would answer his purpose without it. The first specimens he published were some sheets of music in 1796. Afterward he applied the new art to drawings, and multiplied copies without the tedious and expensive process of cutting them in metal. Public attention was attracted, and lithographic establishments were soon formed in various cities. For thirty years he went on making improvements, until the art had attained that degree of excellence which attracted my attention in Boston in 1826.

Meanwhile artists and chemists in other parts of the world were exerting their ingenuity on this new process. A Frenchman named Malapeau took the idea of copying portraits, landscapes, etc., in oil colors, on stone, and transferring them to canvas. This art he called "litho-chromics," from the Greek lithos, a stone, and chromos, color. He succeded so far that he obtained a patent, and in 1826 the novelty had quite a run in Paris. But his productions did not long remain in fashion, being inferior to poor copies made by the old process. Senefelder, who was still fully possessed by experimenting spirits, invented a better way of copying oil paintings, by taking lithographic impressions on colored sheets of paper. He had called his first invention "lithography," or stone-writing, because he then intended to apply it merely to written characters, not to pictures; but he called his new invention in colors "Mosaic printing." From that day to this successive improvements have been made in the process, and the result is those richly tinted chromos which reproduce for us the most beautiful pictures of European galleries, and furnish us with brilliant imitations of illuminated manuscripts, on which the old monks spent years of careful labor.

Hitherto these gorgeous treasures have been imported from Europe; but L. Prang & Co. have established presses in Boston, with the laudable desire of making these vivid forms of beauty familiar to our people. They have labored with much ingenuity and perseverance to produce American chromos that shall equal the European. Their success, if not perfect, is certainly great, and I cannot but rejoice in it as an important help to general artistic culture.

How plainly is it indicated in the progress of the world that the masses are everywhere to be raised into distinct individuals! A few centuries ago only the wealthy inhabitants of palaces could posses beautiful pictures. The populace had, indeed, glimpses of them in churches, where, to their reverential eyes, it seemed as if the heavens really opened for the Virgin and her child to float down on golden clouds. It never occurred to them the proceeds of their hard toil supplied the revenues of the church wherewith those glorious pictures were painted. Still less did they ever dream that a time would come when laborers would adorn their own dwellings with works of art. Now thousands and thousands of farmers and mechanics ornament the walls of their houses with handsome pictures. Year by year their taste improves, so that the daubs of former times no longer satisfy them. Even negroes, whom we have so long kept shut up in the dark cave of ignorance, are coming to a perception of the beautiful. At no other period of the world could Edmonia Lewis, half Indian and half African, have thought of becoming a sculptor, and been so generously inceuraged in her thought. She has recently sent from Rome the photograph of a statue in commemoration of emancipation. It represents a stalwart freedman, with shackles broken, raising one arm in thankfulness to heaven, and resting the other protectingly on the shoulder of his kneeling wife. The design is well conceived, and the manner of treating it does her so much credit that her patrons have reason to feel greatly encouraged concerning her ultimate success in the art she has chosen. One would suppose that painting would be more natural to her race than sculpture, and doubtless in due time they will develop in that direction. Whenever the colored people shall become a coloring people, we shall have gorgeous pictures. Dr. Holmes, in his new story in The Atlantic, says that every human soul is an omnibus, and those of African descent have their omnibus full of tropical ancestors, fraught with memories of humming birds, parrots, and flamingoes. We need their idiosyncrasy to warm up our colder tastes; and, when their individualism comes out, we shall recognize it fraternally.

Think of the world as it was five hundred years ago, and compare it with its present condition. Then, not one man in ten thousand could either read or write. The nobles, being unable to sign their names, sealed important papers with a signet ring, bearing their armorial crests, and that custom of affixing seals to legal documents, which had use and significance in its day, is still retained among the thousand useless forms of law. So rare was the knowledge of reading in those times that priests, the only ones who possessed it, were exempted from the penalty of death for their first crime, even if it was cold blooded murder. They had but to plead "benefit of clergy"—that is, to prove that they could read—in order to escape capital punishment. For their first great crime they were merely branded on the hand; hence the custom of bolding up the hand to show an unscarred palm when an oath was taken. The significance has passed away, but the form remains in our courts. Now, in Protestant Christendom at least, priests are held to be more responsible for crime than other men, inasmuch as they are teachers of God's laws. Laymen are now often as well versed in the Scriptures as are the clergy, and Sunday schools are as influential as the pulpit. Schools and colleges spring up as thick as clover blossoms, and the sons of poor wood sawyers know more than did nobles of the Middle Ages. Books are written by all classes of people; they are printed by steam, circulated by steam, and one would think they were also read by steam.

The same increasing tendency to individualism has come out in music. A thousand years ago men had no idea of harmony. They were limited to that simple continuation of tones which we call melody, and if several voices sung together, they sung in unison, all singing the same note. In patriarchial Asia, to this day, they know nothing of that system of chords and the laws of their succession, which we call harmony. A little more than two hundred years ago, somewhat later than the flight of the Mayflower across the waters, music, which always expresses coming changes in the spirits of men, began to foretell what would be the results of that unnoticed voyage. Previous to that time there had been no instrumental music unaided by the human voice. Music was a monarchy. The air reigned absolute, and the accompaniments were mere subjects. Toward the close of the seventeenth century the orchestra began to form itself into that musical republic in which each part has individuality and a distinct agency, while all blend and work together as a whole, either by harmony or contrast. Just this will society become when it gets into that divine order toward which the hand of God is leading it.—New York Independent.

From the Churches.

Rev. Abraham Hilton writes from Holmesville, Louisiana:

I preached in Washington, Louisiana, one Sabbath in July and attended Brother Jackson's Sunday school. The children appeared very bright over their recitations. Since I last wrote we have held our love feast and had a good time. One child was baptized and one probationer received into full connection. Brother Smith, of Marksville circuit, was with us. He has organized some Sunday schools, with one hundred and fifty children, and received about seventy persons into the Church. He needs books very much. My day school now numbers sixty-one in all; boys thirty-four, girls twenty-seven. We have a fine offer in Avoyelles of land and buildings for church purposes if one hundred and fifty or two hundred dollars could be appropriated for our help. It is on Brother Smith's work. I hope you can get us some help. The crops look well. The people, white and black, appear now pretty harmonious. The Democrats do not make threats, but seem very desirous for me to join them. They offer to build a large church and school for me, but I believe I will make out with the old sugar house a little longer. May be the Lord will bless us with a church or the means to buy one.

Rev. J. Bryan writes from St. Martinsville, Louisiana:

A dreadful accident happened here on the fourteenth instant. Dennis Milton, one of our stewards, was pouring coal oil into his lamp while it was burning. Dropping some of the oil upon the blazing lamp, it flashed into the can and lamp, and in a moment exploded, throwing the burning oil all over his body. His wife was in bed with a child eight days old. She sprang from the bed and threw a blanket over him. Her dress taking fire at the same time, she had to leave her husband to save herself. This happened about eight o'clock at night, and he died at twelve, lingering only four hours. His mind was clear, and he told his wife not to cry about him, but pray to meet him in heaven. He said, "I believe I am going to die, and I feel willing for God to do his own will with me. I want all the brethren and sisters to teach Jane to pray for God's help to bring up the children right." He left four small children. Brother Dennis was a man of quick feelings, but kind hearted. He was the great support of his mother, who mourns his loss much. He and his wife were among our first converts. They were baptized at the same time in the church. The funeral took place on the fifteenth. The citizens say there never was so many people at a funeral in the place before. The procession was very long. Next day I rode away by eight o'clock twenty miles, and preached in Vermillionville. Not half the people could get into the house. Some came ten miles. We can not tell what progress is made until we get a church in Lafayette. The lumber for St. Martinsville church has not come yet. Captain White was here to see about it on the thirteenth. It is expected every day.

Rev. Ephraim Turner writes from Sabine parish, Louisiana:

We are getting along here very well. I have one hundred and ninety members, and there has been twenty conversions. I really believe Almighty God has been with us, and the power of the Most Holy has been among us. I have been teaching day school as well as the Sunday school. One lot of books you sent us has been received, and we are anxiously expecting the package you sent by Major Cromie. We have a large body of members but no church. We are all very poor, and ask you to try and send us a little assistance to build a house for the worship of God. Very few of my day scholars are able to pay anything, and it is hard work to get a living here, but I shall hold on and try to do all the good I can. I left my wife in Natchitoches, and have heard that she had been turned out of doors, so I shall have to go and see about it. The people here have not been able to give me a dollar since I came on the circuit. I ask an interest in the prayers of God's people, that I may be helped in His great work.

Rev. Thomas Kenneday writes from Donaldsonville, Louisiana:

We have had a bad case here of disturbing our public worship. The man gave our church much trouble, but by having a good Mayor (Brother Landry), and Mr. Mathias as one of the magistrates, the party was held in a bond of fifty dollars to keep the peace for six months and to pay costs. We have bought and paid for a good bell for the church in Donaldsonville. The Sunday school is doing well under the care of Brother Landry. Since the election Mr. Fobb has not held day school. We hope to open by the first of September.

Religious and General Items.

Since the year 1813 the American Baptist Mission Board have sent sixty missionaries to Burmah.

At the late commecement of Soule University, Texas, the degree of D.D. was conferred on Rev. B. T. Kavanaugh.

Jeff Davis has gone to Europe. The funds collected in the North for his benefit enable him to live sumptuously.

During the absence of Dr. Osborne, Baptist minister of St. Louis, his pulpit was filled by laymen, and very satisfactorily too.

The New York weekly Tribune circulates over two hundred thousand copies. What a power adhesion to principle ultimately attains.

A high Chinese official has issued an order forbidding idolatrous processions, and advising the people to spend less time in heathen temples.

The Baptist Publication Society of New York has fitted up rooms in Broadway for its own purposes and as a denominational headquarters. They have been thrown open for the first time, on which occasion the Baptists in New York and vicinity met socially.

Wells's Seminary for young ladies, at Aurora, Cayuga county, New York, which with its furnishings cost over $150,000, and is a free gift by Henry Wells, the great expressman, to the cause of education, was dedicated a few days ago with appropriate ceremonies. Addresses were made by Mr. Wells, Charles J. Folger, Rev. Dr. Prime, George W. Curtis, and William H. Begart.

MORE EDUCATIONAL GIFTS.—It is announced that Joseph Kingman, of Barrington, New Hampshire, has given $10,000 to Dartmouth college to endow scholarships, and leaves an equal amount to Exeter Academy for the use of indigent students.

A ROMAN CATHOLIC BISHOP BURNED TO DEATH.—By a sad accident Bishop B. J. Spaulding, of the Catholic Church, was burned to death last week at Louisville, Kentucky. A mosquito bar over the bed accidentally caught fire, and in trying to extinguish the flames the Bishop's own clothes caught fire, and he was burned so that he died on the following day.

GERMAN WORK IN TEXAS.—We have before us a report from Presiding Elder Gustavus Elley, of the German district. He says their work increases, and they feel the need of more laborers. Since the above came to hand we have advice of the erection of a church in Industry of the value of $1500, and of another in the same district of the value of $1000 in gold.

UTICA—Colored State Convention,—It should be remembered by those interested, that a State convention of colored people is called to meet in Utica, on the sixth day of October next, and the signers of the call urgently request the colored men of every part of the State to attend or send delegates. The object is the elevation and improvement of their race, the obtaining of equal rights with other citizens, etc.

The Southern Christian Advocate has a correspondent who discourses thus amiably about the African Methodist Episcopal Church:

The Methodist Episcopal Church wishes to own them. They offer them political rights wrested from Southern white men, social equality, etc., if in turn they will turn over their members and votes to that Church, and to Radicalism. They will be bought by the thousand. If their would-be purchasers will buy up their "chief men," or sustain a thorough-bred "carpet-bagger," in their community low enough to "affiliate" and "miscegenate," their purchase is effected.

And of the Methodist Episcopal Church as follows:

She intends to be the "Church of the future," she purposes seeing the South suppliant at her feet. To effect this she forms an adulterous alliance with the State, and unless Providence places insuperable barriers in her way, she will be yet, not what she once was, "the witnessing Church," but an "abomination that maketh desolate."

The same journal takes the Episcopalian Bishops Wilmer and Beckwith severely to task for their proposition to absorb the South Methodists of Georgia.

The Protestant Episcopalians, composed in Georgia largely of energetic Northern men and ministers, eleven out of eighteen ministers in the convention being from the Northern States or England, are wide awake, and under the lead of their energetic and gifted Bishop, are preparing for a fierce crusade against Methodism especially. Now I have too many intimate connections with the Episcopal Church, and have too much regard for many of her communicants, to willingly say anything which is disrespectful of her; but as a Methodist, conscientiously of opinion that Methodism is not a sect but a church, that Methodists are striving not to reproduce the church of Augustine, or Chrysostom, or Clement, but the church of Christ, of Paul, and James, and John, and that she is far more an Apostolic church than the present Episcopal Church of America, in forms, in doctrines, and in unity.

Ames' Methodist Episcopal Church.

There will be preaching every Sabbath at 11 A. M. in Dr. Newman's church, corner of St. Charles and Calliope streets, and social meetings for conference and prayer every Sunday and Thursday evening from eight to nine o'clock in the lecture room. You are invited.

Defaulters.

Andrew Johnson's office holders are providing for themselves liberally from the Government funds, in anticipation of being dismissed with their friend, the President, to private life. A while since it was a Brooklyn tax collector, then a New Orleans postmaster, now the Buffalo post office furnishes the criminal, the last figure was $250,000.

Church Burning.

Some Democratic negroes have been threatening to burn our church in Houma, Louisiana. The leader was arrested and held under a bond for $500 to keep the peace. These colored proselytes to the Democracy are fast learning its usages and principles, burning churches, orphan asylums, etc, Mobbing and murdering preachers and school teachers will follow naturally.

Infamous.

The New Orleans Cresent, in an article highly eulogizing a sort of military Democratic parade on last Saturday evening, says:

There was a feature in this gathering we wish to notice. In the rear of the Southrons were a gathering or procession of little fellows, with their transparencies—some of them hardly out of their swaddling clothes. How holy and confiding is the trust of woman in the goodness of the Almighty! In any other cause those little boys would not be out of their mothers' sight five minutes; but those mothers trust to the sacred honor of the Democratic cause, and let their little ones come forth to swell the concourse which is marching toward the temple of freedom.

Book Notices.

Krull & Dickey, No. 106 Canal street, Booksellers and Publishers, have placed upon our book table several valuable publications.

Dr. Smith's "New Testament History," a book of 780 pages, with maps and woodcuts. It is of great value historically; giving, in a simple and interesting manner, the connection between the Old and New Testament; our Lord's ministry, and the Apostolic epoch down to the destruction of Jerusalem. Its popular style will make it acceptable to all readers.

"Barnes on the Psalms," Vol. 1, 374 pages. Barnes's notes need no notice or eulogy; their fame is world wide. Scholars and lovers of wisdom only need be told where to find them. The sale of more than a million copies of this author's notes on the Bible prove their value.

"Cape Cod; and, All Along Shore," by Herdhoff, 235 pages, with an address "To the Stupid Reader." Several interesting stories, one of them "The Struggle for Life of a Methodist Minister."

We have also received from Garigues & Co., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, "Guide to Palestine," by Osborne, with a fine colored map, useful to Sunday school teachers and Bible readers.

The Campaign.

NUMBER ONE.

NEW ORLEANS, August 24.

MR. EDITOR:

I have uniformly heretofore declined writing or speaking on politics, but as in this case there is a great public end to be subserved, and the campaign is distinguished above all others of its kind in importance, I cordially weild my pen in defense of Peace, Union, Liberty, and Justice, and in opposition to mobocracy, secession, slavery, and injustice.

The reign of rebel-Democratic tyranny in Mississippi, Texas, and Virginia, and the shadow of its colossal power which is thrown upon Northern Louisiana, give us a deep interest in all that concerns its force and designs. The so-called Democratic party in Louisiana has been thus far defeated in the State elections. The people have been promptly and eloquently warned of their danger by the New Orleans Republican, New Orleans ADVOCATE, Homer Iliad, and other patriotic papers; and these faithful watchmen have not only received praises, but have been rewarded by seeing loyal, liberty-loving men elected to high positions in the government over the rebel-Democratic and Copperhead candidates. But the numerical inferiority of the false Democratic vote should not inspire us with any feeling of entire security.

Since the proclamation of "general amnesty" by President Johnson the enemy is equally subtle and formidable.

Were there an army of savage Indians in the Southern States equal in number to the false Democratic and Copperhead party in the United States, and professing the same designs, the whole people, North, South, East, and West, would be ready to arm against it. The cry "our liberties are in danger!" would go forth from one end of the country to the other, and a spirit would be aroused whose first breath would drive the foe from the soil.

Yet this so-called Democratic party is far more dangerous to our liberties than the army of savage Indians we imagined. It comes among us in the name of the party of peace, liberty, and union of States; it professes to be devoted to the Constitution of the United States and the Stars and Stripes; its steals into the bosom of the people with an aspect as meek as its designs are sinister; and it is only when its doings in Southern portions of the Union are exhibited that the cloven foot is discovered; and we find it aspiring to regain the "Lost Cause," arrogating universal suffrage, assuming to lay its iron grasp upon the rights of American citizens, and secretely applying the torch to our civil, religious, and educational institutions.

What this Copperhead-rebel-Democratic party has already done in the United States is portrayed in the many orphans and widows traveling in our streets homeless and destitute, and the innumerable graves in our country.

Some of the Northern States are now ruled by Copperheads and so-called Democrats. Everywhere in those States is opposition to universal education, liberty, and universal suffrage. There is not a Goveror of those States which is not in the keeping of the Copporheads and rebel-Democracy, and entirely subservient to their ghostly guidance. The President of the United States himself is an imbecile, without firmness to prosecute even an evil course with vigor, but from that very weakness the more thoroughly the tool of the Copperhead and rebel-Democratic party. What work is it that Andrew Johnson begins or ends without their advice? Who are his advisers? Not his cabinet, certainly. Who wrote those adroit vetoes? Who concocts those innumerable plans which are so profoundly veiled till the fitting moment comes to reveal them? Who is it? It is difficult to believe that all this work is done by one man, and that man he who took the oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and impartially and faithfully to execute the laws of Congress. We may guess the authors of this "my policy" by observing who most largely share in its fruits. No new honor descends upon Andrew Johnson, but its beams are reflected on the Copperhead and rebel-Democratic party. Does the President veto? It is for the benefit of the Copperhead and rebel-Democrats. Does he found a new office? He fills it with the same.

Thus, wherever we look the President is nothing; his cabinet he regards as nothing; but the Copperhead rebel-Democratic party are everything. The foot of their tyrannical power is on the necks of citizens of Mississippi, Texas, Virginia, and Northern Louisiana; the garote of oppression is at their throats. With such a crew governing this republic what have American citizens to expect? Only this, that when these conspirators against the Constitution and laws of the United States have ascended into power they will attempt to extinguish the last sparks of civil liberty. They are at this moment working in the dark to undermine our Constitutional liberties, and to return three million of American citizens to slavery. They are crawling into every accessible place.

But they are not the persons to stop here. Assuredly they will again attempt to complete by force of arms what they have begun in snares and falsehood; and we would but show that we are the greatest simpletons that ever lived if we expected anything like justice, liberty, peace, or union at their hands, that are yet dyed in the blood of men and women murdered on account of their devotion to the Stars and Stripes.

Respectfully,

F. K. HYDE.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, August 19.

The funeral of the great Stevens, or rather the religious service connected with the removal of his remains, took place in the rotunda of the capitol last Friday morning. It was a solemn and memorable scene. By some necessary change in time of holding these exercises, a number of prominent persons did not reach the capitol till the close. Rev. Messrs. Emory and Hamilton, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Rev. Mr. Gray, of the Baptist Church, and chaplain to the House, conducted the service; the last-named delivered an appropriate address. There was no deficiency in the public tribute of respect, except on the part of the government. We learn the President declined to issue the order for the close of public offices and the display of flags at half-mast.

Such tributes to the memory of deceased Congressmen are customary, especially when Congress is in session, as it is now officially. The order to suspend business could not be construed into a personal respect of the President to Mr. Stevens, but an official act, expressive of nothing personal one way or the other.

The accounts from Lancaster and along the route to it indicate the universal and deep sorrow experienced by the community, and the mournful reverence paid to his remains as they pass to their "long home."

The Howard University is doing a good work in the cause of education. Its infancy, like all similar institutions, is connected with a struggle for want of funds. The Board now calls for aid. May the friends of humanity respond liberally.

A proposition has been recently made to purchase General O. O. Howard a residence in this city by the contribution of one cent from every colored man, woman, and child in the country. The enterprise is a good one. Who deserves more at the hands of the colored people than General Howard? It will be a grand tribute to his patriotic zeal and humanity, and a monument that will comfort him and his family at all seasons. Most beautiful sites can and ought now to be had in the environs of the city for such a home.

The National Savings Bank, with headquarters here, is developing most important facts relative to economy and enterprise of the freedmen. It has doubled its capital within a year, now amounting to nearly three-fourths of a million of dollars in government bonds. These are the aggregate investments of persons who deposit small surplus earnings. Its branches spread over the South and Southwest, and ought to engage the attention of every one who has a dime to save.

A somewhat serious effort is now being made to revive the trade of this District, which is at this time much prostrated. We have but a single railroad connecting the city with the business world. It is proposed to add two more—one to Point of Rocks, the other to tap the Alexandria, Loudon, and Hampshire road, about three miles from Georgetown. The latter will open up a very fertile part of Loudon county, Virginia, and set the flower mills of Georgetown to running as in former days. Alexandria has no capital, and never will have till she atones for her legalized violation of the Lord's day.

New Orleans may learn a lesson on this subject.

There is at this time a singular and gratifying awakening among the Society of Friends. They are all aglow with zeal in the cause of education, moral and religious improvement, especially among the colored people. A friend of mine charged some of his Quaker friends with turning Methodists. He told him in reply that they had discovered "A live Methodist was better than a dead Quaker," adding that "they thought emancipation would be the salvation of their Church; it opened a field for zealous work." There is force and beauty in the thought.

A noble contribution was made last week to the Metropolitan church by a lady in New York of a $1200 communion service.

The camp meeting heretofore named begins next Friday near Annopolis Junction. The complaint made in certain quarters about Sunday excursion trains will have no force here; none will be run. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company cheerfully complies with the request of the camp meeting committee in this respect, and indeed in all others.

Notwithstanding the encouraging reports of Mrs. Senator Trumbull's condition, she has passed to her rest. Her remains were removed yesterday to Illinois.

The President, part of his family, and heads of departments and their families, attended the services preparatory to removal of the remains to their permanent rest. The character and benevolent works of Mrs. Trumbull deserve more than a passing notice. The orphans of soldiers and sailors shared her attention; and their comfortable home on Capitol Hill—the former residence of Vice-President R. M. Johnson—is the result of her Christian efforts. It was a touching incident in the services of yesterday that these well-dressed, orderly children, with throbbing hearts and tearful eyes, gathered around her bier and contributed their part to the urn of affection. They marched in procession to the railway station, where arranged in open file they stood while the corpse and attendants passed between them. They stood in mute reverence gazing on the casket; the precious jewel had gone to mingle with the spirits of their fathers', who had bled and died in their country's cause. Mrs. Trumbull was a Presbyterian. Rev. Mr. Chester, her pastor, conducted the religious services most appropriately. The respect due to her memory and remains was perfect.

Secretary Schofield's son died last week at his grandfather's, at West Point. There was no suspension of business at the War Department during the funeral services.

Rev. John Tappan, of the Zion Methodist church, stationed at John Wesley in this city, died last night.

MORDECAI.

Misrepresentations.

The Episcopal Methodist, of Baltimore, experiences a holy horror on the occasion of our friend, Chaplain Whittemore, being sworn in as a member of Congress from South Carolina. Hear him:

We give this as a sample of other ecclesiastical carpet-baggers who are aspirants for State Legislature or Congressional honors. The unblushing indecency with which this business is carried on by means of missionary and church extension societies will not be allowed to go unrebuked. The fact has become known in certain quarters, where large sums have been contributed for purely benevolent purposes, but finding their confidence had been abused and their money misapplied, have resolved to make no more contributions in that direction. Mr. Whittemore may yet prove the truth of the proverb, "Terrors and snares are in the way of the forward."

Perhaps it will relieve the brotherly anxietv of Dr. Bond to learn that Brother Whittemore has not been supported by the Missionary Society, but since the war has been in the employ of the Freedmen's Bureau as Superintendent of Education in his District. Of course all ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church who labor in the South are "ecclesiastical carpet-baggers," "pious mendicants," etc. This sort of slang, and such misrepresentations as the above, suit the market and will continue to fill the organs of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

A Triumphant Death.

The following is the obituary of Mrs. D. Randall, the daughter of Mrs. ex-Governor Wright. We take the liberty of giving the names as an additional assurance of the fact, and with the consent of the mother of the deceased. It was our happiness to know the departed in the beauty of her womanhood, and we now recall her beautiful Christian life only with admiration and affection. Reader, may the Lord bless the reading of this obituary to your eternal good.

GLORIOUS DYING.—Never in the course of my pastoral experience has death been so transfigured and glorified as in the case of Mrs. D. Randall, who at high noon on Friday, March 27, entered into the full blaze of that celestial glory which had for three days previous shone around her most marvellously.

Ever animated by a sincere pity for the poor and the sick, she employed much of her time in visiting and relieving them. An ardent love for children made her a successful Sabbath-school and Bible class teacher (her first effort being the charge of the infant class at the Sabbath school of the Five Points Mission). When removed from this city she still found her highest pleasure in the continuation of such labors. During her subsequent residence in the city of Brooklyn God owned her efforts as a Bible-class teacher by giving many souls for her hire, and she ceased from these chosen labors only when disabled by sickness.

For three years she was a greatly suffering invalid, yet no one ever heard a word of complaint, nor even when her physical energies were utterly exhausted, a single groan from her lips. Her trust in Jesus was exceedingly simple, just like a little child's, and it availed to keep her in perfect peace. When death squarely confronted her, this quiet trust suddenly assumed the proportions of a colossal faith, and for three days she walked the well-fought field "more than conqueror." Her countenance was seraphic; all her words were triumphant; the glory which shone around her painted smiles upon faces and extorted shouts of praise from the lips of the circle of her nearest kindred. No words can portray the Tabor-splendor of that scene. A few out of the multitude of her own utterances may best suggest it. On Tuesday evening her mother and sister were hastily summoned, and as her mother advanced toward her she stretched out her hands and rapturously cried: "O mother! I'm going up—I'm going up—you see I'm going up! O the ineffable glory! What a glorious approach! Did you think God would have been so good to me, mother?" She then received the Holy Eucharist with the greatest joy; took a tender leave of some dear friends present, uttering faithful words of counsel; entreating all to meet her in heaven; distributed some keepsakes, and eagerly waited for the glad moment of her release. To me she said: "Don't, don't don't, DON'T utter any eulogy for me." While I was reading the twenty-third Psalm she stopped at the word valley, and said: "There is no valley," and as I finished reading the seventh chapter of Rev.: "There are no tears to be wiped out now," she seemed almost impatient to be gone, saying to the attending physician: "Is it not most over, doctor? Feel my other pulse—is it not weaker? I hope it is. O for that rest! Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly. Please, Jesus, take me, take me, take me now! I am so afraid I shall not realize that ineffable bliss tonight!" Her husband replied, "Be patient a little longer." She said, "Could you only see what I see you would know why I long to go." The next morning, while enduring the same keen suffering she had borne so long, earnest prayer was offered for her relief; her pain was immediately and entirely removed for twenty-four hours, thus affording her family the richest season of communion with her, and on the following night she abode in the third heaven of calm and holy rapture. Such a sense of the Divine presence rested upon all present that their mouths were filled with praise and thanksgiving:

"And heaven came down their souls to meet,
While glory crowned His mercy-seat."

She conversed freely on the subject of the exchange of worlds, giving her views with a calm and holy joy. She asked, "Is this death?" Her husband read the hymn "Vital spark." She remarked: "I enjoy every word of that. Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." Toward morning she repeated two lines of the hymn:

"Jesus, lover of my soul.
Let me to Thy bosom fly."

Her sister took up the next couplet, but was checked with, "No more, no more of that; there is no near water nor tempest around me."

Her constant desire to depart led her often to ask, "Is not my pulse weaker? Are not my nails turning purple? Is it not most over with me?" And when told by her mother that her feet were already in the Jordon, she replied most emphatically, with her face beaming with joy, "Oh! I am so glad." One said, "Still no dread of death?" All her remaining strength seemed concentrated in the reply: "Impossible to have any."

Her last words on the hither-shore were, "Jesus is peace, Jesus is peace." Who can tell her first words on the other side?

CYRUS D. FOSS.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

From Mississippi.

EDITOR ADVOCATE:

JACKSON, Miss., August 22,

On the eve of my departure for Yazoo city I drop these hasty lines to the ADVOCATE that those interested in the progress of our religious work may know that notwithstanding the fierce political storm which has raged and still continues with unabated fury, attacking the Methodist Episcopal Church with a deeper malignity than it is even wont to vent upon the Republican party, the old "mother Church" holds up her head in defiance. She hangs no harp on the willows, but all are sounding with joyful notes for triumph in the extension of the Master's kingdom. Colored Methodist preachers and people love it as they love their lives. If I were to mention the prodigious work accomplished on some of our circuits and stations by our preachers it might be regarded by strangers as a boastful exaggeration. New societies are being formed, and though the people are very poor, in some instances they manage to get up a log or rough beard church, and very soon the Sunday school and day school is formed. Letters are lying on my table from Rev. Jesse Fearn, of Shubuta circuit, Rev. Owen Jones, of Enterprise, Rev. Wesley Jones, of Macon, Rev. A. Handy, of Canton, Rev. E. Scarborough, of Durant, announcing large accessions and revivals of great power. If we could only get money to buy or build churches at several important points, the influence of our church would penetrate every nook and corner of the State.

I have been prominent in politics in order to aid reconstruction, and thus have been made the victim of untold persecution and vile slander. I am in constant peril while traveling, but yet "none of these things move me," for I have faith in the triumph of righteousness, liberty, and justice, and while I shall exercise no rashness in exposing my life, yet I do not mean to yield an inch of ground, or abate my zeal for the elevation of my race by building up the Methodist Episcopal church in this State.

Some of the preachers of my district have exhibited a courage, in going into localities where their lives were threatened, that challenged my admiration and almost excited my jealousy. If it were not for fear of making an invidious distinction I would mention their names.

A great deal of good has been done by Rev. Moses Adams, of Jackson station, who recently made at my request a tour in the eastern part of our work.

Colonel Morgan informed me recently that a colored preacher of the African Methodist Episcopal Church had, at Yazoo city, denounced the Methodist Episcopal Church as a grand swindling concern, and myself, as its agent, swindling the colored people out of their means and inciting them to hostility to the white people. This preacher, Mr. Johnson, is the strongest colored Democrat in the State. The Democratic organ, taking stock in Johnson's misrepresentations, made inflammatory appeals to the passions of the people against me and the Church I represent. Under these circumstances I go to Yazoo city to hold a quarterly meeting next Saturday and Sunday, and I feel confident that if no assassin strikes me down, this lover of Southern Democracy and the Methodist Episcopal Church South will find himself, if he has not already, alone in his glory, with no one to "second his motion," living under the contempt of his own race.

I am happy to state that this preacher's elder, Rev. T. W. Stringer, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, who is a Christian gentleman and patriot, has no sympathy with him, and has called him to an account for his recreancy.

I will write you next week from Yazoo city. JAMES LYNCH,
Presiding Elder Jackson District.

Personal.

FROM THE MISSION ROOMS.—We are advised of the arrival of Rev. Henry G. Jackson at Buenos Ayres. Dr. Goodfellow says, under date of June 27: "He has been very cordially received, and no welcome could be more agreeable, nor could any prospects of usefulness be finer than those before Brother Jackson in this place."

The above-named missionary was at one time pastor of Ames M. E. church in this city, and in charge of the Thomson Biblical Institute. He was shot through the lungs by a policeman at the thirtieth of July massacre, and almost miraculously recovered. His friends here will rejoice at his safe arrival in South America, with his wife and little ones. We trust he will be eminently useful and happy.

The New York Advocate says:

Rev. W. M. Henry, assistant editor of the New Orleans ADVOCATE, is spending a few days in this city, looking after the interests of his paper. He reports the work of the M. E. Church in the Southwest as gradually and safely on the advance. The New Orleans ADVOCATE is increasing in circulation, and its permanency as a publication is no longer doubtful. On Sunday Mr. Henry preached in the morning in the John street and in the evening in the Washington street M. E. church.

Dr. Lanahan and Rev. J. H. Vincent, the recent appointees to posts at the Book Room, are becoming familiar with the duties of their new and responsible positions. They will not disappoint the hopes of the Church in their election.

Bishop Thomson's address will be Delaware, Ohio, until October 15. A new building is now in process of erection for the Bishop in Evanston.

J. Hale Sypher and W. Jasper Blackburn, of the Louisiana Congressional delegation, have returned from Washington.

General Howard has started for the South. His object is to visit all the principal bureau stations, and confer with his officers as to the best manner of reducing the force preparatory to winding up the bureau affairs on the first of January. He will also investigate the requirements of the educational branch, when the other functions of the bureau have been discontinued.

Secretary Welles has informed Congress that Captain Reynolds, of the United States navy, has raised the American flag on two islands in the Pacific, about midway between the Sandwich Islands and Japan. They are small, and uninhabited, but contain a fine harbor, and will be valuable as a station for our shipping in the Pacific. Unlike Secretery Seward's acquisitions, they require no purchase money.

Mr. Edward C. Delavan has authorized the Hon. William E. Dodge, President of the National Temperance organization, to draw on him for $10,000 for the advancement of the temperance reform.

Rev. Hardy Ryan writes from Monrovia, Africa, to the Colonization Rooms, under date July 11: "The Golcondia arrived here, all well, the nineteenth June, after a short and pleasant passage of thirty-four days from Savannah, Georgia. Please write to Rev. Dr. Newman, and ask him to please send me the New Orleans ADVOCATE, and that I am well, and in Liberia. Ask him to tell Mr. Lafayette, a brick maker in New Orleans, to come on as soon as he can, and bring all the means he can get with him, for this is the place where he is wanted."

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.—Rev. Dr. P. G. Bowman, of the South Carolina Conference, is spending a few weeks in New York city. Last Sabbath he occupied the pulpit of the South Third street Methodist Episcopal church, Brooklyn. He is to preach in the John street church.

Last week's Nashville Advocate states that Bishop Paine, at the last advices, was not improved in health. He remains in a somnolent condition, incapable of holding continous conversation. He is in a comfortable religious state, prepared for the great change which it is feared may soon take place.

A GRATIFYING INSTANCE OF LIBERALITY.—When Rev. F. S. DeHass, of Washington, D. C., was last in our city he visited a lady living about twenty miles from New York to solicit a donation for the Metropolitan Church. He was not only received kindly by the good sister, whose modesty will not allow her name to appear, but she presented him with a magnificent silver communion service, valued at twelve hundred dollars, for his church, gave him a good dinner, sent him to the depot in her carriage, and quietly slipped a five dollar bill in his hand to pay expenses on coming so far to see her.

Parabole de l'Enfant Prodigue.

Un homme avait deux fils,

Dont le plus jeune dit à son père: Mon père donne-moi la part du bien qui me doit écheoir. Ainsi le père leur partagea son bien.

Et peu de jours après, ce plus jeune fils ayant tout amassé, s'en alla dehors dans un pays éloigné, et il y dissipa son bien en vivant dans la débauche.

Après qu'il eut tout dépensé, il survint une grande famine en ce pays-là; et il commença à être dans l'indigence.

Après il s'en alla, et se mit au service d'un des habitants de ce pays-là, qui l'envoya dans ses possessions, pour paître les pourceaux.

Et il eût bien voulu se rassasier des carrouges que les pourceaux mangeaient; mais personne ne lui en donnait.

Etant donc rentré en lui-même, il dit: Combien y a-t-il de gens aux gages de mon père, qui ont du pain en abondance, et moi je meurs de faim!

Je me leverai, et je m'en irai vers mon père, et je lui dirai: Mon père, j'ai péché contre le ciel, et contre toi;

Et je ne suis plus digne d'être appelé ton fils: Traite-moi comme l'un de tes domestiques.

Il partit donc, et vint vers son père. Et comme il était encore loin, son père le vit, et fut touché de compassion; et courant à lui, il se jeta à son cou, et le baisa.

Et son fils lui dit: Mon père j'ai péché contre le ciel et contre toi, et je ne suis plus digne d'être appelé ton fils.

Mais le père dit à ses serviteurs: Apportez la plus belle robe, et l'en revêtez, et mettez-lui un anneau au doigt, et des souliers aux pieds;

Et amenez un veau gras, et le tuez; mangeons, et réjouissons-nous;

Parce que mon fils que voici était mort, et il est revenu à la vie; il était perdu, mais il est retrouvé. Et ils commencèrent à se réjouir.

Cependant son fils aîné, qui était à la campagne, revint; et comme il approchait de la maison, il entendit des chants et des danses.

Et il appela un des serviteurs, à qui il demanda ce que c'était.

Et le serviteur lui dit: Ton frère est de retour, et ton père a tué un veau gras, parce qu'il l'a recouvré en bonne santé.

Mais il se mit en colère, et ne voulut point entrer. Son père donc sortit et le pria d'entrer.

Mais il répondit à son père: Voici il y a tant d'années que je te sers, sans avoir jamais contrevenu à ton commandement, et tu ne m'as jamais donné un chevreau pour me réjouir avec mes amis.

Mais quand ton fils que voilà, qui a mangé tout ton bien avec des femmes débauchées, est revenu, tu as fait tuer un veau gras pour lui.

Et son père lui dit: Mon fils, tu es toujours avec moi, et tout ce que j'ai est à toi.

Mais il fallait bien faire un festin et se réjouir, parce que ton frère que voilà était mort, et est revenu à la vie; il était perdu, et il est retrouvé. Luc, 15: 11-32.

Le Protestantisme en France.

Depuis 1825 les Protestants en France ont érigé 150 nouvelles églises pour recevoir ceux qu'on avait convertis et detournés de la Papauté. A Paris en 1825 il n'y avait que deux temples protestants; il y en a maintenant 40, sans compter les huit chapelles étrangères; de sorte que le nombre d'églises est maintenant de 50. Dans le midi de la France, à cette époque, il n'y en avait que 50; mais depuis le nembre s'est monté à 300. En 1802 il n'y avait pas dans toute la France un seul journal protestant pour défendre et maintenir la cause de la vraie religion; dans ce moment il y a plus de vingt de ces journaux religieux dans le pays.

Bishop Janes is now in New York city, having returned from the session of the Delaware Conference (colored) in Philadelphia. He reports the work among our colored brethren as hopeful. The bishop is to officiate at the dedication of the new Wesley M. E. church on Tompkins avenue, Brooklyn.

DIED:

CAMBIAS—At quarter to six o'clock on Monday, the twenty fourth instant, CHARLES WILLIAM CAMBIAS, aged nineteen years and ten months.

The deceased was the eldest son of our brother Cambias, residing at No. 563 Greatmen street. About two weeks ago he was badly burned at an explosion in Goulding's foundry, with two other young men. He bore an excellent character and was quite a help to his parents. While lingering on a bed of pain his mind was busied with heavenly things, and at his request the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to him, in company with the family and friends. There is good reason to believe he has gone where sin and sorrow never enters.

MANN—On Wednesday morning, twenty-fifth instant, at half-past seven o'clock, JAMES MANN, member of Congress from Louisiana, and a native of Maine.

WALKER—In this city on Tuesday evening, August 25, of marasmus, JAMES WASHINGTON, child of James and Mary Walker, aged twenty months.

PRANG'S AMERICAN CHROMOS are fac similies of Oil and Water Color Paintings by the best masters. They are artistic copies; and in most cases fully equal to the originals. An eminent critic says of our

CHROMOS OF TAIT'S GROUPS:

"Mr. Louis Prang, of Boston, whose efforts to disseminate through the country faithful copies of our wild flowers, butterflies, moths, and birds in such pretty forms, and so cheaply as to drive out of the market all inferior publications, has just issued a Chromo-lithograph, in oils, of one of Mr. A. F. Tait's clever little pictures. The Chromo-lithograph is a perfect fac simile of the original painting, reproducing not only the brush marks, but the very lines of the canvass in a way that surprises by its ingenuity. Mr. Prang tries with all his might to make his imitations absolutely deceptive, not for the purpose of deceiving, but in order to put faithful copies 'as good as the originals' within the reach of small purses. He brings to the work knowlenge, business energy, and enthusiasm, and what is more, a generous spirit toward art and artists, which is very pleasant to meet with. He has our cordial thanks for what he has already done, and our trust that he will do his best to educate the class he works for in the love of what is true as well as beautiful."

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Passed at the Second Session of the Fortieth Congress.

[PUBLIC—No. 79.]

AN ACT imposing taxes on distilled spirits and tobacco, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there shall be levied and collected on all distilled spirits on which the tax prescribed by law has not been paid, a tax of fifty cents on each and every proof gallon, to be paid by the distiller, owner, or person having possession thereof before removal from distillery warehouse; and the tax on such spirits shall be collected on the whole number of gauge or wine gallons when below proof, and shall be increased in proportion for any greater strength than the strength of proof spirit as defined in this act; and any fractional part of a gallon in excess of the number of gallons in a cask or package shall be taxed as a gallon. Every proprietor or possessor of a still, distillery, or distilling apparatus, and every person in any manner interested in the use of any such still, distillery, or distilling apparatus, shall be jointly and severally liable for the taxes imposed by law on the distilled spirits produced therefrom, and the tax shall be a first lien on the spirits distilled, the distillery used for distilling the same, the stills, vessels, fixtures, and tools therein, and on the lot or tract of land whereon the said distillery is situated, together with any building thereon from the time said spirits are distilled until the said tax shall be paid.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That proof spirit shall be held and taken to be that alcoholic liquor which contains one-half its volume of alcohol of a specific gravity of seven thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine ten-thousandths (.7939) at sixty degrees Farenheit; and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, for the prevention and detection of frauds by distillers of spirits, is hereby authorized to adopt and prescribe for use such hydrometers, saccharometers, weighing and gauging instruments, meters, or other means for ascertaining the quantity, gravity, and producing capacity of any mash, wort, or beer used or to be used in the production of distilled spirits, and the strength and quantity of spirits subject to tax, as he may deem necessary; and he may prescribe rules and regulations to secure a uniform and correct system of inspection, weighing, marking, and gauging of spirits. And in all sales of spirits hereafter made, a gallon shall be taken to be a gallon of proof spirit, according to the foregoing standard set forth and declared for the inspection and gauging of spirits throughout the United States. The tax on brandy made from grapes shall be the same and no higher than that upon other distilled spirits; and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue is hereby authorized, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to exempt distillers of brandy from apples, peaches, or grapes exclusively, from such other of the provisions of this act relating to the manufacture of spirits as in his judgment may seem expedient.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That whenever the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall adopt and prescribe for use any meter, meters, or meter safes, it shall be the duty of every owner, agent, or superintendent of a distiller to furnish and attach at his own expense such meter, meters, or meter safes as may have been prescribed for use at his distillery, and to furnish all the pipes, materials, labor, and facilities necessary to complete such attachment in accordance with the regulations of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who is hereby further authorized to order and require such changes of or additions to distilling apparatus, connecting pipes, pumps, or cisterns, or any machinery connected with or used in or on the distillery premises, or may require to be put on any of the stills, tubs, cisterns, pipes, or other vessels, such fastenings, locks, or seals as he may deem necessary.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That distilled spirits, spirits, alcohol, and alcoholic spirit, within the true intent and meaning of this act, is that substance known as ethyl alcohol, hydrated oxide of ethyl, or spirit of wine, which is commonly produced by the fermentation of grain, starch, molasses, or sugar, including all dilutions and mixtures of this substance; and the tax shall attach to this substance as soon as it is in existence as such, whether it be subsequently separated as pure or impure spirit, or be immediately, or at any subsequent time, transferred into any other substance, either in the process of original production or by any subsequent process; and no mash, wort, or wash fit for distillation or the production of spirits or alcohol shall be made or fermented in any building or on any premises other than a distillery duly authorized according to law; and no mash, wort, or wash so made and fermented shall be sold or remove from any distillery before being distilled; and no person other than an authorized distiller shall by distillation, or by any other process, separate the alcoholic spirits from any fermented mash, wort, or wash; and no person shall use spirits or alcohol, or any vapor of alcoholic spirits in manufacturing vinegar or any other article, or in any process of manufacture whatever, unless the spirits or alcohol so used shall have been produced in an authorized distillery and the tax thereon paid. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be fined, for every offense, not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned for not less than six months nor more than two years: Provided, That nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to fermented liquors.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That every person having in his possession or custody, or under his control, any still or distilling apparatus set up, shall register the same with the assistant assessor of the division in which said still or distilling apparatus shall be, by filing with him duplicate statements, in writing, subscribed by such person, setting forth the particular place where such still or distilling apparatus is set up, the kind of still and its cubic contents, the owner thereof, his place of residence, and the purpose for which said still or distilling apparatus has been or is intended to be used; one of which statements shall be retained and preserved by the assistant assessor and the other transmitted to the assessor of the district. Stills and distilling apparatus now set up shall be so registered within sixty days from the time this act takes effect, and those hereafter set up shall be so registered immediately upon their being set up. Any still or distilling apparatus not so registered, together with all personal property in the possession or custody, or under the control of such person and found in the building, or in any yard or enclosure connected with the building, in which the same shall be set up, shall be forfeited. And any person having in his possession or custody, or under his control, any still or distilling apparatus set up which is not so registered, shall pay a penalty of five hundred dollars, and on conviction shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, and imprisoned for not less than one month nor more than two years.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That every person engaged in, or intended to be engaged in, the business of a distiller or rectifier, shall give notice in writing, subscribed by him, to the assessor of the district within which such business is to be carried on, stating his name and place of residence, and if a company or firm, the name and place of residence of each member thereof, the place where said business is to be carried on, and whether of distilling or rectifying. And if such business be carried on in a city, the residence and place of business shall be indicated by the name of the street and number of the building. In case of a distiller the notice shall also state the kind of stills, and the cubic contents thereof, the number and kind of boilers, the number of mash tubs and fermenting tubs, and the cubic contents of each tub, the number of receiving cisterns, and the cubic contents of each cistern, together with a particular description of the lot or tract of land on which the distillery is situated, with the size and description of the building thereon, and of what material constructed. The notice shall also state the number of hours in which the distiller will ferment each tub of mash or beer, the estimated quantity of distilled spirits which the apparatus is capable of distilling every twenty-four hours, and the names and residence of every person interested or to be interested in the business, and that said distillery and the premises connected therewith are not within six hundred feet of any premises authorized to be used for rectifying or refining distilled spirits by any process. In case of a rectifier, the notice shall state the precise location of the premises where such business is to be carried on, the name and residence of every person interested or to be interested in the business, by what process the applicant intends to rectify, purify, or refine distilled spirits, the kind and cubic contents of any still used or to be used for such purpose, and the estimated quantities of spirits which can be rectified, purified, or refined every twenty four hours in such establishment, and that said rectifying establishment is not within six hundred feet of the premises of any distillery registered for the distillation of spirits. In case of any change in the location, form, capacity, ownership, agency, superintendency, or in the persons interested in the business of such distillery or rectifying establishment, or in the time of fermenting the mash or beer, notice thereof, in writing, shall be given to the said assessor or to the assistant assessor of the division within twenty-four hours of said change. And any assistant assessor receiving such notice shall immediately transmit the same to the assessor of the district. Every notice required by this section shall be in such form and shall contain such additional particulars as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may from time to time prescribe. Any person failing or refusing to give such notice shall pay a penalty of one thousand dollars, and on conviction shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two thousand dollars, and any person giving a false or fraudulent notice shall, on conviction, in addition to such penalty or fine, be imprisoned not less than six month nor more than two years.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That every distiller shall, on filing his notice of intention to continue or commence business with the assessor before proceeding with such business, after the passage of this act and on the first day of May of each succeeding year, make and execute a bond in form prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with at least two sureties, to be approved by the assessor of the district. The penal sum of said bond shall not be less than double the amount of tax on the spirits that can be distilled in his distillery during a period of fifteen days; but in no case shall such bond be for a less sum than five thousand dollars. The condition of the bond shall be that the principal shall faithfully comply with all the provisions of law in relation to the duties and business of distillers, and will pay all penalties incurred or fines imposed on him for a violation of any of the said provisions; that he will not suffer the lot or tract of land on which the distillery stands, or any part thereof, or any of the distilling apparatus, to be incumbered by mortgage, judgment, or other lien during the time in which he shall carry on said business. The assessor may refuse to approve said bond when in his judgment the situation of the distillery is such as would enable the distiller to defraud the United States; and in case of such refusal the distiller may appeal to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, whose decision in the matter shall be final. A new bond may be required in case of the death, insolvency, or removal of either of the sureties, and in any other contingency, at the discretion of the assessor or Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Any person failing or refusing to give the bond hereinbefore required, or to renew the same, or giving any false forged, or fraudulent bond, shall forfeit the distillery, distilling apparatus, and all real estate and premises connected therewith, and on conviction shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars, nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months, nor more than two years.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That no bond of a distiller shall be approved unless he is the owner in fee, unincumbered of any mortgage, judgment, or other lien, of the lot or tract of land on which the distillery is situated, or unless he files with the assessor, in connection with his notice, the written consent of the owner of the fee, and of any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other person having a lien thereon, duly acknowledged, that the premises may be used for the purpose of distilling spirits, subject to the provisions of law, and expressly stipulating that the lien of the United States for taxes and penalties shall have priority of such mortgage, judgment, or other incumbrance, and that in case of the forfeiture of the distillery premises, or any part thereof, the title of the same shall vest in the United States discharged from any such mortgage, judgment, or other incumbrance. In any case where the owner of a distillery or distilling apparatus, erected prior to the passage of this act, has an estate for a term of years only, in the lot or tract of land on which the distillery is situated, the lease or other evidence of title to which shall have been duly recorded prior to the passage of this act, the value of such lot or tract of land, together with the building and distilling apparatus shall be appraised in the manner to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; and the assessor is hereby authorized to accept, in lieu of the said written consent of the owner of the fee, the bond of said distiller with not less than two sureties, who shall be residents of the collection district or county, or an adjoining county in the same State in which the distillery is situated, and shall be the owners of unincumbered real estate in said district or county, or adjoining county, equal to such appraised value. The penal sum of said bond shall be equal to the appraised value of said lot or tract of land together with the buildings and distilling apparatus, and such bonds shall be conditioned that in case the distillery, distilling apparatus, or any part thereof, shall, by final judgment be forfeited for the violation of any of the provisions of law, the obligors will pay the amount stated in said bond. Said bond shall be in such form as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall prescribe.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, That every distiller and person intending to engage in the business of a distiller shall, previous to the approval of his bond, cause to be made, under the direction of the assessor of the district, an accurate plan and description, in triplicate, of the distillery and distilling apparatus, distinctly showing the location of every still, boiler, doubler, worm tub, and receiving cistern, the course and construction of all fixed pipes used or to be used in the distillery, and of every branch thereof, and of every cock or joint thereof, and of every valve therein, together with every place, vessel, tub, or utensil from and to which any such pipe shall lead, or with which it communicates. Such plan and description shall also show the number and location and cubic contents of every still, mash tub, and fermenting tub, together with the cubic contents of every receiving cistern, and the color of each fixed pipe, as required in this act. One copy of said plan and description shall be kept displayed in some conspicuous place in the distillery; two copies shall be furnished to the assessor of the district, one of which shall be kept by him and the other transmitted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The accuracy of every such plan and description shall be verified by the assessor, the draughtsman, and the distiller; and no alteration shall be made in such distillery without the consent in writing, of the assessor, which alteration shall be shown on the original or by a supplemental plan and description, and a reference thereto noted on the original, as the assessor may direct; and any supplemental plan and description shall be executed and preserved in the same manner as the original.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That immediately after the passage of this act every assessor shall proceed, at the expense of the United States, with the aid of some competent and skillful person, to be designated by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to make survey of each distillery registered or intended to be registered for the production of spirits in his district, to estimate and determine its true producing capacity, and in like manner shall estimate and determine the capacity of any such distillery as may hereafter be so registered in said district, a written report of which shall be made in triplicate, signed by the assessor and the person aiding in making the same, one copy of which shall be furnished to the distiller, one retained by the assessor, and the other immediately transmitted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. If the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall at any time be satisfied that such report of the capacity of a distillery is in any respect incorrect or needs revision, he shall direct the assessor to make in like manner another survey of said distillery; the report of said survey shall be executed in triplicate and deposited as hereinbefore provided.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That after the passage of this act it shall not be lawful for any assessor to assess a special tax upon any distiller, or for the collector to collect the same, or for any distiller who has heretofore paid a special tax as such to continue the business of distilling until such distiller shall have given the bond required by this act and shall have complied with the provisions of law having reference to the registration and survey of distilleries, and having reference to the arrangement and construction of distilleries, and the premises connected therewith, in manner and as required by this act; nor shall it be lawful for any assessor of internal revenue to assess, or for any collector to collect, any special tax for distilling on any premises distant less than six hundred feet from any premises used for rectifying, nor shall any assessor assess or collector collect any special tax for rectifying distilled spirits on any premises distant less than six hundred feet from any distillery when the distillery and rectifying establishments are occupied and used by different persons; nor shall the processes of distillation and rectification both be carried on within the distance of six hundred feet. In all cases where a distillery and rectifying establishment, distant the one from the other less than six hundred feet, are occupied and used by the same person, said person shall have the right to elect which business shall be discontinued at that place. In all cases where rectifying or distilling shall be discontinued under the provisions of this section, and the time for which the special tax for rectifying or distilling was paid remains unexpired, the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to refund out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, on requisition of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, a proportionate part of any sum originally paid for special tax therefor, which shall be in such ratio to the whole sum paid as the unexpired time for which special tax was paid shall bear to the whole term for which the same was paid. Any collector or assessor of internal revenue who shall fail to perform any duty imposed by this section, or shall assess or collect any special tax in violation of its provisions, shall be liable to a penalty of five thousand dollars for each offense.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That no person shall use any still, boiler, or other vessel for the purpose of distilling in any dwelling-house, nor in any shed, yard, or enclosure connected with any dwelling house, nor on board of any vessel or boat, nor in any building or on any premises where beer, lager beer, ale, porter, or other fermented liquors, vinegar or other are manufactured or produced, or where sugars and syrups are refined, or where liquors of any description are retailed, or where any other business is carried on, nor within six hundred feet from any premises authorized to be used for rectifying; and every person who shall use any still, boiler, or other vessel for the purpose of distilling, as aforesaid, in any building or other premises where the above specified articles are manufactured, produced, refined, or retailed, or other business is carried on, or on board of any vessel or boat, or in any dwelling house, or other place as aforesaid, or shall aid or assist therein, or who shall cause or procure the same to be done, shall, on conviction, be fined one thousand dollars and imprisoned for not less than six months nor more than two years, in the discretion of the court: Provided, That saleratus may be manufactured, or meal or flour ground from grain in any building or on any premises where spirits are distilled; but such meal or flour only to be used for distillation on the premises.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted, That there shall be assessed and collected monthly, from every authorized distiller whose distillery has an aggregate capacity for mashing and fermenting twenty bushels of grain or less, or sixty gallons of molasses or less, in twenty-four hours, a tax of two dollars per day, Sundays excepted; and a tax of two dollars per day for every twenty bushels of grain or sixty gallons of molasses of said capacity in excess of twenty bushels of grain or sixty gallons of molasses in twenty four hours. But any distiller who shall suspend work, as provided by this act, shall pay only two dollars per day during the time the work shall be so suspended in his distillery.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That any person who shall manufacture any still, boiler, or other vessel, to be used for the purpose of distilling, shall, before the same is removed from the place of manufacture, notify in writing the assessor of the district in which such still, boiler, or other vessel is to be used or set up, by whom it is to be used, its capacity, and the time when the same is to be removed from the place of manufacture; and no such still, boiler, or other vessel shall be set up without the permit in writing of the said assessor for that purpose; and any person who shall set up any such still, boiler, or other vessel, without first obtaining a permit from the said assessor of the district in which such still, boiler, or other vessel is intended to be used, or who shall fail to give such notice, shall pay in either case the sum of five hundred dollars, and shall forfeit the distilling apparatus thus removed or set up in violation of law.

SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That every distiller shall provide, at his own expense, a warehouse, to be situated on and to constitute a part of his distillery premises, to be used only for the storage of distilled spirits, of his own manufacture; but no dwelling-house shall be used for such purpose, and no door, window, or other opening shall be made or permitted in the walls of such warehouse leading into the distillery or into any other room or building; and such warehouse, when approved by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, on report of the collector, is hereby declared to be a bonded warehouse of the United States, to be known as a distillery warehouse, and shall be under the direction and control of the collector of the district, and in charge of an internal revenue storekeeper assigned thereto by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; and the tax on the spirits stored in such warehouse shall be paid before the removal from such warehouse.

SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That the owner, agent or superintendent of any distillery, established as hereinbefore provided, shall erect, in a room or building to be provided and used for that purpose, and for no other, and to be constructed in the manner to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, two or more receiving cisterns, each to be at least of sufficient capacity to hold all the spirits distilled during the day of twenty-fours, into which shall be conveyed all the spirits produced in said distillery; and each of such cisterns shall be so constructed as to leave an open space of at least three feet between the top thereof and the floor or roof above, and of not less than eighteen inches between the bottom thereof and the floor below, and shall be so situated that the officer can pass around the same, and shall be connected with the outlet of the worm or condenser by suitable pipes or other apparatus so constructed as always to be exposed to the view of the officer, and so connected and constructed as to prevent the abstraction of spirits while passing from the outlet of the worm or to condenser back to the still or doubler, or forward the receiving cistern; such cisterns and the room in which they are contained shall be in charge of and under the lock and seal of the internal revenue gauger designated for that duty; and on the third day after the spirits are conveyed into such cisterns the same shall be drawn off into casks under the supervision of such gauger in the presence of the storekeeper, and be removed directly to the distillery warehouse; and on special application to the assessor or assistant assessor by the owner, agent, or superintendent of any distillery, the spirits may be drawn off from the said cisterns under the supervision of the gauger at any time previous to the third day. All locks and seals required by law shall be provided by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at the expense of the owner of the distillery or warehouse; and the keys shall be in charge of the collector or such gauger as he may designate.

SEC. 17. And be it further enacted, That the door of the furnace of every still or boiler used in any distillery shall be so constructed that it may be securely fastened and locked. The fermenting tubs shall be so placed as to be easily accessible to any revenue officer, and each tub shall have distinctly painted thereon in oil colors its cubic contents in gallons, and the number of the tub. There shall be a clear space of not less than one foot around every wood still, and not less than two feet around every doubler and worm tank. The doubler and worm tanks shall be elevated not less than one foot from the floor; and every fixed pipe to be used by the distiller, except for conveyance of water, or of spent mash or beer only, shall be so fixed and placed as to be capable of being examined by the officer for the whole of its length of course, and shall be painted, and kept painted, as follows, that is to say: Every pipe for the conveyance of mash or beer shall be painted of a red color; every pipe for the conveyance of low wines back into the still or doubler shall be painted blue; every pipe for the conveyance of spirits shall be painted black; and every pipe for the conveyance of water shall be painted white. If any fixed pipe shall be used by any distiller which shall not be painted or kept painted as herein directed, or which shall be painted otherwise than as herein directed, he shall forfeit the sum of one thousand dollars. No assessor shall approve the bond of any distiller until all the requirements of the law and all regulations made by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in relation to distilleries, in pursuance thereof shall have been complied with. Any assessor who shall violate the provisions of this section shall forfeit and pay two thousand dollars, and shall be dismissed from office.

SEC. 18. And be it further enacted, That every person engaged in distilling or rectifying spirits, and every wholesale liquor dealer and compounder of liquors shall place and keep conspicuously on the outside of his distillery, rectifying establishment, or place of business a sign, in plain and legible letters, not less than three inches in length, painted in oil colors or gilded, and of a proper and proportionate width, the name or firm of the distiller, rectifier, wholesale dealer, or compounder, with the words: "Registered distillery," "rectifier of spirits," "wholesale liquor dealer" or "compounder of liquors," as the case may be; and no fense or wall of a height greater than five feet shall be erected or maintained around the premises of any distillery so as to prevent easy and immediate access to said distillery; and every distiller shall furnish to the assessor of the district as many keys of the gates and doors of the distillery as may be required by the assessor from time to time for any revenue officer or other person who may be authorized to make survey or inspections of the premises or of the contents thereof; and said distillery shall be kept always accessible to any officer or person having such key. Any person who shall violate any of the foregoing provisions of this section by negligence or refusal, or otherwise, shall pay a penalty of five hundred dollars. Any person not having paid the special tax as required by law, who shall put up the sign required by this section, or any sign indicating that he may lawfully carry on the business of a distiller, rectifier, wholesale liquor dealer, or compounder of liquors, shall forfeit and pay one thousand dollars, and on conviction shall be imprisoned not less than one month nor more than six months; and any person who shall work in any distillery, rectifying establishment, wholesale liquor store, or in the store of any compounder of liquors, on which no sign shall be placed and kept as hereinbefore provided, and any person who shall knowingly receive at, carry or convey any distilled spirits to or from any such distillery, rectifying establishment, warehouse, or store, or who shall knowingly carry and deliver any grain, molasses, or other raw material to any distillery on which such sign shall not be placed and kept, shall forfeit all horses, carts drays, wagons, or other vehicle or animal used in carrying or conveying of such property aforesaid, and on conviction shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned not less than one month nor more than six months.

SEC. 19. And be it further enacted, That every person making or distilling spirits, or owning any still, boiler, or other vessel so used for the purpose of distilling spirits, or having such still, boiler, or other vessel so used under his superintendence, either as agent or owner, or using any such still, boiler, or other vessel shall from day to day make, or cause to be made, true and exact entry in a book or books, to be kept by him in such form as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe, of the kind of materials, and the quantity in pounds, bushels, or gallons purchased by him for the production of spirits, from whom and when purchased, and by what conveyance delivered at said distillery, together with the amount paid therefor, the kind and quantity of fuel purchased for use in the distillery, and for whom purchased, the amount paid for ice or water for use in the distillery, the repairs placed on said distillery or distilling apparatus, the cost thereof, and by whom and when made, and [of] the name and residence of each person employed in or about the distillery, and in what capacity employed; and in another book shall make like entry [of] the quantity of grain or other material used for the production of spirits, the time of day when any yeast or other composition is put into any mash or beer for the purpose of exciting fermentation, the quantity of mash in each tub, designating the same by the number of the tub, the number of dry inches, that is to say, the number of inches between the top of each tub and the surface of the mash or beer therein at the time of yeasting, the gravity and temperature of the beer at the time of yeasting, and on every day thereafter its quantity, gravity and temperature at the hour of twelve meridian; also the time when any fermenting tube is emptied of ripe mash or beer, the number of gallons of spirits distilled, the number of gallons placed in warehouse, and the proof thereof, and the number of gallons sold or removed, with the proof thereof and the name, place of business and residence of the person to whom sold; and every fermenting tub shall be emptied at the end of the fermenting period, and shall remain empty for a period of twenty-four hours. On the first, eleventh, and twenty-first days of each month, or within five days thereafter, respectively, every distiller shall render to the assistant assessor an account in duplicate, taken from his books, stating the quantity and kind of materials used for the production of spirits each day, and the number of wine gallons and of proof gallons of spirits produced and placed in warehouse. And the distiller or the principal manager of the distillery shall make and subscribe the following oath, to be attached to said return:

"I, —— ——, distiller, (or principal manager as of the case may be,) of the distillery at ——, do solemnly swear that since the date of the last return the business of said distillery, dated —— day of —— to —— day of ——, both inclusive there was produced in said distillery, and withdrawn and placed in warehouse, the number of wine gallons and proof gallons of spirits, and there were actually mashed and used in said distillery and consumed in the production of spirits therein, the several quantities of grain, sugar, molasses, and other materials respectively, hereinbefore specified, and no more."

The said book shall always be kept at the distillery, and be always open to the inspection of any revenue officer, and, when filled up, shall be preserved by the distiller for a period not less than two years thereafter, and whenever required shall be produced for the inspection of any revenue officer. If any false entry shall be made in either of said books, or any entry required to be made therein shall be omitted therefrom, for every such false entry made or omission, the distiller shall forfeit and pay a penalty of one thousand dollars. And if any such false entry shall be made, or any entry shall be omitted therefrom with intent to defraud or to conceal from the revenue officers any fact or particular required to be stated and entered in either of said books, or to mislead in reference thereto, or if any distiller as aforesaid shall omit or refuse to provide either of such books, or shall cancel, obliterate, or destroy any part of either of such books, or any entry therein, with intent to defraud, or shall permit the same to be done, or such books, or either of them, be not produced when required by any revenue officer the distillery, distilling apparatus, and the lot or tract of land on which it stands, and all personal property of every kind and description on said premises used in the business there carried on, shall be forfeited to the United States. And any person making such false entry or omitting to make any entry hereinbefore required to be made, with the intent aforesaid, or who shall cause or procure the same to be done, or who shall fraudulently cancel, obliterate or destroy any part of said books, or any entry therein, or who shall willfully fail to produce such books or either of them, on conviction, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years.

SEC. 20. And be it further enacted, That on receipt of the distiller's first return in each month, the assessor shall inquire and determine whether said distiller has accounted in his returns for the preceding month for all the spirits produced by him; and to determine the quantity of spirits thus to be accounted for, the whole quantity of materials used for the production of spirits shall be ascertained; and forty-five gallons of mash or beer brewed or fermented from grain shall represent not less than one bushel of grain, and seven gallons of mash or beer brewed or fermented from molasses shall represent not less than one gallon of molasses. In case the return of the distiller shall have been less than the quantity thus ascertained the distiller or other person liable shall be assessed for such deficiency at the rate of fifty cents for every proof gallon, together with the special tax of four dollars for every cask of forty proof gallons, and the collector shall proceed to collect the same as in cases of other assessments for deficiencies; but in no case shall the quantity of spirits returned by the distiller, together with the quantity so assessed, be for a less quantity of spirits than eighty per centum of the producing capacity of the distillery, as estimated under the provisions of this act.

SEC. 21. And be it further enacted, That the storekeeper assigned to any distillery warehouse shall also have charge of the distillery connected therewith; and, in addition to the duties required of him as a storekeeper in charge of a warehouse, shall keep in a book to be provided for that purpose, and in the manner to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, a daily account of all the meal and vegetable productions or other substances brought into said distillery, or on said premises, to be used for the purpose of producing spirits, from whom purchased, and when delivered at said distillery, the kind and quantity of all fuel used and from whom purchased, and of all repairs made on said distillery, and by whom and when made, the names and places of residence of all persons employed in or about the distillery, of the materials put into the mash tub or otherwise used for the production of spirits, the time when any fermenting tub is emptied of ripe mash or beer, recording the same by the number painted on said tub, and of all spirits drawn off from the receiving cistern, and the time when the same were drawn off. Any distiller or person employed in any distillery who shall use, cause, or permit to be used any material for the purpose of making mash, wort, or beer, or for the production of spirits, or shall remove any spirits in the absence of the storekeeper or person designated to act as said storekeeper, shall forfeit and pay double the amount of taxes on the spirits so produced, distilled, or removed, and, in addition thereto, be liable to a penalty of one thousand dollars.

SEC. 22. And be it further enacted, That every distiller, at the hour of twelve meridian, on the third day after that on which his bond shall have been approved by the assessor, shall be deemed to have commenced and thereafter to be continuously engaged in the production of distilled spirits in his distillery, except in the intervals when he shall have suspended work, as hereinafter authorized or provided. Any distiller desiring to suspend work in his distillery may give notice in writing to the assistant assessor of his division, stating when he will suspend work; and on the day mentioned in said notice said assistant assessor shall, at the expense of the distiller, proceed to fasten securely the door of every furnace of every still or boiler in said distillery, by locks and otherwise, and shall adopt such other means as the Commissioner of the Internal Revenue shall prescribe to prevent the lighting of any fire in such furnace or under such stills or boilers. The locks and seals, and other materials required for such purpose, shall be furnished to the assessor of the district by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to be duly accounted for by said assessor. Such notice by any distiller, and the action taken by the assistant assessor in pursuance thereof, shall be immediately reported to the assessor of the district, and by him transmitted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. No distiller, after having given such notice, shall, after the time stated therein, carry on the business of a distiller on said premises until he shall have given another notice in writing to said assessor, stating the time when he will resume work; and at the time so stated for resuming work the assistant assessor shall attend at the distillery to remove said locks and other fastenings; and thereupon, and not before, work may be resumed in said distillery, which fact shall be immediately reported to the assessor of the district, and by him transmitted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Any distiller after the time fixed in said notice declaring his intention to suspend work who shall carry on the business of a distiller on said premises, or shall have mash, wort, or beer in his distillery, or on any premises connected therewith, or who shall have in his possession or under his control any mash, wort, or beer, with intent to distil the same on said premises, shall incur the forfeitures and be subject to the same punishment as provided for persons who carry on the business of a distiller without having paid the special tax.

SEC. 23. And be it further enacted, That all distilled spirits shall be drawn from the receiving cisterns into casks, each of not less capacity than twenty gallons wine measure, and shall thereupon be gauged, proved, and marked by an internal revenue gauger, by cutting on the cask containing such spirits, in a manner to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the quantity in wine gallons, and in proof gallons, of the contents of such casks, and shall be immediately removed into the distiller warehouse, and the gauger shall, in presence of the storekeeper of the warehouse, place upon the head of the cask an engraved stamp, which shall be signed by the collector of the district and the storekeeper and gauger, and shall have written thereon the number of proof gallons contained therein, the name of the distiller, the date of the receipt in the warehouse, and the serial number of each cask, in progessive order, as the same shall be received from the distillery. Such serial number for every distillery shall begin with number one (No. 1) with the first cask deposited therein after this act takes effect, and no two or more casks warehoused at the same distillery shall be marked with the same number. The said stamp shall be as follows:

Distillery warehouse stamp No. ——.
Issued by —— ——, collector, —— district, State of ——. Distillery warehouse of ——, 18—, Cask No. ——, contents —— gallons, proof spirit.
—— ——, United States Storekeeper.
Attest: —— ——, United States Gauger.

And the distiller or owner of all spirits so removed to the distillery warehouse shall on the first, eleventh, and twenty-first days of each month, or within five days thereafter, enter the same for deposit in such warehouse, under such rules and regulations, not inconsistent herewith, as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe; and said entry shall be in triplicate and shall contain the name of the person making the entry, the designation of the warehouse in which the deposit is made, and the date thereof, and [shall] be in form as follows:

Entry for deposit in distillery warehouse.
Entry of distilled spirits deposited by —— ——, in distillery warehouse ——, in the —— district, State of ——, on the —— day of ——, Anno Domini ——

And the entry shall specify the kind of spirits, the whole number of casks, the marks and serial numbers thereon, the number of gauge or wine gallons and of proof gallons, and the amount of the tax on the spirits contained in them; all of which shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the distiller or owner of the same attached to the entry; and the said distiller or owner shall give his bond in duplicate, with one or more sureties satisfactory to the collector of the district, conditioned that the principal named in said bond will pay the tax on the spirits, as specified in the entry, or cause the same to be paid, before removal from said distillery warehouse, and within one year from the date of said bond; and the penal sum of such bond shall not be less than double the amount of the tax on such distilled spirits. One of said entries shall be retained in the office of the collector of the district, one sent to the storekeeper in charge of the warehouse, to be retained and filed in the warehouse, and one sent with the duplicate of the bond to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to be filed in his office.

SEC. 24. And be it further enacted, That any distilled spirits may, on payment of the tax thereon, be withdrawn from warehouse on application to the collector of the district in charge of such warehouse, on making a withdrawal entry, in duplicate, and in form as follows:

Entry for withdrawal of distilled spirits from warehouse. Tax paid.
Entry of distilled spirits to be withdrawn, on payment of the tax, from —— warehouse by —— ——, deposited on the —— day of ——, Anno Domini ——, by —— ——, in said warehouse.

And the entry shall specify the whole number of casks with the marks and serial numbers thereon, the number of gauge or wine gallons, and of proof gallons, and the amount of the tax on the distilled spirits contained in them; all of which shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the person making such entry; and on payment of the tax the collector shall issue his order to the storekeeper in charge of the warehouse for the delivery. One of said entries shall be filed in the office of the collector, and the other transmitted by him to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

SEC. 25. And be it further enacted, That whenever an order is received from the collector for the removal from any distillery warehouse of any cask of distilled spirits, on which tax has been paid, it shall be the duty of the gauger by whom the same is gauged and inspected, in presence of the storekeeper, before such cask has left the warehouse, to place upon the head thereof, in such manner as to cover no portion of any brand or mark prescribed by law already placed thereon, a stamp, on which shall be engraved the number of proof gallons contained in said cask on which the tax has been paid, and which shall be signed by the collector of the district, storekeeper, and gauger, and which shall state the serial number of the cask, the name of the person by whom the tax was paid, and the person to whom and the place where it is to be delivered; which stamp shall be as follows:

Tax paid stamp No. ——.
Received —— —— 18—, from —— ——, tax on —— gallons proof spirit, cask No. —, —— warehouse at ——, for delivery to —— at ——.
—— ——,
Collector —— District, State of ——.
Attest:
—— ——,
U. S. Storekeeper.
—— ——,
U. S. Gauger.

And at the time of affixing the tax-paid stamp or stamps, the gauger shall, in the presence of the storekeeper, cut or burn upon each cask the name of the distiller, the district, the date of the payment of [the] tax, the number of proof gallons, and the number of the stamp, which cutting or burning shall be erased when such cask is emptied, by cutting or burning a cancelling line across such marks or brands. Whenever any cask or package of rectified spirits shall be filled for shipment, sale, or delivery, on the premises of any rectifier, who shall have paid the special tax required by law, it shall be the duty of a United States gauger to gauge and inspect the same and place thereon an engraved stamp, which shall be signed by the collector of the district and the said gauger, and state the date when affixed, and the number of proof gallons, which stamp shall be as follows:

Stamp for rectified spirits No. ——.
Issued by —— ——, collector, —— district, State of ——.
—— ——, rectifier of spirits in the —— district, State of ——, —— ——, 18—, —— proof gallons.
—— ——,
U. S. Gauger.

Whenever any cask or package of distilled spirits shall be filled for shipment, sale, or delivery on the premises of any wholesale liquor dealer or compounder, it shall be the duty of a United States gauger to gauge and inspect the same, and place thereon an engraved stamp, signed by the collector of the district and the said gauger, stating the name of the compounder or dealer and the date when affixed, and the number of proof gallons, which stamp shall be as follows:

Wholesale liquor dealer's stamp No. ——.
Issued by —— ——, collector, —— district, State of ——.
—— ——, wholesale liquor dealer, of ——, —— district, State of ——, —— ——, 18—, —— proof gallons.
—— ——,
U. S. Gauger, —— District, State of ——.

All blanks in any of the above forms shall be duly filled in accordance with the facts in each case. And the stamps above designated shall be affixed so as to fasten the same securely to the cask or package and duly cancelled, and shall then be immediately covered with a coating of transparent varnish or other substance, so as to protect them from removal or damage by exposure; and such affixing, cancellation and covering shall be done in such manner as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall by regulation prescribe; but such stamps shall in every case be affixed to a smooth surface of the cask or other package, which surface shall not have been previously painted or covered with any substance.

SEC. 26. And be it further enacted, That all stamps required for distilled spirits shall be engraved in their several kinds in book form, and shall be issued by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to any collector, upon his requisition, in such numbers as may be necessary in the several districts. Each stamp shall have an engraved stub attached thereto with a number thereon corresponding with an engraved number on the stamp, and the stub shall not be removed from the book. And there shall be entered on the corresponding stub such memoranda of the contents of every stamp as shall be necessary to preserve a perfect record of the use of such stamp when detached.

SEC. 27. And be it further enacted, That every stamp for the payment of tax on distilled spirits shall have engraved thereon words and figures representing a decimal number of gallons, and a similar number of gallons shall be engraved on the stub corresponding to such stamp, and between the stamp and the stub and connecting them shall be engraved nine coupons, which, beginning next to the stamp, shall indicate in succession the several numbers of gallons between the number named in the stamp and the decimal number next above. And whenever any collector shall receive the tax on the distilled spirits contained in any cask, he shall detach from the book a stamp representing the denominate quantity nearest to the quantity of proof spirits in such cask, as shown by the gauger's return, with such number of the coupons attached thereto as shall be necessary to make up the whole number of proof gallons in said cask, and any quantity in addition to the number of full gallons less than one gallon shall be regarded as a full gallon; and all unused coupons shall remain attached to the marginal stub; and no coupon shall have any value or significance whatever when detached from the stamp and stub. And the tax paid stamps with the coupons may denote such number of gallons, not less than twenty, as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may deem advisable.

SEC. 28. And be it further enacted, That the books of tax-paid stamps issued to any collector shall be charged to his account at the full value of the tax on the number of gallons represented on the stamps and coupons contained in said books; and every collector shall make a monthly return to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue of all tax-paid stamps issued by him to be affixed to any cask or package containing distilled spirits, on which the tax has been paid, and account for the amount of tax collected; and when the said collector shall return to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue any book of marginal stubs, which it shall be his duty to do as soon as all the stamps contained in the book, when issued to him from the office of internal revenue, have been used, and shall have accounted for the tax on the number of gallons represented on the stamps and coupons that were contained in said book, there shall be allowed a commission of half of one per centum on the amount of the tax on spirits distilled after the passage of this act, in addition to any other commission by law allowed, which shall be equally divided between the collector receiving the tax and the assessor of the district in which the distilled spirits were produced. All stamps relating to distilled spirits other than the tax-paid stamps shall be charged to collectors as representing the value of twenty-five cents for each stamp; and the books containing such stamps may be intrusted by any collector to the gauger of the district, who shall make a daily report to the assessor and collector of all such stamps used by him and for whom used, and from these reports the assessor of the district shall assess the person for whom they were used, and the collector shall thereupon collect the amount due for such stamps at the rate of twenty-five cents for each stamp issued during the month; and when all the stamps contained in any such book shall have been issued the gauger of the district shall return the book to the collector with all the marginal stubs therein.

SEC. 29. And be it further enacted, That any revenue officer who shall affix or cancel, or cause or permit to be affixed or cancelled, any stamp relating to distilled spirits required or provided for in this act in any other manner or in any other place, or who shall issue the same to any other person than as provided by law, or regulation made in pursuance thereof, or who shall knowingly affix or permit to be affixed any such stamp to any cask or package of spirits of which the whole or any part has been distilled, rectified, compounded, removed, or sold, in violation of law, or which has in any manner escaped payment of tax due thereon, shall, for every such offense, be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than three thousand dollars, and be imprisoned for not less than six months nor more than three years.

SEC. 30. And be it further enacted, That if any distiller shall desire to reduce the producing capacity of his distillery, he shall give notice of such intention in writing to said assessor, stating the quantity of spirits which he desires thereafter to manufacture or produce every twenty-four hours, and thereupon said assessor shall proceed, at the expense of the distiller, to reduce and limit the producing capacity of the distillery to the quantity stated in said notice, by placing upon a sufficient number of the fermenting tubs close-fitting covers, which shall be securely fastened by nails, seals, and otherwise, and in such manner as to prevent the use of such tubs without removing said covers or breaking said seals, and shall adopt such other precautions as shall be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to reduce the capacity of said distillery. And any person who shall break, injure, or in any manner tamper with any lock, seal, or other fastening applied to any furnace, still, or fermenting tub, or other vessel, in pursuance of the provisions of this act, or who shall open or attempt to open any door, tub, or other vessel which shall have been locked or sealed, or otherwise closed or fastened as herein provided, or who shall use any furnace, still, or fermenting tub, or other vessel which shall be so locked, sealed or fastened, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and, on conviction, shall be fined not less than one thousand dollars, nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned for not less than one year, nor more than three years.

SEC. 31. And be it further enacted, That whenever any officer shall require that the water contained in any worm tub in a distillery, at any time when the still shall not be at work, shall be drawn off, and the tub and worm cleansed, the water shall forthwith be drawn off, and the tub and worm cleansed by the distiller or his workmen accordingly; and the water shall be kept and continued out of such worm tub for the space of two hours, or until the officer has finished his examination thereof; and for any refusal or neglect to comply with the requisition of the officer in this behalf, or the provision in this clause contained, the distiller shall forfeit the sum of one thousand dollars, and it shall be lawful for the officer to draw off such water, or any portion of it, and to keep the same drawn off for so long a time as he shall think necessary.

SEC. 32. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for any revenue officer, at all times, as well by night as by day, to enter into any distillery, or building, or place, used for the business of distilling or in connection therewith, for storage or other purposes, and to examine, gauge, measure, and take an account of every still or other vessel or utensil of any kind, and of all low wines, and of the quantity and gravity of all mash, wort, or beer, and of all yeast, or other compositions for exciting or producing fermentation in any mash or beer, and of all spirits and of all materials for making or distilling spirits, which shall be in any such distillery or premises, or in the possession of the distiller; and if any revenue officer, or any person called by him to his aid, shall be hindered, obstructed, or prevented by any distiller or by any workman, or other person acting for such distiller or in his employ, from entering into any such distillery, or building, or place as aforesaid; or if any such officer shall be by the distiller, or his workman, or any person in his employ, prevented or hindered from, or opposed, or obstructed, or molested in the performance of his duty under this act, in any respect, the distiller shall forfeit the sum of one thousand dollars. If any officer, having demanded admittance into a distillery or premises of a distillery, and having declared his name and office, shall not be admitted into such distillery or premises by the distiller or other person having charge of the same, it shall be lawful for such officer, at all times, as well by night as by day, to break open by force any of the doors or windows, or to break through any of the walls of such distillery or premises necessary to be broken open or through, to enable him to enter the said distillery or premises; and the distiller shall forfeit the sum of one thousand dollars.

SEC. 33. And be it further enacted, That on the demand of any revenue officer, every distiller, rectifier, or compounder of spirits shall furnish strong, safe, and convenient ladders of sufficient length to enable the officer to examine and guage any vessel or utensil in such distillery or premises; and shall at all times when required supply all assistance, lights, ladders, tools, staging, or other things necessary for inspecting the premises, stock, tools, and apparatus belonging to such person, and shall open all doors, and open for examination all boxes, packages, and all casks, barrels, and other vessels not under the control of a revenue officer in charge, under a penalty of five hundred dollars for every refusal or neglect so to do.

SEC. 34. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for any revenue officer, and any person acting in his aid to break up the ground on any part of the distillery or premises of a distiller, rectifier, or compounder of liquors, or any ground adjoining or near to such distillery or premises, or any wall or partition thereof, or belonging thereto, or other place, to search for any pipe, cock, private conveyance, or utensil; and upon finding any such pipe or conveyance leading therefrom or thereto, he may break up any ground, house, wall, or other place through or into which such pipe or other conveyance shall lead, and break or cut away such pipe or other conveyance, and turn any cock, or examine whether such pipe or other conveyance may convey or conceal any mash, wort, or beer, or other liquor which may be used for distillation of low wines or spirits from the sight or view of the officer, so as to prevent or hinder him from taking a true account thereof.

SEC. 35. And be it further enacted, That no malt, corn, grain, or other material shall be mashed, nor any wash, wort, or beer brewed or made, nor any still used by a distiller at any time between the hour of eleven in the afternoon of any Saturday and the hour of one in the forenoon of the next succeeding Monday; and any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty of one thousand dollars.

SEC. 36. And be it further enacted, That all distilled spirits found elsewhere than in a distillery or distillery warehouse, not having been removed therefrom according to law, shall be forfeited to the United States. And in case of the seizure of any distilled spirits found elsewhere than in a distillery, distillery warehouse, or other warehouse for distilled spirits authorized by law, or in the store or place of business of a rectifier, or of a wholesale liquor dealer, or of a compounder of liquors, or in transit from any one of said places; and in case of the seizure of any distilled spirits found in any one of the places aforesaid, or in transit therefrom, which shall not have been received into or sent out therefrom in conformity to law, or in regard to which any of the entries required by law to be made in the books of the owner of such spirits or of the storekeeper, wholesale dealer, rectifier, or compounder, have not been made at the time or in the manner required, or in respect to which the owner or person having possession, control, or charge of said spirits shall have omitted to do any act required to be done, or shall have done or committed any act prohibited in regard to said spirits, the burden of proof shall be upon the claimant of such spirits to show that no fraud has been committed, and that all the requirements of the law in relation to the payment of the tax have been complied with. And any person who shall remove, or shall aid or abet in the removal of any distilled spirits on which the tax has not been paid, to a place other than the distillery warehouse provided by law, or who shall conceal or aid in the concealment of any spirits so removed, or who shall remove or shall aid or abet in the removal of any distilled spirits from any distillery warehouse, or other warehouse for distilled spirits authorized by law, in any manner other than is provided by law, or who shall conceal, or aid in the concealment of any spirits so removed, shall be liable to a penalty of double the tax imposed on such distilled spirits so removed or concealed, and shall, on conviction, be fined not less than two hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than three months nor more than three years.

SEC. 37. And be it further enacted, That no person shall remove any distilled spirits at any other time than after sun-rising and before sun setting, in any cask or package containing more than ten gallons, from any premises or building in which the same may have been distilled, redistilled, rectified, compounded, manufactured, or stored, and every person who shall violate this provision shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each cask barrel, or package of spirits so removed; and said spirits, together with any vessel containing the same, and any horse, cart, boat, or other conveyance used in the removal thereof, shall be forfeited to the United States.

SEC. 38. And be it further enacted, That any person who shall add or cause to be added any ingredient or substance to any distilled spirits, before the tax imposed by law shall have been paid thereon, for the purpose of creating a fictitious proof, shall, on conviction, be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each cask or package so adulterated, and imprisoned not less than three months nor more than two years, and every such cask or package, with its contents, shall be forfeited to the United States.

SEC. 39. And be it further enacted, That any person who shall evade or attempt to evade the payment of the tax on any distilled spirits, in any manner whatever, shall forfeit and pay double the amount of the tax so evaded or attempted to be evaded; and any person who shall change or alter any stamp, mark, or brand on any cask or package containing distilled spirits, or who shall put into any cask or package spirits of greater strength than is indicated by the inspection mark thereon, or who shall fraudulently use any cask or package having any inspection mark or stamp thereon for the purpose of selling other spirits of quantity or quality different from the spirits previously inspected therein, shall forfeit and pay the sum of two hundred dollars for every cask or package on which the stamp or mark is so changed or altered or which is so fraudulently used, and, on conviction, shall be fined for each such offense not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than one month nor more than one year.

SEC. 40. And be it further enacted, That any person who shall knowingly use any false weights or measures in ascertaining, weighing, or measuring the quantities of grain, meal, or vegetable materials, molasses, beer, or other substances to be used for distillation, or who shall destroy, break, injure, or tamper with any lock or seal which may be placed on any cistern room or building, by the duly authorized officers of the revenue, or shall open said lock or seal, or the door to such cistern room or building, or shall in any manner gain access to the contents therein in the absence of the proper officer, shall, on conviction be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than one year nor more than three years; and any person who shall use any molasses, beer, or other substance, whether fermented on the premises or elsewhere, for the purpose of producing spirits, before an account for the same shall have been registered in the proper record book provided for that purpose, shall forfeit and pay the sum of one thousand dollars for each and every offense so committed.

SEC. 41. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for any internal revenue officer to detain any cask or package containing, or supposed to contain distilled spirits, when such officer has reason to believe the tax imposed by law upon the same has not been paid, or that the same is being removed in violation of law; and every such cask or package may be held by such officer at a safe place until it shall be determined whether the property so detained is liable by law to be proceeded against for forfeiture; but such summary detention shall not continue in any case longer than forty-eight hours, without process of law or intervention of the officer to whom such detention is to be reported.

SEC. 42. And be it further enacted, That no distillery nor distilling apparatus seized for any violation of law shall be released to the claimant or any intervening party before judgment, except in case of a distillery for which the special tax has been paid, and which has a registered producing capacity of one hundred and fifty proof gallons or more per day, on showing by sufficient affidavits that there are hogs or other live stock, not less than fifty head in number, depending for their feed on the products of said distillery which would suffer injury if the business of such distillery is stopped; such distillery in that case may be released to the claimant or any other intervening party, at the discretion of the court, on a bond to be given and approved in open court with two or more sureties for the full appraised value of all the property seized, which value shall be ascertained by three competent appraisers, to be designated and appointed by the court. In case of the seizure of and judgment of forfeiture against any distillery used or fit for use in the production af distilled spirits having a registered producing capacity of less than one hundred and fifty gallons per day, or of any distillery for the non-payment of the special tax, the still, stills, doubler, worm, worm tub, and all mash tubs and fermenting tubs shall be so destroyed as to prevent the use of the same, or any part thereof for the purpose of distilling; and the materials shall be sold as in case of other forfeited property.

SEC. 43. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of every person who empties or draws off, or causes to be emptied or drawn off, any distilled spirits from a cask or package bearing any mark, brand, or stamp required by law, at the time of emptying such cask or package, to efface and obliterate said mark, stamp, or brand. Any such cask or package from which said mark, brand, and stamp is not so effaced and obliterated as herein required, shall be forfeited to the United States, and may be seized by any officer of internal revenue wherever found. Any railroad company or other transportation company or person, who shall receive or transport, or have in possession with intent to transport, or with intent to cause or procure to be transported, any such empty cask or package, or any part thereof, having thereon any brand, mark, or stamp required by law to be placed on any cask or package containing distilled spirits, shall forfeit three hundred dollars for each such cask or package, or any part thereof so received or transported, or had in possession with the intent aforesaid; and any boat, railroad car, cart, dray, wagon, or other vehicle, and all horses or other animals used in carrying or transporting the same, shall be forfeited to the United States. Any person who shall fail or neglect to efface and obliterate said mark, stamp, or brand, at the time of emptying such cask or package, or who shall receive any such cask or package, or any part thereof with the intent aforesaid, or who shall transport the same, or knowingly aid or assist therein, or who shall remove any stamp provided by this act from any cask or package containing or which had contained distilled spirits, without defacing and destroying the same at the time of such removal, or who shall aid or assist therein, or who shall have in his possession any such stamp so removed as aforesaid, or have in his possession any cancelled stamp or any stamp which has been used, or which purports to have been used upon any cask or package of distilled spirits, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and on conviction shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than ten thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than one year nor more than five years.

SEC. 44. And be it further enacted, That any person who shall carry on the business of a distiller, rectifier, compounder of liquors, wholesale liquor dealer, retail liquor dealer, or manufacturer of stills, without having paid the special tax as required by law, or who shall carry on the business of a distiller without having given bond as required by law, or who shall engage in or carry on the business of a distiller with intent to defraud the United States of the tax on the spirits distilled by him, or any part thereof, shall for every such offense be fined not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years. And all distilled spirits or wines, and all stills and other apparatus, fit or intended to be used for the distillation or rectification of spirits or for the compounding of liquors, owned by such person, wherever found, and all distilled spirits or wines, and personal property found in the distillery or rectifying establishment, or in the store or other place of business of the compounder, or in any building, room, yard, or inclosure connected therewith, and used with or constituting a part of the premises; and all the right, title, and interest of such person in the lot or tract of land on which such distillery is situated, and all right, title, and interest therein of every person who knowingly has suffered or permitted the business of a distiller to be there carried on, or has connived at the same; and all personal property owned by or in possession of any person who has permitted or suffered any building, yard, or inclosure, or any part thereof, to be used for purposes of ingress or egress to or from such distillery which shall be found in any such building, yard, or inclosure, and all the right, title, and interest of every person in any premises used for ingress or egress to or from such distillery, who has knowingly suffered or permitted such premises to be used for such ingress or egress, shall be forfeited to the United States.

SEC. 45. And be it further enacted, That every rectifier, wholesale liquor dealer, and compounder of liquors shall provide himself with a book to be prepared and kept in such form as shall be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and shall on the same day on which he receives any spirits, and before he shall draw off any part thereof, or add water or anything thereto, or in any respect alter the same, enter in such book, and in the proper columns respectively prepared for the purpose, the date when, the name of the person or firm from whom, and the place whence the spirits were received, by whom distilled, rectified, or compounded, and when and by whom inspected, and if in the original package, the serial number of each package, the number of wine gallons and proof gallons, the kind of spirit, and the number and kind of adhesive stamps thereon; and every such rectifier, compounder, and wholesale dealer shall, at the time of sending out of his stock or possession any spirits, and before the same shall be removed from his premises, enter, in like manner in the said book, the day when, and the name and place of business of the person or firm to whom such spirits are to be sent, the quantity and the kind or quality of such spirits, and also the number of gallons and fractions of a gallon at proof; and if in the original packages in which they were received he shall enter the name of the distiller, and the serial number of the package. And every such book shall be at all times kept in some public or open place on the premises of such rectifier, wholesale dealer, or compounder of liquors respectively for inspection; and any revenue officer may make an examination of such book and take an abstract therefrom; and every such book, when it has been filled up as aforesaid, shall be preserved by such rectifier, wholesale liquor dealer, or compounder of liquors for a period not less than two years; and during such time it shall be produced by him to every revenue officer demanding the same; and if any rectifier, wholesale dealer, or compounder of liquors shall refuse or neglect to provide such book, or to make entries therein as aforesaid, or shall cancel, alter, obliterate, or destroy any part of such book, or any entry therein, or make any false entry therein, or hinder or obstruct any revenue officer from examing such book, or making any entry therein, or taking any abstract therefrom; or if such book shall not be preserved or not produced by any rectifier, or wholesale dealer, or compounder, as hereinbefore directed, he shall pay a penalty of one hundred dollars, and on conviction shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than three months, nor more than three years.

SEC. 46. And be it further enacted, That it shall not be lawful for any rectifier of distilled spirits, compounder of liquors, liquor dealer, wholesale or retail liquor dealer to purchase or receive any distilled spirits in quantities greater than twenty gallons from any person other than an authorized rectifier of distilled spirits, compounder of liquors, distiller, or wholesale liquor dealer. Any person violating this section shall forfeit and pay one thousand dollars: Provided, That this shall not be held to apply to judicial sales, nor to sales at public auction made by an auctioneer who has paid a special tax as such.

SEC. 47. And be it further enacted, That all distilled sprits drawn from any cask or other package, and placed in any other cask or package containing not less than ten gallons, and intended for sale, shall be again inspected and guaged, and the cask or package into which it is so transferred shall be marked and branded, and such marking and branding shall distinctly indicate the name of the gauger, the time and place of inspection, the proof of the spirits, the particular name of such spirits as known to the trade, together with the name and place of business of the dealer, rectifier, or compounder, as the case may be; and in all cases, except where such spirits have been rectified or compounded, the name also of the distiller and the distillery where such spirits were produced, and the serial number of the original package; and the absence of such mark or brand shall be taken and held as sufficient cause and evidence for the forfeiture of such unmarked packages of spirits.

SEC. 48. And be it further enacted, That on all wines, liquors, or compounds known or denominated as wine, and made in imitation of sparkling wine, or champagne, but not made from grapes grown in the United States, and on all liquors not made from grapes, currants, rhubarb, or berries grown in the United States, but produced by being rectified or mixed with distilled spirits, or by the infusion of any matter in spirits to be sold as wine, or by any other name, there shall be levied and paid a tax of six dollars per dozen bottles, each bottle containing more than one pint and not more than one quart; or three dollars per dozen bottles, each bottle containing more than one pint, and at the same rate for any quantity of such merchandise, however the same may be put up, or whatever be the package. And any person manufacturing, compounding, or putting up such wines shall without previous demand make return under oath or affirmation to the assistant assessor on the first and fifteenth day of each and every month, or within five days thereafter, of the entire amount of such wines manufactured and sold, or put up and sold during the first fifteen days of the month, and the residue of the month respectively, except when the wines so manufactured or put up are used exclusively by the family of the person manufacturing the same; and the tax herein imposed shall be payable at the time such return is made. And in case such manufacturer shall neglect or refuse to make such return within the time specified, the assessor shall proceed to ascertain the amount of tax due, as provided in other cases of a refusal or neglect to make returns, and shall assess the tax and add a penalty of fifty per centum to the amount; which said tax and also said penalty shall be collected in the manner provided for the collection of tax on monthly and other lists. Any person who shall fraudulently evade or attempt to evade the payment of the tax herein imposed, shall on conviction be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years.

SEC. 49. And be it further enacted, That the Secretary of the Treasury, on the recommendation of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, may appoint not exceeding twenty-five officers, to be called supervisors of internal revenue, each one of whom shall be assigned to a designated territorial district to be composed of one or more judicial districts and territories, and shall keep his office at some convenient place in his district to be designated by the Commissioner, and shall receive in addition to expenses necessarily incurred by him, and allowed and certified by the said Commissioner as a compensation for his services such salary as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may deem just and reasonable, not exceeding three thousand dollars per annum. It shall be the duty of every supervisor of internal revenue, under the direction of the Commissioner, to see that all laws and regulations relating to the collection of internal taxes are faithfully executed and complied with; to aid in the prevention, detection, and punishment of any frauds in relation thereto, and to examine into the efficiency and conduct of all officers of internal revenue within his district; and for such purposes he shall have power to examine all persons, books, papers, accounts, and premises and to administer oaths, and to summon any person to produce books and papers, or to appear and testify under oath before him, and to compel a compliance with such summons in the same manner as the assessors may do. It shall be the duty of every supervisor of internal revenue as aforesaid to report in writing to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue any neglect of duty, incompetency, delinquency, or malfeasance in office of any internal revenue officer within his district of which he may obtain knowledge, with a statement of all facts in each case, and any evidence sustaining the same; and he shall have power to transfer any inspector, guager, or storekeer from one distillery or other place of duty to another, from one collection district to another within his district, and may by notice in writing suspend from duty any such inspector, guager, or storekeeper, and in case of suspension shall immediately notify the collector of the proper district and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and within three days thereafter make report of his action and his reasons therefor in writing to said Commissioner, who shall thereupon take such further action as he may deem proper.

SEC. 50. And be it further enacted, That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall have power, whenever in his judgment the necessities of the service may require to employ competent detectives, not exceeding twenty-five in number at any one time, to be paid under the provisions of the seventh section of the "Act to amend existing laws relating to internal revenue, and for other purposes," approved March 2, 1867, and he may at his discretion assign any such detective to duty under the direction of any supervisor of internal revenue, or to such other special duty as he may deem necessary, and that from and after the passage of this act no general or special agent, or inspector, by whatever name or designation he may be known, of the Treasury Department in connection with the internal revenue, except inspectors of tobacco, snuff, and cigars, and except as provided for in this act, shall be appointed, commissioned, employed, or continued in office, and the term of office or employment of all such general or special agents or inspectors now authorized as aforesaid under employment at the time of the passage of this act shall expire ten days after this act shall take effect.

SEC. 51. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act no assessor or collector shall be detailed or authorized to discharge any duty imposed by law on any other collector or assessor, but a supervisor of internal revenue may, within his territorial district, suspend any collector or assessor for fraud, or gross neglect of duty, or abuse of power, and shall immediately report his action to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with his reasons therefor in writing, who shall thereupon take such further action as he may deem proper.

SEC. 52. And be it further enacted, That there shall be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury such number of internal revenue storekeepers as may be necessary, the compensation of each of whom shall be determined by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, not exceeding five dollars per day, to be paid by the United States, one or more of whom shall be assigned by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to every bonded or distillery warehouse established by law; and no such storekeeper shall be engaged in any other business while in the service of the United States without the written permission of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Every storekeeper shall take an oath faithfully to perform the duties of his office, and shall give a bond, to be approved by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the faithful discharge of his duties, in such form and for such amount as the Commissioner may prescribe. Every storekeeper shall have charge of the warehouse to which he may be assigned, under the direction of the collector controlling the same, which warehouse shall be in the joint custody of such storekeeper and the proprietor thereof, and kept securely locked, and shall at no time be unlocked and opened, or remain open, unless in the presence of such storekeeper or other person who may be designated to act for him as hereinafter provided; and no articles shall be received in or delivered from such warehouse except on an order or permit addressed to the storekeeper and signed by the collector or having control of the warehouse. Every storekeeper shall keep a warehouse book, which shall at all times be open to the examination of any revenue officer, in which he shall enter an account of all articles deposited in the warehouse to which he is assigned, indicating in each case the date of the deposit, by whom manufactured or produced, the number and description of the packages and contents, the quantities therein, the marks and serial numbers thereon, and by whom gauged, inspected, or weighed, and if distilled spirits, the number of guage or wine gallons and of proof gallons; and before delivering any article from the warehouse he shall enter in said book the date of the permit or order of the collector for the delivery of such articles, the number and description of the packages, the marks and serial numbers thereon, the date of delivery, to whom delivered, and for what purpose, which purpose shall be specified in the permit or order for delivery; and in case of delivery of any distilled spirits the number of guage or wine gallons and of proof gallons, shall also be stated; and such further particulars shall be entered in the warehouse books as may be prescribed or found necessary for the identification of the packages to insure the correct delivery thereof and proper accountability thereof [therefor]. A daily return shall be furnished by every storekeeper to the collector of the district of all articles received in and delivered from the warehouse during the day preceding that on which the return is made, a copy of which shall be mailed by him at the same time to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; and each storekeeper shall, on the first Monday of every month, make a report in triplicate of the number of packages of all articles, with the several descriptions thereof respectively, as above provided, which remained in the warehouse at the date of his last report, and of all articles received therein and delivered therefrom during the preceding month, and of all articles remaining therein at the end of said month; one of which reports shall be by him delivered to the assessor of the district, to be recorded and filed in his office; one delivered to the collector having control of the warehouse, to be recorded and filed in his office; and one transmitted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to be recorded and filed in his office. Any internal revenue storekeeper may be transferred by the supervisor of the district or by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue from one warehouse to any other. In case of the absence of any internal revenue storekeeper by sickness or from any other cause, the collector having control of the warehouse may designate a person to have temporary charge of such warehouse who shall, during such absence, perform the duties and receive the pay of the storekeeper for the time he may be so employed; and for any violation of the law he shall be subject to the same punishment as storekeepers. Any storekeeper or other person in the employment of the United States having charge of a bonded warehouse, who shall remove or allow to be removed any cask or other package therefrom without an order or permit of the collector, or which has not been marked or stamped in the manner required by law, or shall remove or allow to be removed any part of the contents of any cask or package deposited therein, shall be immediately dismissed from office or employment, and, on conviction, be fined not less than five hundred dollars, nor more than two thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than three months nor more than two years.

SEC. 53. And be it further enacted, That there shall be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury, in every collection district where the same may be necessary, one or more internal revenue gaugers, who shall each take an oath faithfully to perform his duties, and shall give his bond with one or more sureties, satisfactory to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, for the faithful discharge of the duties assigned to him by law or regulations; and the penal sum of said bond shall not be less than five thousand dollars, and said bond shall be renewed or strengthened as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may require. The duties of every such gauger shall be performed under the supervision and direction of the collector of the district to which he may be assigned, or of the collector in charge of exports at any port of entry to which he may be assigned. Fees for gauging and inspecting shall be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to be paid to the collector by the owner or producer of the articles to be gauged and inspected; and said collector shall retain all amounts so received as such fees until the last day of each month, when the aggregate amount of fees so paid that month shall, under regulation to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, be paid to the gauger or gaugers performing the duty. In no case, however, shall the aggregate monthly fees of any gauger exceed the rate of three thousand dollars per annum. All necessary labor and expense attending the gauging of any article shall be borne by the owner or producer of such articles. Every gauger shall, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, make a daily return, in duplicate; one to be delivered to the assessor and the other to the collector of his district, giving a true account, in detail, of all articles gauged and proved or inspected by him, and for whom, and the number and kind of stamps used by him. Any gauger who shall make any false or fraudulent inspection, gauging, or proof, shall pay a penalty of one thousand dollars, and, on conviction, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than three months nor more than three years.

SEC. 54. And be it further enacted, That a drawback shall be allowed upon alcohol and rum exported to foreign countries on which taxes have been paid under the provisions of this act when exported as herein provided for. The drawback allowed shall include the taxes levied and paid upon the alcohol or rum exported, not, however, exceeding sixty cents per gallon proof spirits, which shall be due and payable only after the proper entries and bonds have been executed and filed and all other conditions complied with as hereinafter required, and thirty days after the vessel has actually cleared and sailed on her voyage with such spirits on board and the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe such rules and regulations in relation thereto as may be necessary to secure the treasury of the United States against frauds. And if any person shall fraudulently claim or seek to obtain an allowance of drawback on any alcohol or rum, or shall fraudulently claim any greater allowance or drawback than the tax actually paid thereon, such person shall forfeit and pay to the government of the United States triple the amount wrongfully and fraudulently sought to be obtained, and, on conviction shall be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than ten years. And any owner, agent, or master of any vessel who shall knowingly aid or abet in the fraudulent collection or fraudulent attempt to collect any drawback upon rum or alcohol, or shall knowingly aid or permit any fraudulent change in the spirits so shipped, shall, on conviction, be fined five thousand dollars and imprisoned not less than one year, and the ship or vessel on board of which such shipment was made, or pretended to be made, shall be forfeited to the United States, whether a conviction of the master or owner be had or otherwise, and proceedings may be had in admiralty by libel for such forfeiture.

SEC. 55. And be it further enacted, That alcohol and rum may be exported with the privilege of drawback, in quantities not less than two thousand gallons, and in packages containing not less than thirty gallons each, on application of the owner thereof to the Collector of Customs at any port of entry, and under such rules and regulations, and after making such entries, and executing such bonds, and giving such other additional security as may be prescribed by law and the Secretary of the Treasury. The entry for such exportation shall be in triplicate, and shall contain the name of the person applying to export, the name of the distiller, and of the district in which the spirits were distilled, and the name of the vessel by which, and the name of the port to which, they are to be exported; and the form of the entry shall be as follows:

Export entry of distilled spirits entitled to drawback.
Entry of spirits distilled by —— ——, in —— district, State of ——, to be exported by —— ——, in the ——, whereof —— —— is master, bound to ——.

And the entry shall specify the whole number of casks or packages, the marks and serial numbers thereon, the quality or kind of spirits as known in commerce, the number of gauge or wine gallons and of proof gallons; and amount of the tax on such spirits shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the owner of the spirits, and that the tax has been paid thereon, and ttat they are truly intended to be exported to the port of ——, and not to be relanded within the limits of the United States; and said owner shall give his bond executed in duplicate, with one or more sureties satisfactory to said collector, conditioned that the principal named in said bond will export the spirits as specified in said entry to the port of ——, and that the same shall not be landed within the jurisdiction of the United States. The penal sum named in said bond shall be equal to not less than double the amount of the drawback on such spirits. For the discharge of any such export bond the same time shall be allowed, and the same certificates of landing and other evidence shall be required as is or may be provided and required for imported merchandise exported from the United States, that the said spirits have been landed at the port named or at any other port, beyond the jurisdiction of the United States. One bill of lading, duly signed by the master of the vessel, shall be deposited with said collector, to be filed at this office with the entry retained by him; one of said entries shall be, when the shipment is completed, transmitted, with the duplicate of the bond, to the Secretary of the Treasury, to be recorded and filed in his office. The lading on board said vessel shall be only after the receipt of an order or permit signed by the collector of customs, and directed to Customs Gauger, and after each cask or package shall have been distinctly marked or branded, by said gauger, as follows: "For export from U. S. A." The casks or packages shall be inspected and gauged alongside of or on the vessel by the gauger, designated by said collector, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe; and on application of the said collector, it shall be the duty of the surveyor of the port to designate and direct one of the custom-house inspectors to superintend such shipment. The gauger, as aforesaid, shall make a full return of such inspecting and gauging, certifying thereon that the shipment has been made, in his presence, on board the vessel named in the entry for export; which return shall be indorsed by said custom-house inspector, certifying that the casks or packages have been shipped under his supervision on board said vessel; and the said inspector shall make a similar certificate to the surveyor of the port, indorsed on, or to be attached to, the entry in possession of the custom-house: Provided, however, That no claim for drawback shall be allowed on either of the said articles which shall have been exported as aforesaid prior to the time at which this act shall take effect.

SEC. 56. And be it further enacted, That all distilled spirits in any bonded warehouse shall within nine months after the passage of this act be withdrawn from such warehouse, and the taxes paid on the same; and the casks or packages containing said spirits shall be marked and stamped and be subject in all respects to the same requirements as if manufactured after the passage of this act. And any distilled spirits remaining in any bonded warehouse for a period of more than nine months after the passage of this act shall be forfeited to the United States, and shall be sold or disposed of for the benefit of the same in such manner as shall be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury. And whenever in the opinion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue any distillery or other warehouse shall become unsafe or unfit for use, or the merchandise therein shall for any reason be liable to loss or great wastage, the Commissioner may discontinue such warehouse, and require that the merchandise therein shall be transferred to such other warehouse as may be designated by him within such time as he shall prescribe. Such transfer shall be made under the supervision of the collector, or such other officer as may be designated by the Commissioner; and the expense thereof shall be paid by the owner of the merchandise; and if the owner of such merchandise shall fail to make such transfer within the time prescribed, or to pay the just and proper expense of such transfer, as ascertained and determined by the Commissioner, such merchandise may be seized and sold by the collector, in the same manner as goods are sold upon distraint for taxes, and the proceeds of such sale shall be applied to the payment of the taxes due thereon and the costs and expenses of such sale and removal, and the balance paid over to the owner of such merchandise.

SEC. 57. And be it further enacted, That any person owning, or having in his possession, any distilled spirits intended for sale, exceeding in quantity fifty gallons, and not in a bonded warehouse at the time when this act takes effect, shall immediately make a return, under oath, to the collector of the district wherein such spirits may be held, stating the number and kind of packages, together with the marks and brands thereon, and the place where the same are stored, together with the quantity of spirits, as nearly as the owner can determine the same. Upon the receipt of such return the collector being first satisfied that the tax on said spirits has been paid, shall immediately cause the same to be gauged and proved by an internal revenue gauger, who shall mark by cutting, the contents and proof on each cask or package containing five wine gallons or more, and shall affix and cancel an engraved stamp thereon, which stamp shall be as follows:

Stamp for stock on hand No. ——.
Issued by —— ——.
—— ——,
Collector of —— district, State of ——.
Distilled spirits. Tax paid prior to (here engrave the date when this act takes effect.) —— proof gallons. Gauged ——, 18—.
—— ——, Gauger.

All distilled spirits owned or held by any person, as aforesaid, shall be included in the same return, and the gauging shall be continuous until all the spirits owned or held by such person are gauged and stamped as aforesaid, and a report thereof in duplicate shall immediately be made by the gauger to the collector and assessor of the district showing the number of packages, contents, and proof of each package gauged and stamped, and one of said reports shall be transmitted by the collector to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. No such spirits shall be gauged or stamped in any cistern or other stationary vessel. Any person owning or having in possession such spirits, and refusing or neglecting to make such return shall forfeit the same; and all distilled spirits found after thirty days from the time this act takes effect, in any cask or package containing more than five gallons, without having thereon each mark and stamp required therefor by this act, shall be forfeited to the United States. Any person who shall gauge, mark, or stamp any cask or package of distilled spirits under the provisions of this section or who shall cause or procure the same to be done, knowing that the same were manufactured or removed from warehouse subsequent to the taking effect of this act, or that the taxes thereon have not been paid, shall, on conviction, be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than three years. All stamps required by this section shall be prepared, issued, and affixed upon casks and packages, and canceled in the same manner as provided for other stamps for distilled spirits in this act, and shall be charged at the rate of twenty-five cents for each stamp.

SEC. 58. And be it further enacted, That all distilled spirits forfeited to the United States sold by order of court or under process of distraint shall be sold subject to tax; and the purchaser shall immediately, and before he takes possession of said spirits, pay the tax thereon. And any distilled spirits condemned before the passage of this act, and in the possession of the United States, shall be sold as herein provided. And if any tax paid stamps are affixed to any cask or package so condemned, such stamps shall be obliterated and destroyed by the collector or marshal after forfeiture and before such sale.

SEC. 59. And be it further enacted, That the following special taxes shall be and are hereby imposed, that is to say:

Distillers producing one hundred barrels or less of distilled spirits, counting forty gallons of proof spirits to the barrel, within the year, shall each pay four hundred dollars; and if producing more than one hundred barrels, shall pay in addition four dollars for each such barrel produced in excess of one hundred barrels. And monthly returns of the number of barrels of spirits, as before described, distilled by him, shall be made by each distiller in the same manner as monthly returns of sales are made. Every person who produces distilled spirits, or who brews or makes mash, wort, or wash fit for distillation or for the production of spirits, or who by any process of vaporization separates alcoholic spirit from any fermented substance, or who by making or keeping mash, wort, or wash has also in his possession or use a still shall be regarded as a distiller; Provided, that a like tax of four dollars on each barrel, counting forty gallons of proof spirits to the barrel, shall be assessed and collected from the owner of any distilled spirits which may be in any bonded warehouse at the date of the taking effect of this act, to be paid whenever the same shall be withdrawn from such warehouse, under the provisions of the sixty-second section of this act: Provided, That no tax shall be imposed for any still, stills, or other apparatus used by druggists and chemists for the recovery of alcohol for pharmaceutical and chemical or scientific purposes which has been used in those processes.

Rectifiers of distilled spirits, rectifying, purifying, or refining two hundred barrels or less of distilled spirits, counting forty gallons of proof spirits to the barrel, within the year, shall each pay two hundred dollars, and shall pay fifty cents for each such barrel produced in excess of two hundred barrels. And monthly returns of the quantity and proof of all the spirits purchased and of the number of barrels of spirits, as before described, rectified, purified, or refined by him, shall be made by each rectifier in the same manner as monthly returns of sales are made. Every person who rectifies, purifies, or refines distilled spirits or wines by any process, and every wholesale or retail liquor dealer or compounder of liquors who has in his possession any still or leach-tub, or who shall keep any other apparatus for the purpose of refining in any manner distilled spirits, shall be regarded as a rectifier.

Compounders of liquors shall each pay twenty-five dollars. Every person who, without rectifying, purifying, or refining distilled spirits, shall, by mixing such spirits, wine, or other liquor with any materials, manufacture any spurious imitation, or compound liquors, for sale under the name of whisky, brandy, gin, rum, wine, spirits, cordials, or wine bitters, or any other name shall be regarded as a compounder of liquors.

Retail dealers in liquors shall pay twenty-five dollars. Every person who shall sell or offer for sale foreign or domestic spirits, wine, ale, beer, or other malt liquors, and whose annual sales, including all sales of other merchandise, do not exceed twenty-five thousand dollars, shall be regarded as a retail dealer in liquors.

Wholesale liquor dealers, whose annual sales do not exceed twenty five thousand dollars, shall pay one hundred dollars; and if exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, shall each pay in addition ten dollars for every one thousand dollars of sales of such spirits, wines, or liquors in excess of twenty-five thousand dollars; and on other sales shall pay as wholesale dealers; and such excess shall be asse[sse]d and paid in the same manner as required of wholesale dealers. Every person who sells or offers for sale distilled spirits, wines, or malt liquors, whose annual sales shall exceed twenty-five thousand dollars, shall be regarded as a wholesale liquor dealer. But no distiller or brewer, who has paid his special tax as such, and who sells only distilled spirits or malt liquors of his own production, at the place of manufacture, in the original casks or packages in which they are placed for the purpose of affixing the tax stamps, shall be required to pay the special tax of a wholesale dealer. But the payment of any special tax imposed by this act shall not be held or construed to exempt any person carrying on any trade, business, or profession from any penalty or punishment therefor provided by the laws of any State; nor to authorize the commencement or continuance of any such trade, business, or profession contrary to the laws of any State, or in places prohibited by municipal law; nor shall the payment of any such tax be held or construed to prohibit or prevent any State from placing a duty or tax on the same trade, business, or profession for State or other purposes.

Manufacturers of stills shall each pay fifty dollars, and twenty dollars for each still or worm for distilling made by him. Any person who manufactures any still or worm to be used in distilling shall be deemed a manufacturer of stills.

TOBACCO, SNUFF, AND CIGARS.

Dealers in leaf tobacco, whose annual sales do not exceed ten thousand dollars, shall each pay twenty-five dollars; and if their annual sales exceed ten thousand dollars, shall pay in addition two dollars for every thousand dollars in excess of ten thousand dollars. Every person shall be regarded as a dealer in leaf tobacco whose business it is for himself, or on commission, to sell or offer for sale leaf tobacco. And payment of a special tax as wholesale dealer, tobacconist, manufacturer of cigars, or manufacturer of tobacco, shall not exempt any person dealing in leaf tobacco from the payment of the special tax therefor hereby required. But no farmer or planter shall be required to pay a special tax as a dealer in leaf tobacco for selling tobacco of his own production, or tobacco received by him as rent from tenants who have produced the same on his land.

Dealers in tobacco, whose annual sales exceed one hundred dollars and do not exceed one thousand dollars, shall each pay five dollars; and when their annual sales exceed one thousand dollars, shall pay in addition two dollars for each thousand dollars in excess of one thousand dollars. Every person whose business it is to sell or offer for sale manufactured tobacco, snuff, or cigars shall be regarded as a dealer in tobacco. And any retail dealer, liquor dealer, or keeper of a hotel, inn, tavern, or eating-house, who sells tobacco, snuff, or cigars shall pay, in addition to his special tax, the special tax as a dealer in tobacco.

Manufacturers of tobacco shall each pay ten dollars; and in addition thereto, where the amount of the penal sum of the bond of such manufacturer, required by this act to be given, shall exceed the sum of five thousand dollars, two dollars for each thousand dollars in excess of five thousand dollars of such penal sum. Every person whose business it is to manufacture tobacco or snuff for himself, or who shall employ others to manufacture tobacco or snuff, whether such manufacture shall be by cutting, pressing, grinding, crushing, or rubbing of any leaf or raw tobacco, or otherwise preparing raw or leaf tobacco or manufactured or partially manufactured tobacco or snuff, or the putting up for use or consumption of scraps, waste, clippings, stems, or deposits of tobacco, resulting from any process of handling tobacco, shall be regarded as a manufacturer of tobacco. But no manufacturer of tobacco shall be required to pay the special tax as a dealer in tobacco for selling the products of his own manufacture.

Manufacturers of cigars, whose annual sales shall not exceed five thousand dollars, shall each pay ten dollars, and when their annual sales exceed five thousand dollars shall pay in addition two dollars for each thousand dollars in excess of five thousand dollars. Every person whose business it is to make or manufacture cigars for himself, or who shall employ others to make or manufacture cigars, shall be regarded as a manufacturer of cigars. No special tax receipt shall be issued to any manufacturer of cigars until he shall have given the bond required by law. Every person whose business it is to make cigars for others, either for pay, upon commission, on shares, or otherwise, from material furnished by others, shall be regarded as a cigar-maker. Every cigar-maker shall cause his name and residence to be registered, without previous demand, with the assistant assessor of the division in which such cigar maker shall be employed; and any manufacturer of cigars employing any cigar-maker who shall have neglected or refused to make such registry shall, on conviction, be fined five dollars for each day that such cigar-maker so offending by neglect or refusal to register shall be employed by him.

SEC. 60. And be it further enacted, That in every case where it becomes necessary to ascertain the amount of annual or monthly sales made by any person on whom a special tax is imposed by this act, or to ascertain the excess of such sales above a given amount, such amounts and excesses shall be ascertained and returned under such regulations and in such form as shall be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; and in any case where the amount of the tax has been increased by this act above the amount before paid by any person in that behalf, such person, except retail dealers, shall be again assessed and pay the amount of such increase from the taking effect of this act: and in any case where the amount of sales or receipts has been understated or underestimated by any person, such person shall be again assessed for such deficiency, and shall be required to pay the same with any penalty or penalties that may by law have accrued or be chargeable thereon.

SEC. 61 And be it further enacted, That upon tobacco and snuff which shall be manufactured and sold, or removed for consumption or use, there shall be assessed and collected the following taxes:

On snuff, manufactured of tobacco or any substitute for tobacco, ground, dry, damp, pickled, scented, or otherwise, of all descriptions, when prepared for use, a tax of thirty two cents per pound. And snuff flour when sold, or removed for use or consumption, shall be taxed as snuff, and shall be put up in packages and stamped in the same manner as snuff.

On all chewing tobacco, fine-cut, plug, or twist; on all tobacco twisted by hand, or reduced from leaf into a condition to be consumed, or otherwise prepared, without the use of any machine or instrument, and without being pressed or sweetened; and on all other kinds of manufactured tobacco not herein otherwise provided for, a tax of thirty two cents per pound.

On all smoking tobacco exclusively of stems, or of leaf, with all the stems in and so sold, the leaf not having been previously stripped, butted, or rolled, and from which no part of the stems have been separated by sifting, stripping, dressing, or in any other manner, either before, during, or after the process of manufacturing; on all fine-cut shorts, the refuse of fine-cut chewing tobacco which has passed through a riddle of thirty-six meshes to the square inch by process of sifting; and on all refuse scraps and sweepings of tobacco, a tax of sixteen cents per pound.

SEC. 62. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act all manufactured tobacco shall be put up and prepared by the manufacturer for sale, or removal for sale or consumption, in packages of the following description, and in no other manner:

All snuff in packages containing one, two, four, six, eight, and sixteen ounces, or in bladders containing not exceeding ten pounds each; or in jars containing not exceeding twenty pounds.

All fine-cut chewing tobacco, and all other kinds of tobacco not otherwise provided for, in packages containing one-half, one, two, four, eight, and sixteen ounces, except that fine-cut chewing tobacco may, at the option of the manufacturer, be put up in wooden packages containing ten, twenty, forty, and sixty pounds each.

All smoking tobacco, all fine-cut shorts which has passed through a riddle of thirty six meshes to the square inch, and all refuse scraps and sweepings of tobacco, in packages containing two, four, eight, and sixteen ounces each.

All cavendish, plug, and twist tobacco in wooden packages not exceeding two hundred pounds net weight.

And every such wooden package shall have printed or marked thereon the manufacturer's name and place of manufacture or the proprietor's name and his trade mark and the registered number of the manufactory, and the gross weight, the tare, and the net weight of the tobacco in each package: Provided, That these limitations and descriptions of packages shall not apply to tobacco and snuff transported in bond for exportation and actually exported.

SEC. 63. And be it further enacted, That every person before commencing, or, if already commenced, before continuing the manufacture of tobacco or snuff, shall, in addition to a compliance with all other provisions of law, furnish, without previous demand therefor, to the assessor or assistant assessor of the district where the manufacture is to be carried on, a statement, in duplicate, subscribed under oath or affirmation, accurately setting forth the place, and if in a city, the street and number of the street, where the manufacture is to be carried on; the number of cutting machines, presses, snuff mills, hand mills, or other machines; the name, kind, and quality of the article manufactured, or proposed to be manufactured; and, if the same shall be manufactured for, or to be sold and delivered to any other person, as agent, or under a special contract, the name and residence and business or occupation of the person for whom the said article is to be manufactured, or to whom it is to be delivered: and shall give a bond in conformity with the provisions of this act, to be approved by the collector of the district, in the sum of two thousand dollars, with an addition to said sum of three thousand dollars for each cutting machine kept for use, of one thousand dollars for each screw-press kept for use in making plug or pressed tobacco, of five thousand dollars for each hydraulic press kept for use, of one thousand dollars for each snuff mill kept for use, and of one thousand dollars for each hand mill, or other mill or machine, kept for the grinding, cutting, or crushing of tobacco: that he will not engage in any attempt, by himself or by collusion with others, to defraud the government of any tax on his manufactures: that he will render truly and correctly all the returns, statements, and inventories prescribed by law or regulations: that whenever he shall add to the number of cutting machines, presses, snuff mills, hand mills, or other mills or machines as aforesaid, he will immediately give notice thereof to the collector of the district: that he will stamp, in accordance with law, all tobacco and snuff manufactured by him before he removes any part thereof from the place of manufacture: that he will not knowingly sell, purchase, expose or receive for sale any manufactured tobacco or snuff which has not been stamped as required by law; and that he will comply with all the requirements of law relating to the manufacture of tobacco or snuff. And the sum of the said bond may be increased from time to time, and additional sureties required by the collector, under the instructions of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. And every manufacturer shall obtain a certificate from the collector of the district, who is hereby authorized and directed to issue the same, setting forth the kind and number of machines, presses, snuff mills, hand mills, or other mills and machines, as aforesaid, for which the bond has been given, which certificate shall be posted in a conspicuous place within the manufactory. And any tobacco manufacturer who shall neglect or refuse to obtain such certificate, or to keep the same posted as hereinbefore provided, shall, on conviction, be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. And any person manufacturing tobacco or snuff of any description without first giving bond as herein required, shall, on conviction be fined not less than one thousand dollars, nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than one year nor more than five years. And the working or preparation of any leaf tobacco, or tobacco stems, scraps, clippings, or waste, by sifting, twisting, screening, or any other process, shall be deemed manufacturing.

SEC. 64. And be it further enacted, That within thirty days after the passage of this act every manufacturer of tobacco and snuff shall place and keep on the side or end of the building within which his business is carried on, so that it can be distinctly seen, a sign, with letters thereon not less than three inches in length, painted in oil colors or gilded, giving his full name and business Any person neglecting to comply with the requirements of this section shall, on conviction, be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars.

SEC. 65. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of every assistant assessor to keep a record, in a book or books to be provided for the purpose, to be open to the inspection of any person, of the name and residence of every person engaged in the manufacture of tobacco or snuff in his division, the place where such manufacture is carried on, and the number of the manufactory; and the assistant assessor shall enter in said record, under the name of each manufacturer, a copy of every inventory required by this act to be made by such manufacturer, and an abstract of his monthly returns; and each assessor shall keep a similar record for the district, and shall cause the several manufactories of tobacco or snuff in his district to be numbered consecutively, which numbers shall not thereafter be changed.

SEC. 66. And be it further enacted, That every person, now or hereafter engaged in the manufacture of tobacco or snuff, shall make and deliver to the assistant assessor of the division a true inventory, in such form as shall be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, of the quality of each of the different kinds of tobacco, snuff flour, snuff, stems, scraps, clippings, waste, tinfoil, licorice, sugar, gum, and other materials held or owned by him on the first day of January of each year, or at the time of commencing and at the time of concluding business, if before or after the first of January, setting forth what portion of said goods and materials, and what kinds, were manufactured or produced by him, and what was purchased from others; which inventory shall be verified by his oath or affirmation; and the assistant assessor shall make personal examination of the stock sufficient to satisfy himself as to the correctness of the inventory, and shall verify the fact of such examination by oath or affirmation taken before the assessor, to be indorsed on or affixed to the inventory; and every such person shall keep a book or books, the forms of which shall be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and enter therein daily an accurate account of all the articles aforesaid purchased by him, the quantity of tobacco, snuff, and snuff flour, stems, scraps, clippings, waste, tinfoil, licorice, sugar, gum, and other materials, of whatever description, whether manufactured, (and if plug tobacco the number of net pounds of lumps made in the lump-room, and the number of packages and pounds produced in the press-room each day) sold consumed, or removed for consumption or sale, or removed from the place of manufacture in bond, and to what district; and shall, on or before the tenth day of each and every month, furnish to the assistant assessor of the division a true and accurate abstract from such book of all such purchases, sales, and removals, made during the month next preceding, which abstract shall be verified by his oath or affirmation; and in case of refusal or willful neglect to deliver the inventory, or keep the account, or furnish the abstract aforesaid, he shall, on conviction, be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than three years. And it shall be the duty of any dealer in leaf tobacco, or in any material used in manufacturing tobacco or snuff, on demand of any officer of internal revenue to render a true and correct statement, verified by oath or affirmation, of the quantity and amount of such leaf tobacco or materials sold or delivered to any person named in such demand; and in case of refusal or neglect to render such statement, or if there is cause to believe such statement to be incorrect or fraudulent, the assessor shall make an examination of persons, books, and papers, in the same manner as provided in this act in relation to frauds and evasions.

SEC. 67. And be it further enacted, That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall cause to be prepared suitable and special revenue stamps for payment of the tax on tobacco and snuff, which stamps shall indicate the weight and class of the article on which payment is to be made, and shall be affixed and cancelled in the mode prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and stamps when used on any wooden package shall be cancelled by sinking a portion of the same into the wood with a steel die, also such warehouse stamps as are required by this act, which stamps shall be furnished to the collectors of internal revenue requiring the same, who shall each keep at all times a supply equal in amount to three months' sales thereof, and shall sell the same only to the manufacturers of tobacco and snuff in their respective districts who have given bonds as required by law, to owners or consignees of tobacco or snuff, upon the requisition of the proper custom house officer having the custody of such tobacco or snuff, and to persons required by law to affix the same to tobacco or snuff on hand on the first day of January, anno Domini eighteen hundred and sixty-nine; and every collector shall keep an account of the number, amount, and denominate values of stamps sold by him to each manufacturer, and to other persons above described.

SEC. 68. And be it further enacted, That every manufacturer of tobacco or snuff shall, in addition to all other requirements of this act relating to tobacco, print on each package or securely affix, by pasting on each package containing tobacco or snuff manufactured by or for him, a label on which shall be printed, together with the proprietor's or manufacturer's name, the number of the manufactory, and the district and State in which it is situated, these words:

"NOTICE.—The manufacturer of this tobacco has complied with all the requirements of law. Every person is cautioned, under the penalties of law, not to use this package for tobacco again."

Any manufacturer of tobacco who shall neglect to print on or affix such label to any package containing tobacco made by or for him, or sold or offered for sale by or for him; or any person who shall remove any such label so affixed from any package, shall, on conviction, be fined fifty dollars for each package in respect to which such offense shall be committed.

SEC. 69. And be it further enacted, That any manufacturer of tobacco or snuff who shall remove otherwise than as provided by law, or sell any tobacco or snuff without the proper stamps denoting the tax thereon, or without having paid the special tax, or given bond as required by law, or who shall make false or fraudulent entries of manufacturers sales of tobacco or snuff, or who shall make false or fraudulent entries of the purchase or sales of leaf tobacco, tobacco stems, or other material, or who shall affix any false, forged, fraudulent, spurious, or counterfeit stamp, or imitation of any stamp required by this act, to any box or package containing any tobacco or snuff, shall, in addition to the penalties elsewhere provided in this act for such offenses, forfeit to the United States all the raw material and manufactured or partly manufactured tobacco and snuff, and all machinery, tools, implements, apparatus, fixtures, boxes, and barrels, and all other materials which shall be found in the possession of such person, in the manufactory of such person, or elsewhere.

SEC. 70. And be it further enacted, That the absence of the proper stamp on any package of manufactured tobacco or snuff shall be notice to all persons that the tax has not been paid thereon, and shall be prima facia evidence of the non-payment thereof. And such tobacco or snuff shall be forfeited to the United States.

SEC. 71. And be it further enacted, That any person who shall remove from any manufactory, or from any place where tobacco or snuff is made, any manufactured tobacco or snuff without the same being put up in proper packages, or without the proper stamp for the amount thereon being affixed and canceled, as required by law; or, if intended for export, without the proper warehouse stamp being affixed; or shall use, sell, or offer for sale, or have in possession, except in the manufactory, or in a bonded warehouse, any manufactured tobacco or snuff, without proper stamps being affixed and cancelled; or shall sell, or offer for sale, for consumption in the United States, or use, or have in possession, except in the manufactory or in a bonded warehouse, any manufactured tobacco or snuff on which only the warehouse stamp marking the same for export has been affixed, shall, on conviction thereof for each such offense, respectively, be fined not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years. And any person who shall affix to any package containing tobacco or snuff any false, forged, fraudulent, spurious, or counterfeit stamp, or a stamp which has been before used, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and on conviction shall be fined not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not less than two years nor more than five years.

SEC. 72. And be it further enacted, That whenever any stamped box, bag vessel, wrapper, or envelope of any kind, containing tobacco or snuff, shall be emptied, the stamped portion thereof shall be destroyed by the person in whose hands the same may be. And any person who shall willfully neglect or refuse so to do shall, for each such offense, on conviction, be fined fifty dollars, and imprisoned not less than ten days nor more than six months. And any person who shall sell or give away, or who shall buy or accept from another, any such empty stamp box, bag, vessel, wrapper, or envelope of any kind, or the stamped portion thereof, shall, for each such offense, on conviction, be fined one hundred dollars and imprisoned for not less than twenty days and not more than one year. And any manufacturer or other person who shall put tobacco or snuff into any such box, bag, vessel, wrapper, or envelope, the same having been either emptied or partially emptied, shall, for each such offense, on conviction, be fined not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars, and imprisoned for not less than one nor more than three years.

SEC. 73. And be it further enacted, That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, upon the execution of such bonds as he may prescribe, may designate and establish at any port of entry in the United States, bonded warehouses for the storage of manufactured tobacco and snuff, in bond, intended for exportation, selecting suitable buildings for such purpose, to be recommended by the collector in charge of exports at such port, to be known as export bonded warehouses, and used exclusively for the storage of manufactured tobacco and snuff in bond. Every such warehouse shall be under the control of the collector of internal revenue in charge of exports at the port where such warehouse is located, and shall be in charge of an internal revenue storekeeper assigned thereto by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. No manufactured tobacco or snuff shall be withdrawn or removed from any bonded warehouse without an order or permit from the collector in charge of exports at such port, which shall be issued only for the immediate transfer to a vessel by which such tobacco or snuff is to be exported to a foreign country, as hereinafter provided, or after the tax has been paid thereon. And such warehouse shall be under such further regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe. Any manufactured tobacco and snuff may be withdrawn once, and no more from an export bonded warehouse for transportation to any other port of entry in the United States where an export bonded warehouse for the storage of manufactured tobacco and snuff may have been established, and such manufactured tobacco and snuff so withdrawn shall, on its arrival at the second port of entry, be immediately warehoused in an export bonded warehouse for the storage of manufactured tobacco and snuff, from which it shall be withdrawn only as provided by law.

SEC. 74. And be it further enacted, That manufactured tobacco and snuff may be removed in bond from the manufactory, without payment of the tax, to be transported directly to an export bonded warehouse for the storage of manufactured tobacco or snuff established at a port of entry as hereinbefore provided; and the deposit in and withdrawal from any bonded warehouse, the transportation and exportation of manufactured tobacco and snuff, shall be made under such rules and regulations, and after making such entries and executing such bonds and giving such other additional security as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, which shall in all respects, so far as applicable, conform to the provisions of law and regulations relating to distilled spirits to be deposited in or withdrawn from bonded warehouse or transported or exported. All tobacco and snuff intended for export, before being removed from the manufactory, shall have affixed to each package an engraved stamp indicative of such intention, to be provided and furnished to the several collectors, as in the case of other stamps, and to be charged to them and accounted for in the same manner; and for the expense attending the providing and affixing such stamps, twenty five cents for each package so stamped shall be paid to the collector on making the entry for such transportation: but the provisions of this section shall not limit the time for tobacco or snuff to remain in bond.

SEC. 75 And be it further enacted, That in all cases where tobacco or snuff of any description is manufactured, in whole or in part, upon commission or shares, or where the material from which any such articles are made, or are to be made, is furnished by one person and made or manufactured by another, or where the material is furnished or sold by one person with an understanding or agreement with another that the manufactured article is to be received in payment therefor or for any part thereof, the stamps required by law shall be fixed by the actual maker or manufacturer before the article passes from the place of making or manufacturing. And in case of fraud on the part of either of said persons in respect to said manufacture, or of any collusion on their part with intent to defraud the revenue, such material and manufactured article shall be forfeited to the United States; and each party to such fraud or collusion shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction, be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than three years.

SEC. 76 And be it further enacted, That every dealer in leaf tobacco shall enter daily in a book kept for that purpose, under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe, the number of hogsheads, cases, and pounds of leaf tobacco purchased by him, and of whom purchased, and the number of hogsheads, cases, or pounds sold by him, with the name and residence, in each instance of the person to whom sold, and if shipped, to whom shipped, and to what district. Such book shall be kept at his place of business, and shall be open at all hours to the inspection of any assessor, collector, or other revenue officer; and any dealer in leaf tobacco who shall neglect or refuse to keep such book shall be liable to a penalty of not less than five hundred dollars, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years.

SEC. 77. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act, and until the first day of October, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, all manufactured tobacco and snuff (not including cigars) imported from foreign countries shall be placed by the owner, importer, or consignee thereof in a bonded warehouse of the United States at the place of importation, in the same manner and under rules as provided for warehousing goods imported into the United States, and shall not be withdrawn from such warehouse, nor be entered for consumption or transportation in the United States prior to the said first day of October, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight. All manufactured tobacco and snuff (not including cigars) imported from foreign countries, after the passage of this act, shall, in addition to the import duties imposed on the same, pay the tax prescribed in this act for like kinds of tobacco and snuff manufactured in the United States, and have the same stamps respectively affixed. Such stamps shall be affixed and cancelled on all such articles so imported by the owner or importer thereof, while such articles are in the custody of the proper custom-house officers, and such articles shall not pass out of the custody of such officers until the stamps have been affixed and cancelled. Such tobacco and snuff shall be put up in packages, as prescribed in this act for like articles manufactured in the United States before such stamps are affixed; and the owner or importer of such tobacco and snuff shall be liable to all the penal provisions of this act, prescribed for manufacturers of tobacco and snuff manufactured in the United States. Where it shall be necessary to take any such articles, so imported, to any place for the purpose of repacking, affixing, and cancelling such stamps, other than the public stores of the United States, the collector of customs of the port where such articles shall be entered shall designate a bonded warehouse to which such articles shall be taken, under the control of such customs officer as such collector may direct. And any officer of customs who shall permit any such articles to pass out of his custody or control without compliance by the owner or importer thereof with the provisions of this section relating thereto, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction, be fined not less than one thousand dollars, nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than three years.

SEC. 78. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act it shall be the duty of every dealer in manufactured tobacco, having on hand more than twenty pounds, and every dealer in snuff having on hand more than ten pounds, to immediately make a true and correct inventory of the amount of such tobacco and snuff, respectively, under oath or affirmation, and to deposit such inventory with the assistant assessor of the proper division, who shall immediately return the same to the assessor of the district, who shall immediately thereafter make an abstract of the several inventories filed in his office, and transmit such abstract to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and a like inventory and return shall be made on the first day of every month thereafter, and a like abstract of inventories shall be transmitted while any such dealer has tobacco or snuff remaining on hand manufactured in the United States, or imported prior to the passage of this act, and not stamped. After the first day of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, all smoking, fine-cut chewing tobacco, or snuff, and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, all other manufactured tobacco of every description, shall be taken and deemed as having been manufactured after the passage of this act, and shall not be sold or offered for sale unless put up in packages and stamped as prescribed by this act, except at retail by retail dealers from wooden packages stamped as provided for in this act; and any person who shall sell, or offer for sale, after the first day of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, any smoking, fine-cut chewing tobacco, or snuff, and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, any other manufactured tobacco not so put up in packages and stamped, shall, on conviction, be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years.

SEC. 79. And be it further enacted, That any person who shall, after the passage of this act, sell, or offer for sale, any manufactured tobacco or snuff, representing the same to have been manufactured and the tax paid thereon prior to the passage of this act, when the same was not so manufactured, and the tax not so paid, shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars for each offense, and shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and shall be imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years.

SEC. 80. And be it further enacted, That all manufactured tobacco and snuff, manufactured prior to the passage of this act, and held in bond at the time of its passage, may be sold for consumption in the original packages, with the proper stamps for the amount of the tax thereon affixed and cancelled as required by law; and any person who shall, after the passage of this act, offer for sale any tobacco or snuff, in packages of a different size from those limited and prescribed by this act, representing the same to have been held in bond at the time of the passage of this act, when the same was not so held in bond, shall, on conviction, be fined fifty dollars for each package in respect to which such offense shall be committed; Provided, That after the first day of January, anno Domini eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, no such tobacco or snuff shall be sold or removed for sale or consumption from any bonded warehouse unless put up in packages and stamped as provided by this act.

SEC. 81. And be it further enacted, That upon cigars which shall be manufactured and sold, or removed for consumption or use, there shall be assessed and collected the following taxes to be paid by the manufacturer thereof:

On cigars of all descriptions, made of tobacco or any substitute therefor, five dollars per thousand: on cigarettes weighing not exceeding three pounds per thousand, one dollar and fifty cents per thousand; when weighing exceeding three pounds per thousand, five dollars per thousand. And the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe such regulations for the inspection of cigars, cheroots, and cigarettes, and the collection of the tax thereon, as shall in his judgment be most effective for the prevention of frauds in the payment of such tax.

SEC. 82. And be it further enacted, That every person before commencing, or, if already commenced, before continuing the manufacture of cigars, shall furnish without previous demand therefor, to the assistant assessor of the division a statement in duplicate, subscribed under oath or affirmation, accurately setting forth the place and, if in a city, the street and number of the street where the manufacture is to be carried on; and if the same shall be manufactured for, or to be sold and delivered to any other person, the name and residence and business or occupation of the person for whom the cigars are to be manufactured or to whom to be delivered, and shall give a bond in conformity with the provisions of this act in such penal sum as the assessor of the district may require, not less than five hundred dollars, with an addition of one hundred dollars for each person proposed to be employed by him in making cigars, conditioned that he will not employ any person to manufacture cigars who has not been duly registered as a cigar-maker; that he will not engage in any attempt, by himself or by collusion with others, to defraud the government of any tax on manufactures; that he will render truly and correctly all the returns, statements, and inventories prescribed; that whenever he shall add to the number of cigar makers employed by him, he will immediately give notice thereof to the collector of the district; that he will stamp in accordance with law all cigars manufactured by him before he offers the same or any part thereof for sale, and before he removes any part thereof from the place of manufacture; that he will not knowingly sell, purchase, expose, or receive for sale any cigars which have not been stamped as required by law; and that he will comply with all the requirements of law relating to the manufacture of cigars. The sum of said bond may be increased from time to time, and additional sureties required at the discretion of the assessor, or under the instructions of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Every cigar manufacturer shall obtain from the collector of the district, who is hereby required to issue the same, a certificate setting forth the number of cigar-makers for which the bond has been given, which certificate shall be posted in a conspicuous place within the manufactory; and any cigar manufacturer who shall neglect or refuse to obtain such certificate, or to keep the same posted as hereinbefore provided, shall on conviction be fined one hundred dollars. Any person manufacturing cigars of any description without first giving bond as herein required, shall on conviction be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than three months nor more than five years. Cigarettes and cheroots shall be held to be cigars under the meaning of this act.

SEC. 83. And be it further enacted, That within thirty days after the passage of this act every cigar manufacturer shall place and keep on the side or end of the building within which his business is carried on, so that it can be distinctly seen, a sign, with letters thereon not less than three inches in length, painted in oil colors or gilded, giving his full name and business. Any person neglecting to comply with the requirements of this section, shall on conviction be fined not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars.

SEC. 84. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of every assistant assessor to keep a record, in a book to be provided for the purpose to be open to the inspection of any person, of the name and residence of every person engaged in the manufacture of cigars in his division, the place where such manufacture is carried on, and the number of the manufactory, together with the names and residences of every cigar maker employed in his division, and the assistant assessor shall enter in said record, under the name of each manufacturer, an abstract of his inventories and monthly returns; and each assessor shall keep a similar record for the district, and shall cause the several manufactories of cigars in the district to be numbered consecutively, which number shall not thereafter be changed.

SEC. 85. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act all cigars shall be packed in boxes not before used for that purpose, containing respectively twenty-five, fifty, one hundred, two hundred and fifty, or five hundred cigars each; and any person who shall sell or offer for sale, or deliver or offer to deliver, any cigars in any other form than in new boxes as above described, or who shall pack in any box any cigars in excess of the number provided by law to be put in each box, respectively, or who shall falsely brand any box, or who shall affix a stamp on any box denoting a less amount of tax than that required by law, shall upon conviction for any of the above described offences, be fined for each such offense, not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years; Provided, That nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing the sale of cigars at retail by retail dealers who have paid the special tax as such from boxes packed, stamped, and branded in the manner prescribed by law.

SEC. 86. And be it further enacted, That every person now or hereafter engaged in the manufacture of cigars, shall make and deliver to the assistant assessor of the division a true inventory, in form prescribed by the Commission of Internal Revenue, of the quantity of leaf tobacco, cigars, stems, scraps, clippings, and waste, and the number of cigar boxes and the capacity of each box held or owned by him on the first day of January of each year, or at the time of commencing and at the time of concluding business, if before or after the first of January, setting forth what portion of said goods, and what kinds were manufactured or produced by him, and what were purchased from others, which inventory shall be verified by his oath or affirmation indorsed on said inventory; and the assistant assessor shall make personal examination of the stock sufficient to satisfy himself as to the correctness of the inventory, and shall verify the fact of such examination by oath or affirmation taken before the assessor, also to be indorsed on the inventory; and every such person shall enter daily in a book, the form of which shall be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, an accurate account of all the articles aforesaid purchased by him, the quantity of leaf tobacco, cigars, stems, or cigar boxes, of whatever description, manufactured, sold, consumed, or removed for consumption or sale, or removed from the place of manufacture; and shall, on or before the tenth day of each and every month, furnish to the assistant assessor of the division a true and accurate abstract from such book of all such purchases, sales, and removals made during the month next preceeding, which abstract shall be verified by his oath or affirmation; and in case of refusal or willful neglect to deliver the inventory, or keep the account, or furnish the abstract aforesaid, he shall on conviction be fined not less than five hundred dollars, nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than three years. It shall be the duty of any dealer in leaf tobacco, or material used in manufacturing cigars, on demand of any officer of internal revenue authorized by law, to render to such officer a true and correct statement, verified by oath or affirmation, of the quantity and amount of such leaf tobacco or materials sold or delivered to any person or persons named in such demand; and in case of refusal or neglect to render such statement, or if there is cause to believe such statement to be incorrect or fraudulent, the assessor shall make an examination of persons, books, and papers in the same manner as provided in this act in relation to frauds and evasions.

SEC. 87. And be it further enacted, That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall cause to be prepared for payment of the tax upon cigars, suitable stamps denoting the tax thereon; and all cigars shall be packed in quantities of twenty-five, fifty, one hundred, two hundred and fifty, and five hundred, and all such stamps shall be furnished to collectors requiring the same, who shall, if there be any cigar manufacturers within their respective districts, keep on hand at all times a supply equal in amount to two months' sales thereof, and shall sell the same only to cigar manufacturers who have given bonds and paid the special tax, as required by law, in their districts respectively, and to importers of cigars who are required to affix the same to imported cigars in the custody of customs officers and to persons required by law to affix the same to cigars on hand on the first day of January, anno Domini eighteen hundreed and sixty-nine; and every collector shall keep an account of the number, amount, and denominate values of the stamps sold by him to each cigar manufacturer, and to other persons above described: Provided, That from and after the passage of this act, the duty on all cigars imported into the United States from foreign countries shall be two dollars and fifty cents [per] pound, and twenty five per centum ad valorem.

SEC. 88. And be it further enacted, That every manufacturer of cigars shall securely affix, by pasting on each box containing cigars manufactured by or for him a label on which shall be printed, together with the manufacturer's name, the number of manufactory, and the district and State in which it is situated, these words:

"NOTICE.—The manufacturer of the cigars herein contained has complied with all the requirements of law. Every person is cautioned, under the penalties of law, not to use this box for cigars again."

Any manufacturer of cigars who shall neglect to affix such label to any box containing cigars made by or for him, or sold or offered for sale by or for him, or any person who shall remove any such label, so affixed, from any such box, shall upon conviction thereof, be fined fifty dollars for each box in respect to which such offense shall be committed.

SEC. 89. And be it further enacted, That all cigars which shall be removed from any manufactory or place where cigars are made without the same being packed in boxes as required by this act, or without the proper stamp thereon denoting the tax, or without burning into each box with a branding iron the number of the cigars contained therein, and the name of the manufacturer, and the number of the district and the State, or without the stamp denoting the tax thereon being properly affixed and cancelled, or which shall be sold or offered for sale not properly boxed and stamped, shall be forfeited to the United States. And any person who shall commit any of the above-described offences shall, on conviction, be fined for each such offence not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years. And any person who shall pack cigars in any box bearing a false or fraudulent or counterfeit stamp, or who shall remove or cause to be removed any stamp denoting the tax on cigars from any box, with intent to use the same, or who shall use or permit any other person to use any stamp so removed, or who shall receive, buy, sell, give away, or have in his possession any stamp so removed, or who shall make any other fraudulent use of any stamp or stamped box, intended for cigars, or who shall remove from the place of manufacture any cigars not properly boxed and stamped as required by law, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and, on conviction, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than three years.

SEC. 90. And be it further enacted, That the absence of the proper revenue stamp on any box of cigars sold, or offered for sale, or kept for sale, shall be notice to all persons that the tax has not been paid thereon, and shall be prima facie evidence of the non-payment thereof; and such cigars shall be forfeited to the United States.

SEC. 91. And be it further enacted, That in all cases where cigars of any description are manufactured, in whole or in part, upon commission or shares, or where the material is furnished by one party and manufactured by another, or where the material is furnished or sold by one party with an understanding or agreement with another that the cigars are to be received in payment therefor, or for any part thereof, the stamps required by law shall be affixed by the actual maker before the cigars are removed from the place of manufacturing. And in case of fraud on the part of either of said parties in respect to said manufacture, or of any collusion on their part with intent to defraud the revenue, such material and cigars shall be forfeited to the United States, and every person engaged in such fraud or collusion shall, on conviction, be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned for not less than six months nor more than three years.

SEC. 92. And be it further enacted, That any manufacturer of cigars, who shall remove or sell any cigars without payment of the special tax as a cigar manufacturer, or without having given bond as such, or without the proper stamps denoting the tax thereon, or who shall make false or fraudulent entries of manufactures or sale of any cigars, or who shall make false or fraudulent entries of the purchase or sales of leaf tobacco, tobacco stems, or other material used in the manufacture of cigars, or who shall affix any false, forged, spurious, fraudulent, or counterfeit stamp, or imitation of any stamp, required by law to any box containing any cigars, shall, in addition to the penalties elsewhere provided in this act for such offenses, forfeit to the United States all raw material and manufactured or partly manufactured tobacco and cigars, and all machinery, tools, implements apparatus, fixtures, boxes, barrels, and all other materials, which shall be found in the possession of such person, or in his manufactory, and used in his business as such manufacturer, together with his estate or interest in the building or factory and the lot or tract of ground on which such building or factory is located, and all appurtenances thereunto belonging.

SEC. 93. And be it further enacted, That all cigars imported from foreign countries after the passage of this act, shall, in addition to the import duties imposed on the same, pay the tax prescribed in this act for cigars manufactured in the United States, and have the same stamps affixed. Such stamps shall be affixed and cancelled by the owner or importer of cigars while they are in the custody of the proper customhouse officers; and such cigars shall not pass out of the custody of such officers until the stamps have been so affixed and cancelled, but shall be put up in boxes containing quantities as prescribed in this act for cigars manufactured in the United States before such stamps are affixed. And the owner or importer of such cigars shall be liable to all the penal provisions of this act prescribed for manufacturers of cigars manufactured in the United States. Where it shall be necessary to take any of such cigars, so imported, to any place for the purpose of affixing and cancelling such stamps, other than the public stores of the United States, the collector of customs of the port where such cigars shall be entered shall designate a bonded warehouse to which they shall be taken, under the control of such customs officer as such collector may direct. And any officer of customs who shall permit any such cigars to pass out of his custody or control without compliance by the owner or importer thereof with the provisions of this section relating thereto shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction thereof, be fined not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than three years.

SEC 94 And be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act it shall be the duty of every dealer in cigars, either of foreign or domestic manufacture, having on hand more than five thousand thereof, imported or manufactured, or purporting or claimed to have been imported or manufactured, prior to the passage of this act, to immediately make a true and correct inventory of the quantity of such cigars in his possession, under oath or affirmation, and to deposit such inventory with the assistant assessor of the proper division, who shall immediately return the same to the assessor of the district who shall immediately thereafter make an abstract of the several such inventories filed in his office, and transmit the same to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; and a like inventory and return shall be made on the first day of every month thereafter, and a like abstract of inventories shall be transmitted, while any such dealer has any such cigars remaining on hand, until the first day of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine. After the first day of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, all cigars of every description shall be taken to have been either manufactured or imported after the passage of this act, and shall be stamped accordingly; and any person who shall sell, or offer for sale, after the first day of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, any imported cigars or cigars purporting or claimed to have been imported, not so put up in packages and stamped as provided by this act, shall, on conviction thereof, be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years.

SEC. 95. And be it further enacted, That any person who shall after the passage of this act, sell or offer for sale any cigars, representing the same to have been manufactured and the tax paid thereon prior to the passage of this act, when the same were not so manufactured and the tax not so paid shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars for each offense and shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than three years.

SEC 96. And be it further enacted, That if any distiller, rectifier, wholesale liquor dealer, compounder of liquors, or manufacturer of tobacco or cigars, shall knowingly and wilfully omit, neglect, or refuse to do or cause to be done any of the things required by law in the carrying on or conducting of his business, or shall do anything by this act prohibited, if there be no specific penalty or punishment imposed by any other section of this act for the neglecting, omitting, or refusing to do, or for the doing or causing to be done the thing required or prohibited, he shall pay a penalty of one thousand dollars; and if the person so offending be a distiller, rectifier, wholesale liquor dealer, or compounder of liquors, all distilled spirits or liquors owned by him, or in which he has any interest as owner, and if he be a manufacturer of tobacco or cigars, all tobacco or cigars found in his manufactory shall be forfeited to the United States.

SEC. 97. And be it further enacted, That any internal revenue officer who shall become interested, directly or indirectly, in the manufacture of tobacco, snuff, or cigars, or in the production, rectification, or redistillation of distilled spirits, shall be dismissed from office; and any such officer who shall become so interested in any such manufacture or production, rectification or redistillation, shall, on conviction, be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars.

SEC. 98. And be it further enacted, That if any officer or agent appointed and acting under the authority of any revenue law of the United States shall be guilty of any extortion or wilful oppression, under color of law; or shall knowingly demand other or greater sums than shall be authorized by law; or shall receive any fee, compensation, or reward for the performance of any duty, except as by law prescribed; or shall willfully neglect to perform any of the duties enjoined on him by law; or shall conspire or collude with any person to defraud the United States, or shall make opportunity for any person to defraud the United States; or shall do, or omit to do any act with intent to enable any other person to defraud the United States; or shall negligently or designedly permit any violation of the law by any other person; or shall make or sign any false entry in any book, or make or sign any false certificate or return in any case where he is by law or regulation required to make any entry, certificate, or return; or having knowledge or information of the violation of any revenue law by any person, or of fraud committed by any person against the United States, shall under any revenue law of the United States, shall fail to report in writing, such knowledge or information to his next superior officer, and to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; or shall demand, or accept, or attempt to collect, directly or indirectly, as payment or gift or otherwise, any sum of money or other thing of value for the compromise, adjustment, or settlement of any charge or complaint for any violation or alleged violation of law, except as expressly authorized by law so to do, he shall be dismissed from office, and shall be held to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction, be fined not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than three years. And one-half of the fine so imposed shall be for the use of the United States, and the other half for the use of the informer, who shall be ascertained by the judgment of the court; and the said court shall also render judgment against the said officer or agent for the amount of damages sustained in favor of the party injured, to be collected by execution.

SEC. 99. And be it further enacted, That any person who shall simulate or falsely or fraudulently execute or sign any bond, permit, entry, or other document required by the provisions of this act, or by any regulation made in pursuance thereof, or who shall procure the same to be falsely or fraudulently executed; or who shall advise, aid in, or connive at the execution thereof, shall, on conviction, be imprisoned for a term not less than one year nor more than five years; and the property to which such false or fraudulent instrument relates shall be forfeited.

SEC. 100. And be it further enacted, That every collector having charge of any warehouse in which distilled spirits, tobacco, or other articles are stored in bond, shall render a monthly account of all such articles to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, which account shall be examined and adjusted, monthly, by him, so as to exhibit a true statement of the liability and responsibility of every such collector on such account. In adjusting such account the collector shall be charged with all the articles which may have been deposited or received under the provisions of law, in any warehouse in his district and under his control, and shall be credited with all such articles shown to have been removed therefrom according to law, including transfers to other collectors and to his successor in office, and also whatever allowances may have been made in accordance with law to any owner of such goods or articles for leakage or other losses.

SEC. 101. And be it further enacted, That the Secretary of the Treasury and Commissioner of Internal Revenue are authorized and empowered to alter, renew, or change the form, style, and device of any stamp, mark, or label used under any provision of the laws relating to distilled spirits, tobacco, snuff, and cigars, when in their judgment necessary for the collection of revenue tax, or the prevention or detection of frauds thereon; and to make and publish such regulations for the use of such mark, stamp, or label as they may find requisite. But in no case shall such renewal or change extend to an abandonment of the general character of the stamps provided for in this act, nor the dispensing with any provisions requiring that such stamps shall be kept in book form and have thereon the signatures of revenue officers.

SEC. 102 And be it further enacted, That in all cases arising under the internal revenue laws where, instead of commencing or proceeding with a suit in court, it may appear to the Commissioner of Interval Revenue to be for the interest of the United States to compromise the same, he is empowered and authorized to make such compromise with the advice and consent of the Secretary of the Treasury; and in every case where a compromise is made there shall be placed on file in the office of the Commissioner the opinion of the solicitor of internal revenue, or officer acting as such, with his reasons therefor, together with a statement of the amount of tax assessed, the amount of additional tax or penalty imposed by law in consequence of the neglect or delinquency of the person against whom the tax is assessed, and the amount actually paid in accordance with the terms of the compromise: but no such compromise shall be made of any case after a suit or proceeding in court has been commenced, without the recommendation also of the Attorney General: Provided, That it shall be lawful for the court at any stage of such suit or criminal proceedings to continue the same for good cause shown on motion of the district attorney.

SEC. 103. And be it further enacted, That when any tax is imposed, and the mode or time of assessment or collection is not provided for, the same shall be established by regulation of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; and the Commissioner is authorized to make all such regulations, not otherwise provided for, as may become necessary by reason of any change of law in relation to internal revenue made by this act.

SEC. 104. And be it further enacted, That where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof, the word "person," as used in this act, shall be construed to mean and include a firm, partnership, association, company, or corporation, as well as a natural person; and words of the masculine gender, as applied to persons, to mean and include the feminine gender; and the singular number to mean and include the plural number; and the word "State" to mean and include a Territory and District of Columbia; and the word "county" to mean and include parish, district, or other equivalent territorial subdivision of a State.

SEC. 105. And be it further enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed: Provided, That all the provisions of said acts shall be in force for levying and collecting all taxes properly assessed or liable to be assessed, or accruing under the provisions of former acts, the right to which has already accrued or which may hereafter accrue under said acts, and for maintaining, continuing and enforcing liens, fines, penalties, and forfeitures incurred under and by virtue thereof. And this act shall not be construed to affect any act done, right accrued, or penalty incurred, under former acts, but every such right is hereby saved; and all suits and prosecutions for acts already done in violation of any former act or acts of Congress, relating to the subjects embraced in this act, may be commenced or proceeded with in like manner as if this act had not been passed: And provided further, That no office created by the said acts and continued by this act shall be vacated by reason of any provisions herein contained, but the officers heretofore appointed shall continue to hold the said offices without reappointment until their successors, or other officers to perform their duties, respectively, shall be appointed as provided in this act: And provided further, That whenever the duty imposed by any existing law shall cease in consequence of any limitation therein contained before [illegible] provisions of this act shall take effect the same duty or tax shall be, and is hereby continued until such provisions of this act shall take effect; and where any act is hereby repealed, no duty or tax imposed thereby shall be held to cease in consequence of such repeal, until the respective corresponding provisions of this act shall take effect.

SEC. 106. And be it further enacted, That in any case where there has been a refusal or neglect to pay any tax imposed by the internal revenue laws, and where it is lawful and has become necessary to seize and sell real estate to satisfy the tax, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may, if he deems it expedient, direct that a bill in chancery shall be filed, in a district or circuit court of the United States, to enforce the lien of the United States for tax upon any real estate, or to subject any real estate owned by the delinquent, or in which he has any right, title, or interest, to the payment of such tax. And all persons having liens upon the real estate sought to be subjected to the payment of any tax as aforesaid, or claiming any ownership or interest therein, shall be made parties to such proceedings, and shall be brought into court as provided in other suits in chancery in said courts. And the said courts shall have, and are hereby given, jurisdiction in all such cases, and shall at the term next after such time as the parties shall be duly notified of the proceedings, unless otherwise ordered by the court, proceed to adjudicate all matters involved therein, and to pass upon and finally determine the merits of all claims to and liens upon the real estate in question, and shall, in all cases where a claim or interest of the United States therein shall be established, decree a sale, by the proper officer of the court, of such real estate, and a distribution of the proceeds of such sale according to the findings of the court in respect to the interests of the parties and of the United States.

SEC. 107. And be it further enacted, That the internal revenue laws imposing taxes on distilled spirits, fermented liquors, tobacco, snuff, and cigars, shall be held and construed to extend to such articles produced anywhere within the exterior boundaries of the United States, whether the same shall be within a collection district or not.

SEC. 108 And be it further enacted, That all provisions of this act which require the use of stamps shall take effect at the end of sixty days from the passage of this act: Provided, That if at any time prior to the expiration of the said sixty days it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury that a longer delay is necessary for the preparation and due delivery of any of such stamps, he shall be authorized to fix a day not later than the first day of December next for putting said provisions, relative to the use of either of such stamps, into operation, and shall give public notice of the day so fixed and determined upon, which day shall then be held and taken to be the time when that portion of this act which requires the use of stamps shall have effect.

SEC. 109. And be it further enacted, That so much of all acts and parts of acts as impose any internal revenue tax on illuminating or other mineral oil, and on the product of the distillation, redistillation or refining of crude petroleum, or of crude-oil produced by a single distillation of coal, shale, peat, asphaltum, or other bituminous substances, together with all provisions relating to returns, assessment, warehousing, and bonding, and all other provisions for determining the quantity of mineral oil distilled, for the purpose of securing the payment of the tax thereon, be, and the same are hereby repealed; and no tax imposed by existing laws on such oils or products in the hands of the producer or manufacturer or his agent or agents at the passage of this act, and unsold, shall be collected: but distillers and refiners of mineral oils shall be considered as manufacturers and subject to the tax on sales provided for in the fourth section of the act "to exempt certain manufactures from internal tax, and for other purposes," approved March thirty-first, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight.

Approved, July 20, 1868.

"The doctor prescribed, as an experiment—what had been suggested by Dr. (O. W.) Holmes on his late visit—'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma,' a teaspoonful in a wine-glass of water, to be taken every four hours. A good night was the result."

In no case of purely Asthmatic character has it failed to give prompt relief, and in many cases a permanent cure has been effected. No danger need be apprehended from its use. An infant may take it with perfect safety. [See circular.]

AMERICAN MUSICAL CLASS BOOK,

Designed for Female Colleges, Institutes, Seminaries, and Normal and High Schools. Containing Elementary Instructions, Vocal Exercises and Solfeggios, and a valuable Collection of Duets, Trios, and Concerted Pieces.

By T. Bissell—Price 75c.

Among the numerous works of the kind this cannot fail of a prominence, since its peculiar features are such as will commend it at once to the patronage of those for whom it is chiefly intended. Its rudimental lessons proceed with a regularity of precision that cannot fail to fix permanently on the mind of the pupil the essentials of success in future studies. The exercises are in a form to attract the attention, and the selection of music is one of the best, if not the superior of all similar collections. Principals of Educational Institutions, Music Teachers, and others interested in books of this class, will find it advantageous to examine this volume. THE GERMANIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, established in 1860, and based upon the most approved principles of Life Insurance security, presents its claims for consideration, believing that its solid foundation already secured by the faithful and efficient management of its officers and Board of Directors will give it the preference above all other similar institutions.

It is purely Mutual, as the net profits are distributed among the parties insured, the interest of the capital stock being only six per cent according to its charter.

It assumed the system of cash payments at the commencement of its existence, and maintained it faithfully until now, and promises the same for the future, thereby securing to policy holders the full amount for which they are insured. The advantage of this system over the half cash and half note system is patent to every careful observer, but will be more fully illustrated by the following statement and table:

If a person of thirty years of age insures his life for the amount of $1000 in one of the credit companies, and pays a premium of $28 30 per year, with a note for half of the premium, then by means of this note and interests thereon the amount will become less and less in the following proportions:

| | |
|---|---|
| After 10 years the $1000 will amount to | $387 |
| After 15 years the $1000 will amount to | 795 |
| After 20 years the $1000 will amount to | 606 |
| After 25 years the $1000 will amount to | 484 |
| After 30 years the $1000 will amount to | 230 |
| After 33 years the $1000 will amount to | 32 |
| After 34 years the $1000 will amount to | Nothing |

So that after a lapse of 34 years the whole amount will be eaten up, notwithstanding the parties insured paid their money in good faith.

The large dividend of 40 per cent declared last January is evidence of the care and success with which the Managers have conducted the enlarged and rapidly increasing interests of the Company, and vouches for its future brilliant and permanent prosperity.

Parties contemplating an assurance on their lives will do well to examine the status of this Company, every facility for which will be given by the

HOLD THE LIGHT.

BY KATE HARRINGTON.

Ho! thou traveler on life's highway
Moving carelessly along—
Pausing not to watch the shadows
Lowering o'er the mighty throng!
Stand aside, and mark how feebly
Some are struggling in the fight,
Turning on thee wistful glances—
Begging thee to hold the light!

Look! upon thy right a brother
Wanders blindly from the way;
And upon thy left a sister,
Frail and erring, turns astray;
One kind word, perchance, may save them—
Guide their wayward steps aright;
Canst thou, then, withhold thy counsel?
No, but fly and hold the light!

Hark! a feeble wail of sorrow
Bursts from the advancing throng;
And a little child is groping
Through the darkness, deep and long,
'Tis a timid orphan, shivering
'Neath misfortune's withering blight;
Friends, home, love, are all denied her;
Oh! in pity, hold the light.

Not alone from heathen darkness,
Where the pagan bows the knee,
Worshiping his brazen image
With a blind idolatry—
Where no blessed Gospel teachings
E'er illume the soul's dark night,
Comes the cry to fellow mortals,
Wild and pleading, "Hold the light!"

Here as well, in life's broad highway,
Are benighted wanderers found;
And if all the strong would heed them,
Lights would glimmer all around.
Acts of love and deeds of kindness
Then would make earth's pathway bright,
And there'd be no need of calling,
"Ho! thou traveler, hold the light!"

GALVESTON, Texas.

Our situation is extremely unpleasant in Texas. The politics of the country are so unsettled that it is next to impossible to prosecute any business successfully. Radical and anti-Radical alike suffer, and both are in many respects highly reprehensible.

The Constitutional Convention now in session at Austin seems to be a failure. The so-called honorables spend their time fillibustering, wrangling, and fighting. Several fights have been had inside the Capitol recently, and among the principal belligerents are the men who misrepresent the counties of Galveston and Harris.

The Republican cause has been almost, if not quite hopelessly ruined for the present by its failure to perform the specific work it was called to do. The opposition is fairly aroused and thoroughly organized and determined to oppose the ratification of any constitution that this Convention may submit, if, in the course of human events, one should ever be submitted.

We have no one to thank for this state of things but those who, having set themselves up as leaders, being fanatically blind themselves, have precipitated us into the ditch. When reason and common sense again return to us as a party in Texas, then may we hope to succeed, and the blessings of the All Father may be ours to enjoy.

Religiously, there is but little doing in Galveston. We hear of a revival interest going on (to what extent we know not) in the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, colored, under the judicious ministrations of the Rev. Daniel Gregory, is also being revived. The pastor of the former church is making himself ridiculous by attempting to preach Christ to his congregation Sabbaths and week day evenings, and by writing articles for the weakly Advocate of this city in defense of the Confederacy and in abuse of the loyalists. "O consistency, thou art a jewel!" and we wish thou wouldst take thy seat in the hearts and minds of such professed public teachers.

The Lord's Day.

Why will not the Roman Catholics unite with us in securing the sanctification of the Christian Sabbath? A good example is being set them by their brethren in Europe. What they lose in popularity they will more than regain in religious power. We get this item from an exchange:

The Roman Catholic bishops of Switzerland lately met at Sion, Valais, and consulted together on the means of promoting a better observance of the Lord's day. They resolved to request the Federal government to relieve all persons engaged in the military service, as far as possible, of active duty on Sundays. Many public meetings have been held recently in European cities, and Sabbath Committees formed, with a view of promoting the observance of the Lord's day. The action at the Amsterdam Conference of the Evangelical Alliance gave a grand impulse to the work.

After an investment of about five hundred dollars in two years, a gentleman of our acquaintance has just drawn sixty-nine dollars in the Havana lottery.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, August 25.

Several allusions have been made to the camp meetings to be held near Annopolis Junction; it is now in progress, a brief account of which may be of interest to your readers. The committee had arranged for and announced public service to begin on Friday, 21, at eleven o'clock in the morning. Over ninety tents had been pitched by that hour. A generous shower of rain, however, prevented service; the same occurred in the evening. But Saturday opened pleasantly, and the people gathered to hear the word. The great interest previously excited was crowned with success. Nine persons professed justification. The Sunday morning prayer meeting was substituted by a sermon from Rev. Dr. Hamilton—a discourse full of thought and feeling. At ten o'clock the audience was immense, and as orderly as need be. Rev. Mr. Morgan, presiding elder of this district, preached. The moral and religious influence present controlled the multitude in a most remarkable degree. At three o'clock Mr. Wheeler, of Alexandria, Virginia, addressed an audience nearly as large and equally as attentive as the morning one. The duty at half-past seven devolved on Mr. Baker, of Harper's Ferry, West Virginia. A prayer meeting followed, during which nine persons declared they had found "peace in believing." Thus ended Sunday, the day of anxiety to a camp community, a day so full of responsibility as to moral results; but God's hand was on the people, and they were still. The order was perhaps the more remarkable in view of a mob that assailed the colored people at a camp meeting held two years since a few miles distant from the present one. That meeting, however, had been as orderly as this up to the last night, when the riot occurred. But we hope this will end as it has thus far progressed. The Monday on a camp ground is a day of more than ordinary interest. Sermons were preached by Messrs. Krebs, Nickerson, and McNemar at the usual hours and in the order named. At the prayer meeting concluding the evening service nine persons rejoiced in "the knowledge of salvation by remission of their sins." Nine seems to be a mystic number.

In the evening of yesterday Rev. Dr. J. P. Newman appeared on the ground. He found a number of old friends among ministers and others who gave him the welcome he deserves. Dr. Lanahan had invited him to the Baltimore camp meeting, now progressing, and thither he thought himself tending, but as "Philip was found at Azotes" without intending it, so Dr. Newman was to the great joy of his friends found here.

The arrangements previously made for to-day (Tuesday) will, I fear, prevent the people from receiving any of the Doctor's "oil," except it be to address the children's meeting fixed for this afternoon. The railroad company run nothing but the usual Sunday trains, only one of which is a way train each way; hence no outpouring of city's "rude fellows." This is the rule with the railroad companies of Baltimore at the request of the camp meeting committee.

On reaching Annopolis Junction this morning we found a man had either jumped or fallen from the lightning train, just then flying along as on the wind; while the blood streamed from his lacerated head, no bones were thought to be fractured, and by a miracle the poor man reclining against the stationhouse. His other surgeons were like myself, very clumsy; but we did all we knew. The steam horse snorted "down breaks," and I stepped aboard with a message to his friends in the city. As he could not tell how it occurred, the supposition is he was asleep on the platform.

There is quite an extensive revival of religion in the Twentieth street Baptist church. This is a prosperous colored congregation.

The peach season is upon us here, but the fruit is somewhere else, with light exceptions. At camp meeting the price demanded is $1 60 per peck.

The political stream is low and sluggish.

Commissioner Rollins will likely be charged with some official improprieties as a pretex for suspension during the recess of Congress.

The President has certainly recognized the reconstruction acts by his course in regard to Governor Warmoth's request to give military aid to the authorities of Louisiana.

MORDECAI.

The Austrian Chancellor.

The future historian of the present period will attribute to a noble trio of marked men the liberal movements and radical reforms that are so rapidly changing the face of political affairs on the continent of Europe. Cavour, Bismarck, and Von Beust will go down into history together, and will have the proud honor of being acknowledged as the fathers of a new political era.

Of these Cavour has gone to his high reward, leaving behind him a name of sweet fragrance among the Italian people. Bismarck holds the high position of the most influential statesman of Europe, and Von Beust is now leading the Austrian empire in a career of unexampled liberalism, daily astounding the world with political progress that seems almost impossible to those who have studied this ancient monarchy in its garb of absolutism.

Von Beust, it seems to us, is scarcely as well known to the world as he deserves to be, and does not receive full honor for his share in the Austrian reforms. The most remarkable point about his career is, that in a double sense he is a foreigner in Austria—he is a Saxon and a Protestant; and it redounds greatly to the honor of the Emperor Francis Joseph, that he, in 1866, saw with sufficient clearness into the immediate future to call such a statesman to the head of Austrian affairs. It proves very clearly that Austria learned a most valuable lesson on the field of Sadowa, and determined to turn a very short corner in her political career—this wise resolution will probably prove to be the salvation of the empire, and is certainly bringing the country into the sisterhood of liberal nations.

Von Beust seems to have the conviction that Austria is to be saved by the development of her liberties or not at all, and he has fairly entered this path. How long he will be able to do what he considers it necessary to do, is an open question, but certain it is that the masses are on his side and are with him, making a noble fight for civil and religious liberty. Their victories thus far are astonishing and delighting the world.

Von Beust is agreeable and prepossessing in personal appearance; he is about sixty years of age, but possesses a youthful freshness and vigor that promise to withstand for a goodly period the ravages of time. He is extremely polite, even friendly in personal demeanor, and makes every one at ease in his presence. A cheerful smile is always playing on his lip, even when discussing serious affairs of state, and one wonders at the openness with which he treats the most important questions. He seems to despise the secret tricks of old fashioned diplomacy, and is quick to assure all who approach him that his projects bear on their face all the meaning which they contain. One of his own favorite expressions is: "That diplomacy will be an honorable occupation in twenty years, and will be totally divested of its tricks and snares."

Von Beust proves himself to be a man of broad views, when, as a Protestant, he undertakes a responsible duty in a country so thoroughly Catholic as Austria, and he shows unexampled courage as a statesman in taking the broad leap from the leadership of an inferior country like Saxony to that of a renowned empire like Austria. There were plenty who named his courage arrogance and assumption, and especially among the blooded nobles of church and state in Austria, but his success is an answer to their doubts and sneers. He has not for a moment lost his balance or his breath, nor shown even a giddiness in his position. From his lofty standpoint he has successfully taken a broader view of the spirit of the age, and, with a rare energy, overcome the prejudice of his rank in calling into his cabinet a group of men who are of the people and with the people. That the statesman should pass by the conservatives with whom he had acted in life-long sympathy, and choose his political associates from among the men of the most advanced opinions and decided convictions, is a master stroke of policy that places him among the first ministers of history, and encourages us to hope that he will successfully carry on the severe contest that he has begun against stupid conservatism and blind fanaticism.

That he has determined on a bitter war, and not a mere skirmish against intellectual oppression, is proved by his bill of rights, his decree abolishing the institutions that were under the special guidance of the Jesuits, and especially by his energetic contest against the old papal treaty known as the "Concordat." As a constitutional minister he is leading Austria through a glorious career.

An old man in J——, who had for many years been a believer in the doctrine of universal salvation, was dying, and he was agitated. He had argued the question many times, as he thought with entire satisfaction. But now he was dying and the question was, "Is the doctrine on which I have rested true?" He wanted to send for pious old Deacon W. to ask him about the matter; but his companions would not indulge him. At last he turned to one of them, the leader, and said with painful anxiety, "Are you sure all will be saved?" And so I ask you, my friend, are you sure you are right and safe?

The Cancer Springs of Vermont.

In our trip to these now famous springs we found ourselves at that favored place, the admired of artists, the eulogized of Beecher, the pride of Northern Vermont, St. Albans. We took our way by stage, nine miles to the northeast toward Sheldon, the terminus of our pilgrimage. The roads were excellent, and the scenery picturesque. We passed Dream Lake, a beautiful sheet of water, a mile or more in length, and of half the width, and were entertained with the story of its name. Some twenty years ago the wife and child of Eugene Clifford were drowned from a boat while crossing the lake, the husband alone escaping to tell the tale. He was suspected of murder, and arrested. One link in the chain of evidence was wanting; some outer garment of the woman was missing, search for which proved fruitless. A lady living near whose residence we passed saw in a dream the garment hidden in a wild, secluded spot near the scene of the tragedy; and when others failed to find it from her directions, she asked to be taken to the place, and went directly to the spot and found the missing clue. The murderer was convicted, and not long after closed his wretched career in prison.

As the story ended we came in sight of our resting-place; and from an eminence our eyes were greeted by one of those beautiful landscapes that seen once is seen forever, daguerreotyped upon the soul. Ah, at our feet lay the pretty New England village of Sheldon, sprinkled on both sides of a winding creek, which just below flows into the more majestic Missisquoi. This is seen a little to our left, gliding in from the east, and winding on toward Lake Champlain. A beautiful expanse of rolling country spreads out before us, and in the not remote distance are seen the mountains. Some seem to have strayed over into the Dominion of Canada; but they look just as proud and serene as their brothers, whose feet are warmed by the tread of the Green Mountain boys. Soon in the company of an intelligent guided, "to the manor born," we were scouring the country and examining the springs. First in the order of discovery is the Missisquoi, situated some two miles below the village on the northerly shore of the river. The ground in the vicinity is broken, and not pleasing to the eye, while the soil seems swampy and unclean. But appearances are of secondary importance. The water has acquired a great fame by reason of its remarkable cures. Well authenticated stories are told of patients cured of cancer or greatly relieved after physicians had given them up to die. Men were busy bottling the water, which I was informed is selling extensively. Turning back and recrossing the river, we passed round through the village, and about three-fourths of a mile from the the boundary we found the Vermont spring, the bottling establishment standing just on the brink of the river. The bank, rising some thirty or forty feet, at a pretty sharp angle, is shaded by a delightful grove of maple, birch, hemlock, and poplar. It is a romantic spot, and with a little outlay of taste and money can be made very attractive. We drank of the water, and found it slightly more mineral in taste than the other, but neither of them are at all disagreeable. It is evident that this is the favorite of the people; resulting in part, I suspect, from the more liberal policy of its proprietors, but chiefly, as I am assured, from its superiority as a remedy. It is claimed that it acts in all cases with equal certainty, and generally with greater rapidity. The most wonderful cures of cancer in its most dreaded form are attributed to this spring, and that fearful disease seemed robbed of half its terrors in the presence of this simple and almost tasteless water. Here, again, are "chosen the weak things to confound the mighty." Scrofula and many other forms of disease, least under the control of medical skill, readily yield before it. Something of its power has been published, but my impressions were gathered chiefly from conversations with the people of the place.

The principal proprietor of the Vermont Spring is Hon. R. J. Saxe, who is cousin to the poet. Judge Saxe is a well known and influential layman of the M. E. Church, and enjoys the entire confidence of the community. The place has been literally overrun with visitors, mostly invalids; and the great need has been boarding accommodations. But Yankee enterprise is regulating all these matters, and the invitation is, "Whosoever will let him come." All details of the remarkable cures must be omitted, some of which are so novel and surprising in their nature that they remind one of the servant's reply when asked by his master what price he should set upon a certain horse: "Go as high as you can without laughing." My object is merely to give an inkling of what is transpiring in this corner of New England.

VISITOR.

In 1793 a delegation from the western part of Massachusetts was sent to confer with one of the Boston clergymen as to how he got along with the doctrine of the "perseverance of the saints," which troubled them exceedingly. His suggestive reply was: "My dear friends, it is the perseverance of the sinners which causes me all my troubles."

From the Churches.

Rev. Mr. A. Ross has sent us the following quarterly meeting report:

I have just returned from a visit to Baton Rouge. I arrived there on Sunday, August 16, 1868. I preached at three o'clock to a crowded house, after which I administered the sacrament, and I am happy to state that we had a glorious time—the King's presence was among us. On Monday evening we held love feast, at which a large congregation was present, and about fifty persons spoke. I am glad to say that I find the people much cheered and in good spirits, though they are poor. On Tuesday evening, the 18th ultimo, we held a quarterly conference, with the official members all present. Brother Hayward's church and circuit are doing well. Religion seems to be prosperous. The Sabbath school is going on finely, having seventy-five scholars and seven teachers. The day school has about sixty-five scholars, taught by Mrs. Sarah Baranco, a member of our church, assisted by Miss Provost. I am happy to say that Brother Hayward informs me that this young lady labors very hard for the improvement of the children, though she has but little support, parents not being able to pay tuition for their children. I left Baton Rouge on my way to Clinton, accompanied by Brother Hayward. We had a rough road to travel by the way of the old freight car, but by the help of the Lord we arrived there safely, and being worried we rested until Saturday evening, when we met and held the quarterly conference. Brother Yarborough was sick with the fever. I am happy to state that we found the church going on well. The official members answered to their names. Brother Yarborough has a lively Sabbath school, taught by Miss Sarah A. Dearmond, numbering seventy-six scholars, and also a day school numbering forty scholars, taught by the same teacher. Miss Dearmond is a native of Clinton, and labors very hard with her scholars. I preached at eleven o'clock, and Brother Yarborough at three o'clock, after which I administered the sacrament to a large congregation, assisted by Brothers Hayward and Yarborough, and we had a glorious time there. On Monday morning Brother Hayward and myself took a wagon for our return to Baton Rouge, rather than take the old car again. I am happy to say that all are well on the Baton Rouge and Clinton circuits.

Rev. John Lea writes from Franklin, St. Mary's parish, Louisiana:

I have been afflicted severely for two months, but I give thanks to Almighty God that I am about recovered, yet I am still unable to walk. Our church is still increasing rapidly. We have at this time a good number of young and faithful converts. I could count fifty or sixty who a few days ago were reprobates, but are now the most faithful in the church; indeed, they greatly help me in my labors, for they give a jealous excitement of religion throughout the whole neighborhood. On the first Sabbath in August I baptized sixteen, and all that I have baptized since I have been here amounts to 114. The church in Franklin has increased over two hundred. God grant that every young minister of the gospel may go to work with all their might to promote the kingdom of Jesus Christ. And this they can do if they will only eat less, sleep less, talk less, and devote more of their time to the study of the word of God, for he has promised to give wisdom and understanding to every one that will seek diligently for it. Then if the young minister wants to be a discreet workman for Christ, let him open his eyes and lay hold upon his Bible, his discipline, his grammar and dictionary. At the same time let him walk close with God, and bridle his tongue, and I believe he will wage a good warfare.

Two weeks ago I went to Baldwins and organized, but every thing is not yet settled, and as soon as possible I must go again. Next Sunday I go to Charenton to attend to some affairs of Brother John Wesley, where some are to be baptized and some married. Last Sunday I preached at Centreville, where we had a glorious time, and passed a day long to be remembered. I was compelled to make a political speech while there, on account of our friend William Watkins turning Democrat. He denied this, and said he was neither Democrat nor Radical, but we all believe he has, or is about to betray his trust. He will receive no thanks from either Democrats or Radicals, for he denies them both. It is proper for a man, before he enters into any measure, to understand its meaning and nature. They have poor, hungry, and ignorant colored men upon the platform making speeches, who could not, if their lives were at stake, define the words Democrat and Radical, and you know very well that the Democrats will never tell them, neither will they know until they are caught in the trap. It is, indeed, true that the wise man has said that "experience keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in no other." We have mourner's meeting every night that have not failed once in six weeks.

Rev. J. W. Wesley writes from Charenton, St. Mary's, Louisiana:

We closed our protracted meeting with great joy for the success God had given us. I had the pleasure of shaking hands with thirty who have been redeemed. We are now trying to improve the appearance of our church, but can not make much progress, as money is so hard to get. Otherwise we are doing as well as could be expected. I must say the Democrats are working very faithfully for their cause in this part of the land, trying to bribe the freedmen of St. Mary with beef, meat, and poor whisky.

Rev. S. M. Small writes from Alexandria, Louisiana:

My churches are getting along very well now. Since we turned out some bad members I have a little more peace. I was at my fifth appointment on the twenty-first of August, and had a mighty fine time. The spirit of God was plainly seen to operate on the people's hearts. They showed it by running for shelter. I baptized sixteen adults and three children, and married one couple. Thirteen persons joined the Church. A very large body of people gathered, but when I called for them to help me pay my ferriage I got twenty-five cents from about two hundred people, showing the poverty of our parish now.

A correspondent writes from Vermillionville, Louisiana:

Happening to be in Vermillionville recently I was invited to attend an examination held at "Excelsior School," for freed children, taught by Walter H. Williams, which invitation I accepted, and arrived at the schoolhouse in time to hear the commencement of the exercises, and remained until they were finished. The school was attended by about fifty spectators, principally the pupil's parents. The most excellent order prevailed during the recitation, rendering it an easy task for the teacher to discharge his duties. The alacrity with which the children recited their lessons was astonishing. Children who, as the teacher informed me, had been attending school but two or three months, read with much fluency in words of two syllables. Others that had been with him for four or five greatly astonished me by their correct and fluent answers in geography and arithmetic. After other exercises, several pieces were spoken by some of the pupils, which were exceedingly well rendered, and created much enthusiasm among the audience.

Edward Jackson, Jr., writes from Washington, Louisiana:

I have a nice school here in our church, with eighty-nine scholars, and more coming. I have them all to teach alone, and it is very hard work on me, with so little education. I thank Almighty God for what I have, but it is not enough for all these children. We have a very fine Sunday school. Captain Violet came to see my school, and asked me what the children paid me. I told him nothing, and only the ten dollars you gave me from the Aid Society had been received. We are very bad off, the people are at a starvation point. Mrs. Campbell sued father for the rent, and took all that was in the house. Please try to have a teacher sent to us soon. The Democrats are trying to get all they can of the colored people. Some have sold themselves for tobacco, and some for a pair of shoes. I get the ADVOCATE and read it every week.

CAMP MEETINGS.—Rev. Thomas Kennedy writes from Donaldsonville, Louisiana:

All's well on my circuit. We are now holding a camp meeting at Bayou Goula, which began on the twenty-third of August. It is quite a new thing about here. But we have had a glorious time. A great many went up to see, are caught in the net of salvation. People are there from fifteen to twenty miles around. Up to the time I write many have found the Lord in the pardon of their sins, and more are seeking him. The times are very hard yet. The Democrats are canvassing our parish pretty close, and no move is yet made to check them. They are using every means to deceive our people, and threaten if they do not vote the Democratic ticket they will not employ them. By those means and bribes they succeed in getting a few to join them. One Augustus Knight and Manuel Bercier were lately converted to the Democratic belief, and are now laboring manfully for them. The crops are fine up and down the river and bayou. Brother Courtnay is well, and at work. I will soon write again about the affairs of our parish.

Planter's Law.

The English Government, it seems, is ashamed of the Governor Eyre infamy, and has sent a judge to Jamaica who has displeased many planters by dispensing law without regard to race, color, or previous condition. We quote from the New York Tribune:

He is charged with having made a series of attacks upon the planters of the parish, accusing them of injustice in their dealings with the laborers they employ, and of abusing their powers as magistrates to the injury of the blacks. His real offense seems to be that he holds the scales of justice evenly, knowing no distinction between whites and blacks, or between planters and peasants, in his administration of the law. The planters were up in arms against him for protecting the people in their rights, and laborers, men and women, who have been suffering at the hands of their employers, were threatening to abandon the plantations. He is bitterly denounced for having sent a female of fair skin and "respectable connections" to the House of Correction; but he meets the storm fearlessly, and says he is determined to dispense British justice, and not planters' law.

The Late General Conference and Lay Delegation.

The undersigned, deeming it important that the Church should have a clear understanding of the true spirit and meaning of the action of the late General Conference in relation to lay representation, and believing that they have been in circumstances to receive accurate information in relation to said action, beg to submit the following:

1. The concurrence of the Conference in the action of 1860 and 1864 is evidence that in the judgment of the General Conference the introduction of layman into the highest councils of the Church is, when the laity should ask for it, neither wrong in principle nor dangerous in policy; that the desire for the change was such as to require respectful consideration; that the petitioners were not to be repelled, but treated with the utmost respect; and that there were grounds for inquiring in the kindest manner whether a majority of our people sincerely desire lay delegation, in which case it was an assurance thrice repeated that it should be granted, each repetition increasing the moral force of the assurance.

2. In addition to all previous action, a formal submission of the question "for lay delegation" or "against lay delegation" is now made to the whole Church of twenty-one years old and upward, and the affirmative votes of a majority of those present and voting are to be considered as meeting the conditions of the proposed change so far as that is dependent on the laity, answering the question implied in the phrase "whenever the people should desire it;" the method of constituting an "electoral conference" is definitely fixed; a provisional plan of lay delegation is so determined that it and no other may become the law of the Church in the method distinctly pointed out, which is to control the action of quarterly conferences, pastors, and bishops, the occurrence of an affirmative vote so far anticipated as possible that provisions are based upon it which would bring laymen as representatives into the next General Conference.

3. This action being passed with great unanimity (two hundred and seventeen to three), the moral force of the vote may be justly regarded as assuring the laymen of the Church that if they shall so indicate a desire for lay representation they will meet with no resistance from the men who have made provisions so clear and encouraging for the expression of their views, there being no probability, nor even a moral possibility, that these grave men would, with so much pains, provide for and point out the way to a result either dangerous or impracticable.

4. The voting both of members and ministers must, of course, be entirely free, expressing the "godly judgment" of each. But it may well be presumed from the repeated acts of the General Conference, and the votes of the several conferences, as well as the unreserved opinions of the ministry everywhere, that should the lay vote show a majority "for lay delegation," the vote of the conferences and the next General Conference will, with great unanimity and cordiality, make the proposed changes in the discipline, and welcome our lay brethren to their seats in the highest ecclesiastical body of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

5. The whole plan contemplates the peace of the Church. Let no man presume to encourage a partisan spirit. Our enemies or rivals who anticipate dangerous excitement or bitter strife over this question must surely be disappointed. The cordial overtures of the ministry to the laymen, the sound discretion of our editors and other influential men, as well as the thorough convictions felt by our people generally of our responsibility to God and our sublime mission in the future, will, we trust, lead the whole Church to a spirit of mutual conciliation and fervent prayer, thus securing the most Christian method of reaching conclusions which promise in so brief a period to give a peaceful settlement to this long agitated subject.

IRISH WESLEYAN OPINION OF THE ESTABLISHMENT.—The Irish Evangelist, organ of the Wesleyans in Ireland, says that the great mass of the Wesleyan ministers have "lost all faith in establishments and endowments as being auxilliary to true Protestantism, regard the general disendowment of all charities in Ireland as essential to the safety and efficiency of Irish Protestantism, and will hail the hour of general disendowment with peculiar joy."

Ames Methodist Episcopal Church.

There will be preaching every Sabbath at 11 A. M. in Dr. Newman's church, corner of St. Charles and Calliope streets, and social meetings for conference and prayer every Sunday and Thursday evening from eight to nine o'clock in the lecture room. You are invited.

Our letters from the churches are attracting much attention, and are largely copied from by other papers. The perils, hardships, and labors of our preachers, their steady rejection of bribes, and their fearlessness, show that they are the material of which Christian heroes are made. The last New York Advocate makes liberal extracts from these letters.

The Marksville Villager utters a wail of anguish at the arrival in that place of Major Collins's press, and the preparations being made for publishing the Register, a Republican journal. Poor fellow! His cry of distress will be echoed by many a Bourbon editor. He says:

We shall soon see these fellows at work, and we shall demand of them by what privileges they claim the right, since we, who are the organ of the majority (?), do not make our expenses.

List of Laws.

By the courtesy of our excellent young friend, Mr. Frank C. Remick, the Governor's private secretary, we are enabled to give our readers a list of the laws and resolutions passed by the General Assembly. It will be seen that commendable progress in legislation has been made.

Lotteries Outlawed.

While this State has legalized for a quarter of a century the lottery business, the United States Congress has very wisely outlawed the same, as will be seen in the following:

The act of Congress amending the postal laws declares that it shall not be lawful to deposit in a postoffice, to be sent by mail, any letters or circulars concerning lotteries, so-called gift concerts, or other similar enterprises, offering prizes of any kind, on any pretext whatever. In conformity with this law, Postmaster General Randall has directed that all such matter be sent to the dead letter office without being returned to the owners.

Sunday Schools

The Christian Observer, Catlettsburg, Kentucky, an organ of the M. E. Church South, published on the eight instant an interesting account of the Sunday School Convention in Lexington. Much good work was done, and no such squeamishness was exhibited as marred a similar meeting lately in St. Louis, where the Christian people who in the late war took sides against the Union refused to co-operate even in this Catholic enterprise with their brethren of opposite views.

Surely we can work together in Sunday school and Bible societies. Our Bible and our children should certainly unite us. We observe that at the meeting referred to, that grand Sunday school man, R. S. Pardee, of New York, made an address, and otherwise greatly added to the interest of the Convention.

☞It is reported that twenty-eight ladies, members of the Congregational Church of Elmwood, have seceded because denied the right of taking part in Church meetings.

The Procession.

The Democratic display of Saturday night last was a brilliant affair, gotten up regardless of expense. About eight thousand men and boys of all colors, white, black, mulattoes, etc., marched and rode in the procession. There were innumerable torchlights, transparencies, banners, and wreaths; excellent bands discoursed every sort of music excepting the national airs. Men and boys were gorgeously costumed. The red cross knights, the Zouaves, the cadets, the beautiful little girls and young ladies in white reminded us of anything but politics. The animal kingdom was represented by men, horses, mules, a raccoon, a dog, and the feathered tribes by two or three roosters, a pelican, etc.

Some infamous fellow chose to insult the memory of Thaddeus Stevens on one transparency. On another the worthy editor of this paper was honored with a notice, "Newman's carpet bag and Bible." Others in vile orthography, condemned the school bill and its author. The colored Democrats, generally, seemed to be ashamed of their part in the display. A vast multitude witnessed the show, crowding the streets, balconies, and windows. People came from Mobile, Attakapas, and Red river. Half-fare arrangements were made on boats and railroads. Stores closed early, and steamboats delayed leaving port. All passed off quietly and pleasantly, and it was an excellent safety valve for the pent up social and political feeling so general just now. Unsophisticated natives talked of it as the grandest and most significant affair the world ever saw.

"When ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."

Major General O. O. Howard.

Major General Howard made us a brief visit on his way to Texas, and is expected to make a longer stay on his return. Such infamous attacks upon the fair fame of this true-hearted patriot as appeared in the Picayune of last Saturday only serves to establish him more firmly in the hearts of all the good and wise.

We observe by the following that the General has visited Charleston, South Carolina:

Some of our readers had the pleasure of seeing General Howard on his recent visit to our city. He has gone further South, but we learn that he is expected to return by the way of Charleston, and may then find it convenient to address the people here. The Philadelphia Press, in referring to General Howard, appropriately says:

The amiable and Christian soldier and gentleman, and efficient officer, Major General Howard, is making perhaps his last official tour of the South. His devotion to the cause of humanity is evinced by addresses to the poor and suffering as he passes along. The labors of his peculiar office have been arduous in the extreme, and the country has been fortunate in finding a man upon whom they could be imposed with so much confidence, and to whose untiring exertion their successful performance is due. Wherever his tour extends his ministrations are those of the good Samaritan. The colored people hang upon his words of exhortation and advice as though they fell from the lips of a divine. The downtrodden seek his aid, and look to him for relief from the pangs of a thraldom made sorer than slavery by the tyranny of the ruffian Ku-Klux. The detractions he has suffered from malignant enemies serve to brighten his record, and make his mission more than ever one of charity.—Charleston Advocate.

Preachers Suffering.

Some of our preachers complain sadly of their poverty and the poor circumstances of their people. We commend to them the following extract from the Texas Advocate, of the Church South. Besides this, we find in the papers of said church pitiful complaints of the straits to which their Bishops are reduced, certainly these things out not to be:

But, oh, the finances! The crop was lost. The year was well nigh consumed before it was gathered. Then the high tax has left the people destitute of means. Can't pay for your excellent paper, can't pay missionary money, conference money, nor books, nor can't pay the preachers.

From the second to the third quarterly meetings I received eight dollars. The presiding elder, one hundred miles from home, with fifty cents in his pockets. The eight dollars paid me can not be come at. The members of the Quarterly Conference raised some five or six dollars to defray his expenses home.

Now, sir, I would like you or some of your able correspondents to tell us what itinerant ministers are to do. We have but a scanty supply of the necessaries of life—none of the luxuries. Worse still, we are deprived of giving our children an education.

JAMES M. GANN.

Youthful Depravity.

In the last Packard's Monthly, Mr. Dyer gives us some terrible facts about the neglected children of this Christian land and of England. Of New York city he says:

* * * One-fifth of the girls who walk the streets at night are under sixteen years of age, and many of them are mere children, not yet fourteen, and some of them not yet thirteen years old.

And matters are growing worse all the time. The tendency in every department of vice and crime is youthward. Thieves, burglars, pickpockets, as well as daughters of shame, average many years younger now than they did a quarter of a century ago—and so do drunkards. We have repeatedly seen children under four years of age drunk in the streets of the Fourth Ward, and have also seen them come drunk to the Howard Mission day school and sleep off their debauch on the floor or the benches of that institution.

The same painful facts have been revealed by the Midnight Mission in London. Of four hundred girls rescued from the streets and dens of vice in London by that Mission nearly every one had been a Sabbath school scholar or teacher, and their aggregate attendance at Sabbath school amounted to one thousand two hundred and sixty-three years—an average of over three years to each girl.

As to the remedy he adds:

The whole country seems to be awaking to the importance of the subject. It is beginning to be understood that so long as anybody's daughter is neglected, nobody's daughter is safe. The churches are holding prayer meetings for the especial purpose of invoking Divine aid in this work. Offers of assistance are coming in from many unexpected quarters. But the work is a gigantic one, and must necessarily be a slow one. The salvation of these girls is a hard problem. The material difficulties are great. They must have shelter, and clothing, and food; they must have employment, both mental and physicial; they must have human sympathy and elevating companionship.

Jefferson Davis.

This gentleman is lionizing in England, where we hope he may have a good time. His reception by the aristocracy seems to afford great satisfaction to the so-called Democrats of the South. We give an extract from an article published first in the London Standard, and copied with high commendation by the New Orleans Crescent. With much extravagant laudation of their hero and the cause he represents, the writer defines correctly the position of Mr. Davis and his party:

To the enthusiasts of that political sect which makes a species of religion of its devotion to the negro and its abhorrence of slavery, Mr. Davis was during these four years the representative incarnation of political and social evil—the leader of the last effort of the falling cause of tyranny in its conflict with the spirit of progress an humanity. To an opposite class of minds he was the representative of the cause of law and order against the the anarchical and democratic tendencies of the age; the chosen champion of a people who, from the peculiar time and circumstances of their struggle, appeared to be maintaining the critical and decisive contest of the old order against the new; of aristocracy against democracy; of liberty against the despotism of majorities; of conservatism against political chaos and social revolution. In the opinion of not a few of those who dissent most strongly from the prevalent worship of "the nineteenth century," the interest of the South was the common interest of all monarchical and aristocratic societies—of all orders whose position rests upon settled law and ancient tradition, as against the leveling temper of American democracy. "This by no narrow bounds was circumscribed.
It was the cause of chivalry at large."

And there can be no doubt that the fall of the South gave an impulse and encouragement to the progress of the democratic spirit throughout Christendom greater than any it has received since the French revolution.

Novel Christianity.

The Texas Christian Advocate is just now more than usually full of scurillity and slander regarding the Methodist Episcopal Church; at the same time it is advertising great revivals in the churches of which it is the organ.

In view of the spirit manifested and the facts below stated, will there be any doubts of the necessity existing all over the South for the labors of our own and other Churches among these miserable people?

Flake's Galveston Bulletin prints the following letter of excommunication, addressed to an unhappy Republican:

BETHEL, ANDERSON CO., TEXAS, March 2, 1868.

BROTHER KING: On last Saturday a charge was preferred against you in our church for inconsistency as a follower of Christ. The charge is here below copied:

"I charge brother W. H. King, a regular member of our church, and our former clerk, with having openly avowed himself as a Black Republican and Radical by accepting of the appointment as County Clerk under the military authority.

"H. M. MORRIS."

The Church wants you to be in attendance next meeting, and bring your Church letter. The Church will not fellowship a Radical. I am one of the committee to notify you. Your brother in Christ,

H. CLAY.

Punshon.

The London Methodist Recorder is publishing some very readable letters by Rev. W. M. Punshon. In one of them is an entertaining account of his visit to our General Conference at Chicago. His letters are republished in the New York Advocate, from which we take the following extract on the reception of colored delegates:

This General Conference has been noticeable for the admission of colored men as delegates. There were seven of them, fine, intelligent looking men, of all shades, from glossy black to dingy brown. I was glad to be present when, by a vote which was practically unanimous, color was adjudged to be no longer a disqualification for any office in the Church. Hail to the day when true freedom shall prevail, and the great tides of love, flood with equal and all-embracing waves the little miserable enclosures "in whose eddying depths" earth's charity has been so often "drowned."

The Campaign.

NUMBER TWO.

NEW ORLEANS, September 3.

MR. EDITOR:

The Copperhead rebel-Democratic party plays the desperate game of double or quits with reason. After the surrender of General R. E. Lee they all became eager (outwardly) for a union of the States. After the July massacre in this city they chanted gloria at its success. They idolized the projectors of the dastardly act; they sanctified the deed. They deify the Confederate chiefs, and deem the rebellion righteous. They have the same "Lost Cause" uppermost in their hearts; the Stars and Bars possesses an enchantment to them. For them Hampton and Forrest may still thunder in the North and West. The rebellion is an incomplete experiment; the Republicans and loyal men traitors, and not to be respected. Their black conspiracy against Justice Union, Liberty, and Peace envelopes the Southern part of the United States. They are quite as united now in resistance to the United States government as they were during the war. In the North their banner is "Liberty, Union, Universal Suffrage, Peace;" in the East, "Secession and slavery is dead:" in the West, "Specie payments;" in the South, "State rights; We want no negro suffrage; Return of all confiscated property, slaves included; The proclamation of emancipation is unconstitutional; The rebellion was just: We will set aside the acts of Congress; This is a white man's government; Down with the negro; Restoration of the Lost Cause."

The peace, Union, liberty, justice, specie payments, universal suffrage which the Copperhead rebel-Democratic party would dispense that of persecution and tyranny. Yes, everywhere throughout the United States the Copperhead rebel-Democratic party march against Liberty, Education, Universal Suffrage, Peace, Union, and Justice, but under different mottoes.

A direct blow is aimed at the Constitution of the United States, and ultimately at the liberties of its citizens. Who are Seymour and Blair? and who are their supporters? Why, Copperheads and rebels who hold, first, that the negro has no right to the ballot any more than a thief has to to what he has stolen; that God made them to be slaves, and that therefore if they are to remain in the United States they must all be slaves, and be ignorant. Second, that the Southern States have a right to secede, and their guerrillas have a right to murder innocent persons because they will not sustain them in seceding; that Congress has no power over the Southern States; that they will repeal every act framed by Congress, even if they have to resort to arms.

As proof of what I write, until I have time and opportunity to reveal more, I refer you to the speeches made by these rebel-Democratic orators; to the editorials of their journals; and to the letters of acceptance and speeches of Seymour and Blair.

O citizens of this republic! if you could only surprise their clubs in their places of meetings, and hear them implore God for the prosperity, the well-being of their nefarious cause, it would cause you to rouse with might to battle against this encroachment upon you liberties. Let me warn you of coming events; let me bring before your eyes the most dangerous enemies of humanity which you have among you, and which shall often be unmasked by me.

You have regarded the Copperhead rebel-Democratic party with indifference, and have thought yourselves secure on account of your success in subduing the rebellion, not considering that the most insignificant worm may in time undermine the strongest structure. The gnawing cancer that eats itself into the heart of the republic, and which you must cut out or destroy by the ballot if you wish to remain men, is this same Copperhead rebel-Democratic party. They adopt the honorable name of Democrats, but remain always Copperheads and rebels.

Now if you are to be humbled to the condition of a slave, you should not for that reason let yourselves be degraded to a creature of blind obedidence. Universal liberty was the latent power that subdued the rebellion, and universal suffrage must be the legal power with which to reconstruct and save from destruction a broken Union.

Since the party of liberty and justice came into power, the Republic has advanced in civil and mental liberty, enlarged public policies, great measures, and newly formed States, with a rapidity unknown before in history. Is all this to be now abandoned?

Let none forget that to be right they must do right. You are citizens of a great republic which is moving to a grand destiny; be you worthy of elevated citizenship. Put your trust in no Copperhead or rebel. Be no man's man, but liberty's and your country's, look through your own eyes—tread your own path—trust in God. The atmosphere is a little warmer inside some club room of the pusedo Democracy, but the free air of heaven is much purer and more bracing. In November let the word go out over the land, from the highest to the lowest, that with united hands the Republican people North, South, East, and West have struck for a higher destiny, and determined that liberty, justice, universal suffrage, and peace shall be sustained.

Respectfully,

F. K. HYDE.

Notices of Periodical.

In the first article Mr. Dyer exposes New York wickedness. In the second Horace Greeley discourses of industry. Next Eliha Burritt gives a literary treat. Bungay, Parton Holbrook follow with good, healthy articles. It is excellent reading.

Harper's Magazine, September, contains: Silver Plate; Traveling in Liberia; Insects; Kosciusko; Parole d'Honneur; Woman's Kingdom; Pet Gorilla; French in Mexico; Woman's Work and Ways; Chair; Record; Drama. All wise, witty, fascinating, with rich and abundant illustrations.

The Galaxy for September contains: Kit Grale; Annals of Angling; Mrs. Brown; Dreams; Facætia; Beechdale; Midsummer; Cholera; Words; Miss Faith; Great Awakening; Miscellany; Drift; Literature; Nebula. Much excellent reading.

Phrenological Journal, September, contains all the Presidential Candidates—Grant, Colfax, Seymour, and Blair. Also, Hon. Anson Burlingame, the Chinese Minister; Franz Listz, the Composer; Arminius Vambery, the Oriental Traveler; John H. Littlefield, Artist; Who are the Yankees; Use Legs and have Legs; A Key Thought; the Developement Theory Defined; Our Daily Lectures; A New Class in Practical Phrenology; Finding a Situation; A Perfect Church on Earth—Is it possible? Only 30 cents, or $3 a year. $1 50 for half a year. Address, S. R. Wells, 389 Broadway, New York.

Arthur's Home Magazine, September.—A Gem of a Number; the frontispieces are charming. Contains fashion plates, music, and many well written articles; Account of a Children's Asylum; Case of Double Vision; Divorce; Hallie Ray; The Hollands; Mother's Department; and some good poetry.

Our School Visitor for September. This magazine is one of the most beautiful periodicals in this country. Its articles are original, and by the very best writers. The engravings are fine, and music every month. Thirty-two large, double column pages, with illuminated cover. $1 25 a year. J. W. Daughaday & Co., publishers, 424 Walnut street, Philadelphia. A specimen number, containing full instructions about clubs and premiums, will be furnished for ten cents, and the song therein will be worth double that amount.

Harper's Bazaar and Harper's Weekly of August 29 and September 5 are beautiful, instructive, and entertaining, as usual.

"Harper's Pictorial History of the War," numbers 33, 34, and 35. Closing the series. It is a wonderful work, above praise, having 827 pages, divided into 62 chapters, with 493 illustrations. The writing of it has extended over a period of five years, by different pens. These numbers and the work can be obtained at Krull & Dickey's, 106 Canal street.

The Nursery for September.—The very little folks have a treat in this magazine. Alfred's Mishap; Little Pinky; Aunt Helen; and indeed all are charming.

The Song Messenger of the Northwest has several excellent pieces of music, and much good reading, mostly concerning music.

THE PROTESTANT CHURCHMAN.—This paper, which has been doing good service in the interest of evangelical Christianity and fraternal denominationalism as against the dogmas and offensive exclusiveness of the High Church party in the Protestant Episcopal Church, now furnishes in its columns weekly a summary of religious news items relating to other churches. The editors are true men, free from that narrow-souled churchism which seeks to ignore, if not destroy, the religious labors and high social position of Christian ministers of other evangelical denominations. The Churchman is ably conducted, and deserves, as we trust it is receiving, a growing patronage.

The most original political principle yet announced in the campaign was discovered by the New Orleans Crescent. "Get rid," says that journal, "of Radical despotism, and the cattle disease will disappear."

Intelligence from Our Mission Rooms.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—In a note received at the Mission Rooms, dated at Constantinople, July 27, we learn that Rev. E. Wanless and wife arrived at Constantinople, Turkey, on Friday, July 24. Fuller information is promised at an early day.

CHINA.—Rev. N. Sites is about his work in the primitive mode of an evangelist. During the last seven months he has spent more than half his time away from home, looking after those who had neither fold nor feeder nigh. In many of these itineracies his good wife and children accompany him, serving by their presence to increase the audiences and interest them to profit, for the little girl can sing hymns in Chinese, and the mother can have access to the female portion of the community.

SCANDINAVIANS.—Presiding Elder Peterson, of the Central Illinois Conference, reports an ingathering of forty persons during the third quarter on his district.

SOUTH AMERICA.—We have encouraging reports of the progress of our work in Rosario from Rev. Thomas Carter, the missionary. Details hereafter.

GERMAN DOMESTIC.—From a note at hand from Presiding Elder Kastendick, of the East German Conference, we learn that present prosperity on the district warrants the expectation that they will be better able to help themselves next year, and be less dependent upon the Missionary Society.

NORWAY.—Rev. P. K. Rye, our missionary at Arendal, Norway, writes under date of July 16 of the success with which his labors have been crowned since his arrival in the beginning of June. He already has organized the band of believers gathered by him into four classes, who meet regularly once a week. Brother Rye sends us under the same date an account of a fire, a terrific explosion of gunpowder, and a consequent increase of the conflagration, which continued from half-past five o'clock Sunday evening until eight o'clock Monday morning, laying nearly one half of the city in ashes.

Last Sunday, July 12, was a still, clear, and beautiful day. I preached at ten o'clock A. M., as usual, to a large and very attentive audience. Our evening service was appointed to take place at the usual hour, 6 P. M. The clock lacked five minutes of six, and I stood ready to ascend the pulpit. The hall was full of people. Then a brother came to me and said, "There is fire broke out in the city." I crowded through the congregation to the altar, and announced this to the audience, and added that if it was possible then we would meet at seven o'clock and have our service. Then we all went to the place where the fire was. The fire had broken out in a whisky shop. Some engines were at work to quench the fearful element, and their efforts seemed as if they should be crowned with success. But suddenly a terrible explosion took place. The air was filled with burning pine logs, pieces of rock, etc., and now the most awful confusion followed. I was close to the spot where the explosion occurred. Burning pieces of logs and chunks of rocks whirled in every direction. I was thrown senseless to the ground. The whole of my left side was without feeling. I know not how I came from there alive. I am as one come back from the dead—a brand plucked from the burning. Now the fire broke out with raging fury, not in one, but in many places, in the surrounding houses. The houses were built of pine logs and clad with pine boards; and as we had had a long and severe drought these houses burned like match boxes. The fire broke out Sunday, July 12, at five and a half o'clock P. M., and devoured house after house as long as there was any house to devour in that part of the city until eight o'clock Monday morning. Nearly one-half of the city is now a heap of smoking ruins. Some of the largest and finest buildings were consumed by the flames, among them hotels and postoffice. Some of our brethren did not get as much as a chair saved. The explosion, which was the great cause of this general conflagration, was occasioned by a barrel of powder catching fire. One was killed on the spot, twenty-seven were severely wounded, and some are missing. As for myself, I received an awful shock, and am sore and weak, but thank God who spared my life. We had to pack up everything we had in preparation for moving out at any moment. Some of our things were taken several miles up the Fiora, and we lie still as on a watch, for that part of the city where we reside consists entirely of wooden houses, and if the fire breaks out here the whole will soon stand in an ocean of flame. I can write no more. My heart is sick of beholding all this misery, destruction, and confusion. Would to God we now had a comfortable chapel in this place where we might gather all these sufferers and point them to Jehovah, the eternal home, for now their hearts are tender. For the sake of these immortal souls, and for God's sake who wants them to be saved, dear brethren, we beseech you to aid us in getting a house of worship, and to do so at once.

Personal.

Mr. Morris Tyng, a son of Rev. Dr. Tyng, has left the law and politics and is studying for the ministry.

Bishop Meade, of Virginia, once said: "Our girls are poorly educated, but our boys will never find it out."

Miss Mary S. True, late preceptress at Wilbraham, has been elected preceptress of the ladies' seminary at Auburndale, Massachusetts.

Rev. Thomas Owen, the patriarch of the Mississippi Conference, died of cancer in the stomach, at Rocky Springs, July 1, aged eighty-two.

A wealthy stock broker, of New York city, is about to erect a mammoth art gallery, for the use of the public, at an expense of nearly two million dollars.

Rev. M. H. Hare, presiding elder of the Keokuk district, died in Mount Pleasant, Iowa, on Monday, July 27. The disease of which he died was contracted in a Southern prison pen during the war.

Rev. W. Hosmer, editor of the Northern Independent, recently met with a serious accident, by which he was severely bruised and disabled. His injury resulted from being thrown out of his buggy.

Federick Jones, Esq., a Boston merchant, has given $15,000 to the Andover Theological Seminary, toward the foundation of a professorship of elocution; and Mr. J. Wesley Churchill, of the recent graduating class, has been chosen to fill the chair.

George Willard, of Chicago, has invented a steam plow, which seems to work satisfactorily, excavating a width of six feet, and going at the rate of one mile per hour, with forty pounds of steam. The plows weigh about 9000, and cost $2000 to $2500. A company for their manufacture has been formed with a capital of $500,000.

Rev. David E. Palmer, of the Presbyterian Church at Timber Ridge, Tennessee, died suddenly in the pulpit. While preaching he stopped in the middle of his sermon and requested the congregation to sing while he rested a few moments. During the singing he was observed to lie down in the pulpit, and, on reaching him, his friends found him speechless.

Henry Keep, Esq., of New York, well-known in connection with railroad interests, has purchased the block of ground on Fifth avenue, opposite the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum, consisting of twelve city lots, whereon he proposes to erect at his own expense, and for the benefit of the city, an elegant art gallery. The price paid for the ground is $260,000, and it is understood that Mr. Keep will expend nearly $1,000,000 upon the building. He has himself made his ample fortune, and now purposes to be his own executor. We are not advised of the particulars of this magnificent gift.

The Rev. Dr. John Marsh died in Brooklyn on the evening of August 4th, of congestion of the brain. Dr. Marsh was born in Wethersfield, Connecticut, in 1788. He entered Yale College at the age of twelve years, graduating after the regular course. His career as a minister of the gospel commenced when he was but twenty-one years of age. His labors in the cause of temperance have been characterized by a degree of energy and perseverance which made his services of immense value to that cause. Besides editing the Temperance Journal, he was the author of pamphlets, tracts, and sermons on the subject, and of a valuable handbook entitled "Temperance Recollections."

BISHOP PAINE.—A late letter in the Memphis Advocate, from the residence of Bishop Paine speaks more hopefully of the Bishop's recovery. The writer says: "He commenced improving on last Sabbath. It seemed as if he had just then awakened out of sleep—recognizing parties present, and asking how long they had been there. During the week he has been conversing very pleasantly and fully with all who have called on him, and has been sitting up for several days. His improvement is as unexpected as was his illness.

Religious and General Items.

The management of a Hamburg theatre declines to make money by "exposing female forms."

The Boston postoffice employs some six or eight young colored men as clerks, besides two as letter carriers.

The Russian grand duke who is coming to this country is eighteen years old, and is the third son of the Emperor.

The Chinese embassadors pick their teeth at table with their little-finger nails, which are sharpened for the purpose.

It is reported that one hundred and fifty Christian natives of Japan have been taken to sea and drowned near Nagasaki in defiance of a protest of the foreign consuls.

Pro-slavery notions are still prevalent in Virginia. A Richmond editor says that Mr. Colfax is not in the true acceptation of the term "a gentleman," because he began life as a printer!

The Fejee Islands, in the South Pacific, are a group of 225 islands, having an area of about 8000 square miles, and a total population of 300,000 inhabitants. The Wesleyan missions in those islands are enjoying a high degree of prosperity; the number of attendants upon divine worship exceeds 50,000.

Fifty-two students have graduated at our mission institute in Germany since its opening. Of these thirty have entered the itinerant work in Germany, a few are in the itinerant work in this country, and others are in the local preachers' ranks. The institute is doing a good work.

Dr. J. Edward Turner, the founder of the first inebriate asylum in the world, has opened an office in New York city for the medical treatment of inebriates and opium-eaters. Patients are also taken at the "Retreat." Dr. Turner proposes to issue a work on the morbid anatomy of inebriety, a quarto of six hundred pages, to be illustrated with one hundred and seventeen plates.

The Houston (Texas) Telegraph says: "It gives us pleasure to record that Abe Gilmore, a freedman of Bastrop county, sent the first bale of new cotton to the Galveston market, and received therefor from Messrs. A. Sessmus & Co., the premium of a fine silver pitcher and two silver cups, and also one and a half cents more per pound than the market price. This freedman labored under the disadvantage of having made his cotton in Bastrop county, some distance from a railroad, and of course had to haul it either to Columbus or Brenham. He richly deserves the reward, and we rejoice that he had the ambition to seek it, and that he succeeded."

The public debt has been reduced during the past year over seventeen millions of dollars, as may be seen by the statement of the Secretary of the Treasury for the month of July. This is at the rate of over one million and a half of dollars per month. Taxation has been materially lightened, and the interest on the debt largely reduced. On the whole, the financial exhibit is cheerful, and the steady reduction of the debt, notwithstanding the depression in business, ought to encourage the people and convince them of the ability of the United States to meet all its obligations promptly, and even anticipate them, without serious hardships to the people themselves.

Camp Meeting Items.

At a camp meeting in Kansas, on the last night of the meeting about forty persons presented themselves for prayers. Of one young lady it is said she cried out in the bitterness of her soul, "Oh! that the priest from Fort Scott were here, for he would pardon my sins." She was told to look to Jesus, for the priest could do her no good. Then she said, "If the priest and my mother were here they could help me." After a time she looked to Jesus, and he set her soul free. On Tuesday we had a children's meeting. This was a new feature here, but the parents and children were pleased with it. One man told me had sent to Kansas City for some whisky to take occasionally during the meeting, but from some cause the man failed to get any, and lo! God converted both men during the meeting, and the whisky was not needed. The owner of the ground became a member of the Church, and leased the ground for camp meetings for five years. Forty-five persons joined on trial, and about fifty professed a change of heart during the meeting. It was a season of great spiritual profit to very many of our people. God be praised for these annual feasts in the grove.

Our Work in Mississippi.

A letter from Rev. James Lynch, presiding elder of the Jackson district, Mississippi Conference, received just before going to press, states he will return to his work about the fifteenth instant, after an absence of a month. We are gratified to learn from his letter that notwithstanding the serious embarrassments to the work caused by the Southern politicians and their designing associates, the M. E. Church in Mississippi enjoys prosperity. The numbers and devotion of the membership are constantly increasing. "Of the fourteen charges in my district," writes Mr. Lynch, "eleven have added to their membership from nineteen to two hundred members each, and the increase in Mississippi since last Conference (December 24) may be set down at eighteen hundred. The Lord throws a bulwark of fire around this cause, and the waves of political strife can not extinguish it." The late hour at which the letter of Mr. Lynch is received forbids its insertion entire. It closes by stating his purpose to lay politics aside, and devote himself wholly to the ministry of the Gospel. In view of the vast masses of colored population in Mississippi seeking the religious instruction and care promised by our Church, as well as in view of the self-sacrificing labors and embarrassments of our ministry now in the field, all possible aid should be extended at once to the cause in that region. We can not doubt that the divide blessing will abide upon these devoted servants.—New York Advocate.

HOW THE PRESIDENT TREATS SOUTHERN LADIES.

We find the following story in a Washington letter to the Cincinnati Times. It suggests many reflections:

Walking near the Executive Mansion a few days ago, I met a talkative, middle-aged woman, leading a small child. The lady seemed in exuberant spirits. She had evidently met with luck, and could not restrain her feelings. She was a perfect stranger to me. We were both going in the same direction. Approaching the Western entrance of the Treasury building, she turned to me, and, without any introduction, said:

"I have been fortunate to-day."

"Indeed, madam—how so?" I inquired, in my blandest tone.

"Why," said she, "I only arrived in the city yesterday, and I called on the President to-day, about my property in Louisiana, which has been held during the war, and since, by the Yankees, and he immediately ordered it restored to me, almost as soon as I told him about it."

"Is it possible?" I inquired. "Did he not order an investigation into the circumstances?"

"Oh, no," she replied, "I sent my card in to him, and in a few minutes I was invited in his office, when I told him my story, and he immediately ordered my property restored to me, and gave me an order for transportation to take me back home."

"Really, that was very kind in him," I suggested. "I have known cases where people have to wait weeks and months before they can get their business settled, and then he often refers them to the heads of departments, who make still more delay."

"I don't know how that is," she remarked, "but I suppose it was because I was a Southern woman, and he sympathized with me. But I assure you he treated me just as I tell you, and gave me an order for my passage home, which you can look at if you want to"—(holding out the paper to me.)

I politely declined to doubt her word, and took for granted what she asserted was correct. As I moved off I inquired, "what was the amount of your property? what did it consist of?"

"About 800 acres of land. We lost a great deal of cotton, which the Yankees carried off, but I never expect to get that, or its value, returned. My husband tried to get the land returned to us, but he could not, so we thought the best thing we could do was for me to come to Washington, and see the President; and I'm right glad I come, for he's a very fine man, and treated me so kindly."

"You have reason to feel grateful to him," I remarked, and then asking what her name might be, she replied:

"My name is Mrs. Allen, from Louisiana, and I am going to New Orleans to-night."

Bowing to the fortunate lady, we separated; she went her way and I mine. But I could not help thinking how differently she was treated from some others, who linger for days at the Executive Mansion, seeking an interview with his Excellency. If you want any business done here, there is nothing like getting a sharp, shrewd woman to engineer it for you.

THE PARISHES.

Caddo and DeSoto Parishes.

The Shreveport Gazette furnishes us these news items:

We are informed by a planter from DeSoto parish that the cotton worm is rapidly stripping off the leaves in his neighborhood. He stated that there was about two hundred pounds of open cotton to the acre, and a heavy crop of bolls. There was no prospect of a top crop.

The worm has made but little progress in other portions of the country which trade at Shreveport, and the prospect for an average crop is still good. All accounts from Northern and Eastern Texas are very cheering.

The weather during the past week has been favorable, as very little rain has fallen, and the weather has been clear for several days.

The cool nights will have a tendency to check the growth of the plant, and to hasten the maturity of the bolls.

The Southern Pacific railroad has taken the contract for conveying the mails between Shreveport and Marshall, daily, for the next twelve months.

This contract makes assurance doubly sure that regular daily trips will be made over the road every day. Parties from Marshall can come to Shreveport and have three hours in which to transact their business, and return the same day.

The Triple Elections.

[From the New York Commonwealth.]

The three great nations of the world are each on the eve of important elections. In France and England, as well as in America, there is a conservative (?) administration and a Liberal reaction. The English Liberals enter into the canvass with the Irish Church question as their point d'appui. Under the lead of Mr. Gladstone, they propose to disestablish the present church system of Ireland, and to introduce in its place voluntary religious organizations. If they succeed, the Fenian movement will be destroyed, by a cessation of the most important Irish grievance. The French party of progress wars against imperialism, with its terrible associations of a large standing army, an enormous national debt, and agricultural prostration. It is believed that Louis Napoleon is certain to encounter a partial, if not a complete, defeat.

Here in the United States the questions on which the November election will turn, are even more important than those which will shortly convulse the British and French empires. The permanent establishment of the reconstruction policy, the absolute guarantee of the legality of the Constitutional amendments, the protection of the honor of the country from repudiation and the Pendletonian heresies—these are the issues which the Republican party grapples with—and it is to render an affirmative decision on all these great questions that it is now concentrating all its energies. Whatever may be the fate of the Liberal party abroad, in America it is certain of a large and splendid triumph.

General Buchanan thus defines the official relations between military commanders and sheriffs:

The Sheriff, being a State officer, usually appointed for a particular county or parish, is restricted in the execution of his duties to the territorial limits of such county or parish. His right to require the assistance of the posse comitatus is supreme within such limits. He is therefore authorized, in cases of unlawful resistance to his authority clearly shown to exist, to require the assistance of any troops serving within his district. In such cases the military commanders will be required to render the assistance called for; provided, that in the exercise of a sound discretion, he is satisfied that the necessity for such service exists. But should he not be thoroughly satisfied of this, he will decline to act until he can make a report to, and receive special instructions from these headquarters, in each case.

For the final acknowledgment of the reconstructed States of the South, and for practically laying aside his policy, let Andrew Johnson be thanked! It is no light thing for a man of positive temperament to give up a hobby he has ridden long. The scheme of Frank Blair to override the laws of Congress with regard to the Southern States, and revolutionize the country, will therefore receive no comfort from Andrew Johnson. The Southern rebels have found themselves discomfitted in the very house of their friends.—Chicago Post.

DOTS FOR DEMOCRATS.

The Democratic platform has three planks: Nullification, repudiation, civil war.

A corps of 4000 tanners has been organized in Chicago.

General E. M. Lee, of Connecticut, will stump Indiana until the October election.

The Pilgrim fathers were among the original "carpet-baggers" in this country.

But for rebel and Copperhead votes, the Democrats would not be able to carry a single State in the Union. With those votes, they will not carry half a dozen.

Why is the eighteenth letter of the alphabet like the Presidential election of 1868? Because it is the end of both Seymour and Blair.

The first gun of the campaign was fired in Dover, New Hampshire, and two Republican flags were thrown to the breeze. Senator Cragin addressed the assemblage.

General Sol. Meredith, of Indiana, famous as commander of the "Iron Brigade," last year inclined to Johnsonism, has come out like a true soldier, and taken the stump for Grant.

The Southern Democrats are taking to the negroes wonderfully. They are fairly hugging them to death—with ropes.

"Taxation without representation is despotism." "None but white men shall vote." Nasby is invited to write a letter harmonizing these two Democratic doctrines; nobody else can do it.

There was a time when blacks voted in North Carolina. Judge Pearson says that in those times, before the Constitution of 1835, it was a subject of remark: "The free niggers always vote for the most respectable men."

The Philadelphia Ledger has the largest circulation of any neutral paper in the United States. On Tuesday last it published a very strong leader in favor of Grant and Colfax. There is no ebb to the great ocean of popular sentiment which will bear Grant to the White House.

The Democrats revile the Freedmen's Bureau without stint, though a large part of its expenditure has been in behalf of poor and wretched white people in the Southern States, who would have starved without assistance, and who were victims of the Confederate rebellion.

Governor Vance, of North Carolina, was a rebel general. Just before a battle he urged his troops to "pile hell so full of Yankees that their feet would stick out of the windows." This man was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention, and is now making stump speeches for Seymour and Blair.

One of the compliments bestowed by the Mobile Register upon the Northern Democracy is that a rebel soldier can talk with a Northern Democrat upon political subjects with as much assurance of sympathy and common aim and purpose as he could feel in talking with one of his old comrades in arms.

Robert Douglas, son of the great statesman, Stephen A. Douglas, delivered his maiden political speech at Raleigh, North Carolina, a few days ago. He championed the principles of the Republican party.

Republican prospects are improving in California. It is said that there has been a "reaction" from the extraordinary popularity of Governor Haight, who has become the best "haighted" man in the State.

If the Democracy consider it of such great moment to secure the silence of Frank Blair during the campaign, we suggest that they present him with a straw and set him down beside a still. By this method he'll keep still, if the still won't keep.

An Illinois Copperhead writes to Brick Pomeroy's new paper that "the woods are full of Democrats this year." Innocent fool! Everybody understands that. They take to the woods when the sun rises, and to the towns when it sets. And it has been so from the beginning of time.

General Logan says of the union of Northern Democrats and Southern rebels, that "we should have had the charming meeting before, had it not been for a few boys in blue, whose line from the Atlantic to the Mississippi kept those Northern and Southern Democrats apart, but the moment that line was withdrawn, the same old Democratic family comes together."

The Republicans of the Fifth District of Indiana had a splendid meeting at Martinsville. Fourteen car loads went from Indianapolis, including a large battalion of fighting boys. A thousand came in from Fairland, and many others from other places. The speaking was done from two stands, by Colonel Will Cumback, Colonel Thomas H. Nelson, General Coburn, the Hon. Albert G. Porter, Governor Baker, and Barnabas C. Hobbs, and a fine torchlight procession closed up the meeting.

Brick Pomeroy's paper has an old cut of Rosa Bonheur, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, and one of a negro, side by side, the first labelled "Democracy," and the second "Republicanism." In his explanation of the cuts Brick says: "White soldiers, you return from the war to pay taxes to support white bondholders and negro paupers who did not fight, and for a further reward are told that the rebellion never would have been put down had it not been for the negro, who by law is to be made your equal. We say, white supremacy or another war."

It is strong evidence of the want of faith in the success of the Democratic ticket that a prominent member of the Chicago Board of Trade has publicly announced his desire to bet any sum from $5000 to $25,000, that Grant and Colfax will be the next President and Vice-President of the United States, and has offered to wait ten days for a taker, but has found no person ready to accept his terms.

Last week the Republicans of Hobart, Indiana, and vicinity assembled to greet General Jasper A. Packard, who is to succeed the Hon. Schuyler Colfax as Representative in Congress from this district. The demonstration was by far the largest ever witnessed in that part of the country. General Packard spoke for two hours. His defense of the Republican platform and its candidates was very eloquent and impressive, and satisfied all that the vacancy in Congress caused by the election of the Hon. Schuyler Colfax to the Vice Presidency will be filled with credit to the district.

Ex-Governor Charles S. Morehead, of Kentucky, made a speech at Frankfort on last Monday night. Mr. Morehead was arrested and sent North, early in the war, for disloyalty. Being asked to give some account of his absence from home, he said: "This shall be done in due time, when the episode of my imprisonment shall constitute a part of the history of the times, and this assassin of liberty be held up to the execration of mankind." He means Mr. Seward, whose little tinkling bell summoned Mr. Morehead away from the delights of secessia.

A lady riding in a car on the New York Central railroad was disturbed in her reading by the conversation of two young men occupying the seat before her. One of them seemed to be a student of some college, on his way home for a vacation. He used much profane language, greatly to the annoyance of the lady. She thought she would rebuke him, and begging pardon for interrupting them, asked the young student if he had studied the languages. "Yes, madam, I have mastered the languages quite well." "Do you read and speak Hebrew?" "Quite fluently." "Will you be so kind as to do me a small favor?" "With great pleasure; I am at your service." "Will you be so kind as to do your swearing in Hebrew?"

Interview with General Longstreet—General Grant His Candidate for the Presidency.

The New York Tribune of the twenty-fifth says:

Yesterday a chieftain of the late rebellion, General James Longstreet, arrived in New York. Since the war he accepted the situation, and has used his influence to counsel and guide his people, and to lead them safely back to an enduring peace. Yesterday evening a reporter called upon the General at the New York Hotel.' Imagine seated at a table a tall, well-built man, in a suit of black. The face is a kindly, pleasant one, the beard is sandy and grizzled, and the cheeks are flushed. The forehead is high, and the eyes are gray and soft in expression. The mouth squarely cut denotes decision, and there is that quiet, resolute air about him that reminded one of General Grant, whom he strongly resembles in looks and manners. Although suffering from an attack of fever, he bore himself resolutely above pain, and after dinner conversed freely upon affairs in the Southern States. As a portion of the conversation bears directly upon the coming campaign, I will give it in full.

Reporter—Do you think we will have better days in the Southern States?

General Longstreet—Assuredly. The cotton crop has been very large this year, and we will soon have capital of our own to work upon.

Reporter—Suppose Seymour is elected, do you think we will have another war?

General Longstreet—I cannot say as to that, but I believe that if he is elected it will open all those old issues, and we will have trouble; but I don't think he will be elected.

Reporter—What do you think of Grant?

General Longstreet—He is my man. I believe he is a fair man. I met him at West Point. I think he is above meanness. His silence is grand.

Reporter—There is one thing I would like to ask. It is in regard to the negro.

General Longstreet (smilingly)—I will tell you all I know.

Reporter—Will he keep his contracts in regard to laber?

General Longstreet—I can relate my own experience. My men have worked well. They like to have a white man come out in the field and tell them what to do. There was always a class of lazy men who would sit in their houses and give their orders. These men deserve to have trouble.

Reporter—And in regard to jury trials—I mean negroes upon a jury bench?

General Longstreet—In some cases that is bad; for instance, when an action involves an account. Negroes generally are ignorant upon intricate matters of business. But, if a district is disposed to do right with them, the jury may be divided—white and black. They (the negroes) soon learn and appreciate the position.

Reporter—About negro supremacy?

General Longstreet—Ah, that can never be; it is silly to think of it. They can never be stronger than they are to-day, and the whites of the South know it, but they are misled by the politicians.

Reporter—In regard to the acts of Reconstruction?

General Longstreet—I advise my friends to accept them, and come into the Union, and try to bring about peace and prosperity. I told the people of Alabama if they would not be guided by the politicians they would come out all right.

Reporter—And you think it will come out all right?

General Longstreet—I do; the crops are large. The cotton crop is worth $200,000,000. That is a step toward bringing about the desired result. Chase was my man. I think if nominated he could have been elected, and the Southern people would rally about him without knowing it; I can not vote for Seymour; but any way, I think good times are not far distant.

Frescoed Donkey.

A correspondent of the Springfield Republican writes as follows from Cadiz:

"Landing at the Mole, one elbows his way through groups of excited, voluble boatmen and sailors (for, singular as it may seem, the Spaniard, traditionally believed to be reserved and self-possessed, does talk faster, or more loudly, at any rate, gesticulates more earnestly, and gathers more readily an interested crowd, than his more mercurial cousin, the Italian,) past gaily dressed customhouse officials, looking furtively for superfluous cigars in the possession of new comers; past the watch tower on the wall, overhanging and buttressed, when a confused silver tinkling in the air causes him to lift up his eyes, and the traveler is in Spain! Lo! they come, in file of four, with heads down, ears flapping, panniers on either side distended with hay or green vegetables, bells ringing at every step, the immortal descendants of Dapple, the donkey. Sober, patient, careful, frugal, firm, faithful, what virtue is it which men value, and the donkey hath not? The present writer does not hesitate to hazard his readers' regard by acknowledging that he admires this animal, and he never sees his half-grown children, plodding along by their mother's side, striving in vain to keep down the natural exuberance of youth to the plane demanded by their ancestry and their prospects, without feeling for them a mirthful admiration and respect, which is not far removed from love. Now behold the march of improvement! The Spanish muleteer sheares short the upper half of the little jack's body, leaving only a beautiful silken tassel at the point of either ear, and then, with sharpened scissors and intellect, works out upon either flank some highly artistic design of bird, or tree, or flower? Gentlemen, as you would encourage all the virtues, as you would patronize and foster the development of the fine arts, I call upon you, one and all, hats off, and make way for the frescoed donkey!"

The Democrats revile the Freedmen's Bureau without stint, though a large part of its expenditure has been in behalf of poor and wretched white people in the Southern States, who would have starved without assistance, and who were victims of the Confederate rebellion.

Vallandigham is repudiated by the honest Democracy of his district. General Vandeveer and hundreds of others have promptly repudiated the traitor, and announce their intention to "vote as they shot"—against rebels in every guise.

We begin to understand why it is that the Democracy devote so much of their attention to General Butler. Grant said in one of his reports that Butler was "bottled up," and the Democracy "go for" anything that is "bottled up."

A Democrat in the interior of Ohio say he opposes the Republican ticket because "the United States are now in debt about $1500, and the most of that was made in buying bureaus and other expensive furniture for the negroes South, and d—d if I'll vote with a party that lays out money that way."

It is alleged that Grant's victories were won by brute force—that he displayed no military genius in his campaigns. Napoleon, who is generally regarded as having possessed some skill in war, when told by Carnot: "We can place you in command of men only," replied: "Give me only men enough, and I will ask for nothing more."

In one of the Southern States, and at a communion season in a certain "Methodist Church South," the preacher, after having administered the communion to the white members present, told the blacks that they might partake provided they would agree to vote the Democratic ticket.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

An Extensive Robbery.—The fact of seeing cart wheel tracks on Lafayette street, in itself, does not ordinarily convey any further idea than that a dray has passed along, and nothing more; but even this simple thing to Special Officers Cane and Marks was sufficient light for them to trace out a den of systematic thieves.

Lafayette warehouse and the warehouse opposite, corner Magazine and Lafayette streets, have been often robbed lately of valuable wares, how, when and by whom was unknown until yesterday, when these two persevering officers sallied forth to ferret out the robbers. They had no clue to work on, but they took up the track mentioned above, which led them to Nos. 107 and 109 Lafayette street. Procuring a search warrant they entered these shanties, where they secured Robert Campbell and Jo. Scheiber, and then proceeded to search the houses. Their sharp eyes quickly discovered a great variety of valuable goods, of that description only seen in rich stores. Shining broadcloths, damasks, laces, theatrical costumes, gauzy curtains, bedding, shoes, and hundreds of other useful and ornamental things were one after another turned out from nooks, corners, chests and boxes. A cask of Otard brandy, old and racy, worth ten dollars a gallon, was in position for tapping, Cane putting a stick into it and Marks making his x on it. Gathering these stolen goods together they took them and their prisoners to the main station for safe keeping. One cask of the rare old brandy was missing, but they found it with Philip McGivney, grocer, Rampart street. The liquor and the Mc were incarcerated.

One of the robbers states that he sold the brandy to McGivney Sunday for one dollar per gallon, which was a pretty good bargain apparently.

A portion of the dry goods were claimed by Mr. J. H. McGinnis, and it is known that owners for the remaining lots will be found to-day.

Sunday School Service.—On Sunday, at St. James' Chapel (colored Methodist) on Roman street, between Customhouse and Bienville streets, the morning service was devoted entirely to the Sunday School children. The exercises were very interesting, proving the attention of the children to the instruction they received, and the intelligence and fidelity of those who taught them. After a scriptural examination by the Superintendent, Dr. R. I. Cromwell, a sermon, expressly adapted to youthful comprehension, was preached by the Pastor of the church, Rev. John Turner, from the text "Come ye children, harken unto me: I will teach you the fear of the Lord." The reverend gentleman, although addressing children only, said many things in the course of his discourse worthy of the attention of older persons. He showed that in national righteousness, founded on individual piety, rested national prosperity; and that it was only when nations, forgetting God's commandments, confided in their own devices, that they were given over to war and its accompanying horrors. So it was of the ancient Jews; so it was of their predecessors in the land of Canaan: so it has been, and will be with modern nations, with the American nation, if they turn away after false gods and serve not the Lord of Hosts. He implored the Almighty that it may never be said of this nation, as the poet has sung of a people once chosen of God:

> "Our people would not have thy ways
> And thou hast left them to their own."

At the close of the sermon, little books were distributed among the scholars as rewards for proficiency.

The exercises were interspersed with appropriate singing by the Sunday School choir accompanied by the melodeon. The singing of these children was most excellent in every requisite of good music, and will bear favorable comparison with any Sunday School in this section of country.

One Million Dollars—A New Orleans Heiress.—A curious case is before the Circuit Court of Louisville in relation to the custody of a little girl twelve years old, and said to be worth $1,000,000, inherited from her maternal grandfather. The facts are briefly these: Dr. S. E. McKinley, son of the late Judge McKinley, of the United States Supreme Court, married Mrs. Morrison, of this State, by whom he had the girl in question. In 1867 he put her in the Ursuline Academy at Louisville, and returned here. He recently sent for the child, but the Superior refused to let the child go because, as alleged, McKinley was a drunkard, and unfit to have charge of her, and because she was not his child. The Court has adjudged the answer insufficient, and the respondent was required to state the time and means by which she obtained possession of the child: a mere allegation that the Doctor was not her father, it is also held, is no ground for the respondent to retain her. While the Doctor was away, it seems that the Superior applied to the County Court to become her guardian. It is further said that she has become a Catholic, contrary to her father's wishes, who is an Episcopalian.

Deaths Last Week.—By the report of Dr. G. W. Dirmeyer, Secretary of the Board of Health, it appears that the whole number of interments for the week ending Sunday morning, was 87. Two were drowned, 1 committed suicide, 2 died of appoplexy, 1 burns, 1 cancer of the face, 3 congestion of the brain, 16 consumption, 8 congestive fever, 1 bilious fever, 2 puerperal and 2 typhoid fever, 2 heart disease, 1 pneumonia, 1 old age, 12 still-born, and the balance of various ordinary diseases; 59 were males, 33 females, and 5 not stated; 69 were natives of the United States, 2 not stated, and 36 were foreigners; 26 were under 1 year, 9 between 1 and 10, 2 between 10 and 15, 10 between 20 and 30, 4 between 30 and 40, 18 between 40 and 50, 6 between 50 and 60, 6 between 60 and 70, 9 between 70 and 80, 8 between 80 and 90, 2 between 90 and 100, and 2 whose ages were not reported.

A Duel Frustrated—One of the Belligerents Arrested.—Lieutenant Schreiber last evening put a sudden close to a contemplated duel, which was to have taken place this morning, the weapons being colchimardes, a kind of sword. Some time ago a difficulty arose between Messrs. Mouston and Bicon, concerning a watch that mysteriously disappeared from the possession of Mr. Bicon, and it was charged that Mouston became possessed of it. The challenge passed yesterday, but Lieutenant Schreiber learning of it, found Bicon in Forget's Restaurant, Union street, partaking of refreshments with his friends, and at once marched him to the central station, where he slept last night. Proper charges were made against the prisoner, who will be arraigned before Recorder Becker this morning.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

[Dispatches to the Associated Press.]

Washington, August 31.—Over one hundred and twenty-five guagers were appointed to-day.

William M. Robinson and Hyman Smith were appointed inspectors of tobacco, snuff, and cigars for the First District of Louisiana.

General Stout, of Kentucky, Chief Clerk of the patent office, has resigned. Mr. Grinnell, of Massachusetts, succeeds him.

The President delays his visit to Tennessee until the question of a September session is settled. The President's health is excellent.

Secretary McCulloch has ordered changes in the New York customhouse, reducing the expenses $98,000. Other changes are in contemplation, which will reduce the expenses of collecting customs $1,000,000 annually.

Mr. S. F. Gore, a member of Congress from Georgia, appeals for a September session of Congress.

Georgia letters state that the Legislature will probably adjourn before deciding the eligibility of negroes. Also, that movements are on foot to heal dissentions in the Republican ranks.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $800,000.

In response to Southern Radicals who appealed personally for arms for the Southern militia the President said:

"The Federal troops are in a better condition to preserve the peace than a militia drawn from one party to make war upon the other."

The debt statement will show an increase.

Atlanta, August 31.—The Senate unanimously passed a resolution authorizing the Governor to issue a proclamation disbanding all armed associations in this State.

In the House Sims, negro, continued his defense of eligibility of the negro members. He said: "The introduction of the measure to unseat the negro members has cast a firebrand into the House, and if the question was pressed it would precipitate war."

Porter, a negro, followed, and has the floor to-morrow.

Paris, August 31.—The Austrian papers are discussing the relations of the United States and Russia as indicated by the civilities between Farragut and the Russian Minister at Constantinople. The representatives of other powers at Constantinople feel slighted.

London, August 31.—The yacht Sapho has challenged the Aline, and the challenge has been accepted. Details are unknown.

Liverpool, August 31.—The ship Favorite, hence for New Orleans, which went ashore on the coast of Ireland, has arrived dismasted, and otherwise damaged.

The steamer Russia ran down the bark Custaloga off the Banks of Newfoundland. The bark sunk and the crew were brought here.

London, August 31.—The possibility of war on the Continent is discussed by leading European journals. The opinion is generally expressed that Prussia, though ready for war, really desires the continuance of peace, but that to Austria and Russia peace is indispensable, and that the French Emperor is now undoubtedly prepared for a conflict, but his policy is uncertain. The Liberal of Toulouse says Marshal Neil, who is on a visit to that city, told the Council General that the army was animated by the best spirit, armament complete, arsenals full, financial resources inexhaustible. Compared with other European powers, France alone was equally ready for peace or war.

Some think that the necessity of diverting the discontent of certain classes in France may cause the Emperor to adopt a warlike policy. They say the election by so large a majority of the Liberal candidate, M. Grevy, in the department of Jura, and manifestations of general disaffection on the part of students at the medical schools and universities, the great success of the Lanterne, and the deep and widespread indignation at its suppression are signs of public temper sufficient in themselves to alarm the Emperor. Add to these the circumstances which follow the expense of keeping an abnormal armament on foot, and the encouragement to war offered by the success of the last loan, and there is reason, these people say, to expect war in the autumn or spring.

Corroboration of these views is sought in recent leading editorials in the Constitutionnel, urging the claims of the Empress Eugenie to regency. It is argued that such claims would not be put forth at this time were it not anticipated that the Emperor might have to lead an army, and be exposed to the perils of the field. On the other hand are the official pledges of peace daily made, the advice officially given to act as if assured of peace, and the argument so frequently urged by the French government that the very completeness of armament is a guaranty of peace. Recent and sudden changes of feeling on the Bourse and the variations in rents are explained as results of the alternate ascendency of these opposing views at the financial centre of France.

London, August 31.—The city government of Cork adopted a resolution favoring the discharge of all Fenian prisoners.

Mason Jones has withdrawn from the Parliamentary contest in Queens county, Ireland, opposition having been created among his Catholic supporters by reports that he was a partisan of Garibaldi.

The Portuguese Cortes has been prorogued.

Paraguayans deny the reported conspiracy against Lopez.

Paris, August 31.—In a public speech made at Marseilles Mr. Behic assured his hearers that the policy of France was for the preservation of peace. The Emperor, he said, would guard it without ambition and without weakness. The military precautions taken by the government would make peace sure.

Vienna, August 31.—The Minister of Justice has notified the civil courts that in case the clergy refuse the necessary certificates for civil marriages, they must be forced by legal process.

Florence, August 31.—General Garibaldi has resigned his seat in the national Parliament.

London, August 31.—Accounts of recent events on the Rio Parana have been received from Paraguayan sources. The Paraguayans claim that the allies received a severe check in two battles on the sixteenth and eighteenth of July, and that the fortress of Humaita was evacuated without the knowledge of the enemy; all the heavy guns were spiked, and arms, ammunition and stores removed. The governments of Chile and Bolivia have offered their good offices to Lopez as mediators.

The Patrie of Paris has advices from Paraguay which explain that Humaita was abandoned because General Lopez had completed his new defensive line of fortifications on the Tebicuari. The Paraguayans are confident that the allies, though holding the river, would not attempt to enter the interior of the country, and they believed the war would soon be brought to an end by the lassitude of the conbined powers.

New York, August 30.—Owen Murphy was beaten to death with a hammer by Cornelius Macarthy in Williamsburg last night.

A Panama letter says the natives openly declare annexation to the United States as the only salvation for the Isthmus.

The Peruvian Congress opened on the 28th July. Mr. Seward's offer of mediation with Spain is likely to be accepted.

Winter in Chili is unusually severe, and several snow slides have occurred. An avalanche buried twenty-four persons in a mine, killing all of them.

General Kilpatrick was to leave on the twenty-seventh of July for the United States.

A telegram from Omaha announces the completion of another section of the Union Pacific Railroad. It is now running 780 miles west from Omaha. The construction is being still pushed forward with great energy. At the other end the road is completed nearly three hundred miles, and graded one hundred miles more. The company has a large amount of iron and other material on the way. There is every reason to believe that both sections of the road will be completed at a much earlier date than previously announced.

Wilmington, (N. C.) August 31.—A difficulty occurred in Wilson county on Saturday, between Zeno H. Green, white, and Dave Ruffin, colored, in which the latter was shot and slightly wounded in the leg. Green was arrested, and bound over to the Superior Court.

About eleven o'clock that night Green's barn was discovered to be on fire, but he and his family were afraid to venture out of the house for fear of being murdered. Grimes, a colored man, was seen near the barn just before the fire. He was arrested, tried before a magistrate, and his guilt so clearly established that in default of $300 bail he was sent to jail. There is considerable excitement in the community, but hopes are entertained that no further disturbance will occur.

Boston, August 31.—A train of cars near Lowell, yesterday, ran into a crowd of boys on a bridge, killing two, aged 7 and 10 years.

Philadelphia, August 31.—The match game of Base Ball, between the Atlantic of New York and the Athletes of Philadelphia was interrupted at the ninth inning by a rain storm. The scores tood, Athletes 18, Atlantics 9. There was an immense crowd in attendance.

Ottowa, August 31.—It is reported that Governor Monck will be retained as Governor General sometime longer.

An important witness against Whelan has disappeared.

Terrific fires are again breaking out in the woods near Bellemont village, Sunnydale, and thirty houses have been destroyed. Other villages are in emminent danger.

Richmond, August 31.—The United States Marshal has levied on the rolling stock of the Virginia and Tennessee Railroad Company, in an execution for debts due by the Company on their coupons, amounting to $8000. The running of the road is not interfered with.

Columbia, S. C., August 31.—Motions were introduced into the Legislature to-day looking to adjournment.

The Governor has issued a circular in relation to armed organizations and the introduction of arms into the State. He disapproves of both, and calls on all persons to keep the peace, and says he will use his authority for that purpose.

Washington, September 1.—Messrs McCulloch and Rollins had a fruitless consultation to-day.

The Indian Department has nothing new from the West.

Quite a number of Southern postoffices have been discontinued in the South, from causes which can easily be remedied.

The Postoffice Department desires advice from the patrons of the several postoffices discontinued, of acceptable persons who can take the oath.

Married women and minors are excluded by law from charge of postoffices, but can act as assistants.

The President proclaims the ratification of the treaty between the United States and Nicaragua. It is of a liberal character of friendship, commerce and navigation.

There is to be a reciprocal freedom of commerce, but this does not include the coasting trade.

American citizens to enjoy the same security and right of locomotion as the natives in Nicaragua: the United States accords protection to the route of communication through Nicaragua, and guarantees their neutrality and security on condition that the persons or company managing the same do not adopt or establish such regulations concerning traffic as are contrary to the spirit and intention of this treaty.

Transit is allowed to United States troops and munitions over the territory of Nicaragua.

New York, September 1.—The Vermont elections resulted in the success of the Republicans by a largely increased majority over last year. Returns from one-third of the State indicate a Republican majority of 27,000 for Governor. Some make it 30,000. The vote is the heaviest known since 1840.

Philadelphia, September 1.—Hon. Thomas B. Jones and two daughters, aged twelve and seventeen years, were killed, and his son was seriously injured, by lightning, at New Egypt, New Jersey.

St. Louis, September 1.—A dispatch from Denver says that the Indians appeared in force at Fremont's Orchard. Four Indians were killed in a fight on the Platte river. Volunteers are gathering rapidly, with plenty of provisions and arms. The Indians had captured seventy government mules and horses near Cooper's Creek. A family of nine persons were found murdered last Saturday.

Saratoga, September 1.—The Exchange Hotel and several of the adjoining buildings burned last night.

Baltimore, September 1.—A North Carolina merchant had his pocket picked of $3100 to-day.

Atlanta, September 1.—In the House a resolution passed, regulating discussions upon negro eligibility, allowing each negro one hour for defense, and members participating twenty-five minutes.

Columbus, S. C., September 1.—The House sustained the Governor's veto of the Charleston city charter bill, an extreme radical measure.

Wilmington, Del., September 1.—The municipal election was warmly contested and vote largely increased. The Republicans re-elected their mayor by an increased majority of 100.

London, September 1.—John Bright, in a letter accepting the Birmingham nomination, says that the disestablishment and disendowment of the Irish church would strengthen both the cause of Christianity and the Constitution of the country.

The Paragaayans twice defeated the allies before the evacuation of Humiata.

The American steamer Wisp, has gone to Asuncion for Minister Washburne.

Murphy, the religious agitator, has been imprisoned in default of bail to keep the peace.

The French Minister of Finance, in a public speech, said peace would continue, because the world needed and Napoleon desires it.

Washington, September 2.—Some twenty parties throughout the United States, connected with the Blank Department of the Postoffice, were indicted in Michigan. Under this indictment, W. O. Reding, Blank Agent for the Southern States, G. A. Travers, of the Sixth Auditor's office, and William Towns, Chief Clerk of the Superintendent of Public Printing, were arrested. The prisoners were discharged on the ground that they could not be tried on an indictment found in Michigan, for an offense committed in Washington. Judge Wiley, who discharged the prisoners, did not investigate the guilt of the prisoners as charged in the indictment.

General Orlando O. Brown and a dozen minor officers of negro troops, acting as Bureau functionaries, are mustered out. They will continue their functions in the Bureau as civilians.

A number of storekeepers and gaugers were appointed to day, including Charles B. Fry, of Richmond, Virginia, and J. M. Ross, of the First Alabama District.

Internal revenue receipts to day $971,000.

Minister Webb advises the State Department that the complication with the Brazillian Government, regarding the detention of the Wasp, has been adjusted.

E. C. Megrue has been appointed Collector of Internal Revenue for the Cincinnati District, vice M. P. Gaddes, resigned.

Commissioner Rollins received a dispatch from New York last night, that a warrant had been issued against him. Up to a late hour this afternoon the warrant had not been served. Mr. Rollins telegraphs that he will not appear personally or by counsel in New York to-morrow. Mr. Harland, Deputy Commissioner, also will ignore a warrant for him should it be served. It is asserted positively that Mr. Rollins will not recognize Mr. Binckley; that is, he will assign Mr. Binckley no duty. Mr. Rollins disclaims any idea of compromise regarding supervisors; the law makes it his duty to nominate them.

The excitement in official circles is intense, with increased bitterness.

It is stated on good authority that the President and Secretary McCulloch disavow any active participation in the New York proceedings against the Commissioner and his deputy, Harland

The Greek legation has advices that Queen Olga has been delivered of a son and heir to the throne of Greece.

Washington, September 2.—The New York Herald this morning has an editorial on newspapers and Internal Revenue, stating that it had been served with a notice of tax due on its business, and unless paid, the usual remedy would be enforced. It is not informed under what law this attempt to tax the press is made, and styles it a forced and absurd construction of the act, by ignorant assessors. It says "The whole tenor of the Revenue laws, as regards the press shows that Congress did not intend to tax newspapers. Incomes from newspaper business pay tax the same as other incomes, but the business itself is not taxed." It announces its intention to resist the construction put on the law by the assessors, and believes the press generally will do the same.

"ONLY A STRANGER'S GRAVE!"

"Only a stranger's grave!"
A grass-grown grave. No carved stone
Tells who is lying here;
No flowers upon this mound are strewn,
Upon it falls no tear.

"Only a stranger's grave!"
Perhaps a father's form is laid
Beneath the turf to sleep,
Whose children wait the well-known tread,
In vain they wait and weep.

"Only a stranger's grave!"
He had a mother; does she know
Her darling cried alone,
With none to cool his burning brow,
To hear his last faint moan?

"Only a stranger's grave!"
Perhaps a loving sister longs
Her brother's voice to hear,
Unconscious that his manly tones
Can never reach her ear.

"Only a stranger's grave!"
Perhaps a dear one there is
Who waits, and hopes, and fears,
And thinks of his parting kiss
With bitter, blinding tears.

"Only a stranger's grave!"
What blighted hopes lie buried there,
Where bright eyed daisies wave!
Oh, ne'er may I those harsh words hear—
"Only a stranger's grave!"

"That Blessed Money."

"Now what shall I do with this money? Only twenty-five cents! It won't buy much of anything. Dear me! Father's always so careful when he gives me money. I should think he might hand me ovor a roll of bills sometimes, and let me spend money like a man, and feel like a man, too. Twenty-five cents! Pshaw! nonsense! It's only a plague! I have a good mind to throw it away."

This was what Arthur Weston said to himself as he strolled along the street, with a portemonnaie in his hand containing the despised twenty-five cents.

"Ah, now I know what I'll do with this homeopathic dose of money!" he suddenly exclaimed. "I'll go into the confectioner's and buy some fresh figs. It's the very thing I want. If I can't make a little money go a great way (and I'd like to know who can) I'll make it go as far as it will. There's nothing like figs. I'd buy pounds and pounds of them every year if I only had enough money."

The twenty-five cents had suddenly risen in value, for they now suggested delicious figs, and Arthur made a rush round the corner to the confectioner's.

But a picture was suddenly spread out before him, and it was far from being a pleasant picture. He he just turned the corner when he spied a a sallow, wrinkled, weather-beaten woman sitting on the grass by the rode-side, and close by her sat a cross-looking, crying little boy, who appeared to be about three years old. And what were they doing there? Resting—resting as well as they could in their rags and poverty. And what else were they doing? Satisfying their humger as well as they could with moldy bread.

"Why, does any one in this world ever eat mouly bread!" exclaimed Arthur to himself as he passed the women, and went so near that he could see the green mould on the bread. Then he turned back, and said to the poor creature:

"It can't be that you like such bread; and I'd like to know why you eat it when there's plenty of good, sweet bread to be had?"

"Plenty of good, sweet bread to be had?" answered the poor woman in a half indignant voice and manner. "Not for every body, my young lad, not for every body. I hadn't a mouthful of anything in my shanty to eat this morning—not one mouthful for me or the little boy; and when I went to that fine house over yonder to ask for a few cold bits, the kitchen woman told me she was tired of beggars, but I might pick up what she had thrown out in the back yard if I wanted to; and it was there I found these moldy crusts. But you may be sure they don't eat moldy crusts, or anything that's mouldy, in that fine house. No, no; there's plenty of good, sweet bread to be had there, no doubt. Can you tell me who lives there?"

Arthur blushed, even in the presence of the poor, old beggar, as he replied,

"That's my father's house."

"Your father's house? A splendid place. Nothing worse than good sweet bread to be had there, that's certain; but the poor may take the moldy pieces the rich throw outside. Yes, yes, that's the way."

There was something sorrowful and defiant in the expression of the woman's face and in her manner, and Arthur would have been angry if his heart had not been touched by the sight of a human being eating dry, moldy crusts. As it was, he was for a moment almost offended; but a thought of the daily miseries of the poor, of which he had often heard his father and mother speak, and the misery that was then spread out before him, prompted him to speak very kindly to the woman.

"My father is rich, I know," he said, "but he isn't hard-hearted—neither is my mother. It was the cook who told you that you might pick up what she had thrown out into the yard. She is always cross to the poor, and my mother has often talked to her about it."

"And don't your mother know what the cook does!" asked the old woman, slow to be pacified.

"No, not always; for Martha won't take the trouble to go and tell mother when any poor person comes for something to eat. I wish my mother could have seen you—and if you'll go there again I'll go with you."

"No, no," answered the woman, in a despairing tone. "I'm too tired, and too lame. I'm stiff with rheumatism, and I and the boy will sit here, and make the best of our moldy bread for to-day."

"I don't want you to eat that moldy bread, and if you won't go home with me, I'll run round the corner to the baker's and buy you a loaf of bread—a beautiful fresh loaf!"

"Bless the lad! bless the lad!" said the poor creature, as Arthur started off. He was not gone long, and when he came back he brought two fresh loaves of bread; and the thin, half-starved little boy by his mother's side jumped to his feet and held out eager hands, while he cried out:

"Give me some! give me some!"

The mother burst into tears, and covered her face with her apron. Her irritated, bitter, suspicious manner was all gone, and she asked:

"Did you buy all that bread with your own money, my fine lad!"

"Yes, but it didn't cost much, only twenty-five cents, and I'm sure you'd be welcomed to twice as much bread if I had twenty-five cents more."

"And have you really spent twenty-five cents oc such a poor old soul as I am? Well, you're a blessed little young gentleman." Then, talking to herself in a low tone, she said: "O, the blessed money! Twenty-five cents—that's a great deal. I wonder if my poor old stiff hands will ever again earn that much?"

"Who has supported you since you've been unable to take care of yourself?" asked Arthur.

"The poormaster has done something for me, but he's getting tired of me. He thinks I might work more if I would; but folks that are well off don't know how tired and sick and stiff the poor often are. I've nothing against him, though. Poor folks are tiresome, I know."

"I'm just as sorry for you as I can be!" exclaimed Arthur, "and I mean to ask my father to do something for you."

"You're the best-mannered little man I've ever seen, and I'll ask the good Lord to do something for you," replied the old woman. "I won't forget very soon the twenty-five cents that bought his good sweet bread."

As Arthur left the rheumatic old womau he hear her say to herself, "O the blessed money, and the beautiful little young gentleman that bought me the bread!" and he never again scorned twenty-five cents, or was at a loss to know what to do with it. Neither did it seem a very small sum: for he never after that had twenty-five cents without thinking of the "blessed money" that bought the bread.—New York Examiner.

A THOUSAND DOLLAR BILL.

Away back in the State of New York lived a Dutch farmer, well-to-do in the world, who always kept about him a thousand dollar bill. With this in his pocket, and a shabby coat upon his back, he prided himself on playing tricks with such country merchants as had recently commenced business in the neighborhood, and were not acquainted with his pecuniary circumstances.

As an instance of this kind, he went lately to a merchant, with his clothes all in rags, his toes sticking out through his shoes, his hat without a crown, and his beard a fortnight old, and ordered a few dollars' worth of goods. The merchant stared at him, but as there was no great hazard in laying out the articles for him, none of which were to be cut, he executed the command. When the goods were ready the merchant stared still more to hear the scurvy looking customer ask him to charge them.

"Charge them?" exclaimed the man of merchandise: "ha! ha! we're not in the habit of charging our goods to everybody. We keep a sharp lookout for breakers."

"Won't you charge 'em, den?"

"Not to you, I thank you. You must have a better coat upon your back to expect to get credit from us."

"Den, if you won't charge 'em," continued the Dutchman, with great moderation, "I must dry an' pay for 'em down, if so be supposin' I can muster money enough."

Then, taking a thousand dollar bill from his pocket, he extended it to the merchant, with a sly leer on his face, and said;

"Will you change dat?"

"That—what! a thousand dollar bill! Is it possible that—that a man of your appearance—"

"What, misther, be you scart, eh? Did you never see a thousand dollar bill before?"

"A man of your appearance," continued the merchant in astonishment," with a thousand dollar bill in his possession; I could have sworn—"

"None of your swearing here, if you please, misther, but give me mine change, that I may be off to mine farm again."

"Off to your farm! A thousand dollar bill! And who are you, if I may be so bold?"

"Who be's I? Why, don't you know your own neighbor's name? My name is Fritz Van Volger, a poor farmer mit no mare as one thousand acres of land, and dis small bill in my pocket, dat was—so, so, if you will change it and let me gone, I'll thank you."

"Change it! Lord, sir! where shall I get money of a morning to change a one thousand dollar bill?"

"Den I can't buy dese tings, as you can't change mine little bill, and you won't trust me."

"Trust you, Mr. Van Volger! that I will to the amount of a thousand dollars if you wish. You did not suppose I was afraid to trust you, did you?" said the merchant, growing very complaisant.

"Ha! ha!" roared the Dutchman, as loud as he could laugh; "you begins to haul in your horns a little, does you? Strange what wonders a thousand dollar bill works in a man's opinion. So you will trust me now, will you?"

"Certainly—certainly, sir."

"No, I'll be vip'd if you shall—if so be, supposin' I can find silver enough in mine pocket to pay you."

As he said this he hauled out an old stockingfull of silver, paid for the goods, and giving another "Ha! ha!" at the astonishment and sudden change of opinion of the merchant, he departed.

A HELPMATE.

Cornelius Vanderbilt and His Wife.

The New York Sun says:

Somewhere about sixty years ago Cornelius Vanderbilt commenced life by running a "periauger" between Staten Island and New York. During the day he plied his vocation, and whenever his duties permitted visited his cousin, Miss Sophia Johnson, then a young and comely girl of sixteen, who also lived on the island. Perhaps it was the outburst of his first love that made the young sailor so ambitious, and inspired him with the enterprise he has always exhibited. Certain it is, however, that the cousins married, and old folks who knew them then speak with delight of the handsome pair, for they were admitted to be the comeliest couple Staten Island ever produced.

It is unnecessary to trace the Commodore from the time he was a ferryman until he was promoted, or, more properly, promoted himself to the responsible position of captain of a steamboat which plied between this port and New Brunswick, New Jersey. At the latter place, however, he was proprietor of a hotel, at which passengers from New York to Philadelphia used to take meals, and occasionally a night's rest. This was a kind of half-way house, His wife superintended the hotel while he was engaged in his acquatic vocation. One evening he arrived from New York, and while sitting at his supper he said to his wife:

"Sophie, I wish I had $5000 to buy shares in the steamboat line; I think it would be a good investment."

"Do you think so, Corneli!" responded his thoughtful partner.

"I do," said he.

She said nothing more, but next day consulted Mr. Gibbons, and he advised the investment. Next evening at supper she accosted her husband thus:

"Corneil, I've spoken to Mr. Gibbons about buying shares, and, as he approves of your idea, there's the $5000; buy the shares to-morrow."

As she spoke she took the amount from one of those old-fashioned pockets that used to be worn under the dress, and handed it to her astonished husband. She had saved the money unbeknown to him, and it was probably the same money that floated the Commodore into fame and fortune. The incident shows what the woman was.

POST OFFIS, CONFEDRIT X ROADS, (Wich is in the Stait uv Kentucky.) August 15, 1868.

Joy to the world! Elder Pennibacker, wich, ever sence the Noo York Convenshun hes bin a skoffer and a sore-head, is wunst more within the fold. There wuz more rejoicin when he came back than over all within the fold, for he wuz a venerable lamb wich had gone estray. Like the prodigal son, we slayed for him the fatted calf.

I wuz particularly pleased with his re-return. He wuz the kindest uv men, and made the best corn whisky in this seckshun. He hed allus ben in the habit of sendin, now and then, a jug to his Paster at the Post Offis, but sence his dissatisfackshun and consekent estrangement these delikit attenshuns, so grateful to one in frail helth, hez bin intermitted. But that is all over, thank Heven. Yesterday mornin he come into the offis bearin that wich to me is the most blessid uv peace offerins, the old familyer jug, wich settin down he fell onto my neck and wept.

"Parson!" sed he, his voice quiverin with emoshun, and teers chasin each other down his nose, "its over. Ive sinned and hev repentid. Forgive me."

"Elder!" sed I, assoomin a dignified air, "he who departs and cometh back—dont kick over that jug, for the stopper aint in tite—is to me more preshus than if he hednt kicked over the traces. Bless yoo, my son. Here's a tin cup wich will do."

The Elder then told me how he hed bin converted. He hed determined not to vote at all. He didn't bleve in Seymore, coz he is pledged to pa the debt in greenbax, and he detested Blare becoz he wuz wunst a bloo kotid hirelin, and becoz in marryin him we marry the entire Blare family, wich is too much. He didnt bleeve that either ov em wuz to he trusted. He didnt bleeve that either ov em was troo to the South. Feeling pekoolyerly bitter, he went to bed the nite afore, and nursin his wrath he fell asleep and dreamed.

He dreamed that he wuz in a vast assemblage uv the Democracy, very like the Nashnel Convenshun. There wuz shoutin and hollerin, but he walked about gloomy and sad, filled with the most fearful forebodins.

Presently in his dreem he approacht the grand stand wich wuz okkepied by the leaders and devoted to the moosic ov the occasion. Here a most pekoolyer site met his gaze. He notist one small but soft toned instrument, holler and very much like a flute, evidently made for peeceful stranes, out uv wich Wade Hampton wuz a strainin and a blowin the most ferocious and war-like sounds. The hed uv the instrument wuz Seymore's hed, and ez he lookt closter he found it assomed the genral appeerance uv the man. It tried hard to keep the smooth melojus tones to wich it wuz normelly adapted, but the grim-visaged Hampton, whose wind is inexhaustible, blowd sich strong blasts and fingered the holes so adroitly that it played his toons and his only.

Just beside him stood Boregard a playin a brass instrument wich wuz shaped so like Blare ez to be him. which instrument wuz uv the tromboone nacher. Borogard hed no trouble with it. It wuz ez discordent nachrelly ez it coold be, and it wuz splendidly adapted to the capassity of the player.

I give the dreem henceforth in the Elder's own words:

"Wat in thunder," sed I to a man wich seemed to be sort uv engineering the concert, "wat 'n thunder is Seymore and Blaire and sich ez them farnishin moosic for strate Suthern Dimocracy for? Are we to be compelled to submit to the tool uv bondholders and to Feedral soljers and sich? Ez for one, I will never——"

"Don't talk like an eggrejis ass!" sed this man. "Hevn't you any sense? Can't you see that Seymore and Blare are merely the instrooments wich are played onto, and that Boregard and Wade Hampton are the individools who furnish the wind and finger the holes. Listen, how grandly "Dixie" and the "Bonny Bloo Flag" swells out onto the air and fills surrounding space! And see, ez Boregard shoves out the trombone how it hez knockt off the stand all them wich from former attachment to the instrument wuz close to it, and how sweetly the pizen breth wich is bein blowed, tho its combined with that uv the instroowent itself, hez smothered all them whos presence wood have embarast us. Miles O'Reilly it killed, and all that pestiferous breed uv War Democrats like him are layin, overpowered with it, flat onto their backs. They may possibly survive, but they are so stoopefied that they wont git up till after ther opportoonity for hurtin us is passed.

"Then," sed the Elder, "my dreem changed. Methawt the eleckshun wuz ver, and that we hed triumphed. I wuz to home in Kentucky. All here wuz peece. The Buro offisers hed folded ther tents like the Arabs, and silently stole away. The military wuz withdrawn, and there wuz nothin bloo in the South, save and except the faces uv the few Northern men wich coodent git away. The very air wuz full uv the gosts uv the ded Federal soljers in the South, all uv wich wore an expreshun uv hoomiliashen ez tho they felt they hed bin manufaktered into gosts for very considerable less than nothin. Reconstruckshen hed bin undone, and all laws enfranchisin niggers and deprivin our heroes uv suffrage wuz bustid. We wuz free. Ther hed bin a gineral cleanin out uv Northern settlers, carpet-baggers and obstreperous niggers. I notist with infinit pleasure that Pollock's store hed bin gutted, and Joe Bigler's corpse (he spoke this in a low tone, and looking fearfully over his shoulder to make shoor no one heerd him) wuz a lyin on the square.

Sich of the diggers ez cood be controlled were at work under laws we hed passed for em regulatin labor, at an average uv $4 per month, and sich ez hed become too independent for that, hed either been shot or driven out uv the country. The amendments, given em votes and sich, hed bin overruled, and in Tennessee and the other States they hed bin reffoost to their normal speer, and the power wuz wunst more in the hands of sich patriots ez Forrest and sich. Brownlow hed bin hung, their noosepapers destroyed, and them wich supportid em scattered to the four winds. In the corners all wuz peece. We had niggers on our plantations ez before the war, and we, the roolin race, was releeved uv the degradin labor wich so onfits a Caucashan for the enjoyment uv life. The entire Corners hevin nothin to do and plenty to live on, wuz perpetooally gathering in front uv Bascom's pitchin coppers, runnin quarter races and ever and anon ceasing their manly amoosements to quaff the flowin boles wich he supplied. We cood hear, any time, the cheerful yelp uv blood-hounds in the swamp beyond the Run, chasin runaways, and ez ther wuz no longer any law agin ther shootin niggers, skacely a day passed that one or more wuz not killed. My distillery wuz a runnin full blast, the smoke uv the torment ascendin from its chimney forever. Oh, it was gorgus!

"And is this to be?" asked I uv the disembodied spirit uv Bishop Poke, wich wuz showin it to me.

"All this and more," returned he. "Thus will the South regain her lost rites. Thus will the lost coz be restored. Elect Seymore and Blare, and all will be well."

"At this pint I awoke," said the Elder, "feelin how unjust I hed bin—how vilely I hed sinned, and how fearfully I hed departed. I wuz a going back on my party on the greenback question! What is greenbak to this? Wat is payin a debt one way or another compared to the extacy of wolloping niggers, chasin Northern men, and havin our instooshens back again? Wat is a mere greenback idea compared to the luxury uv hevin the entire Northern Dimocracy in our hands agin for us to mould ez we will and do with ez we like? Why I woodent give the luxury of hevin a Noo Yorker on his knees afore me ez uf old a minit for all the taxes I will hev to pay for a century. Besides," and he bustid out afresh, "if Boregard can make Seymore pipe Dixie, can't he also by different fingerin make the same instroomeut play Repoodiashen? I shood say so. We hev em, Parson—we hev em. Forgive me! forgive me!"

And we embraced and wept, and took a drink, and wept again for joy. Verily my way is now pleasant, and my path is made strate. In the exuberance uv his joy he will keep my basket and my store—or rather my jug and flask—full for a month.

PETROLEUM V. NASBY, P. M.,
(Wich is Postmaster.)

Nasby's Rival Found in Muskingum County, Ohio—His Speech at a Democratic Pole-Raising.

The Zanesville Courier furnishes a report of the proceedings of a Democratic meeting, and of the speech which was delivered on that occasion. Nasby could not excel the richness of this oratorical effort.

A RICH SPEECH FROM RAY.

The speech of the occasion was made by James Ray, Esq., of District No. 2, Falls township. For the benefit of those who had not the pleasure of hearing him we reproduce his speech in full:

MY FELLOW CITIZENS: I came down from my pleasant home in the country, where I have spent the best part of my life in feeding pigs, hoeing corn, and drinking whisky. I have found that a little good old corn whisky is good; it is wholesome; it is necessary to keep the Democracy from oozing out at my fingers' ends—as Maryatt says in one of his novels. I am known hereabouts: many good old Democrats that inhabit this darkened spot have oftentimes taken charge of me and tenderly treated me as long as I had money, when I was not in a perpendicular condition—while my Republican friend above here, many and many a time, kicked me out of his house in the depth of winter, in the heat of summer, early in the spring, and late in autumn. And why, my Democratic fellow-citizens? Because I had taken a little of the creature to keep my patriotism alive. You took me in, fellow Democrats—you fed me with the feed that is good for me—you nursed me tenderly, and I paid the bills for all of us, and on that account I am at this pole-raising, to tell you how much I love you. (Cheers.) I am a Democrat, fellow-citizens; I don't know who Seymour is. Maryatt in his novels don't mention him, and the works on shipwreck don't say anything about him, and I don't care who he is, whether old or young, drunk or sober, good or bad, black or white—he is on the Democratic ticket, and I will vote for him. (Great cheering.) My Democratic citizens, I am getting dry. I could tell you about all the shipwrecks from Noah's first expedition to the present, but I know you are dry, and I will not consume your time. I will say that the old ship is not going steady; something is wrong, the rudder is shipped, breakers are ahead, and we will run aground unless we elect Seymour, or Jeff Davis, or some other good man. (Vociferous cheering.) The White House is in mourning for the good old Democrats of yore. I am an Irishman, and being an Irishman I hate a nigger; but I am ready to swallow nigger, boots and all, if we can have the good old Democratic times we had from 1856 to 1860. My fellow Democrats, the pole is up; I helped to raise her; and now, all I ask of you is to raise me if ever you should see me in need of raising. Now let us all drink.

At this time Jim retired, and the crowd sent up cheer upon cheer for Jim.

DOTS FOR DEMOCRATS.

The Ohio State Journal states that there are 1200 Grant clubs organized in that State.

Frank Blair can go longer without water than any man in Missouri.

All The World editors, from Manton Marble down, are said to be carpet-baggers.

At a recent Democratic procession in Maine, a soldier who during the late war enlisted, received a large bounty and deserted, bore a transparency which read as follows: "We vote as we fought."

General Devens, of Massachusetts, who ran against Governor Andrew as Democratic candidate for Governor in 1862, declares that he will vote for Grant and Colfax.

Mr. William A. Gulick, a well-know New Jersey Democrat, residing at Kingston, Middlesex county, and formerly a member of the Legislature, is out for Grant and Colfax.

The blood-and thunder Democracy who hate the negroes so badly will at least be rid of their nightmare after the sufferings of this life are over. There are no negroes where they are going.

A good many down South don't like to have carpet-baggers from the North come among them. Four years ago they cherished a similar dislike to the presence of Northern knapsackers.

A vote taken on a New York Central train between Syracuse and Utica on the day after the adjournment of the Democratic State Committee showed over two to one for Grant.

The Kansas Chief says: "The reason Frank Blair is not popular in Kansas is that he reminds our people of the great drought year, 1860—he keeps so dry and windy."

Montgomery Blair, brother of Frank, is bidding high for rebel votes. He says: "I have to confess that it is yet to be decided whether those who fought for the Union have not blundered."

The Raleigh (N. C.) Standard says: "The old Democratic party kept the colored man in slavery, and passed laws to prevent even his reading the Bible, and now they ask him to vote the Democratic ticket." Just as if politicians were expected to be consistent.

The election for Congressmen in California this year will not take place until November 3. The table of coming elections floating through the country papers, setting it down for September 8, is wrong.

The Democracy of Tennessee are seriously discussing a proposition to abandon the Presidential contest in that State, and not put an electoral ticket in the field.

General Sam Cary, the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Second District of Ohio, in a recent public speech in the city of Cincinnati, said: "I voted for negro suffrage last fall, and I am in favor of it to-day."

Richard H. Dana, Jr., made a speech at the organization of a Grant and Colfax Club in Cambridge, Massachusetts. He declared that the success of the Democrats in the coming election would be the destruction of the Government.

The Lines are Forming.

A word of cheer comes from all sections of the country. The Grant and Colfax lines are forming, says an exchange, and their motion will be irresistably onward. The East is waking up to the importance of the issues presented by the rebel party. The South is struggling to grasp that freedom which the second rebellion is wrenching from its grasp. The West reports a political life more vigorous than ever before known. On tne eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains wherever Grant went the greeting he received is earnest of the right spirit, and from the "Quiet Sea" we have intelligence equally gratifying. We give it officially:

The Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee of California writes to the Congressional Republican Executive Committee that the Republicans on the Pacific coast are making preparations for an energetic canvass, and that they believe Grant and Colfax will carry that State by 10,000 majority.

President Johnson told the delegation of tailors that waited on him the other day that it was "not the profession of a man, but his associations, that degrade him." They accepted his apology of course. But how mad it must make old Mr. Welles and the rest to be so slurred at by the President.

MARRIED;

DARNAL—JOHNSON.—In Rapides parish, Louisiana, August 21, 1868, by Rev. S. M. Small, Mr. ABRAHAM DARNAL and Mrs. SERENA JOHNSON.

DIED.

CLARK—In Carrollton, Louisiana, August 24, at half-past nine o'clock A. M., JANE CLARK, wife of Rev. Peter Clark.

She was a member of Rev. James Hayward's church, Baton Rouge, and died happy in the Lord. Before she died she sang praises to the Lord; and her last words were, "Give back age, powers of hell, and let God's children take the field."

She sleeps in Jesus.

PETER CLARK.

EXTRACT FROM THE "LIFE OF WASHINGTON IRVING,"

By his nephew, Pierre M. Irving, Vol. IV., page 272:

"The doctor prescribed, as an experiment—what had been suggested by Dr. (O. W.) Holmes on his late visit—'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma,' a teaspoonful in a wine-glass of water, to be taken every four hours. A good night was the result."

In no case of purely Asthmatic character has it failed to give prompt relief, and in many cases a permanent cure has been effected. No danger need be apprehended from its use. An infant may take it with perfect safety. [See circular.]

AMERICAN MUSICAL CLASS BOOK,

Designed for Female Colleges, Institutes, Seminaries, and Normal and High Schools. Containing Elementary Instructions, Vocal Exercises and Solfeggios, and a valuable Collection of Duets, Trios, and Concerted Pieces.

By T. Bissell—Price $75c.

Among the numerous works of the kind this cannot fail of a prominence, since its peculiar features are such as will commend it at once to the patronage of those for whom it is chiefly intended. Its rudimental lessons proceed with a regularity of precision that cannot fail to fix permanently on the mind of the pupil the essentials of success in future studies. The exercises are in a form to attract the attention, and the selection of music is one of the best, if not the superior of all similar collections. Principals of Educational Institutions, Music Teachers, and others interested in books of this class, will find it advantageous to examine this volume. THE GERMANIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, established in 1860, and based upon the most approved principles of Life Insurance security, presents its claims for consideration, believing that its solid foundation already secured by the faithful and efficient management of its officers and Board of Directors will give it the preference above all other similar institutions.

It is purely Mutual, as the net profits are distributed among the parties insured, the interest of the capital stock being only five per cent according to its charter.

It assumed the system of cash payments at the commencement of its existence, and maintained it faithfully until now, and promises the same for the future, thereby securing to policy holders the full amount for which they are insured. The advantage of this system over the half cash and half note system is patent to every careful observer, but will be more fully illustrated by the following statement and table:

If a person of thirty years of age insures his life for the amount of $1000 in one of the credit companies, and pays a premium of $28 30 per year, with a note for half of the premium, then by means of this note and interests thereon the amount will become less and less in the following proportions:

| | |
|---|---|
| After 10 years the $1000 will amount to | $887 44 |
| After 15 years the $1000 will amount to | 795 28 |
| After 20 years the $1000 will amount to | 666 02 |
| After 25 years the $1000 will amount to | 484 73 |
| After 30 years the $1000 will amount to | 230 47 |
| After 33 years the $1000 will amount to | 32 53 |
| After 34 years the $1000 will amount to | Nothing. |

So that after a lapse of 34 years the whole amount will be eaten up, notwithstanding the parties insured paid their money in good faith.

The large dividend of 40 per cent declared last January is evidence of the care and success with which the Managers have conducted the enlarged and rapidly increasing interests of the Company, and vouches for its future brilliant and permanent prosperity.

Parties contemplating an assurance on their lives will do well to examine the status of this Company, every facility for which will be given by the

DISCIPLINE.

The spring-tide hour
Brings leaf and flower
With songs of life and love;
And many a lay
Wears out the day
In many a leafy grove;
Bird, flower, and tree
Seem to agree
Their choicest gifts to bring;
But this poor heart
Bears not its part;
In it there is no spring.

Dews fall apace,
The dews of grace,
Upon this soul of sin;
And love Divine
Delights to shine
Upon the waste within;
Yet, year by year,
Fruits, flowers, appear,
And birds their praises sing;
But this poor heart
Bears not its part;
Its winter has no spring.

Lord, let Thy love,
Fresh from above,
Soft as the south wind blow;
Call forth its bloom,
Wake its perfume,
And bid its spices flow;
And when Thy voice
Makes earth rejoice,
And the hills laugh and sing,
Lord, make this heart
To bear its part,
And join the praise of spring.

[From the Watchman and Reflector.]

FAITH'S REPLY.

Thy spring-tide, too, will come,
Thou weary, saddened one!
Through fiercely driving storms of keenest pain,
Through grief's thick clouds and sorrow's chilling rain,
Gilding the soul's dark midnight yet again,
Shall shine the glad'ning sun!

Alone thou art not left,
The cruel storm to breast!
Dost thou in silence heavy burdens bear,
Doomed when the soul is sad a smile to wear?
Know that the Savior's heart thy grief doth share,
Longing to see thee blest!

The wind, and wave, and tide
Only God's time abide!
Then the sweet spring that comes when winter's o'er,
Then the sweet calm, unbroken evermore;
Then love's sweet banquet on th' eternal shore!
Lord, thither be our guide!

Neglected Prayer.

It is said, "And Satan trembles when he sees the weakest saint upon his knees."

Then he will of course do all he can to hinder prayer, and perhaps the most successful arguments he uses is, the want of time. This so well agrees with what people think is the truth that the suggestion seems to come in very seasonably.

"Not now" is the frequent Yes, the daily reply to the whispers of the Holy Spirit in its suggestions to duty; and it is not wonderful that many souls are left in the undisturbed death of the world, flesh, and devil. Yet some one's prayer arises and prevails for those who slumber on the brink of ruin, and the blessed intercession of Jesus prevails, and the wanderer is spared a little longer.

Sick beds and sick rooms might relate long stories about neglected duties, especially restrained prayer. One dear woman was laid aside for months; then she had time and necessity for prayer; then she had time to recount her carelessness of that duty, and lament her neglect of the closet, making the family altar her only dependence for the refreshment of her spirit.

Then, if you are so busy that you can not take time to wait upon God, you should not take time to enjoy His daily mercies, the intercourse of your friends. We can pray a good deal, and read also a little in the Bible in five minutes. Yes, we can present many requests in three minutes. If some one comes in to gossip awhile, how the minutes fly without count, and we do not feel very bad about it; but if we try to be punctual to the closet, how many little cares and very necessary things come up to hinder? The best way is to break at once away from all, and say, "I must be alone with God a little while." A little care about punctuality in keeping seasons with Jesus will foil all the enemy's snares. M. ANNESLEY.

At Newburyport a pious wife entreated her dissipated husband to go to meeting with her; he replied that he would if she would give him a pint of rum on his return. Knowing that he would have the rum whether she gave it to him or not, she agreed to his terms, and went to the meeting. When they returned she procured the liquor for him, but he pushed it aside, saying he had found something better, and he now gives evidence of being a changed man.

The Fulton street daily prayer meeting, New York, which has existed since September, 1857, has been so crowded of late that it has been decided to hold the meeting in the South Church.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, September 1.

A further notice of the camp meeting at Annapolis Junction may be acceptable to your readers.

In the evening after the close of my last letter, Dr. J. P. Newman occupied the stand, the other appointments for the day having been previously fixed. One of the presiding elders and a preacher from Baltimore, with one layman, were much concerned to have the Doctor maintain silence, for fear he would introduce politics in his sermon. The antecedents of these guardians of the peace need not be given. The layman was the only one who during all the exercises of this meeting introduced or even alluded to the politics or events of the day. Two preachers left the ground, whether through fear of a mob or riot is left to conjecture. The layman was tented, and remained to hear. These ghost and panic makers who, however honest, and they are not more so than others, have their parallel in the case of an old Dutchman who, being employed in horticultural operations, handled some fertilizer, and forgetting that he wiped the streaming sweat from his face, wondered why the pungent compound had caused his "nostrils such great indignation." Called to breakfast, he washed his hands, but still his nostrils were disturbed. Again he washed; still he sneezed, and washed again, and wiped his hands till they burned, but still the guano made him sneeze. His indignation exceeded the chastity of his language. His wife came, and with spectacles mounted, instituted search. The trouble was revealed; the old lady exclaimed with a roaring laugh, "My fires, daddy, it's on your nose!"

So these preachers and members have always the political guano on their nose, and are disturbed by its odor when no one else is. Prejudice is as silly as it is intolerant. But Dr. Newman preached; the pitiful effort to prevent him was rebuked by the common sense and Christian courtesy of the large number of preachers and people. And such a sermon! Long will it live in the joyful memory of the multitude moved by its power. The subject was "Christian Experience." The discussion was marked by the most masterly exhibitions of divine truth as the privilege of Christians under the dispensation of the Holy Spirit. The people wept, and shouted aloud; the thoughtless trembled, as awestruck with a view of things unseen. At the close of the sermon many of the ministers, the old as well as the young, threw their arms around the Doctor's neck, and wept and shouted for joy. The divine influence attending the Word was a vindication of the preacher against senseless imputation as resistless as demonstration. More professed conversion, more bowed at the altar that night than at any previous service. Many entreaties were employed to induce the Doctor to remain over Sabbath; but he left the next morning for New York.

This has been a very remarkable camp meeting. The unusual interest excited in advance of the meeting was no doubt in a measure attributable to the weekly prayer meetings held in the city in its behalf. The attendance of people, the uninterrupted order, the solemnity of the congregation, the attention to the services, the absence of promenanding, the uniform observance of rule, were remarkable in themselves; but add to these the unabated religious interest in the public prayer meetings. Few of these were held in tents, because the whole Church was in the congregation; no waste of time in social interchanges. Preaching was seldom followed by exhortation; penitents came forward without special effort. The intervals between worship were spent in refreshment, singing, prayer, and experience meetings in the tents. The song of Zion was the first sound heard in the morning, the last at night.

Not a drop of rain between Friday and Friday—the beginning and end of the meeting. There were generally present between twenty and twenty-five ministers. The tents number 140, and the professed conversions 141. Sixteen professed to have found the pearl of perfect love. Many of the former members of the Church who had withdrawn on political grounds were present, and enjoyed themselves as "when warm in their first love," and were cordially joined by their old friends. The love of God reigning in the heart is after all stronger than all other ties.

A camp meeting was held in one of the lower counties of Maryland, where some eighty professed justification, about two-thirds of whom were Catholics.

There is now one in progress at Tolson's old ground, about eight miles from Washington, much better sustained with tents than last year. Up to this time the best order has prevailed; and several persons have professed justification.

There is also a camp meeting of the Zion Methodist Episcopal church about five miles from the city, near Silver Spring; another at the east end of Benning's bridge, within the District of Columbia; and still another at Good Hope—a high ridge overlooking the city. The three last named are held by the colored people. There has been no disturbance so far as heard up to this time.

The camp meetings held by the people of Baltimore, both at Waters's old ground and Shrewsbury, are well reported of. The old spirit of these meetings has revived, and marked success has attended them in the region round about here; and indeed so far as I have heard this is generally true.

The churches here are resuming their autumn fullness as the heat of summer departs.

There is little transpiring here now of general interest.

A lunatic from the First United States infantry reached here a few days since, under charge of Lieutenant Parker.

General Rosecrans has returned here from his mission to White Sulpur Springs.

From the Churches.

Rev. Mr. Bryan writes from St. Martinsville, Louisiana:

The Roman Catholics are working hard to win the people over, after persecuting and insulting them before. Their bishop, with nine priests, had a confirmation on Sunday, the thirtieth ultimo. Large numbers attended, white and colored, but we went on with our services as usual, and few of our members paid any attention to them. We had a large congregation in the morning, and in the evening a good class meeting. Many said they were trying to serve God with all their hearts. We had some shouting. Truly God was with us. On the twenty-third Brother Smith, preached a sermon on baptism to a crowded house. Many could not get in. At twelve o'clock we marched down to the water and twenty were immersed. Then we returned and six adults and one infant were baptized. The Lord's Supper was administered to about eighty members. I have had no trouble with politics or the Democrats, for I am trying to gain the people for Christ, and politics are dangerous for ministers. I fight my battle with prayer, as the battle is not to the strong, nor the race to the swift.

Rev. Mr. Hilton writes from Holmesville, Louisiana:

I went to Bayou Rouge on the thirtieth ultimo and preached. They were much revived. I left it to be determined by a vote whether I should establish a Methodist Episcopal Church. Another got up and said twelve men would do for a start. After some explanation they unanimously voted aye, and a society of forty-four members, with a good leader, was formed. I told them we would open a school, and seventy children were promised. I had a talk with the gentleman who offers to sell us property for a church. There is plenty of land, a large house, a kitchen, and a cistern. We have no church in the parish, and can buy this place cheap. If you know any way to help us in this great struggle, please fly swiftly to it. The crops are very promising, and the people are gathering cotton. My school is doing very well, and the church is in a prosperous condition.

Rev. George Dobson writes from Okalona, Mississippi:

I have removed from Aberdeen to this place, which is on the upper part of my circuit. The colored people are anxious to take the ADVOCATE. I send you six names at this time, and will give the money to Rev. A. C. McDonald, our elder, when he comes around the district. We have a great revival going on in Okolona, and we are in the third week of the protracted meeting. Up to the thirtieth of August we had received twenty-three members, and more are ready to join. On my circuit we have had a good time this year. The old mother Church is spreading all over this part of our country. Down about Athens and Aberdeen the white people think a great deal of Rev. Mr. McDonald. I have more calls for preaching than it is possible to meet, not having means to support my family when away. I have been without a horse most of the time to ride to my appointments, as we are all very poor.

Camp Meeting Items.

In the editor's absence we may venture to give our readers the following eloquent description of a night on the camp ground by a correspondent of the Baltimore American of August 28:

On reaching Haslup's camp ground, near Annapolis Junction, last evening (Tuesday), I learned that the service at half past seven o'clock devolved on Rev. Dr. J. P. Newman, editor of the New Orleans ADVOCATE, whom I had never before seen. Having read his travels in Palestine—"From Dan to Bersheba"—the best I have read of that country, and many abusive articles in the Southern papers about him, also many as complimentary, there was more than ordinary interest attached to his appointment for the evening. His topic was "Christian experience," based on a remark of our Lord to Nicodemus. It opened with an exegesis of the remark and its context, which was brief and clear. The paper held in his hand was supposed to be a written discourse to be delivered on a camp ground at night. But the explanation through the paper was returned to the Bible, and proved to be the leaves of "The Book" loosened from their place. All fears of a "dry time" were driven away when the Bible was closed, and the subject began to open. The doctor's presence is commanding, his eye restless and brilliant, his countenance seems to be the utterance of a soul moving amid the grandeur of an unrevealed future, and only returning to the body to make it the instrument of duty and the companion of its glory. His voice is clear and ringing, enunciation very distinct, rhetoric comparatively perfect, words come like troops at his command, and they are pronounced with a music equal to Henry Clay. Then such wealth of thought, beauty and loftiness of imagery, power of illustration, such resistless logic and scholarly grapple with the most astute scoffers at Christianity. Such exhibition of "the deep things of God," poured out as by a power from on high, that every thought of the audience was taken captive, the devout worshiper was electrified, hearts melted, tears rained down, shouts of rapture burst from hundreds as the voice of many waters; the people were moved as when the tempest walks the deep and the floods lift up their voice. It was not, could not be, "the enticing words of man's wisdom, but the demonstration of the spirit and of power;" only truths that were a hammer and a fire in the gospel sense could produce such results. At the close of the sermon the young as well as the hoary headed ministers fell on the doctor's neck, as did Zenophon and his companions when they exclaimed, "The sea! the sea!" The preacher and his melted audience may pass to their long home; the stately oaks where echoes walked their solemn rounds may decay, and the lamps of heaven that twinkled through their leaves may burn out, but that sermon will never be forgotten. This impressive scene closed with the doxology and announcement that some thirty to forty had kneeled for prayers, and some twelve to fifteen had been "translated into the kingdom of God's dear Son."

A correspondent of the New York Tribune sketches the love feast of the Sing Sing camp meeting thus:

The richest treat of the whole meeting is now on hand in the shape of the love feast. This is the climax of a camp meeting. Here all the elements of interest that have been distributed through the week concentrate. The results of the sermons, the fruits of the prayer meetings, the testimonies of new converts, the assurance of believers, the triumphs of the rejoicing, are all reaped here as a harvest. This was eminently the case on this occasion. Owing to the showery weather this service was postponed until near the closing of the week, falling on Thursday morning. The sky was clear, the sunbeams glancing among the shining green leaves, and fresh zephyr setting all the Eolian chords of the forest in vibration. The silver trumpet called the people to the circle at eight o'clock, and the services were opened by singing and prayer. The stand was crowded with ministers, and a solid mass of people sat in front of it. The speeches commenced at once, and more than 380 testimonies were given in an hour and a half, an average of more than four per minute. No person who has not witnessed such a scene can form any conception of its character. The testimonies of the people and preachers are largely expressed in quotations from the language of Scripture, or from the hymns that are on lips of the masses. One verse of Scripture, one stanza of a hymn, often only a single sentence or a single ejaculation tells the story. The tale of forty years past is out of order. The past must only be touched, if alluded to at all. The present, conscious, personal spiritual condition of the speaker, or perhaps his experience during this camp meeting are all that is allowable, unless the exception is a very marked case. Men and women, laymen and ministers, speak without any distinction, and tender youth and gray heads rise side by side. Sometimes a burst of song, only one or two stanzas, is started and caught up by a thousand tongues and flung heavenward, like a sudden jet from a mighty fountain. Plain farmers and city merchants, the wives and daughters of mechanics and bankers, laborers and latinists, are all on the same level. Often two, three, or more people are speaking at once, in different parts of the crowd, and you can hardly call it confusion. Here is a group of the Scandinavians from the congregation of the Bethel ship of New York. A score of them have been converted during the meeting. Danes, Norwegians, Swedes, and Finns are present. Some speak broken English, some not a word of it. Pastor Hedstrom gives such permission to speak in their own language. It is harsh jargon to Americans, but music to their own countrymen, and understood in heaven. Pastor H. strikes up a Swedish hymn, and its melody from many voices touches all hearts, and at its close the Americans instinctively respond in old Coronation—

"Let every kindred, every tribe,
On this terrestrial ball,
To Him all majesty ascribe,
And crown Him Lord of All."

It seems as if the people were on fire. Their faces shine: their eyes sparkle; smiles flash over the throng like sunflashes over a meadow. The testimonies are like a constant stream of electric sparks from a battery, and their effect is a constant thrill through the whole listening mass. Pastor Hedstrom says this is like "iron in the fire and the fire in the iron." No such scene can be witnessed anywhere but at a Methodist camp meeting. This love feast will be memorable for life to those who participated in it.

The Boston Watchman and Reflector has a New York correspondent who treats of our camp meetings in the following manner, from a Baptist stand point:

The Methodists in this city and region, with their families go into camp once a year. They own a fine grove at Sing Sing, where for thirty years camp meetings have been held. A few of the more aristocratic families stand aloof from this gathering, but the great mass of preachers and societies are attracted annually to the grove. Whole families, old and young, spend ten days in tabernacles. Some of the tents are very elegantly arranged with all the appliances and comforts of a fashionable home. Young ladies are as careful of their toilet as at Saratoga or the seaside. Most of the visitors engage in the religious exercises. Some regard the occasion as a picnic, and sit in their rural drawing rooms reading, writing, conversing, as if they had no interest in the services. The preachers have what is called a tent to themselves, in front of which is the the preaching stand. This tent is a wooden building where quarters are very close and beds are bunks, rising one above another on the side, like a canal boat. The prayer meetings at five o'clock, the hour at which Wesley used to preach during nearly all his public life, are sparsely attended. The prayer meetings from eight to ten are very crowded and enthusiastic. The Methodists go into the woods annually for the purpose of singing, shouting, crying "Hallelujah!" "Amen!" "Glory to God!" "Glory to Jesus!" They leave their business, dwell amid much discomfort, for the purpose of enjoying a season peculiar to themselves, and if other people don't like it they are not obliged to hear nor pay for it.

I stood the other morning before what is known as the Green street tent. The meeting was led by Rev. Mr. Inskip, the Green street minister. He believes in camp meetings, in revivals, in religious excitements, in shoutings and transports---in what is called the power. The tent was crowded; people stood on the outside. Probably two hundred persons were present. All shouted; all sang; all prayed; all talked; part of the time altogether. Christian women prayed till they were red in the face, and screamed till they lost their breath, and could only express their feelings by vigorously pounding the bench by the side of which they kneeled. Warm-hearted exhortations, earnest, thrilling addresses, short prayers, interspersed with camp meeting songs made the place alive with enthusiasm and excitement, and made the meeting only too short though it lasted two hours. With three sermons a day to an audience of three thousand people; with prayer meetings between the preaching services; and a general prayer meeting from nine to ten o'clock at night, it keeps the time pretty well occupied. Song and prayer fill every part of the grove from early dawn till midnight. The interest will increase till the last day of the feast.

Some of the sermons at the Sing Sing camp meeting are thus graphically described by a correspondent of the New York Tribune:

Some of the leading incidents at the stand deserve especial mention. The sermon of Mr. Foss was a deeply earnest and masterly plea for the doctrine—a living Christ as the only foundation of human salvation. On Saturday afternoon, just after a violent shower, a thousand people, men and women, sat or stood on the drenched ground, magnetized under the sermon of the Rev. William Morley Punshon, the great English Wesleyan orator, when few other men could not have had one hundred hearers. On Sunday, the throng was greater than ever before seen on the ground. At the morning sermon, three-quarters of an acre of people listened to Mr. Taylor, and in the afternoon Dr. Newman charmed the same mass, and an almost equal number listened to another sermon, out of hearing of the first. The sermon of Bishop Janes, on Tuesday, was one of the most harrowing pictures of the sinner's remorse ever painted in language. Dr. Bowman, of the Church South, preached an able and fervid discourse, and, in spite of ardent Southern sentiments, being born a slaveholder, he was so convinced and charmed with the piety of an abolition love feast, that he sprang up and embraced, in tears of joy, some of the most prominent Radicals among the clergy on the stand. True religion is a mighty "Union" sentiment. The sermon of the Rev. Mr. Boole was a most fearless and noble exposure of sin, both in and out of the church. It boldly and justly rebuked some matters in the temporal management of the meeting itself that deserved such reprobation. A vast amount of serious conviction was produced by the sermon. Dr. Mattison's discourse on Heaven fell like a celestial ether upon hearts prepared to receive it.

Tribute to the Bible.

We copy as follows from a translation in the Cincinnati Commercial:

A few years ago there suddenly arose in Paris the rumor that Dore, despite the fabulous number of works which he had finished, had in his desk still another large work, consisting of several hundred sheets. Nobody thought this could be true; for, although it was generally known that the young artist was almost incessantly at work in his studio, it seemed utterly impossible that, what with innumerable sketches, drawings, paintings, etc., which he had already given to the public, his pencil should have been able to create such an extensive production. He himself strenuously denied the existence of such a work. And yet the voices, which, even in his presence, insisted on it, could not be silenced, and some one must have committed an indiscretion, for one morning Mame, the great Tours publisher, rushed into his studio, exclaiming:

"You have illustrated the Bible—the illustrations are mine—ask for them whatever you please!"

The scene now ensuing seems to have been taken from a comedy—denials on one side and assertions to the contrary on the other. Finally Dore owns up everything, and even condescends to show the illustrations to the publisher; however, only on the condition that M. Mame should no longer talk about publishing them.

"You see," he said, "an illustrated Bible, and, moreover, one illustrated by me, would be regarded by the public as a downright profanation. Everybody knows that I am a child of the world in the full sense of the word. People would, perhaps, forgive me for drawing a saint's picture, but the whole Bible! Prejudice would frustrate the success of the undertaking at the issue of the very first number."

"But tell me, for God's sake, when did you do all this? There are upward of two hundred sheets here!" exclaimed Mame.

"In my leisure hours, between twelve and three in the night time. Nobody will believe that I seek and find my whole creative genius as an artist in the Bible. With what shouts of laughter Paris would greet the news that Gustave Dore longs with all his heart for the moment when he will not paint any but religious pictures. The limner of caricatures in the Charavari paints Madonnas. You say that it is impossible. I have drawn these engravings for myself, and not for the public; I have been at work upon them for the past ten years, night after night, and whenever I had a spare hour, I made the necessary studies at the Louvre. Look at the drawings; they are better than anything I have done yet; but you yourself must see that it would be rank folly to publish them as a whole."

But M. Mame no longer listened to what Dore was saying; for upward of an hour he was absorbed in examining this gigantic work, and, when he arose, he stepped up to the artist and said to him the following words:

"Do not screw me up, my dear Dore—I am entirely in your power. I must have this work; it would be disgraceful for me not to publish it; ask whatever you please; I shall ruin myself if you insist on it; but these drawings engraved on wood are not worth more than four hundred thousand francs."

Dore resisted the tempting offer for months, but he accepted finally, stipulating, however, that the engravings should not be made under his supervision. As he predicted, both the public and the critics indulged in sneering remarks as soon as the work was announced; but as soon as it appeared they lauded it to the skies, and pronounced it a great event in the history of art. The first edition of three thousand copies was sold before a single copy had appeared in the hands of the retail dealers, and yet each copy costs in France two hundred thousand francs.

The Catholic Messenger gives its readers the following among several columns of similar sensuous, pompous stuff:

Solemnly and calmly the sinless band proceeded up the aisle of St. Vincent de Paul, and, passing over to the altar of the Virgin, paced down the aisle thereof, and returned up the nave to the sanctuary. Just then how mystically beauteous, how awe-inspiring, grand, gorgeous, and holy appeared the sacred fane! All around was wrapt in shade—was sublime and heavenly! There needed no voice to admonish and pronounce aloud: "Take off thy shoes, for this place is holy!" The windows were all upraised, the bland, vesper air of mid-August fanned the temples of the assembled; the altars were ablaze with their glowing and radiant lights; the echoes of the sacred songs and the fading sounds of the organ were being wafted around; and through nave and aisles and vestibule, as are the low, soft whisperings of the murmuring breeze on summer eve among the leafy trees and foliage; day was departing; a twilight gloom enwrapt the interior of the spacious edifice; whilst the rotund light, high above the altar of sacrifice, with its stained glass of many hues, was brilliantly lit up and emblazoned by the day god's ruddy glare; outside, as perceptible through the opened windows, the horizon—God's handiwork—was fleckered over; while the luminary of day, as though tired from his rapid journeying through the firmamental clouds, was seeking his couch in the burnished occident, where the evanishing and refulgent halo of waning, rosy sunshine was still streaking, with prismatic glory, in colors indescribably brilliant and golden, the expansive camp of the sky. What a moment for meditation and prayer—for silent, soul communing with the Diety! Day dying, almost in its final throes, and night and darkness about being ushered in—dying, not as frail mortals die, but to be life-illumined and resplendent with lustrous vitality on the morrow; the darkness, too, but temporary; whilst the darkness—the more than Egyptian darkness to many, alas! too many of us wayward and weak and wicked sojourners in this transient sphere—will be eternal, with no awakening morrow's sun to dispel the gloom and the grief that will envelope us as a garment for aye!

The following is a specimen of the doings of the Ku-Klux Klan, concerning which the papers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South have nothing to say, except by way of apology or defense. On the night of August 15 some twenty-five or thirty of the Klan rode in the town of Franklinville, Tennessee, and barbarously murdered S. A. Bierfield and his colored clerk, Lawrence Bowman. Mr. Bierfield was a quiet, inoffensive gentleman, but possessed of Union principles. Of all who knew him none say aught against him. He was quietly sleeping in his store on Saturday night, his clerk Bowman sleeping also in the store. The masked horsemen dashing in, discharged a number of shots indiscriminately, driving everybody indoors. They then went to Bierfield's store, and knocked at the back door. He asked who was there. They replied "friends." He told them to go to the front door, and went to it himself and opened it. They immediately rushed in and secured Bowman, while Bierfield rushed off. He was fired upon and wounded. By the blood they tracked him to an adjoining stable, dragged him out, placed a rope around him, and put him on horseback. He struggled to the ground, and begged to be permitted to see his mother before they killed him. The reply was, "Your mother ——; you shall die now." Several shots were then fired into his body, which, as those who afterward saw it say, was literally shot to pieces. Bowman was then brought out and shot; and the assassins took their departure. Bowman was mortally wounded, but dragged himself to a graveyard, and died during the night.

WHY HE WEPT.—A godly minister of the Gospel, occasionally visiting a gay person, was introduced into a room near to that wherein she dressed. After waiting some hours, the lady came in, and found him in tears. She inquired the reason of his weeping. He replied, "Madam, I weep on reflecting that you can spend so many hours before your glass, and in adorning your person, while I spend so few hours before my God in adorning my soul." The rebuke struck her conscience. She lived and died a monument of grace.

The blacks of Jamaica have, in little over a quarter of a century, acquired property amounting in value to over ten millions of dollars. This fact speaks volumes in favor of their industry and thrift, especially as their property consists mainly of houses and lands. Very happy results have followed the change of rulers and the recall of ex-Governor Eyre.

Ames Methodist Episcopal Church.

There will be preaching every Sabbath at 11 A. M. in Dr. Newman's church, corner of St. Charles and Calliope streets, and social meetings for conference and prayer every Sunday and Thursday evening from eight to nine o'clock in the lecture room. You are invited.

New Republican Journal.

The weekly Register, of Marksville, Avoyelles parish, is received, and deserves a longer notice than we have room to give it. Our friends Edwards and Collins, editors, have made a neat and earnest spirited paper. The execution and talent are unexceptionable.

Legislative Proceedings.

The editor in charge owes an explanation to the country subscribers in the Advocate, for the paucity of Legislative views in its columns during the session. This department, with other political matters, was left in charge of a gentleman who has been so fully employed as to leave him no time for the work. On the return of the editors to the city this, with other matters of interest to them and conducive to the paper's success, will be fully attended to.

Quarterly Conferences.

Rev. Scott Chinn, of the Louisiana Annual Conference, by appointment of the Presiding Elder, has held the third quarterly conferences for the following churches: Marais street Methodist Episcopal church, August 7; Laharpe street church, August 14; Campbell's Chapel, August 24. At all of these charges there was found to be a good state of things. The churches were prosperous and harmonious, large reports of conversion were received, and protracted meetings are to be held.

The General Assembly.

Laws and Resolutions Passed by the Legislature Since our Last Issue.

44. Amending act to transfer causes from courts created by constitution of 1864, to courts created in 1868.

45. Regulating practice in district courts of New Orleans.

46. To supply public records burned in the Winn courthouse in March, 1868.

47. To fix the time of holding court in the ninth judicial district.

48. To regulate appeals in Jefferson District Court.

49. Investigating acts of first and second drainage commissioners.

50. To provide for certain appropriations.

51. Protecting laborers in exercise of free suffrage.

52. To organize parish courts, fix duties of sheriffs and clerks; about failure in their duties; fixing seal for clerk of district court; providing salary for parish judge, and giving parish courts jurisdiction of suits for separation and divorce, and interdiction suits.

53. Authorizing the city of New Orleans to obtain a loan for current expenses.

54. Creating a Board of Registration.

55. Providing remedy against usurpation and unlawful holding of office or franchise.

56. Improving navigation of Red river.

57. Establishing a board of public works an defining its duties.

Twenty-five thousand white rebels who, with their families, have hitherto been supported in idleness, on the plea of sickness and lack of work, through the kindness of General Howard, will be obliged to work by the winding up of the Freedmen's Bureau. They all intend to vote for Seymour and Blair, and have already begun to denounce the Bureau as a humbug.

Camp Meetings.

My last was written on the Sing Sing camp ground. The next day Mr. Punshon preached, but under unfavorable circumstances. It had rained all day up to the hour of sunrise; yet the people were eager to hear and were profited. His sermon was eloquent in composition and impressive in delivery. I have now heard him a half-dozen times, more or less, both in Europe and America, and there is a remarkable sameness in the quality of his discourses. All are apparently cast in the same mould: they smell of the lamp; they indicate equal painstaking. This, I suppose, is true of all memoriter preachers. This mode of pulpit preparation has its evident advantages; yet it is not unattended by serious disadvantages. Among the latter is the impossibility of the speaker being fully affected by the inspiration of the subject, and of taking advantage of the incidents of the occasion. Preaching has to do with human sensibilities, and the emotions have a language of their own, which comes spontaneous with the rising feelings. And it is no less a disadvantage when a speaker's mind is burdened with words rather than thoughts; when the language and not the subject engrosses the attention. But Mr. Punshon has so habituated himself to memorize that in extemporary speech he is as weak as other men.

The next day was the holy Sabbath, and a day of rare beauty. Not less than fifteen thousand persons were on the ground, and it fell to my lot to preach to that vast multitude. Truly it was a time of power, for seldom have I witnessed so much tenderness and weeping as on that occasion. The great congregation was orderly, attentive, and serious throughout. Many were that day awakened and happily converted to God. I am the more particular on the conduct of the people, as Rev. Mr. Bottome, who is opposed to Sunday camp meetings, has written a letter to the Methodist, to the effect that the crowd on Sunday afternoon was unreached and unmanageable, and this he says to make a case against Sunday camp meeting. It is true that there were many who could not find room within the "circle," and who, outside of the tents, wandered about. Among them probably was Mr. Bottome, and from these wanderers he judges the conduct of the attentive thousands within the "circle." While I shall not express an opinion on the merits of the question, yet I can not refrain from saying that with his views, Mr. Bottome should have withdrawn from the ground at twelve o'clock on Saturday night, and not returned till twelve o'clock on Monday morning. But his principles were too weak to withstand the inducements to remain.

A YANKEE CAMP MEETING.

Four miles from Boston is the pretty town of Malden, the residence of Charles Heath, Esq. Here I found Mr. Edward Heath, who for more than a year discharged the duties of the mayoralty of New Orleans with credit to himself and to the city. He is here with his brother, spending a vacation, and is in excellent health and spirits. In company with him, his brother, and their ladies, we started for the Hamilton camp meeting, a ride of twenty miles. Here we found Boston and its vicinity largely represented, both in laymen and ministers. True to the Yankee character, the arrangements for the occasion were thorough and very precise. In the structure of the steats and tents there was a convenience and a comfort not observable at Westrrn meetings. And there was less of the emotional in the sermons and other devotions than in the South or West, but there was not less earnestness in prayer, nor less zeal for souls. I do not know that I ever preached to an auditory so profundly attentive as the one at the Hamilton meeting.

SOUTHERN CAMP MEETING.

By invitation of Dr. Lanahan, I left New York for Baltimore to attend a camp meeting of our border brethren, who are sufficiently Southern in their tastes and ways for all practical purposes. But on my arrival in the Monumental City I could not ascertain which of the two or three meetings then being held was the right one. Those whom I chanced to meet and ask at the depot were so intense in their political prejudice that they either did not know what the loyal Methodists were doing, or they would not even direct a stranger to find their encampment.

At a venture I went to Annapolis Junction. A mile from there the good people of Washington were encamped, but it was not Mr. Lanahan's camp meeting, and I found myself in the "wrong pew." Nothertheless, I was most cordially welcomed by Rev. Messrs. Newton Brown, Morgan Brown, and Peyton Brown, and several other Browns, all of whom knew how to treat a loyal stranger. Mr. Newton Brown will be gratefully remembered as filling my pulpit in the month of May last, and with great credit to himself and to the Church. He is a noble and venerable minister of the Lord Jesus. His accomplished daughter, Mrs. Captain Pierce, was also there, together with her mother and sisters. The success of the meeting was largely due to the great energy of Mr. Peyton Brown, whose brain is as large as his heart, and both are of more than ordinary size. I preached on Tuesday evening to a large and deeply attentive congregation. Indeed, the Lord was pleased to make his word powerful to the joy of his people and the salvation of souls. Two things pleased me much at this encampment—a children's meeting, to which a whole afternoon was devoted, and the prayer meetings held around the preacher's stand, in which all the people engaged, and at which the divine power was largely displayed. Praise God for Methodist camp meetings, and for the renewed assurance of the piety of our people!

Wade Hampton vs. Phillippi.

These are South Carolina politicians of opposite views, but favoring the same plan of operations. Hampton proposes that planters, merchants, and employers of all kinds discharge and refuse employment to all persons not of the Democratic persuasion, besides devoting to social ostracism and infamy of every sort Republicans who can not be thus reached.

Phillippi advises the laborers to call upon planters and other employers and tell them they will not do another stroke of work unless said employers promise to vote the Radical ticket. "Either give Grant and Colfax a tremendous majority or your crops shall rot in the field." The Charleston Mercury styles it a novel species of coercion. This seems to be the place where the joke comes in. To be sure, Mr. Hampton's plan was no novelty. It is an old Democratic usage, like that of "to the victors belong the spoils," where also the joke loses its point when Republicans are the victors.

The Democrats of New Orleans and throughout the State have been, and are now, shamelessly carrying out this plan of proscription for opinion's sake, and warring even to the death against freedom of the ballot. Like curses, these foul birds may come home to roost, and then whose fault will it be? Read the Mercury's article:

INCENDIARY.—On Wednesday Mr. Matthias Leinen, a German, formerly of the same company (Company E, fifty-fourth New York volunteers), was conversing with this aforesaid Albert Phillippi, at the Globe hotel in Queen street, when the latter told him that he (Phillippi) in a few days was going to set out on a political lecturing tour to every plantation within ten miles of Charleston; that he was to tell the negroes on every plantation to leave, and go to the planters, and tell them they will not do another stroke of work, unless the said planters and employers will promise to vote the Radical ticket. "Either they will give Grant and Colfax a tremendous majority, or their crops shall rot in the field." This is the programme. A novel species of coercion.

Driving Out Radicals.

We give extracts from a letter just received from St. Mary's parish. It is by our esteemed friend Judge Fisk, who is also a local preacher of our Church. He removed, with his family, to Franklin, at the request of the newly elected parish officers and other friends, to engage in the practice of law. The Democratic lawyers, printers, office-holders, and rowdies of the parish, seeing their occupation endangered, have raised a tumult like that of Ephesus, when Paul arrived there, and disturbed its idolaters. It will do good to make the facts known, as no reason is urged for his persecution, except his Republicanism. We vouch for Brother Fisk's amiable, unobtrusive character, and Christian integrity:

FRANKLIN, Sept. 5, 1868.

DEAR BROTHER: I arrived in Franklin on the first, and was unable to procure a house in consequence of a combination on the part of the Democrats. They have forbidden any person from renting a house to a Republican. There are a great many vacant houses in the place, but I was told by them that they would not rent a house to a Republican. I saw a widow who had no children, and whose husband had died leaving her no means of support except a house and lot. The house contained five rooms. She wanted to rent me three rooms, and keep two. We agreed on the price. I wanted to pay her and move in that day. She wanted to put it off till the next day for fear that I might be a Republican. She said that she would not rent to a Republican, for she was afraid that the Democrats might kill her or burn up her house. Of course that ended the matter. There was no chance for shelter but to come to Baldwin's, five miles in the country.

We stopped at the Franklin House, kept by three sisters. Their mother had been dead about a month. They had several vacant rooms, and proposed to rent us three. We went there and stopped, with the expectation of getting the rooms. The next morning they received orders not to rent us any rooms, and to get rid of us as soon as possible. We tried to get a means of conveyance to the Baldwin Place, where we are staying, and failed. The girls were afraid to keep us any lenger, even at eight dollars a day, and in order to relieve them we took it afoot, and walked out here. The road was very muddy. Where the mud was very deep we carried the little boy. We got a team from near the Asylum to go after the furniture.

I am to preach here to-morrow.

J. FISK.

Baptists in New Orleans.

We are glad to see by the article below, from the New York Watchman and Reflector, Baptist, that the Home Mission Board propose to send an active young Sabbath school pastor to this city for mission work. Such a laborer is needed, and would be welcomed cordially as a co-worker in this inviting field:

We are rejoiced to learn from an article in the Macedonian and Home Mission Record for August, that the Home Mission Society wishes to find a "young, active Sabbath school pastor" for New Orleans. From familiar personal acquaintance with the field we can assure the Baptists of the North that the colored children of that city, as also of other Southern cities and towns, stand in urgent need of just such an enterprise as the Home Mission Society proposes to undertake. The religious education of these children is not provided for, except to a very limited extent, by the Sunday schools now existing, and, indeed, it can not be done by the churches themselves, should they fully appreciate its importance and use all the means within their power. But few persons among them are competent to act as superintendents and teachers, and this lack must be supplied from some other quarter. Southern white Baptists are not in a condition to meet the demand. Upon Northern Baptists there rests the responsibility. It is to be hoped that the appeal from the Home Mission Society will meet with a generous response from the churches, and that ere long flourishing Bible schools, under the care of intelligent, devoted, earnest men will be imparting the knowledge of God's Word to thousands of neglected children, and also to adults who could be gathered in. The men who engage in this work must be good singers—this is indispensable—and able to talk to the young in a way to interest and instruct them. They must be prudent as well as zealous, in order to secure the co-operation of all the colored churches. For the present, two schools, at well selected points, would answer for New Orleans, and we think these churches could easily be induced to unite with the Home Mission Society in such an effort, and merge their separate schools in these two. These schools should be provided each with a musical instrument and all the modern appliances of an efficient Sunday school. The Publication Society would doubtless furnish a library, and some generous Baptists would, of course, supply maps, as well as the musical instruments before mentioned. These schools, thus equipped, could, with the blessing of God, accomplish a vast amount of good. In them preachers and teachers would be raised up, instructed in the Scriptures and in the practical working of Sunday schools. The rising generation of blacks must be looked after if we would not have them slip out of our hands and become a prey to irreligion and Popery. The Papists have their eye upon them, and already have a bishop in the field to organize a movement for the evangelization of the blacks, according to their ideas. They mean work. We must mean work.

Let it be the prayer of the churches that God would discover to the Board at New York the right men for the contemplated enterprise. No mean men will answer, for a grander, more imperative work is not now upon our hands.

Politics and Religion.

The people who have such a holy horror at the mixing of politics with religion are somewhat inconsistent. A friend cites a couple of instances, which we commend to them:

"I have just heard from the South Methodist camp meeting now holding at Havana Switch, near where we were mobbed two years ago, this fact: There is living at Laurel a Mr. S—, to whom a young zealot from the camp said:

"Oh, Mr. S—, you ought to have been at our camp meeting yesterday. We had a very fine time. A lieutenant of the Confederate army spoke, and he did give the Yankees fits!"

Mr. S—, being a Presbyterian and knowing but little about camp meetings replied:

"Ah, is that the gospel you preach there to save souls?"

"Well," said zealot, "I don't know anything about that, but we had a mighty fine time."

Another. At the Folsom camp ground the Methodist Episcopal Church South held a meeting on the first of August. Three private tents graced the grove. Jefferson Davis was eulogized in Sunday's discourse. Just then a fight occurred which, I think, ended the service.

Even Satan seems to have taken an overdose of Southernism. These are the people who do not want politics mixed with religion. No wonder. Religion would spoil it!

President Johnson's Treachery.

The Church Union is very plain with Andrew Johnson, and as much so with the organs of the Republican party. There is truth in the following:

The Republican press are very green, or else affect to be so. Andrew Johnson's jesuitical military order relative to disturbances in the Southern States affords them profound satisfaction. It is in reality one of the most treacherous and deadly acts of his satanic administration. He ingeniously avoids all recognition of the new State governments, leaving his Ku-Klux satraps in the Southwest at liberty to treat them as they call them, "unconstitutional, null, and void." And lest the honest officers whom he has been forced to keep in command, for want of others, should dare to do something for the protection of good citizens from massacre, he hedges them with an array of legal quotations and forms, and winds them up in red tape enough to give the enemy time enough for all their hellish purposes on every possible occasion before the United States military forces can get in motion. For instance: When a guerrilla gang make their usual night-ly arrangements for hanging a school teacher, a Union soldier, or a member of the Legislature, the facts must be telegraphed to the President, and his proclamation must be issued, giving them a certain time in which to lay down their arms and disperse. Considering that these bands of midnight massacre always meet and disperse beween two days, leaving their victims hanged, roasted, or riddled on the highway, the President's proclamations will be excessively effectual and implicity obeyed—long before they are issued.

We observed that the editorial staff has been strengthened by an accession to it of Prof. T. B. Taylor, a most fluent speaker and ready writer, and who promises to still further increase the popularity of this sterling farm journal. Let all our people read it. $1 50 a year.

Major General R. S. Canby.

The Charleston Advocate of the eighth ultimo, in publishing the last order of General Canby, pays him a well deserved compliment. The General and his kind lady have many friends among our readers, and to gratify them we publish the following:

The duties of General Canby in this department expired with the order which is here given. He has occupied in his command of this department a position unsought by himself, fraught with grave difficulties and responsibilities. But it has been no easy task for even his enemies to find fault with his judicious administration. He has managed affairs with ability, discretion, and evident impartiality to all classes. What he has done will be commended and appreciated by the unimpassional judgment of an unprejudiced people. He goes from us leaving a record of well done, and a grateful rememberance in the hearts of multitudes within the limits of his recent command.

General Orders No. 150.

In obedience to General Orders No. 1, from the headquarters of the Department of the South, the undersigned hereby relinquishes the command of the troops in the late Second Military District.

The officers of the general staff on duty at the headquarters of that district will report to the major general commanding the Department of the South.

In relinguishing this command, the undersigned takes this occasion to acknowledge the zeal and fidelity with which the officers and men have performed the difficult and delicate duties committed to them, and to express his thanks to commanders of posts and the officers of the staff for their active and zealous co-operation, and to all, his warmest wishes for their well-earned happiness.

ED. R. S. CANBY,
Brevet Major General.

BISHOPS SOUTH.—Some of our readers may be glad to have the following list of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South with their addresses:

J. O. Andrew, Summerfield, Alabama.
R. Paine, Aberdeen, Mississippi.
G. F. Pierce, Sparta, Georgia.
John Early, Lynchburg, Virginia.
H. H. Kavanaugh, Lexington, Kentucky.
W. M. Wightman, Charleston, South Carolina.
E. M. Marvin, O'Fallon, Missouri.
D. S. Doggett, Richmond, Virginia.
H. N. McTyeire, Nashville, Tennessee.

SOCIAL EQUALITY.—The Augusta Republican says the Democracy are getting up big barbecues in different parts of the State, where the leaders induce the white men to eat at the same table and pick the same bones with colored men. This is social equality. What will not a Democrat do for an office? Yet the darkey will fool the nullifiers. The black man will eat their meat, drink their whisky, halloo for Seymour and Blair, and—vote for Grant and Colfax.

The only religious daily in the world is a penny paper called the Daily Witness, published in Montreal. It claims to have a larger circulation than all the other Montreal dailies put together.

From Mississippi.

DURANT, Miss., Sept. 7.

The Quarterly Meeting at Yazoo City was a precious and profitable season. I arrived there August 26, and remained until August 31, preached five sermons, held general class meeting, Quarterly Conference, and administered the Sacrament. Notwithstanding the bitter prejudice against our Church, intensified since the election, it enjoys a degree of prosperity that confounds all of our enemies. Rev. Tolbert Gibbs, the pastor, has stood like a rock amid the storm, and his influence for good is felt throughout Yazoo county. His congregations are always large, and at every quarterly meeting he is able to report a large increase. He is a remarkable pastor, considering opportunities, and the regularity and uniformity of his administration is truly gratifying. The result of the effort on the part of certain parties to supplant our church, for political purposes, by the Methodist Episcopal Church South, has resulted in making the church so popular as to be too small for the number of its worshippers, and we shall be compelled to make it larger. At one quarterly meeting there was a sprinkling of whites, who seemed impressed by the deep solemnity which pervaded our meetings. Nineteen persons joined our church on Sabbath, and over forty were penitent. I think there was one conversion.

Last Sunday at Durant we had an occasion blessed with an overwhelming demonstration of the Spirit's power. The church being too small to hold the vast crowd assembled, we repaired to a grove near by. Hundreds gathered around the table of the Lord, and made the woods ring with their rejoicings.

Many persons were struck under conviction during the day, and four professed to be happily converted to God. Twenty-one joined the church. Rev. E. Scarborough, the pastor in charge, is rapidly pushing the work and unfurling our banner in Holmes and Attala counties. Commencing on the Durant circuit about a year since, with twenty members, he has now two hundred, having organizations at Lexington, Mount Pleasant, Goodman, and Durant. Our people at Durant built the church themselves. They have a splendid acre lot, in a good location, which is deeded per discipline. Many of our preachers are becoming largely possessed with the progressive spirit of Methodism, and are quickened to greater exertion by the bitterness of persecution. Truly our sufferings are giving us a good development. We hope to hold our Conference at Vicksburg, if the Missionary or Church Extension Society make an appropriation already asked for to improve the church. Bishop Ames favors the appropriation, and we are looking trustfully for it.

It is sickly here now. The air seems to float deadly disease. The heat is intense.

JAMES LYNCH.
Presiding Elder Jackson District.

[Communicated.]

NEW IBERIA, Sept. 3, 1868.

EDITOR ADVOCATE:

According to the promise which I made you on leaving New Orleans, I give you a history of my trip here. I started from New Orleans on the first instant, and arrived in Franklin on the same day. All along the route to Brashear City, and from thence up the Teche, once considered the garden spot of the world, and where a few years ago were thriving, prosperous villages, and fine farms, blooming and blossoming like the rose, nothing but gloom, sadness, and desolation prevails.

There is but very little done except on places and plantations that have changed hands since the war. During my stay in Franklin I saw several Republicans trying to rent houses for their families, and although there were a great many vacant houses they could not succeed in renting, because the Democrats had fobidden any person from renting to a Republican.

Republicans are constantly hissed at and insulted on the streets, and would no doubt be treated with violence, were it not for fear that Radicals would hold property holders and their houses responsible for such acts. About four or five miles from Franklin a large building is being erected for an orphan asylum, under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The brick work is nearly completed. It has been very wet for more than a month, which has retarded the work. There are a great many colored families living near there who keep up their Sabbath schools and church worship on the Sabbath. The Democrats keep a sullen, perverse spirit toward the colored people, throwing obstacles in their way to prosperity. The parties are divided now just as they were during the war. Those, both white and black, who favored the Union, are now for Grant. Those who were for the Confederacy are for Seymour. The Grant party have a thousand majority.

VIA JANTE.

La Priere du Soldat.

Durant les derniers troubles de l'Irlande on s'aperçut, dans l'armée de Lord Cornwallis, qu'un simple soldat s'absentait journellement du quartier et semblait fuir la compagnie de ses camarades. On le soupçonna bientot de se séquestrer ainsi dans l'intention d'entretenir des relations avec les rebelles, et d'après ce soupçon, exagéré sans doute par la melveillance des plus mauvais sujets de son corps, il fut jugé par une cour martiale et condemné à la mort. Lord Cornwallis en étant informé voulut examiner les minutes du jugement, et n'en étant point satisfait, il envoya chercher le prisonnier pour converser avec lui. Cet homme ayant été interrogé, désavoua solennellement toute pratique et toute intention coupables, déclara qu'il était sincèrement attaché à son souverain et qu'il était prêt à vivre et à mourir à son service. Il affirma que la véritable raison de ses absences fréquentes était le désir de trouver quelque lieu solitaire où il put prier en secret, sa seigneurie devant bien penser qu'il en eût cherché vainement les moyens parmi ses camarades irreligieux, qui n'étaient devenus ses ennemis qu'à cause de ses principes religieux. Il ajouta qu'il s'était défendu de cette même manière devant le tribunal, mais que les officiers avaient trouvé la chose si invraisemblable qu'ils n'y avaient fait aucune attention.

Le Marquis, pour s'assurer par lui-même de la valeur de ce moyen de défense, observa que si le fait était véritable l'accusé devait avoir acqnis une très grande facilité dans l'exercice de la prière. Le pauvre homme répondit qu'il était bien loin de pouvoir se flatter de posséder, à cet égard, aucune espèce d'habileté; mais le Marquis ayant insisté pour qu'il s'agenouillât et priât à haute voix devant lui, il obéit et exhala son âme en présence de Dieu avec tant d'abondance, de facilité, et d'ardeur, que le Marquis le prit par la main pour le relever, et déclara qu'il était pleinement convaincu qu'aucun homme ne pouvait prier ainsi avant d'avoir contracté l'habitude de vivre en présence de Dieu. Non seulement il révoqua la sentence, mais il accorda au soldat une faveur particulière, l'admit à son service personnel, où l'on assure qu'il continue de se maintenir aujourd'hui dans un grade avancé.

En lisant cette relation tout esprit sérieux sera porté à réfléchir sur l'intervention remarquable de la Providence en faveur de cet homme de prière, faculté qui caractérise d'une manière particulière le véritable Chrétien. Oh! combien ce fait doit couvrir de honte ceux qui vivent sans prière, quoiqu'ils aient toutes les facilités possibles pour se livrer dans la solitude et le secret à ce saint exercice!

Religious and General Items.

Mr. Peabody has contributed to charitable and philanthropic purposes seven million dollars.

This season the Southern rice crop will probably reach sixty thousand barrels against forty-five thousand in 1867.

Recent returns show that the Quakers number in Great Britain only 13,185 persons: in Ireland, 2893. This makes the body very much smaller in the United Kingdom than in the United States, where they number about 100,000.

In one of the Southern States, and at a communion season in a certain "Methodist Church South," the preacher, after having administered the communion to the white members present, told the blacks that they might partake provided they would agree to vote the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Spurgeon very properly makes fun of his Baptist brethren, who keep out of politics on the ground that Christians "are not of this world." He says: "You might as well, being sheep of the Lord, decline to eat a mutton chop, on the plea that it would be cannibalism."

A young man stated at a prayer meeting some weeks ago that he had just experienced conversion. On being asked what had first arrested his attention on the subject of religion, he account of the replied "that it was the reading of the general revival of religion contained in the Tribune.

In a private letter to the Indianapolis Journal from a prominent Republican of Kentucky, the writer says: "If Seymour is elected, hundreds of Union men will have to leave Kentucky and find homes elsewhere. I I speak advisedly. For God's sake fight hard and win if you can. It is our only salvation."

Among the most active, earnest, and outspoken advocates of the election of Seymour and Blair, are the two leading Roman Catholic papers of the United States—the Pilot, of Boston, and the Tablet, of New York. These are both religious papers, the official organs of the Church, and we invite the attention of all political papers opposed to mixing religion with politics, to look to this matter, as there is danger that some of them will lose their laurels.

The captain of one of our ocean steamers, a few years ago, when about to start to sea in a steamer, crossed the East river with seven or eight merchants, and went with them to a house of entertainment, where they had a jovial dinner together. A day or two ago he met with several of them, and found each to be a converted man. They immediately hunted up the rest, and it was found that all were believers in Jesus. They retired together to a room belonging to a mercantile house, and spent a season in prayer and thanksgiving in view of the occurrence.

A young man who had not previously been in the church for nine years was induced a few days since to attend the Union prayer meeting held in the Thirty-Fourth street Methodist church, New York, where prayers were offered for his conversion. In the evening of the same day he attended a similar meeting in the North Presbyterian church, Ninth avenue, corner of Thirty-First street, where his case was also mentioned, and he was made the subject of special prayer. On the following day he attended the meetings held in both places, and on that evening experienced conversion.

Intelligence from Our Mission Rooms.

THE ROOT OF THE DIFFICULTY.—This is said to be the root, namely: That the pen and the press have failed to secure the co-operation of the Pastors and Missionary Committees in obtaining the necessary funds for the missionary treasury. We are just reading the remarks of a pastor, whose language is, "If I had the money I would devote it to sustaining a course of lectures in each of our theological seminaries on the duties of pastors in this respect. I am convinced we never shall do what we ought to spread the Gospel until our pastors as a body are educated to deep convictions and intelligent notions of what they ought and can do in this direction." The bishops do lecture, we are told, at almost every conference, to have the pastors look well to the missionary interests. "Line upon line" is good in this cause.

BROOKLYN AND CHINA.—A brother writes to the Secretary of the Missionary Society from Brooklyn, August 22, as follows: "In looking over the Advocate of August 6 I read the article, 'Forget not the Heathen.' While reading it I was reminded of the decision of the disciples at Antioch: 'Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea.' I inclose $5 toward the mission at Foochow, China. Though but a private member of one of the Brooklyn Methodist churches, and only a retail clerk, I am still willing to help the missionary cause."

REV. WILLIAM SCHWARTZ.—This brother, our German missionary from Paris, arrived in New York August 27, accompanied by his oldest son, who enters upon a mercantile career there city.

SWEDEN.—Rev. V. Witting, our Superintendent of this department of the Scandinavian work, gives us the most cheering accounts of the work under his immediate supervision. He also informs us of the breaking out of revivals wherever the converts from the mission visit: he also gives account of the outbreaking of the work under the influence of brethren from America, who have gone home to visit relations, and to bring to the country of their adoption and new birth such of their countrymen as they can induce or assist to come to America.

CHINA.—We are almost startled by the accumulating evidence on our hands of the openings for the spread of Christianity in China. We shall shortly lay before our Church some new facts which, we trust, will increase their interest in a field whose hundreds of millions call for many laborers. Who will ask the Lord of the harvest to send forth more laborers?

INDIA.—Late news from the Methodist missions in India states that within two weeks in the month of December nearly a hundred persons made a public profession of Christianity. Nearly all of them came in by families. Many were persons of high cast; and what was more significant, several of them were women and mothers of families.

We hear with pain of the death of the youngest child of Rev. Brother and Sister Messmore; also of the death of Judge Frazer, one of the fast friends of our mission in India. Our tenderest sympathies are with the bereaved friends.

REV. J. M. THOBURN.—To be "in perils among the heathen" was a part of apostolic experience. Brother Thoburn writes: "You may have heard that the natives gave me a good old-fashioned mobbing a few days since. It occurred at Hartalla, about three miles from Moradabad. At least two hundred men were in the row. I got one of my ears badly bruised, and many bruises on my body of which I carry the marks. At one time when the crowd was roaring around I began to think it would end seriously, but God restrained them. Prim Das (a native preacher) stood by me like a man, and received a good many blows." The offenders have been brought to trial, and will doubtless meet with their deserts. Brother Thoburn, as usual, cries out for men, more men! He says the Church "can not more effectually lose money than by overworking their men now in the field, saying that he himself is doing the work of two men."

MOVEMENTS OF MISSIONARIES—A FAREWELL GATHERING IN BOSTON.

In the rooms of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Mission, in Boston, was a farewell gathering of a party of missionaries soon to depart for their fields of labor. The missionaries were Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, Miss Parmelee, Miss Powers, Miss Baker, Miss Carruth, and Mrs. Edwards. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler go to Harpoot, Eastern Turkey, on mission work, on which they have already been engaged about ten years. Mr. Wheeler has published two very interesting books entitled, "Ten Years on the Euphrates," and "Letters from Eden." Mr. and Mrs. Pierce are new missionaries, and go to Erzroom, Eastern Turkey. Miss Parmelee is a native of Toledo, Ohio. She is to be supported in her work by the newly formed New England Woman's Foreign Missionary Society; but all the others are supported by the American Board. Miss Parmelee is to be stationed in Marden, Eastern Turkey, as a teacher in an Arabic female seminary. Miss Baker is a resident of Wiscasset, Maine. Miss Powers is a daughter of the Rev. P. O. Powers, now a missionary in Kesab, Northern Syria. Miss Carruth is a resident of Dorchester, and goes to Beyrout, Syria, as a teacher in the female seminary there. Mrs. Edwards is from Troy, Ohio, and goes to Southern Africa as a teacher in a female boarding-school among the Zulus. At New York they are to be joined by Mr. and Mrs. Parmelee, Mr. and Mrs. Cole, and Miss Van Duzee, all of whom go to Erzroom. Mr. and Mrs. Parmelee are old missionaries, and are returning to their chosen field of labor. Miss Van Duzee is from Buffalo, New York, and goes out for the first time. All these, except Miss Carruth and Mrs. Edwards, sailed last Saturday week in the steamship Erin, of the National line, for Liverpool, en route for Turkey. Mrs. Edwards and Miss Carruth expect soon to embark for their respective fields.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

[Dispatches to the Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, September 8.—Andrew J. King has been appointed Inspector of Tobacco, Snuff, and Cigars, vice Lugg, suspended, for the Fourth North Carolina District. Secretary McCulloch and Commissioner Rollins had another fruitless consultation over supervisorships.

Secretary Browning and Attorney General Evarts were absent from the Cabinet meeting to-day.

Internal revenue receipts to-day only $254,000.

The tobacco manufacturers from Richmond, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New York are still here urging the establishment of bonded tobacco warehouses in those cities. The warehouses will be established. The delay is occasioned by the selection of suitable buildings, and a decision regarding the number of such warehouses in each city.

A million and a quarter of bonds were issued to-day to the Union Pacific Railroad, making a total to date of $12,000,000. Government is now paying $32,000 per mile as the road progresses.

Rear-Admirals Stringham and Bell, and General Simpson, of the Engineer Corps, compose the Board authorized by Congress to examine into the feasibility of bridging Boston harbor.

Benjamin A. Pritchard has been appointed Internal Revenue Assessor at Richmond, vice Jebb, resigned.

The Bureau functionary of Arkansas has forbidden the use of negro schoolhouses erected by the Bureau, for political or religious meetings of any kind.

The Chancery Court of Toronto, in deciding the case of the postoffice stamps captured by the Florida, sold in Europe, sent to Canada for sale, and ultimately seized by the United States, declares that all United States property captured by the Confederates during the war, no matter where found or by whom held, is the property of the United States.

WASHINGTON, September 8.—Attorney General Wilkins, of Nova Scotia, in reply to a letter from the Lieutenant Governor, asking him to explain his recent disloyal sentiments in Parliament, disclaims uttering any disloyal sentiments, and says he dreads annexation to the United States above all things, but believes that the confederation of the colonies tends that way.

ATLANTA, September 8.—The Senate passed the homestead bill, which exempts personal property to the amount of $3000 gold.

The Judiciary Committee reported in favor of removing the capital of the State back to Milledgeville.

LONDON, September 8.—The race between the Sappho and Aline is off.

Advices from the scientific eclipse expeditions are very satisfactory. Many photographs of the different phases of the phenomenon have been obtained.

The Times has an article on Indian affairs, in which it commends the American policy as one of consideration and forbearance, but so costly as not to be much longer pursued.

The boy Mackey, nineteen years of age, was hung in Newgate for murdering his mistress. This is the first private execution in London under the new law.

The strike of the cabmen continues, causing great public inconvenience. The press strongly denounces the drivers, whose proceedings so far, however, have been orderly.

The Times publishes a letter from Roebuck justifying and reaffirming his language regarding the United States, at the Sheffield cutlers' dinner.

The Times administers the following rebuke: "In a public reception given to the representative of the United States, when it was the object of all present to cultivate good will, it was an injury to both countries for a man in Roebuck's position to use language of vehement disparagement."

"We only hope Mr. Johnson will not fail to notice that the insult has been condemned by English public opinion, with entire unanimity. He may form an idea of the honor in which we hold his country by the prompt recoil from Mr. Roebuck's words everywhere witnessed."

PARIS, September 8.—A temporary depression of rentes occurred to-day, caused by a false report of a warlike speech at Chalons.

WASHINGTON, September 9.—Reciprocating like courtesy, Secretary McCulloch directs that the registered tonnage of British vessels shall be taken as correct in American ports.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $256,000.

It is officially announced that tobacco may now be shipped for export in bond to Export Bonded Warehouses in the Thirty-second District of New York, and the Third District of Maryland.

It is stated that Mr. Rollins demanded Mr. Binckley's dismissal, but Mr. McCulloch declines to interfere. There is no present prospect of a compromise between Mr. McCulloch and Mr. Rollins.

The invesgation is progressing in New York without pointed development. S. N. Pike, of Opera House, and whisky fame, a brother-in-law of General Schenck, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, is mentioned by witnesses.

ATLANTA, September 9.—The Senate amended the relief bill by striking out the second section, which included money in the schedule of exemptions.

The House passed a bill giving aid to the Air-Line Railway through Northeastern Georgia.

A message was received from the Governor, inclosing a report of a committee in the case of persons applying for seats vacated by expelled negroes, and giving the names of the persons receiving the next highest votes.

A lengthy protest accompanied the report against the action of the House in expelling the negroes. It reviewed the bearings of the constitution upon the subject, and stated that that instrument clearly gave negroes the right to hold office.

Pending the reading, a motion was made to table it as a direct insult to the House. Motion not sustained.

The following was introduced:

Resolved, That that portion of the communication from the Governor reflecting upon the action of the House in deciding the eligibility of free persons of color under the constitution be returned to the Governor with the following:

Resolved, That said communication was not warranted by the resolution upon which the Governor was requested to act, and that the members of each House are the judges of the qualifications of its members, and not the Governor. They are the keepers of their own consciences, and not his Excellency.

A resolution was passed to swear in the members having the next highest vote, who are not ineligible under the third section of the fourteenth amendment. Several of the new members were sworn in and took their seats.

COLUMBIA, S. C., September 9.—The Legislature to-day passed a bill, pledging the taxes collected for the redemption of bills receivable of the State. Also, a bill to aid the Blue Ridge railway.

The Republican Convention elected Mr. Elliott, colored, permanent Chairman. A committee was appointed to prepare an address to the people of the State.

A. S. Wallace, of York, was nominated for Congress from the Fourth District.

[Special Dispatches to the Missouri Democrat.]

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., September 4.—Nineteen Republicans have been assassinated in Columbia county within ten days. One man was shot with eleven bullets for shouting for Grant. A perfect reign of terror exists in the few counties where there are large rebel majorities, but all is quiet in counties where there are Republican majorities, and also in rebel counties where the Mountain Feds. live.

TORONTO, September 9.—The trial of Mr. Whelan progresses; the defense have so far proved nothing. Public feeling against the prisoner is intense—it is declared if acquitted he will be taken by the people and hung.

BOSTON, September 9.—Enoch Train is dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 9.—Advices from the western coast of Mexico state that quiet has been restored in Guerrora, Colinia and Sinaloa. Business generally had been resumed. In Mazatland commercial matters are becoming quite lively in consequence of opposition steamers to San Francisco touching there.

Canales, Vegas, and other worthies, had revolted in Tamaulipas.

NEW YORK, September 9.—By decision of Attorney General Evarts, Binckley was discharged from the prosecution of Revenue frauds. No new developments.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CHARITY HOSPITAL.—At a meeting of the Administrators of this institution, held last evening, Henry C. Dibble was elected attorney, and Mr. Longmeyer was elected Commissioner.

On motion of Hon. Michael Hahn, it was Resolved, That in admitting sick persons to the benefits of this Hospital, no distinction be made founded on race, color, or previous condition.

DEATHS LAST WEEK.—The total number of deaths last week, according to the report of Dr. G. W. Dirmeyer, secretary of the Board of Health, was 105. Of these eight died of consumption, nineteen of various fevers, and eight were stillborn.

NOTES IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. In the House yesterday, Mr. Isabelle, of Orleans, rose to a question of privilege, and stated that he had no disposition to lay the city of New Orleans in ashes, as represented in the Times, and that the colored people of this city had no desire of the character attributed to them by that paper.

On the report in relation to two of the St. Landry Representatives, Mr. Curell, of Orleans, moved to postpone the consideration thereof for one week. This was opposed by Mr. Harper, of St. Charles, Mr. Washington, of Assumption, and others, on the ground that two of the parties holding certificates of election had already had ample time to present the testimony in support of their claims, which they had not chosen to avail themselves of.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans: This is by far the clearest case that has ever been before the Committee on Elections. These gentlemen holding certificates never have paid the slightest attention to the notice of the committee, and never filed a single paper with the committee in support of their claims. The evidence shows that but for fraud and intimidation the contestants would have been elected by a decided majority.

Mr. May, of Orleans, advocated postponement in justice to the claimants, who he said, are sick.

Mr. Carr: These gentlemen have been notified that their election has been contested, but they have never responded in any manner.

Mr. Murrell, of Lafourche, advocated the adoption of the majority report, unseating Mr. Dupre and Mr. Tate, and moved the previous question.

The Speaker: Mr. Dupre has been absent more than a month without leave of the House. This is a contempt of the House, for even if he were sick he could inform the House of the fact. Mr. Tate has never been sworn in.

The majority report was adopted, and Messrs. Prejean and Simms, Republicans, were sworn in.

The bill to incorporate the Bayou Rapides Navigation Company was opposed by Mr. Abbott, of Concordia, because the franchise was for so long a period and the tariff of charges unreasonably high.

Mr. Noble, of Orleans, thought the rate of freight was fixed too high.

Mr. Lott, of Rapides: The people of Alexandria and in the vicinity of Bayou Rapides are satisfied with it.

Mr. Noble: The monopolies given to canal companies in this city should teach the necessity of guarding against high tariffs, but as all who reside on the bayou are favorable to the passage of the bill, he would not oppose it.

LITTLE PARAGRAPHS.—Yesterday the intense heat was varied by cooling showers.

Caspar Lotz, a carpenter, fell from the scaffolding of a new building on Jackson street, and struck his head against a projecting timber. His injuries are severe.

Two men near the Dryades market quarreled. George Gray struck Burt Williams on the head with an iron bar.

Mrs. Stuart's residence on Jackson, near St. Andrew street, was entered at night and a small quantity of wearing apparel carried off.

The Picayune states that Thomas Rhodes stole a pocketbook containing $20 and a suit of clothing. Capacious pocketbook.

Albert Jennings went to Kate Tracy's. He was robbed there of $10.

The Times has made the discovery that the present Street Commissioner is inefficient, and that the streets are in a disgraceful condition. The public discovered that some time ago.

Jacob Leidner, formerly Chief Engineer of the New Orleans Fire Department, has gone to that bourne from whence no traveler returns.

The Democratic papers are trying to incite disturbances by their gross misrepresentations relating to Republican processions. They will not succeed.

Jewell's evening Delta is to be of the Brick Pomeroy order, one of the class of papers that helps its opponents and harms its friends.

A Democratic nigger, one of the shining lights of the earliest colored Democratic club in this city, stole yesterday a whole washing from a clothes line in the fourth ward, was pursued by the owner of the clothes and a policeman, arrested, locked up, and will be sent to the Parish Prison by Recorder Gastinel, unless he exhibits his Democratic badge. O, Shaw.

CITY COUNCIL—Board of Aldermen.—The Board held its regular session last evening. The President, Thomas Markey, occupied the chair. Members present: Messrs. Brady, Kaiser, Shields, Pessou, Boguille, and Poynot.

A resolution from the Lower Board, authorizing the Controller to draw a warrant on the treasury for $25,000 in favor of the Board of Waterworks, to enable said Board to carry on the works—the above sum to be returned to the city treasury out of the future rents of the Waterworks—was concurred in.

An ordinance was received from the Lower Board to issue one million dollars of city bonds, under authority of the act of the General Assembly, adopted September 5. After some discussion, Mr. Kaiser moved the passage of the ordinance as it came from the Lower Board, which was adopted.

The Board then adjourned.

Board of Assistant Aldermen.—This Board met in regular session last evening. Mr. Kearny in the chair, and Messrs. Rose, Aitkens, Walker, Pemberton, Camp, Strucken, Grandpre, Fisher, Morphy, Pandely, Farrell, and Breen present.

The Mayor returned the joint resolution repealing ordinance 915, without his signature. The ordinance in question referred to issuing city money. Action postponed one week.

The Treasurer reports receipts for the week ending fifth instant $150,576 70; expenditures $229,481 40; balance on hand $376,686 25.

The arbitrators to whom was referred the subject of purchasing the Waterworks for the city, handed in their bill—$20,000. Referred.

Resolution authorizing the Controller to warrant on the Treasurer for the sum of $25,000, a loan to the Waterworks Commissioners, was adopted on second reading, and sent to Upper Board.

The Finance Committee offered a resolution repealing the law which compels the city to advertise specifications of contracts offered for sale. Adopted on second reading.

The Committee, through its chairman, thought that it would be sufficient for the community if the specifications were posted on City Hall doors.

A motion of Mr. Breen for this board to tender its thanks to Mr. Camp for his exertions and labors in pushing through the bill in the Legislature allowing the city to negotiate a loan of one million dollars, to liquidate its indebtedness, was not put, as Mr. Camp declined receiving thanks for having done nothing more than his duty.

An ordinance allowing the city to obtain a loan of one million dollars, by issuing untaxed bonds, ten per cent interest, according to act of the Legislature, was read, adopted, and sent to the Upper Board for concurrence.

When the money shall be raised, probably within two weeks, the city's employes will be the first to be paid.

The Board adjourned.

WHO SAID FAIL?—Another Democratic attempt at demonstration took place at Algiers on Monday evening. It was a prodigiously and immensely small show. The colored Democratic club was there, and, having recruited two supes for the occasion, amounted to seven! The whole affair, in its gigantic littleness, compared with the announced expectation of its projectors, reminded the spectator of the line:

"Smal lby degrees and beautifully less."

OFFICIAL.

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Passed at the Second Session of the Fortieth Congress.

[PUBLIC—No. 81.]

AN ACT to authorize the temporary supplying of vacancies in the Executive Departments.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in case of the death, resignation, absence, or sickness of the head of any executive department of the government, the first or sole assistant thereof shall, unless otherwise directed by the President of the United States, as is hereinafter provided, perform the duties of such head until a successor be appointed, or such absence or sickness shall cease.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That in case of the death, resignation, absence, or sickness of the chief of any bureau, or of any officer thereof, except Commissioner of Patents, whose appointment is not in the head of any executive department, the deputy of such chief or of such officer, or if there be no deputy, then the chief clerk of such bureau, shall, unless otherwise directed by the President of the United States, as is hereinafter provided, perform the duties of such chief or of such officer until a successor be appointed or such absence or sickness shall cease. And no appointment, designation, or assignment otherwise than as is herein provided, in the cases mentioned in the first, second, and third sections of this act, shall be made except to fill a vacancy happening during the recess of the Senate.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That in any of the cases hereinbefore mentioned it shall be lawful for the President of the United States, in his discretion, to authorize and direct the head of any other executive department or other officer in either of those departments whose appointment is, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, vested in the President, to perform the duties of the office vacant as aforesaid until a successor be appointed, or the sickness or absence of the incumbent shall cease: Provided, That nothing in this act shall authorize the supplying as aforesaid a vacancy for a longer period than ten days when such vacancy shall be occasioned by death or resignation, and the officer so performing the duties of the office temporarily vacant shall not be entitled to extra compensation therefor: And provided also, That in case of the death, resignation, absence, or sickness of the Commissioner of Patents the duties of said Commissioner, until a successor be appointed or such absence or sickness shall cease, shall devolve upon the examiner in-chief in said office oldest in length of commission

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That all acts heretofore passed on the subject of temporarily supplying vacancies in the executive departments, or which empower the President to authorize any person or persons to perform the duties of the head of any executive department, or of any officer in either of the departments, in case of a vacancy therein or inability of such head of a department or officer to discharge the duties of his office, and all laws inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be, and the same are hereby, repealed.

Approved July 23, 1868.

[PUBLIC—No. 82.]

AN ACT making a grant of land to the State of Minnesota, and to aid in the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi river.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there be and hereby is granted to the State of Minnesota, for the purpose of aiding said State in constructing and completing a lock and dam at Meeker's island (so-called,) in the Mississippi river, in said State, and thereby facilitating the navigation of the Mississippi river between the falls of St. Anthony and the mouth of the Minnesota river, two hundred thousand acres of public lands, to be selected in alternate odd-numbered sections by an agent to be appointed by the Governor of said State, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior; Provided, That said lands shall be selected from the public lands lying within the limits of the said State of Minnesota, and that not more than one section thereof shall be selected in any one township; Provided further, That said selections shall not be made from any lands containing mines of gold, silver, cinnabar, or copper, nor from any lands to which rights of pre-emption or homestead have attached.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That said lands so granted shall be subject to the disposal of the Legislature of said State for the purposes mentioned in the first section of this act, and no other; and the said lock and dam shall be and remain forever a public highway, free from any toll or charge of any kind whatever; and the said Legislature shall have power to pass all needful rules and regulations that may be necessary to fully carry out the purposes of this act.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the work shall be done under the direction of the engineer department of the United States, according to the plan and estimate submitted by Major General Warren, and that if said lock and dam are not constructed within two years from and after the date of the acceptance and disposition of this grant by the Legislature of the said State, the lands hereby granted shall revert to the United States.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That at any time after the selection of the said lands, and subsequent to the completion of said lock and dam, the lands hereby granted shall be open for settlement by actual settlers upon paying to the State of Minnesota a price not exceeding one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre for the same, which shall be paid by the State to the company who may construct said lock and dam.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That if at any time prior to the completion of said lock and dam the government of the United States shall make an appropriation in money sufficient to construct said lock and dam, then the grant of lands herein made shall revert to the United States: Provided, That this act shall have no effect on lands already granted for railroad purposes.

Approved July 23, 1868.

[PUBLIC—No. 83.]

AN ACT making appropriations for the payment of invalid and other pensions of the United States for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums be and the same are hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the payment of pensions for the year ending the thirtieth of June, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine:

For invalid pensions under various acts, ten million dollars.

For pensions of widows, children, mothers, fathers, brothers, and sisters of soldiers, as provided by acts of March eighteen, eighteen hundred and eighteen; May fifteenth, eighteen hundred and twenty-eight; June seventh, eighteen hundred and thirty-two; July fourth, eighteen hundred and thirty-six, July seventh, eighteen hundred and thirty-eight; March third, eighteen hundred and forty-three; June seventeenth, eighteen hundred and forty-four; February second, July twenty-first, and July twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and forty-eight; February third, eighteen hundred and fifty-three; June third, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight; and July fourteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, with its supplementary acts; and for compension to pension agents and expenses of agencies, twenty million dollars.

For navy pensions to invalids, widows and children, and other relatives of the officers and men of the navy dying in the line of duty, now provided by law, three hundred and fifty thousand dollars, to be paid from the navy pension fund.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the interest on the fund known as the naval pension fund shall hereafter be at the rate of three per cent per annum in lawful money, and shall be applicable exclusively to the payment of the navy pensions according to existing laws.

Approved July 23, 1868.

[PUBLIC—No. 84.]

AN ACT to incorporate the "Washington Target-shooting Association," in the District of Columbia.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That Charles Klomann, Frederick Hugler, Charles Ebel, John H. Stailey, Adolf Cluss, G Dill, Gustav Hartig, B Henze, John Kessel, Casper Kneessi, E. L. Schmidt, Richard Wallach, M. Michler, Lewis Clephane, and A. C. Richards, of Washington City, in the District of Columbia, and their associates and successors, be and are hereby incorporated and made a body corporate, by the name the "Washington Target-shooting Association," and by that name may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, in any court of law of competent jurisdiction, and be entitled to use and exercise all the powers, rights, and privileges incident to such corporation, for the purpose of establishing and maintaining, in the District of Columbia, a "Park," designated and named the "Washington Schutzen-Park," the object of which shall be moral and social, and to acquire proficiency and skill as marksmen.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the capital stock of said corporation shall not exceed one hundred thousand dollars, and that the stock shall be divided into shares of twenty-five dollars each, and shall be transferable in such manner as the said corporation, by its by-laws, may direct.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the government and direction of the affairs of the corporation shall be vested in a board of directors, not less than nine in number, who shall be elected by the stockholders from among the corporators and their associates and successors, in such manner as the by-laws of the corporation may direct.

SEC. 4 And be it further enacted, That the said corporation shall have full power to make and prescribe such by-laws, rules and regulations as they may deem needful and proper for the management of the stock, property, estate, and effects of the corporation, not inconsistent with the laws in force in the District of Columbia: to have and use a common seal, with the privilege of altering the same at pleasure: to purchase, take, and hold, by deed or otherwise, any property, real, personal, or mixed, and the same, or any part thereof, to dispose of at pleasure; and to execute, such deed or deeds or other conveyances as may be necessary therefor; to issue stock, and make all suitable and necessary regulations for the purchase, sale, and transfer of the same; to borrow money; to impose fines upon the members, and collect the same as other small debts are collected; to expel members; to make provision for the admission of members, and to provide for the election of such officers as may be deemed necessary for the proper management of the affairs of said corporation; and generally to have and exercise all such other and further corporate powers as may be deemed necessary for the purpose of carrying out effectually the object and purposes of this act; Provided, That the property of the said association, real, personal, and mixed, shall be held for the purposes, and none other, expressed in the first section of this act.

SEC. 5 And be it further enacted, That the members of said corporation shall have power to exercise in target-shooting at any time they may deem proper, except on the Sabbath day, commonly called Sunday.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That nothing in this act contained shall give to said corporation any banking privileges.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage; and that the same may be altered, amended, or repealed, at the pleasure of Congress.

Approved July 24, 1868.

[PUBLIC—No. 85.]

AN ACT making appropriations to supply deficiencies in the appropriations for the service of the government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be and the same are hereby appropriated for the objects hereinafter expressed, for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, viz:

LEGISLATIVE.

For compensation of the clerks of committees, the additional pay ordered by the resolution of the House of Representatives, twenty-fifth May, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, five thousand nine hundred and thirty-two dollars.

For pay of additional messengers of the Senate for the month of June, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, two thousand two hundred and forty-five dollars and four cents.

For the usual additional compensation to the reporters of the Senate for the Congressional Globe, for reporting the proceedings of the Senate for the second session of the fortieth Congress, eight hundred dollars each, four thousand dollars.

For the usual additional compensation to the reporters of the House for the Congressional Globe, for reporting the proceedings of the House for the second session of the fortieth Congress, eight hundred dollars each, four thousand eight hundred dollars.

A sufficient sum is hereby appropriated to pay the official reporters of the Globe in each house the amount which the Controller of the Treasury may find severally due to them for services during the sessions of the fortieth Congress, under the eighteenth section of "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the government for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, and for other purposes," approved July twenty eighth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six.

BOTANICAL GARDEN.

To complete the botanical conservatory in accordance with the estimate of the architect of the Capitol extension, to be expended under the direction of the Joint Committee on the Library of Congress, ten thousand two hundred and fifty-two dollars and fifty cents.

COURT OF CLAIMS.

For compensation of attorneys to attend to taking testimony, witnesses, and commissioners in said court, fifteen hundred dollars.

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT.

PENSION BUREAU.

For rent of building from November first, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, to June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, for the use of the Bureau, two thousand dollars.

CENSUS OFFICE.

For the purpose of paying the amount due to certain United States marshals and their assistants, for services rendered in taking the eighth census, in the year eighteen hundred and sixty, in the State of West Virginia, five thousand three hundred and seventy-six dollars and nine cents: Provided, That no part of the sum hereby appropriated shall be paid to or on account of any claimant who participated in the late rebellion, or gave it any aid or comfort.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

For payment of the balance due the Architectural Iron Works Company of New York, for work done at enlargement of the Congressional library in addition to their contract, such as increasing the length of the northern wing and furnishing four thousand six hundred and fifty-two lineal feet of iron shelving more than required by their contract, five thousand nine hundred and twenty-two dollars: Provided, That the said bills shall first be examined and approved by the Joint Committee on the Library.

For tiles for five thousand eight hundred feet of tiling for the basement stairs of the Patent Office building, to complete pavement on the lower floor of the south wing, at one dollar and twenty five cents per foot, seven thousand two hundred and fifty dollars.

For fuel and lights for the Patent Office building, including the salaries of engineer and assistant engineer and repair of heating apparatus, five thousand dollars.

Sherman, Major-General P. H. Sheridan and Major-General C. C. Augur; and the said commission is hereby authorized, for the purpose of such investigation, to call and examine witnesses in this behalf, and only the amount that said commission shall certify to be equitably and justly due shall be paid, And said commission shall sit at Leavenworth, Kansas, and shall have power to appoint a clerk at a salary of five dollars per day for the time actually employed; and the sum of one thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary for clerk hire, traveling and incidental expenses of the commission, is hereby appropriated.

CITY OF WASHINGTON.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Chief Engineer of the army shall reimburse to the corporation of the city of Washington for expenses incurred in improving the property of the General Government in said city, under provisions of act of May fifth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and in accordance with the recommendation of the Secretary of War, in book of estimates of appropriations, pages two hundred and forty-four and two hundred and forty-five, two hundred and ninety-six thousand nine hundred and forty-three dollars and eighty-eight cents: Provided, That section fifteen of an act entitled "An act to incorporate the city of Washington, and to repeal all acts heretofore passed for that purpose," approved May fifteenth, eighteen hundred and twenty; and section three of an act approved May fifth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, entitled "An act to amend 'An act to incorporate the inhabitants of the city of Washington, passed May fifteenth, eighteen hundred and twenty,'" are hereby repealed; and no improvements of the streets, alleys, avenues, or other property of the United States, in the city of Washington, authorized by said act, which is to be paid for by the United States, shall hereafter be made until an appropriation shall have been made therefor, and such appropriation, when made, shall be expended under the direction of the Chief Engineer of the army.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That hereafter no contract shall be entered into for the erection, repair, or furnishing of any public building, or for any public improvement whatever, which shall bind the government to pay a larger sum of money than the amount in the treasury appropriated for the specific purpose. And if any officer of the government shall knowingly contract for the erection, repair, or furnishing of any public building, or for any public improvement which shall bind the government to pay a larger amount than the specific sum appropriated for such purpose, such officer shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof by a court of competent jurisdiction, shall be punished by imprisonment not less than six months nor more than two years, and shall pay a fine of two thousand dollars.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That all laws making an appropriation for the payment of the salaries of the solicitor, assistant solicitor, and deputy solicitor of the Court of Claims, and of the assistant attorney-general, for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, be, and the same are hereby repealed; and that there be, and hereby is, appropriated, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the salaries of two assistant attorneys general, one clerk, and two clerks of class four for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, twelve thousand four hundred dollars.

Approved, July 25, 1868.

[PUBLIC—No. 86.]

AN ACT for the relief of the loyal Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to adopt and ratify the compromise and agreements entered into and executed on the twentieth and twenty-first of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, between the legally authorized representatives of the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations of Indians, and the legally authorized representative of the loyal Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians, claimants under the forty-ninth article of the treaty of April twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, between the United States and the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians, as a full and final settlement of all claims under the aforesaid article of said treaty. And the amount as stipulated in the aforesaid agreements to be paid to the loyal Choctaw and Chickasaw claimants, viz: The Choctaw claimants the sum of one hundred and nine thousand seven hundred and forty-two dollars and eight cents, and to the Chickasaw claimants the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars shall be paid by the Secretary of the Interior to said claimants, out of any moneys in the treasury of the United States belonging to, or held in trust for, said nations of Indians; but, in case there is not a sufficient amount of money in the treasury of the United States belonging to, or held in trust for, said nations of Indians to discharge their respective obligations to the loyal Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians, (claimants,) or in case the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations of Indians shall request it, then the Secretary of the Interior is authorized and directed to sell such bonds or other securities held in trust by the United States for the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations of Indians as may be necessary to discharge their respective obligations to the aforesaid loyal Choctaw and Chickasaw claimants, as stipulated in the aforesaid compromise and agreements: Provided, That no bonds or securities shall be sold for less than par; And provided further, That no payments shall be made nor bonds delivered under the provisions of this act except in every case to the person actually entitled in his own right to receive the same: nor shall any contract or power of attorney relating to the same be regarded or held as of any validity unless signed and executed after the passage of this act; And provided also, That the bonds of the State of Indiana held by the United States shall not be sold under the provisions of this act.

Approved July 25, 1868.

[PUBLIC—No. 87.]

AN ACT to provide a temporary government for the Territory of Wyoming.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all that part of the United States described as follows: Commencing at the intersection of the twenty-seventh meridian of longitude west from Washington with the forty-fifth degree of north latitude, and running thence west to the thirty-fourth meridian of west longitude, thence south to the forty-first degree of north latitude, thence east to the twenty-seventh meridian of west longitude, and thence north to the place of beginning, be, and the same is hereby, organized into a temporary government by the name of the Territory of Wyoming: Provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed to impair the rights of person or property now pertaining to the Indians in said Territory, so long as such rights shall remain unextinguished by treaty between the United States and such Indians: Provided further, That nothing in this act contained shall be construed to inhibit the Government of the United States from dividing said Territory into two or more Territories, in such manner and at such times as Congress shall deem convenient and proper, or from attaching any portion thereof to any other Territory or State.

SECTION 2. And be it further enacted, That the executive power and authority in and over said Territory of Wyoming shall be vested in a governor, who shall hold his office for four years, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed by the President of the United States, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The governor shall reside within said Territory, shall be commander-in-chief of the militia thereof, shall perform the duties and receive the emoluments of superintendent of Indian affairs, and shall approve all laws passed by the legislative assembly before they shall take effect, unless the same shall pass by a two-thirds vote, as provided in section six of this act; he may grant pardons for offenses against the laws of said Territory, and reprieves for offenses against the laws of the United States, until the decision of the President can be made known thereon; he shall commission all officers who shall be appointed to office under the laws of said Territory, and shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That there shall be a secretary of said Territory, who shall reside therein and hold his office for four years unless sooner removed by the President of the United States, with the consent of the Senate; he shall record and preserve all the laws and the proceedings of the legislative assembly hereinafter constituted, and all acts and proceedings of the governor in his executive department; he shall transmit one copy of the laws and one copy of the executive proceedings on or before the first day of December in each year to the President of the United States, and, at the same time, two copies of the laws to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate for the use of Congress; and in case of the death, removal, resignation, or other necessary absence of the governor from the Territory, the secretary shall have, and he is hereby authorized and required to execute and perform, all the powers and duties of the governor during such vacancy or absence, or until another governor shall be appointed to fill such vacancy.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the legislative power and authority of said Territory shall be vested in the governor and legislative assembly. The legislative assembly shall consist of a council and house of representatives. The council shall consist of nine members, which may be increased to thirteen, having the qualifications of voters as hereinafter prescribed, whose term of service shall continue two years. The house of representatives shall consist of thirteen members, which may be increased to twenty-seven, possessing the same qualifications as prescribed for members of the council, and whose term of service shall continue one year. An apportionment shall be made by the governor as nearly equal as practicable among the several counties or districts for the election of the council and house of representatives, giving to each section of the Territory representation in the ratio of their population, (excepting Indians not taxed,) as nearly as may be, and the members of the council and house of representatives shall reside in and be inhabitants of the districts for which they may be elected, respectively. Previous to the first election the governor shall cause a census or enumeration of the inhabitants of the several counties or districts of the Territory to be taken, and the first election shall be held at such times and places, and be conducted in such manner as the governor shall appoint and direct, and he shall at the same time declare the number of the members of the council and house of representatives to which each of the counties or districts shall be entitled under this act. The number of persons authorized to be elected, having the highest number of votes in each of said council districts for members of the council, shall be declared by the governor duly elected to the council; and the person or persons authorized to be elected having the greatest number of votes for the house of representatives equal to the number to which each county or district shall be entitled, shall be declared by the governor to be elected members of the house of representatives: Provided, That in case of a tie between two or more persons voted for, the governor shall order a new election, to supply the vacancy made by such tie vote. And the persons thus elected to the legislative assembly shall meet at such place and on such day as the governor shall appoint; but thereafter the time, place, and manner of holding and conducting elections by the people, and the apportioning the representation in the several counties or districts to the council and house of representatives, according to the population, shall be prescribed by law, as well as the day of the commencement of the regular sessions of the legislative assembly: Provided, That no one session shall exceed the term of forty days, except the first, which may be extended to sixty days, but no longer.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That every male citizen of the United States above the age of twenty-one years, and [including] persons who shall have declared their intention to become citizens of the United States, who shall have been a resident of the said Territory at the time of the passage of this act, shall be entitled to vote at the first and all subsequent elections in the Territory, and shall be eligible to hold any office in said Territory. And the legislative assembly shall not at any time abridge the right of suffrage, or to hold office, on account of the race, color, or previous condition of servitude of any resident of the Territory: Provided, That the right of suffrage and of holding office shall be exercised only by citizens of the United States, and those who shall have declared on oath before a competent court of record their intention to become such, and shall have taken an oath to support the Constitution and Government of the United States.

SEC 6. And be it further enacted, [That] the legislative power of the Territory shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation consistent with the Constitution of the United States and the provisions of this act; but no law shall be passed interfering with the primary disposal of the soil; no tax shall be imposed upon the property of the United States, nor shall the lands or other property of non residents be taxed higher than the lands or other property of residents; nor shall any law be passed impairing the rights of private property, nor shall any unequal discrimination be made in taxing different kinds of property; but all property subject to taxation shall be taxed in proportion to its value. Every bill which shall have passed the council and the house of representatives of said Territory shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the Territory. If he approves, he shall sign it; but if not, he shall return it with his objections to the house in which it originated, who shall enter the objections at large upon their journal and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by two thirds of that house it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, to be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within five days (Sunday excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the assembly, by adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That all township, district, and county officers not herein otherwise provided for, shall be appointed or elected, as the case may be, in such manner as shall be provided by the governor and legislative assembly of the Territory. The governor shall nominate and by and with the consent of the council appoint all officers not herein otherwise provided for, and in the first instance the governor alone may appoint all such officers, who shall hold their offices until the end of the first session of the legislative assembly; and he shall lay off the necessary districts for members of the council and house of representatives, and all other officers.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That no member of the legislative assembly shall hold or be appointed to any office which shall have been created, or the salary or emoluments of which shall have been increased while he was a member, during the term for which he was elected, and for one year after the expiration of such term; and no person holding a commission or appointment under the United States, except postmasters, shall be a member of the legislative assembly, or shall hold any office under the government of said Territory.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the judicial power of said Territory shall be vested in a supreme court, district courts, probate courts, and justices of the peace. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum, and who shall hold a term at the seat of government of said Territory annually, and they shall hold their offices for four years, unless sooner removed by the President with the consent of the Senate of the United States. The said Territory shall be divided into three judicial districts, and a district court shall be held in each of said districts by one of the justices of the supreme court, at such time and place as may be prescribed by law; and said judges shall after their appointments, respectively, reside in the districts which shall be assigned them. The jurisdiction of the several courts herein provided for, both appellate and original, and that of the probate courts, and of the justices of the peace, shall be as limited by law; Provided, That justices of the peace shall not have jurisdiction of any matter in controversy when the title or boundaries of land may be in dispute, or where the debt or sum claimed shall exceed one hundred dollars; and the said supreme and district courts, respectively, shall possess chancery as well as common law jurisdiction and authority for redress of all wrongs committed against the Constitution or laws of the United States or of the Territory affecting persons or property. Each district court, or the judge thereof, shall appoint its clerk, who shall also be the register in chancery, and shall keep his office where the court may be held. Writs of error, bills of exception, and appeals shall be allowed in all cases from the final decisions of said district courts to the supreme court under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, but in no case removed to the supreme court shall trial by jury be allowed in said court. The supreme court, or the justices thereof, shall appoint its own clerks, and every clerk shall hold his office at the pleasure of the court for which he shall have been appointed. Writs of error and appeal from the final decision of said supreme court shall be allowed and may be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, in the same manner and under the same regulations as from the circuit courts of the United States, where the value of property or the amount in controversy, to be ascertained by the oath or affirmation of either party, or other competent witness, shall exceed one thousand dollars; and each of the said district courts shall have and exercise the same jurisdiction in all cases arising under the Constitution and laws of the United States, as is vested in the circuit and district courts of the United States; and the said supreme and district courts of said Territory, and the respective judges thereof, shall and may grant writs of habeas corpus in all cases in which the same are grantable by the judges of the United States in the District of Columbia; and the first six days of every term of said courts, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, shall be appropriated to the trial of causes arising under the said Constitution and laws; and writs of error and appeals in all such cases shall be made to the supreme court of said Territory, the same as in other cases. The said clerk shall receive in all such cases the same fees which the clerks of the district courts of Dakota Territory now receive for similar services.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That there shall be appointed an attorney for said Territory, who shall continue in office for four years, unless sooner removed by the President with the consent of the Senate, and who shall receive the same fees and salary as is now received by the attorney of the United States for the Territory of Dacotah [Dakota.] There shall also be a marshal for the Territory appointed, who shall hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the President with the consent of the Senate, and who shall execute all processes issuing from the said courts when exercising their jurisdiction as circuit and district courts of the United States; he shall perform the duties, be subject to the same regulations and penalties, and be entitled to the same fees as the marshal of the district court of the United States for the present Territory of Dakota, and shall, in addition, be paid two hundred dollars annually as a compensation for extra services.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That the governor, secretary, chief justice, and associate justices, attorney, and marshal, shall be nominated, and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appointed by the President of the United States. The governor and secretary to be appointed as aforesaid shall, before they act as such, respectively, take an oath or affirmation before the district judge, or some justice of the peace in the limits of said Territory duly authorized to administer oaths and affirmations by the laws now in force therein, or before the Chief Justice, or some associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, to support the Constitution of the United States, and faithfully to discharge the duties of their respective offices, which said oaths, when so taken, shall be certified by the person by whom the same shall have been taken; and such certificates shall be received and recorded by the secretary among the executive proceedings, and the chief justice, and associate justices, and all other civil officers in said Territory, before they act as such, shall take a like oath or affirmation before the said governor or secretary, or some judge or justice of the peace of the Territory, who may be duly commissioned and qualified, which said oath or affirmation shall be certified and transmitted by the person taking the same to the secretary to be recorded by him as aforesaid, and afterwards the like oath or affirmation shall be taken, certified, and recorded in such manner and form as may be prescribed by law. The governor shall receive an annual salary of two thousand dollars as governor, and one thousand dollars as superintendent of Indian affairs; the chief justice and associate justices shall each receive an annual salary of twenty five hundred dollars, and the secretary shall receive an annual salary of eighteen hundred dollars. The said salaries shall be payable quarter yearly at the treasury of the United States. The members of the legislative assembly shall be entitled to receive four dollars each per day during their attendance at the session thereof, and three dollars for every twenty miles' travel in going to and returning from the said sessions, estimating the distance by the nearest traveled route. There shall be appropriated annually the sum of one thousand dollars, to be expended by the governor to defray the contingent expenses of the Territory. There shall also be appropriated annually a sufficient sum, to be expended by the secretary, and upon an estimate to be made by the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, to defray the expenses of the legislative assembly, the printing of the laws, and other incidental expenses; and the secretary of the Territory shall annually account to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States for the manner in which the aforesaid sum shall have been expended.

SEC. 12 And be it further enacted, That the legislative assembly of the Territory of Wyoming shall hold its first session at such time and place in said Territory as the governor thereof shall appoint and direct; and at said first session, or as soon thereafter as they shall deem expedient, the governor and legislative assembly shall proceed to locate and establish the seat of government for said Territory at such place as they may deem eligible; which place, however, shall thereafter be subject to be changed by the said governor and legislative assembly.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted, That a delegate to the House of Representatives of the United States, to serve during each Congress of the United States, may be elected by the voters qualified to elect members of the legislative assembly, who shall be entitled to the same rights and privileges as are exercised and enjoyed by the delegates from the several other Territories of the United States in the said House of Representatives. The first election shall be held at such time and places, and be conducted in such manner, as the governor shall appoint and direct; and at all subsequent elections the time, place and manner of holding elections shall be prescribed by law. The person having the greatest number of votes of the qualified electors as hereinbefore provided, shall be declared by the governor elected, and a certificate thereof shall be accordingly given.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in each township in said Territory shall be, and the same are hereby reserved for the purpose of being applied to public schools in the State or States hereafter to be erected out of the same.

SEC. 15 And be it further enacted, That temporarily and until otherwise provided by law the governor of said Territory may define the judicial districts of said Territory, and assign the judges who may be appointed for the said Territory to the several districts, and also appoint the times and places for holding courts in the several counties or subdivisions in each of said judicial districts by proclamation to be issued by him; but the legislative assembly, at their first or any subsequent session, may organize, alter, or modify such judicial districts and assign the judges and alter the times and places of holding the courts as to them shall seem proper and convenient.

SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That the Constitution and all laws of the United States which are not locally inapplicable, shall have the same force and effect within the said Territory of Wyoming as elsewhere within the United States.

SEC. 17. And be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after the time when the executive and judicial officers herein provided for shall have been duly appointed and qualified: Provided, That all general territorial laws of the Territory of Dakota in force in any portion of said Territory of Wyoming at the time this act shall take effect shall be and continue in force throughout the said Territory until repealed by the legislative authority of said Territory, except such laws as relate to the possession or occupation of mines or mining claims.

AN ACT to incorporate the National Life Insurance Company of the United States of America.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That John D. Defrees, William E. Chandler, Samuel Wilkeson, E. A. Rollins, Nathan G. Starkweather, John A. Wills, Frank Turk, Adam S. Pratt, Henry C. Swain, and all the other persons who shall hereafter become stockholders in the company incorporated, are hereby created a body politic and corporate, by the name and style of the National Life Insurance Company of the United States of America, for the purpose of carrying on the business of insurance on lives, and to make all and every insurance appertaining thereto, or connected therewith; and to grant, purchase, and dispose of annuities in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, and elsewhere, and shall and may have perpetual succession, and shall be capable in law of contracting and being contracted with, and of suing and being sued, pleading and being impleaded in the district and circuit court of the United States, either in law or equity in this District or elsewhere, and they and their successors shall and may have a common seal, and may change the same at their will and pleasure, and may also from time to time, at any meeting of their directors, by a majority of votes, as hereinafter provided, ordain, establish and put in execution such by-laws, ordinances, rules, and regulations, the same not being contrary to this act or the laws of the United States, as may appear to them necessary or expedient for the management of said corporation, its business and affairs, and may from time to time alter or repeal the same or any of them.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the capital stock of said company shall consist of ten thousand shares of stock of the value of one hundred dollars each, being one million of dollars, with the privilege to increase the same from time to time by a vote of the stockholders at any annual or special meeting, and the corporators, or a majority of them named in the first section of this act, shall have power to receive subscriptions to the stock of the company, at such time and places as they may deem expedient, and when the whole amount of stock shall have been subscribed, and twenty per centum thereon shall have been paid in, (which payment shall be required at the time of subscribing,) the stockholders shall elect twelve directors to serve until the next annual election, or until their successors shall be duly elected and qualified, and the directors so elected of said company, when it shall have been organized, may, and they are hereby authorized and empowered to have and to exercise in the name and behalf of the company, all the rights and privileges which are intended to be hereby given. Upon commencing active business, the directors shall have power to require payment of the amount remaining unpaid on the stock of the company, at such time and in such proportions as they may think proper: Provided, That the whole amount shall be required within two months from the time of commencing active business, and under the penalty, in case of non-payment as required, of forfeiture to the company of such stock and all previous payments thereon; and should the capital stock at any time be increased, the stockholders at the time of such increase shall be entitled to a pro rata share of such increase upon the payment of the par value of the same.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That any certificate or obligation issued by the company, agreeing to purchase one of its policies for a fixed sum during a stated period, when accompanied by the policy duly assigned or transferred, shall be negotiable, and shall convey title to the policy to the party to whom it may be so assigned or transferred.

SEC. 4 And be it further enacted, That any policy taken out in favor of a wife, child, relative or other person having a beneficial interest in the life of the insured, shall not be liable to seizure by the creditors of the person so insured: Provided, That the policy does not exceed the sum of ten thousand dollars.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for the said corporation to purchase, hold and convey real estate as follows:

First. Such as shall be requisite for its immediate accommodation in the convenient transaction of its business; or,

Second. Such as shall have been mortgaged to it in good faith by way of security for loans previously contracted for moneys due, or,

Third. Such as shall have been conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted, in the course of its dealings; or,

Fourth. Such as shall have been purchased at sales upon judgments, decrees, or mortgages obtained or made for such debts.

The said corporation shall not purchase, hold, or convey real estate in any other case or for any other purpose; and all such real estate as shall not be necessary for the accommodation of said company, in the convenient transaction of its business, shall be sold and disposed of within six years after the said company shall have acquired title to the same; and it shall not be lawful for the said company to hold such real estate for a longer period than that above mentioned

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That the board of directors shall have power to invest the capital stock and accumulated profits or surplus funds of the said company in such securities and in such manner as they may elect, but the stockholders of this company shall not be liable for any loss, damage, or responsibility beyond the amount of stock subscribed by them respectively, and any profits accruing therefrom and undivided, and the premium reserve, or reinsurance fund, shall be invested in, or loaned upon, the following securities, and no other:

First. The real estate, as herein described.

Second. Bonds and mortgages on unincumbered real estate, worth, in each case, at least double the amount loaned.

Third Stocks of the United States of America.

Fourth. Stocks of the several States, and of incorporated cities therein.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That the directors shall be elected annually by the stockholders on the second Tuesday of March, and they shall elect from their number, at the first meeting of the board after their election, a president and a vice-president, and shall have power to appoint a cashier and a secretary, and such other officers, clerks, and agents as the business of the company may require, and to fill vacancies occasioned by death or resignation in said board. All elections for directors shall be by ballot, and every stockholder shall be entitled to one vote for each share of the stock held by him, but no person shall be eligible as director who is not a stockholder to the amount of twenty shares.

SEC 8. And be it further enacted, That ten days' notice shall be given by publication in two papers, published in the city of Washington, of the time and place of the annual election, which election shall be conducted by three stockholders, who shall be appointed for that purpose by the board of directors at their previous stated meeting, one of whom shall act as judge, and the other two as inspectors.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the directors shall have power to declare such dividends of the profits of the company as they may deem proper: Provided, That no dividend shall be declared when the capital stock would be impaired thereby.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That the office of the company shall be located in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, and said company may establish branches or agencies elsewhere, subject to the laws of the States respectively, in which they may be established.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That Congress may at any time alter or amend this act of incorporation.

Approved, July 25, 1868.

[PUBLIC—No. 92.]

AN ACT to confirm the title to certain lands in the State of Nebraska.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in all cases in which the Commissioner of the General Land Office, or the Secretary of the Interior, has finally decided in favor of pre-emption settlers or the locators of Indian or half-breed scrip, and issued patents to them for lands within the corporate limits of the city of Omaha, in the State of Nebraska, the right and title of the patentee or patentees shall not be defeated or impaired because such land was within the said corporate limits, but if good in every other respect the title shall be good and valid notwithstanding such lands may have been within the said corporate limits, and notwithstanding the entry thereof, by any pre-emptor, or locator of Indian or half-breed scrip, was forbidden by the tenth section of the act of September fourth, eighteen hundred and forty one, because so within said limits: Provided, That the following tracts of lands, to wit: the north half of the northwest quarter of section fifteen; the west half of the southwest quarter of section ten; the east half of the southeast quarter, and the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section nine: township fifteen north of range thirteen, east of the sixth principal meridian, are hereby excepted from the operation of this act.

Approved, July 25, 1868.

Approved, July 25, 1868.

[PUBLIC—No. 95.]

AN ACT providing for the sale of the arsenal grounds at Saint Louis and Liberty, Missouri, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of War be, and is hereby authorized to sell, at such time and in such manner as he may deem most advantageous to the interests of the government, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, the following military reservations and public property, namely:

The ground now occupied by the Saint Louis arsenal, in the city of Saint Louis, Missouri, except the westernmost six acres thereof, and that occupied by the United States arsenal situated at Liberty, Missouri, together with such buildings, machinery, and other property appertaining thereto as cannot be advantageously employed in the construction or improvement of other arsenals or military posts.

SEC. 2 And be it further enacted, That the ground occupied by the Saint Louis arsenal, except the westernmost six acres thereof, shall be divided into blocks and lots of convenient size for building purposes, with public streets, conforming, as near as may be without detriment to the interest of the government in the sale, to the public streets of the city of Saint Louis adjoining said grounds; a plat of this division, made in accordance with the laws of the State of Missouri, shall be filed with the proper officer in the city of Saint Louis; and the said lots shall be sold separately, at public auction, to the highest bidder, after thirty days' notice by advertisement in at least three daily papers in the city of Saint Louis; payment to be made one-third in cash, the remainder in one and two years, with six per cent. interest per annum, secured by deed of trust on the lots sold. The stone wall surrounding said arsenal shall be sold in sections not exceeding one hundred feet in length.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the westernmost six acres of the tract of ground occupied by the said Saint Louis arsenal, is hereby granted to the city of Saint Louis, to be by it held as a public ground forever, open to the use of the public as a place of public resort, and for no other use whatever, and without any power in said city to make any disposition of the same, or any part thereof, for any private use whatever; Provided, however, That this grant is upon the express condition that the said city or the association formed and now existing in the State of Missouri for the purpose of erecting a monument to the memory of the late Brigadier General Nathaniel Lyon, shall, within three years after the passage of this act, complete the erection upon the said six acres of such a monument, upon a plan and of a character to be approved by the President of the United States; in default whereof this grant shall be null and void

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the grounds occupied by the Liberty arsenal shall be sold at public auction, after due notice by public advertisement of the time and place of said sale, in such parcels, blocks and lots as may be deemed most advantageous to the interest of the government, by the Secretary of War, upon the terms and conditions as to payment specified in the previous section.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That all proceeds of the sale of all property provided for in this act shall be paid into the treasury of the United States: Provided, That the machinery, ordnance stores, and arms that the government desires to reserve from sale, shall be stored at any arsenal now established or to be established by law.

Approved, July 25, 1868.

[PUBLIC—No. 98.]

AN ACT to further amend the postal laws.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That when any writer of a letter, on which the postage is prepaid, shall endorse in writing or in print upon the outside thereof his name and address, the same, after remaining uncalled for at the postoffice to which it is directed thirty days, or the time the writer may direct, shall be returned to the said writer without additional postage, whether a specific request for such return be endorsed on the letter or not.

SEC. 2 And be it further enacted, That all persons who receive money orders shall be required to pay therefor the following charges or fees, viz: For one dollar or any sum not exceeding twenty dollars, a fee of ten cents shall be charged and exacted by the postmaster giving said order; for all orders exceeding twenty dollars and not exceeding thirty dollars, the charge shall be fifteen cents; for all orders exceeding thirty dollars and not exceeding forty dollars, the fee shall be twenty cents; for all orders exceeding forty dollars and not exceeding fifty dollars, the fee shall be twenty five cents; and furthermore that the compensation of deputy postmasters for the payment of money orders is hereby increased from one-eighth to one fourth of one per centum on the gross amount of orders paid at their respective offices, and that nothing contained in any act shall be so construed as to deprive postmasters at money order offices of the compensation for transacting the money order business fixed by the act of May seventeenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and modified as stated in this section: Provided always, That the amount of such annual compensation, together with the postmaster's salary, shall not in any case exceed the salary established by law for postmasters of the first-class.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That section thirty-five of the act of March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, shall be so construed as to permit weekly newspapers, properly folded and addressed, when sent to regular subscribers in the county where printed and published, to be delivered free of postage, when deposited at the office nearest to the office of publication; but nothing in this act shall be so construed as to require carriers to distribute said papers, unless postage is paid upon them at the rate of five cents per quarter, and such postage must be prepaid for a term of not less than one quarter or more than one year, either at the office of mailing or of delivery, at the option of the subscriber.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That in case of the loss of a money order, a duplicate thereof shall be issued by the superintendent of the money order office without charge, on the application of the remitter or payee of the original: Provided, That the applicant furnish a certificate from the postmaster on whom the same was drawn that it had not been and would not thereafter be paid, and a similar certificate from the postmaster by whom it was issued that it had not been and would not be repaid to the purchaser: and a second fee shall not be charged for a duplicate money order issued to replace an order that has been rendered invalid because of non-presentation for payment within one year after its date, or because of illegal endorsements.

SEC. 5 And be it further enacted, That if any person shall falsely forge or counterfeit, or willingly aid, assist, or abet in falsely forging or counterfeiting, or shall procure, directly or indirectly, to be falsely forged or counterfeited any postal money order, or any material signature or endorsement to any postal money order issued by the Postoffice Department, or any of its agents, for the purpose and with the intent of obtaining or receiving, directly or indirectly, or of procuring or enabling others to obtain or receive, directly or indirectly, any sum or sums of money and thereby to defraud either the United States or any person of such sum or sums of money, or any part thereof, or shall pass, utter, or publish or attempt to pass, utter, or publish as true, any such forged or counterfeited postal money order with intent to defraud either the United States or any person of any sum or sums of money, knowing such postal order, or any signature or endorsement thereon, to be so falsely forged or counterfeited, every such person shall be deemed guilty of felony, and being thereof duly convicted shall be sentenced to be imprisoned and kept at hard labor for a period of not less than two years nor more than five years, and to be fined in a sum not exceeding five thousand dollars.

SEC. 6 And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, authorized to appoint and employ on board of each of the mail steamers plying on the route between San Francisco, Japan, and China, and between San Francisco and Honolulu, (Hawaiian islands,) a government agent in charge of the United States mails, at an annual salary of two thousand dollars each per annum

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, authorized to establish in connection with the United States mail steamship service to Japan and China, a general postal agency at Shanghai, China, with such branch agencies at other ports in China and Japan as shall, in his judgment, be necessary for the prompt and efficient management of the postal service in these countries; and to pay the postal agents so appointed and employed a reasonable compensation for their services, in addition to the necessary expenses for rent, furniture, clerk hire, and so forth, to be allowed at each agency for conducting the postal business, a report on which shall be embraced in the annual report of the Postmaster General.

SEC. 8 And be it further enacted, That for the more efficient management of the increased postal business connected with the foreign mail service, the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, authorized to appoint in his department a superintendent of foreign mails at an annual salary of three thousand dollars, and also three additional clerks for that branch of the postal service, to wit: one of class four, and two of class three; and that the salary of the superintendent of the money order system shall be three thousand dollars per annum.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, authorized to appoint in the office of the Third Assistant Postmaster General, a chief of division for the dead letter office at a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars per annum.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That if any person employed in any department of the postoffice establishment of the United States shall, wilfully and knowingly, use or cause to be used in prepayment of postage any postage stamp or stamped envelope issued or which may hereafter be issued by authority of any act of Congress or of the Postmaster General which has already been once used for a like purpose, or shall remove or attempt to remove the canceling or defacing marks from any such postage stamp or stamped envelope with intent to use or cause the use of the same a second time, or to sell or offer to sell the same, or shall remove from letters or other mail matter deposited in or received at a post-office the stamps attached to the same in payment of postage, with intent to use the same a second time for a like purpose, or to sell or offer to sell the same, every such offender shall, upon conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of felony, and shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than three years.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That if any person not employed in any department of the postoffice establishment of the United States shall commit any of the offenses described in the preceding section of this act, every such person shall, on conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than one year, or by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, for each such offense, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That section nine of an act of Congress, approved July one, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, authorizing the sales of postage stamps and stamped envelopes at a discount, be so modified that the quantities of each sold at any one time to the same party shall not exceed one hundred dollars in value; and that such sales shall be restricted to certain designated agents who will agree to sell again without discount under rules to be fixed by the Postmaster General.

SEC 13. And be it further enacted, That it shall not be lawful to deposit in a post office, to be sent by mail, any letters or circulars concerning lotteries, so-called gift concerts, or other similar enterprises offering prizes of any kind on any pretext whatever.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby authorized and empowered to establish a blank agency for the Post Office Department, to be located in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, and to appoint one superintendent at an annual salary of eighteen hundred dollars, one assistant superintendent at an annual salary of sixteen hundred dollars, and three other assistants at an annual salary of one thousand dollars each, and two laborers at an annual salary of seven hundred and twenty dollars each; and all other blank agencies are hereby abolished.

SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby authorized to conclude arrangements with the post departments of foreign countries, with which international postal conventions have been or shall be concluded, for the exchange of small sums of money by means of postal orders, the maximum amount of which shall not exceed that fixed by law for domestic money orders, at such rates of exchange and under such rules and regulations as he may deem expedient; and the expense incurred in establishing and conducting such system of exchange may be paid out of the proceeds of money order business.

SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That the proviso in section three of the act approved March three, eighteen hundred and twenty five, entitled "An act to reduce into one the several acts establishing and regulating the Post Office Department," be, and the same is hereby repealed: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall repeal any of the provisions of the act approved July eleven, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, entitled "An act in relation to the Post Office Department."

SEC. 17. And be it further enacted, That if on the final settlement of the account of any postmaster it shall appear that such postmaster is indebted to the United States, and suit shall not be instituted within three years after the close of such account, then, and in that case, the sureties on the bond of such postmaster shall not be liable to the United States.

SEC. 18. And be it further enacted, That copies of the quarterly returns of postmasters, and of any of the papers pertaining to the accounts in the office of the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department, certified by him under his seal of office, shall be admitted as evidence in the courts of the United States in criminal prosecutions, in the same manner as the same are now admitted in civil cases, as provided in section fifteen of an act entitled "An act to change the organization of the Post Office Department, and to provide more effectually for the settlement of the accounts thereof," approved July second, eighteen hundred and thirty-six.

SEC. 19. And be it further enacted, That in all suits for the recovery of balances due from postmasters, a copy, duly certified under the seal of the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department, of the statement of any postmaster, special agent, or other person employed by the Postmaster General or the said Auditor for that purpose, that he has mailed a letter to such delinquent postmaster at the post office where the indebtedness accrued, or at his last and usual place of abode, and that a sufficient time has elapsed in the ordinary course of mail to have reached its destination, and has not received payment of such balance within the time designated in his instructions, shall be received as sufficient evidence in the courts of the United States or other courts that a demand has been made on such delinquent postmaster: Provided, nevertheless, That when the account of a late postmaster has been once adjusted and settled, and a demand made for the balance appearing to be due, and afterward allowances shall be made or credits entered on the account, it shall not be necessary to make a further demand for the new balance found to be due.

SEC. 20. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General is hereby authorized to prescribe a uniform dress to be worn by the letter carriers at the several free delivery offices, and that any person not connected with this branch of the service who shall wear the uniform that may be prescribed in accordance herewith, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and being convicted thereof, shall, for every such offense, be fined not more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court before which such conviction shall be had.

Approved July 27, 1868.

MARRIED:

MYERS—COX—By the Rev. M. B. Avery, at Turkey Creek, Harrison county, August 30, 1868, JOSEPH MYERS, of Handsboro, and LAURA COX, of Mississippi City.

Realizing the truth of Scripture, "It is not good for man to be alone" in the wide, wide world, Joe has gracefully yielded to the charms of the gentle Laura, and the twain have become one. Many their life be a long and happy one.

DIED:

SMITH.—In Oswego, New York, on Friday evening, August 21 1868, CLARA BICKFORD, wife of Colonel W. D. Smith,

"She has outsoared the shadow of our night;
Sorrow and pain and death,
And that unrest which man miscalls delight,
Shall touch her not, nor torture her again."

EXTRACT FROM THE "LIFE OF WASHINGTON IRVING,"

By his nephew, Pierre M. Irving, Vol. IV., page 272:

"The doctor prescribed, as an experiment—what had been suggested by Dr. (O. W.) Holmes on his late visit—'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma,' a teaspoonful in a wine-glass of water, to be taken every four hours. A good night was the result."

In no case of purely Asthmatic character has it failed to give prompt relief, and in many cases a permanent cure has been effected. No danger need be apprehended from its use. An infant may take it with perfect safety. [See circular.]

AMERICAN MUSICAL CLASS BOOK,

Designed for Female Colleges, Institutes, Seminaries, and Normal and High Schools. Containing Elementary Instructions, Vocal Exercises and Solfeggios, and a valuable Collection of Duets, Trios, and Concerted Pieces.

By T. Bissell—Price 75c.

Among the numerous works of the kind this cannot fail of a prominence, since its peculiar features are such as will commend it at once to the patronage of those for whom it is chiefly intended. Its rudimental lessons proceed with a regularity of precision that cannot fail to fix permanently on the mind of the pupil the essentials of success in future studies. The exercises are in a form to attract the attention, and the selection of music is one of the best, if not the superior of all similar collections. Principals of Educational Institutions, Music Teachers, and others interested in books of this class, will find it advantageous to examine this volume. THE GERMANIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, established in 1860, and based upon the most approved principles of Life Insurance security, presents its claims for consideration, believing that its solid foundation already secured by the faithful and efficient management of its officers and Board of Directors will give it the preference above all other similar institutions.

It is purely Mutual, as the net profits are distributed among the parties insured, the interest of the capital stock being only five per cent according to its charter.

It assumed the system of cash payments at the commencement of its existence, and maintained it faithfully until now, and promises the same for the future, thereby securing to policy holders the full amount for which they are insured. The advantage of this system over the half cash and half note system is patent to every careful observer, but will be more fully illustrated by the following statement and table:

If a person of thirty years of age insures his life for the amount of $1000 in one of the credit companies, and pays a premium of $28 30 per year, with a note for half of the premium, then by means of this note and interests thereon the amount will become less and less in the following proportions:

| | |
|---|---|
| After 10 years the $1000 will amount to | $887 44 |
| After 15 years the $1000 will amount to | 795 28 |
| After 20 years the $1000 will amount to | 666 02 |
| After 25 years the $1000 will amount to | 484 73 |
| After 30 years the $1000 will amount to | 250 47 |
| After 33 years the $1000 will amount to | 32 53 |
| After 34 years the $1000 will amount to | Nothing. |

So that after a lapse of 34 years the whole amount will be eaten up, notwithstanding the parties insured paid their money in good faith.

The large dividend of 40 per cent declared last January is evidence of the care and success with which the Managers have conducted the enlarged and rapidly increasing interests of the Company, and vouches for its future brilliant and permanent prosperity.

Parties contemplating an assurance on their lives will do well to examine the status of this Company, every facility for which will be given by the ### LITTLE EYES AND LITTLE HANDS.

Little eyes,
Like the shining blue above,
Full of light and love,
Full of glee;
Telling of a life within,
In a world of sin,
Born to you and me!
Will they see the golden way
Leading up to-day?
And the God to whom we pray
In the skies?

Little hands,
In the long and weary strife
Of a toiling life,
Will they win?
Will they early learn to bless?
Rescue from distress?
Will they fear to sin?
For the true, the good the right,
Will they bravely fight?
Strew along the paths of night
Golden sands?

Little feet,
Entered on a thorny way;
Will it lead to day
And renown?
As its rugged steeps are trod,
Will they climb to God
And a seraph's crown?
Where the loving Saviour goes,
Finding friends or foes,
Will they follow till life's close,
As is meet?

Little eyes,
May they wear an angel's guise
In the upper skies!
Little hands,
May they, doing God's commands,
Rest in fairer lands!
May these little feet
Thee, dear Saviour, run to meet
At the mercy seat;
And with joys for sins forgiven,
Press to heaven!

Sermon by Rev. Daniel Gregory.

Preached in the Methodist Episcopal Colored Church at Galveston, Texas, September 6, 1868.

My discourse, beloved hearers, is founded upon the language of Paul to Timothy in the second letter to Timothy, fourth chapter and first and second verses: "Preach the word."

I feel very weak this evening, my brethren and sisters, in a spiritual as well as a physical sense, and as I see my brother preparing to report my discourse, I feel more than ever the need of asking your prayers in my behalf, that I may call in my wandering thoughts and be able to preach Christ and Him crucified, this evening, to this dying congregation. This is the last discourse I shall preach to you for some time, as I am going away. And it may be the last I shall ever preach to you, and I pray God that I my do my duty at this time.

This text occurred to me as one of vast importance, and one that it was needful you should be enlightened upon, as it is full of truth and wisdom, and deserves the attention of every professing Christian. It is hardly possible for me, in my ignorant way, to explain it as it should be; but God, in His infinite wisdom, has laid the responsibility of this great work of preaching Christ upon your weak and unprofitable servant, so that I am compelled to do the best I can. "I charge thee, therefore, preach the word."

Now, the first thing for us to consider is what Paul means by telling his son Timothy to preach the word. I do not know whether he told this to him face to face, or whether he sent it to him in a letter. But it matters not: it is all the same; it is his advice to his son, and we presume the reason why he gave him this advice was because he knew how crafty Satan was, how natural it was for men to believe a lie, and everything else but the word or the truth, how natural it was for men to become vain in their imaginations and wise in their own conceit, and to depart from the true teachings of God, and he wished Timothy to preach the word, not leave the truth in the dark. He had this law, the Old Testament, before him and he wanted him to take it for his guide and counsel. Paul knew the depravity of the human heart, and he wanted Timothy, his son, to be prudent in preaching the truth. He knew the danger of misinterpreting the Scriptures, and the great responsibility upon the ambassadors of Christ, and the weak though chosen vessels to bear the glad tidings to this wicked world of a Savior to save them.

I do not propose to hurry this evening, my brethren, as I do not want to go wrong, and as I have a plenty of time, and don't often tire you with long sermons, but I want to be particular in preaching to-day, as I know I shall be held responsible for what I shall say. I can assure you it is no pleasure for me to stand up before this congregation, for I feel my weakness and inability to preach, and if it was the Father's will I would shrink from this duty. I stand before you under the cross, for the hope I have of getting my pay for what I do for God, for when I go hence I expect nothing from the hand of man, but from One who is sure pay, who has a store of felicity and happiness, and in all my weakness and shortsightedness I can rejoice in the hope that when I have done His will on earth, I shall live with God.

Next. What is the word. This is what everybody does not know. I don't know as I can tell you myself, but I have some idea of what is meant. It means simply to repent, and to repent is to be sorry; sorry for your sins; sorry that you have insulted Deity; sorry that you have helped to nail Him to the cross; sorry that you have spit upon Him; that you were the cause of His leaving the courts of glory; the riches that He had with the Father, to disrobe Himself and take upon Himself humanity, suffer persecution at the hands of the wicked Jews, and to die on Calvary.

Brethren, you who are called to preach should be careful how you do it. To preach the gospel right is more than the simple discharge of his duty with the greatest minister that ever lived, and it becomes us to seek to know all we can; to search for knowledge and wisdom, and if we lack, go to God and tell Him you are ignorant: tell Him you lack wisdom, and that we come to Him for supplies, and He who "giveth liberally and upbraid thee not" will give it unto us.

Go to this book, the Bible. Who is the author of this book? God, the maker of the universe. What did he give it to us for? To enable us to understand the word, that we might read and understand that the word is the Son of God.

When His disciples go saying, "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," they mean that Christ Himself and His kingdom, is near your doors—Christ, He who for thirty and three long years, in this world, preached this same doctrine, and still they believed Him not. You have done the same thing, my hearers, and you must meet this Jesus at His judgment seat; and if you have failed to preach Christ here, and work for Him, then will He say: "I was hungry, and ye gave me no meat; thirsty, and ye gave me no drink. I was a stranger, and ye took me not in; naked, and ye clothed me not; sick and in prison, and ye visited me not." But, brethren, no good work will be forgotten. The angel, with his recording ledger, is ready to write down all your good deeds.

Preach the word. Beloved friends, I imagine the world of unsaved souls that might have been in glory to-day had Christians done their duty.

Preach the truth. No lie will answer the purpose. False preaching belongs to the devil. In order to preach you must pray—pray to God for understanding. If you can't read, talk with those who can, and who are able to give you true instruction, and tell you your duty, and take pattern from them.

Preach the word. Tell the world how the son of God suffered and died. If you can't read you are still able to tell a heap of truth.

Last year I heard men preaching who were so superstitious that they told their people that they were as old as God, that they knew as much as God, and that they helped to make this world, etc.

Now this is all stuff, and will never convert a soul—it is false and a lie. Paul knew that men would preach this false doctrine, hence he told him to be careful to preach the truth. I try to preach what I know, and when I find myself getting into deep water I turn toward the shore. Paddle near the shore, brethren, and leave the deep water to abler brethren. All of your sermons you must meet at the judgment seat of Christ.

To those who have done work for God it will be said: "I was an hungered and ye gave me meat," etc. Who are the little ones? Those who obey the word; who wag under the cross; who have been trying to do their Master's will. My brethren, you have no idea what God requires of you, nor how much you can do for him. You can do a great deal more than you now do, that's certain; and all can do something. God is grieved at your weakness and your apathy. He has taken your feet out of the mire and the clay, and placed them on a rock, and he wants you to work for him. On that rock you can never fall, and on it you are able to preach the word. Walk, my brethren, in Jesus; die in Jesus. Ah! then we shall arise in Jesus. When this world is on fire, when the sea will be called upon to give up the millions she has swallowed, in the morning of the resurrection, when the lines shall be drawn, then shall the sheep be gathered and separated from the goats. Who are the sheep? They who obey his voice and who work for God. Who are the goats? Those who obey not, and who helped to nail the Son of God to the cross.

My brethren and sisters, when the roll of God's people is called there will be no difference among the sheep, for they will all be washed, and they shall all sit around his throne. Hallelujah! There we shall sing the song of Moses and the Lamb, with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Daniel will be there; Daniel, who went up through a den of lions. The Hebrew children will be there; they went to glory through a fiery furnace; and John from the island will be there. I anticipate a glorious time when we all get there, for there will be no jarring, no strife there. There we shall wear the robe, and outshine the stars of heaven.

Brethren, preach the word, and be careful how you preach it and how you hear it, too. Young converts, you who have recently come from hell's dark doors, preach the word, and obey it, too.

Finally, my beloved, if we never meet again on earth, let me beseech you to meet me in glory. I am bound to be there, and you can never associate with me on the other side of the river of death unless you come to heaven. Then when we meet in glory we shall slip and slide over the golden streets of the New Jerusalem, and enjoy the presence of each other and of our God forever.

God, help us, and enable us to preach his word, and live to it to, and make us faithful, and may we meet in heaven. Amen.

Christ My All.

M. C. COLE.

My heart all day has been burdened with prayer for entire consecration to God; for the mind of Christ; for the power of the Spirit, and the simplicity of the truth; for wisdom, strength, zeal, faith, meekness, charity, love, humility, patience; that I may be like Christ, able to tell sinners of the Savior's love in that manner, as to secure their attention to His claims, and induce them to seek His pardon. And oh! precious, precious Jesus! Thou dost reveal Thyself, and answer prayer. And this is the confidence we have in Him. That if we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us, and if we know He hear us, whatever we ask, we know that we have the petitions we desired of Him. 1 John v., 14. And praise Thy holy name, we have the witness in our hearts. He that believeth in the Son of God hath the witness in himself; he that believeth not God hath made him a liar, because he believeth not the record that God gave of His Son. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in His Son. He that hath the Son, hath life, and he that hath not the Son, hath not life. These things have I written unto you, that believe in the name of the Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe in the name of the Son of God. And we know that the Son of God is come and hath given us an understanding that we may know Him that is true, and we are in Him that is true, even in His Son, Jesus Christ. This is the true God and eternal life. 1 John v., 10, 11, 12, 13, 20.

But, says the enemy, you prayed for wisdom, strength, zeal, faith, meekness; charity, love, humility, and the power of the Spirit, which you do not possess. But I do possess them, for I possess Christ, you can not cheat me longer; you are the father of lies, and robbed me of my inheritance by deceiving my first parents. Jesus has purchased it back with his blood, and secures me in its possession now, a portion of which are the graces for which I pray, and which are embodied in Christ, which are mine. Through Christ, the Savior, Immanuel, Jesus, Prince of Peace, the Alpha and Omega, the Bright Morning Star, the Word, which was in the beginning, which is Christ, the Son of God, who is wisdom, strength, zeal, faith, meekness, charity, love, humility, power, and patience, all of which are mine, because I have Christ.

Behold on the cross the bleeding, suffering Jesus, and dare not contest with me the possession of my Savior, who crowns me with His glory, purity, and love. Thou art mine, blessed Savior, and I am Thine, through the sacrifice which Thou has made. In taking possession of my heart Thou hast made me pure and holy, for Thou canst not abide where sin dwells. This it is for which thou didst pray when here in the flesh. That they may all be one, as thou father art in me, and I in thee, that they also be one in us. That the world may believe that Thou has sent me, and the glory which Thou gavest me, I have given them, that they may be one, even as we are one—I in them, Thou in me—that they may be made perfect in one.

This is perfection, perfect love, Christ who casts out all fear, who has taken up His abode in my heart, who is in me, and I in Him. Glory! glory! everlasting glory to His holy name; His blood cleanses from all sin; cleanses me; Jesus says so; the quickening spirit says so; the freed heart, so long groping in darkness, now bathing in the ocean of His love says so; all within and without the Bible, angels, redeemed spirits, and living saints, says so. This is the blessing, for it is Christ who is holy; the spirit of holiness, which is mine through the atonement, the blood of the Lamb, and it will bring forth fruit to the honor and glory of God. It is the active principle of all life, and can not die. It is the vine which makes us fruitful.

Oh, the joy which now is mine; Jesus lifts me up into an atmosphere of purity and love; He clothes me in spotless garments; gives me a new name in a white stone, which no man knoweth but him that receiveth it. Jesus overcometh for me, and I shall eat the hidden manna, for the spirit says so, and the spirit is Christ, and Christ is God, and God is my heavenly Father, and has made me His heir, joint heir with Christ to an inheritance that is incorruptible and full of glory, and that fadeth not away.

Jesus is with me, is mine, and I am His; He has taken all my infirmities; sees all my necessities; indites and presents all my petitions at the throne, which bring them before the Father pure and acceptable. It is not me, it is Jesus; my out-goings and in-comings, thoughts, prayers, daily bread, friends, health and eternal salvation are in his hands, consequently safe. All fear is gone, and I joy continually in the Rock and God of my salvation. Through Christ I am saved; He is my all in all; nothing can harm me, for I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor highth, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus, our Lord. Trembling Christian, claim the full blessing—claim Christ, who is all in all, and you will enjoy the power of the Spirit, which is love—which is Christ.

Idolatry.

Idolatry is not necessarily confined to the general acceptation of the term, pertaining to the customs of the heathen as distinguished from the Christian religion. The mind contains an element of veneration which naturally endows it with a propensity for adoration of some object external to itself. Unless we place a perpetual guard over this propensity, some faithful sentinel to prevent its encroachment upon other faculties of the mind, it deepens into idolatry while we are scarcely aware of its presence. When some conflicting cause throws down our idol, shattering in its fall our calm security, then we awake to the fact that it was an idol, around which had clustered some of our fondest hopes, and to whose shrine we had brought our highest aims and ambitions.

We do not term this predominating tendency of the mind idolatry; we do not think of it as idolatry. We call it by names as various and complex as are the tastes and opinions of the human race. No two persons make an idol of exactly the same thing. One person allows his love of Mammon to degenerate into actual worship, until in his world there is but one real God and that is money, money, money. Yet this same person would be shocked, horrified, were the truth of the case laid bare before him, and he would not recognize himself in the picture. Blindness is the curse which accompanies these worldly idols, and we grope blindly in the dark while paying our most devout worship. Another person, scorning this devotion of every faculty to the end of gain, bows down low in the dust before popularity, sacrificing honor, self-respect, moral courage, all the nobler attributes of character to the love and fear of the public "they say," cutting and trimming the sails of their life-boat in every direction, in order to catch the popular breeze.

So, through the whole category of human faults and human frailties. That which one person rejects from his nature as an evil greatly to be condemned another will cherish in his heart, and instead of limiting its outreach, will bring to it every aid in his power, until it outstrips all else in its growth and usurps the whole ground, a devouring idol, insatiate in its demands.

Still another, unconsciously as it were, makes an idol of the affections. Another chooses pleasure with the ardor of an oriental devotee of the sun; and no Hindostanee's image ever received more absorbing homage than is rendered to fashion by her extreme votaries of the present day.

The severe punishment which God inflicted on idolatrous nations and individuals of the olden times would prove conclusively that it was one of grossest violations of the supreme law, even had He not seen fit to have given us an express injunction to refrain from everything but pure devotion to Him and to His laws. The Israelites, for their sinful worship in the desert, were commanded by God, through His servant Moses, that the golden calf which they had erected with so much rejoicing, should be ground and the dust sprinkled in their daily drink, to give it bitterness. And in the journey of this life well be it for us if we are not obliged in bitterness of spirit to mingle in our daily drink the ashes of our consumed idols. God foresaw all our inclinations and temptations when He issued His loving command: "Little children make to yourselves no idols."

A. W.

SHALL THERE BE A "COMING MAN?" Perhaps man has nearly run his course in this world, and is about to disappear, like the mammoth, and give place to some nobler kind of creature, who will manage the estate better than the present occupant. Certainly we can not boast of having done very well with it, nor could we complain if we should receive notice to leave. Perhaps James Watt came into the world to extinguish his species. If so, it is well. Let us go on eating, drinking, smoking, over-working, idling, men killing themselves to buy clothes for their wives, wives killing themselves by wearing them, children petted and candied into imbecility and diptheria. In that case, of course, there will be no coming man, and we need not take the trouble to inquire what he will do.

A Wedding at a Fort on the Rocky Mountains.

M. ANNESLEY.

We sometimes think that angels are allowed to look in upon little scenes of happiness in far off corners of the earth, and smile over the bright spots that are still left to man outside of Eden, and we question if the finest parlor in the land could have turned off a happier, simple little wedding than the pen of affection thus describes:

C— was not married when we thought she would be. We waited two weeks for the wedding dress, which then did not arrive. H— said he would marry her in calico rather than postpone it longer, and as we had baked all our own cake and made all our own preparations, she was married in the dress Aunt L— sent her, on the twenty-ninth, after tattoo, half-past eight o'clock. We have but three rooms and a kitchen. One, the parlor was arranged for the wedding, filled with wreaths and large bouquets of brilliant wild flowers, and some entirely white, all made by soldiers and presented by the officers and soldiers. Then I borrowed all the lamps I could procure, and the room looked beautiful. The table was set in the dining room, and this was the reception room, and the third was the dressing room. When the parlor was filled with officers in full uniform, and H—, so tall and manly, standing by C—, and A— at her side as bridesmaid, with Lieutenant S— beside H, it was a beautiful picture. They went through the long, impressive ceremony very nicely, but poor little F—'s tender heart could stand it no longer; he burst and left the room. I would have done the same, only I bit my lips and remembered that C— was going to be so happy; that H— is all I could wish in point of industry, good principles, affection, and thoughtfulness; indeed, I feel that I have gained a son rather than lost a daughter. After the congratulations were over we proceeded to the dining room, where the table was spread with plenty of wedding cake, sponge, pound, French, and chocolate cakes, etc. I had wine, and all partook of it except the bride and groom. H— never lets liquor pass his lips—his promise to his mother when a child forbids him. After all the company had left, H— and C— walked up to their quarters, which he has made as comfortable as possible. He is, indeed, an excellent housekeeper himself, and knows when his man does right.

"And both Jesus was called and his disciples to the marriage." Jesus is pleased to be invited to our joys as well as our sorrows, and His presence always brings a blessing.

The Wife's Resolve.

A young married couple were living very happily in one of the beautiful towns of the "Land of Steady Habits." When the cheerful wife looked at her affectionate husband and beautiful babe, she thanked God for her happy lot. They were in the higher walks of life—she a refined and delicate lady, and he a man of culture.

But as time passed on he became a frequenter of a gay saloon. His wife expostulated with him. He replied that he only went for the company—meeting genial young friends there—that he never drank anything but light wines, which could harm no one; yet if it troubled her he would not go any more.

He found this promise easier to give than to keep. Friends urged him, and again he went. His anxious wife argued the subject seriously; she told him, and with the utmost truth, that all drunkards were once moderate drinkers, and that these light wines cultivate not only a taste, but an appetite for stimulants. The use of them weakens the will, and the craving for liquor becomes a physical disease.

Convinced, and fond of his wife, the young man promised to drink no more. But the fatal charm had already begun to work upon him, and his wife discovered that he still frequented the drinking house.

Now this little lady—for little she was—was also a resolute woman. She had committed the priceless pearl of her happiness into her husband's keeping, and she was determined that he should not dissolve both it and his own in the drunkard's glass. So she put on her bonnet and shawl, and down the street she went to the liquor dealer. She stated the case to him, and to his spacious response, she replied:

"If you continue to entice my husband to ruin, I will come here again, and give you a cowhiding." Then she went home and awaited the issue.

The very next day her husband was surprised while smoking and drinking in the saloon to see his wife walk in. Her face of sorrowing love and pity, and a few earnest words addressed to him, sent him home at once, blushing with shame. She turned to the liquor seller:

"I told you what you might expect if you persisted in leading my husband to drink." Then, saying to the men present—though they did not attempt to interfere—"Stand back! he knows he deserves it." She made the strokes of her whip tell on his red, bloated face. That strong man paled and cowered before the righteous indignation flashing in that little woman's eyes. A bad man is always afraid of a good woman.

With smiles as bright as ever the wife met her husband at home, and uttered no reproach. It is needless to state that the young gentleman never again ventured into the saloon. Shame and fear combined with other motives to keep him away. And to this day he thanks his wife for a rescued life.

This is a true story. It is written for the Gazette, but it is not invented for the Gazette. These events occurred some years since in the neighborhood of New Haven.

Young wives, be resolved that your husbands shall not drink at all, and they can not become drunkards.

How to be a Man.

Not long since a boy of some seventeen years of age called on a merchant doing a large business in New York. Being busily employed at the time, the boy had to wait a little before getting an opportunity for an interview. Occasionally the merchant cast a glance at him as he stood respectfully at a short distance. He was rather poorly clad, and showed evidence of pretty hard work; but his face indicated honesty and common sense, with a firm and energetic manliness, under the somewhat rude exterior. A practiced business man requires but brief examination of a boy to decide as to his weight and worth of character.

When at liberty the merchant said, "Well, my young friend, what can I do for you?"

"I called, sir," he replied, "to ask you for a situation as engineer—was told you were having a new engine built, and I want you to give me a place; I'd like to run it for you."

"Are you an engineer?" asked the gentleman.

"No sir, but I can be;" he answered, setting his lips firmly together, standing squarely up before the gentleman, and looking him squarely in the face, "I don't understand the business; I know something of it, though. But I can be an engineer; and I will be. And I wish you'd give me a chance."

His modest but determined manner pleased the merchant. He was having a new engine built for a certain department of his business, and could of course have as many experienced operators as he desired. It was no object for him to take up an inexperienced boy and attempt to train him; no object except to help the boy. Such deeds he was noted for; a fact which no doubt had encouraged the boy to make his application.

"Whatare you doing now?" he inquired.

"Working in a machine shop in Brooklyn. I have been a fireman, and often working the engine. I think I could get along pretty well with one now, if anybody would have a little patience with me."

"What wages do you get?"

"Five dollars a week."

"What do you do with your money?"

"Give it to my mother, sir."

"Give it to your mother, humph! what does your mother do with it?"

"Well, you see there is mother, and sister, and me. But it goes pretty hard, you know. They don't give much for sewing, and it's pretty hard work, too. And then with all the other work she has to do, you know she can not get along very fast at that rate. So I help all I can. If I could get an engineer's place I could get more wages, and it would make it easier for mother."

"How do you spend your evenings?" asked the gentleman.

"I attend the free class at the Cooper Institute, studying mechanics," he replied. "I spend all the time I can get studying. I know I can be an engineer."

"Do you ever drink liquor?"

He looked with an expression of astonishment on his countenance, that such a question should be asked, but he answered firmly, "No, sir."

"No you chew, or smoke, or go to the theatre?"

"Never can afford it. Mother needs the money. And if she didn't I could make better use of it. I'd like to have some books if I could only spare the money to get them."

"Do you go to church or Sunday school?"

He held down his head and pretended to brush the dust off the floor with his foot and replied, "No, sir."

"Why not?" asked the gentleman a little sharply.

"I haven't any clothes fit to wear," he replied. "It takes all the money I can get for us to live; and I can't have many clothes;" he looked down at his coarse and well worn suit. "It didn't use to be so when father was living. I was brought up to go to church and to Sunday school. If I can get to be an engineer we shall go go again. I know I can run an engine."

Telling him to call at a certain time, when he expected his engine would be ready for use, and he would talk further with him, he dismissed him. "But he must have that engine," said the merchant to a friend to whom he related the circumstance. "He will make a man—that boy will. A boy who is determined to be something; who gives his mother all his money to lighten her burdens; who does not use tobacco, and does not go to theatres, who spends his evenings in study after working all day, such a boy will make a man, and deserves to be helped. I have not told him so, but I shall take him and put him under one of my engineers until he is fully capable of taking charge, then let him have the engine. He will get twenty dollars a week then instead of five, and be able to lighten a mother's burdens, have clothes to wear to church, and buy books to aid him in his business."

A noble boy, though hidden amidst hard conditions and unattractive garbs will work out his manhood. He may not always find friends to appreciate him. But determind, virtuous, and willing to endure, he will in due time conquer.—Mother's Journal.

A Christian Duty.

We copy the following reminder of Christian duty from our excellent secular cotemporary, the Norwalk Gazette, one of the best weekly papers in New England. Its visits to our sanctum revive precious memories of old friends and familiar scenes:

"O, I do want you to pray with me, I have not heard a prayer since you went away." Such to a brother who had been absent for ten days, was the impassioned expression of a dear child of God, who had been for the last six or eight months lying in the spray of the cold river in daily expectation of the summons to go over. The thing on her mind was the comfort afforded by the social Christian call; to take her feverish hand and point her eye of faith to the great high priest, always ready but not always discernible; to excite her hope by a reference to the promise that though the turbid stream of death lie between her and the promised land, yet the Savior's strong arm is her support.

This case is referred to for the sake of inquiring of those who find abundance of time for recreation, if it is not a Christian's duty to visit their brethren and sisters in adversity. Ask yourselves how much you would prize the calls, prayers, and hymns of sympathizing friends were you lying in the place of these bedridden friends. Is it too much to ask of each professor of fellowship with Christ that as often as once in the week you—in the way of Christ's appointment—hold fellowship with his suffering children?

Prayer.

Fill up the void spaces of your time with meditation and prayer.

They are the safest who are most in their closets, who pray not to be seen of men, but to be heard of God.

Prayer doth not consist in gifted expressions and volubility of speech, but a brokenness of heart. Imperfect, broken groans, from a broken heart God will accept. A hard heart can not pray; a broken heart is made up of prayer.

It is a comfort to Christians apart to have their prayers meet before a throne of grace, and their persons shall meet before a throne of glory.

When God pours out His spirit upon man, then man will pour out his heart before God.

He that lives without prayer, or prays without life, hath not the spirit of God.

Prayer does not consist in the elegance of the phrase, but in the strength of the affection.

Where there is a willing heart, there will be a continual crying to heaven for help.

Pray that you may pray.

Waiting upon God continually, will abate your unnecessary cares and sweeten your necessary ones.

Let nothing get between heaven and prayer but Christ.

Prayer, if it be done as a task, is no prayer.

Sin quenches prayer, afflictions quicken it.

The same spirit of prayer which teaches a man to cry earnestly, teaches him to wait patiently; for as it assures him the mercy is in the Lord's hand, so it assures him it will be given forth in the Lord's time.

The breath of prayer comes from the life of faith.

Whatever you want, go to God by faith and prayer, in the name of Christ, and never think his delays are denials.

They that spend their days in faith and prayer shall end their days in peace and comfort.

METHODIST FIGURES VS. CATHOLIC. The Galaxy for July contains an article on "The Church of the Future." It is a sort of counterpoise to Mr. Parton's glorification of the Roman Catholic Church in America, which appeared in the Atlantic Monthly. The writer gives various figures of the Methodist Church, which he contrasts with the boasted figures of the Church of Rome. From these it appears that the value of the Roman Catholic Church property in the United States in 1860 was $26,774,119, and that of the Methodist Church property was $33,093,371. The latest statistics show an increase of the latter to $41,885,439. In 1867 the Methodist Church raised for religious purposes $993,308. This was aside from the regular expenses of religious worship, which with the above was estimated at $7,133,303, paid by 1,032,184 church members and probationers.—Presbyter

OMITTED.—We have received interesting matter from Brothers Chinn and Williams in regard to the churches, which, owing to the crowded state of our columns, we are obliged to omit. It will appear next week.

Rev. W. M. Henry has just returned from a visit to his Northern home, much improved in health, and with increased mental vigor. While in New York city he preached with great acceptability in the old John street church, in and the Washington street church, of which we were pastor just prior to our coming to New Orleans. His second sermon in the latter church was attended by an increased congregation, who evidently appreciated the sermon of the young minister.

As assistant editor of this journal he was responsible for its management during our absence to the last General Conference, and showed himself well fitted for the post. As connected with the Christian Commission and our Church, Mr. Henry has been in the South six years, during which time he has performed valuable and efficient service for the Church and the country; and wherever he has labored he has made hosts of friends.

The Crescent forgets the moral effect of the Maine election upon the country. The Crescent may figure to show Democratic gains to its heart's content, but the people know and feel that Maine has gone against the Democracy.

Congress is to meet on the twenty-first instant.

Senator Harris is in town, and is stopping at Captain Armstrong's.

"Victory or death" is the war-cry of the Democracy. Republican processions have been assaulted in Philadelphia, Troy and Rochester.

In Manchester, England, 6000 women demanded to be registered, claiming the right to vote under the reform bill, as they possess the property qualification.

The Democrats of New Orleans must be rich, judging from the number of banner presentations and splendid processions. Collect the taxes.

Book Notices.

CHAPEL MELODIES.—A collection of choice hymns, both old and new, designed for the use of prayer and social meetings, and family devotion, by S. J. Vail and Rev. Robert Lowry. Published by Biglow & Main, successors to B. W. Bradbury, 425 Broome street, New York.

We can confidently recommend this, as we have found by examination thereof that it is an excellent work. Price forty-five cents per single copy or $40 per thousand.

"FRESH LAURELS," by W. B. Bradbury. This is the last collection of Sunday school melodies prepared by Mr. Bradbury previous to death. It is considered his best work. The highest recommend we can give it is to state that over two hundred and eighty thousand have been sold during the year that has elapsed since its publication, a greater sale than any similar work has ever known.

The Observer says there is a tract society in Sterling, Scotland, consisting of one man only. His name is Peter Drummond, a seedsman, and in twenty years has circulated about fifty millions of tracts.

Maine.

We have glorious and cheering news from Maine. Thank God for this star in the east lighting us on to further Republican victories. The chairman of the State committee telegraphs that the Republicans carried every Congressional district, elected all the Senators and seven-eighths of the Representatives, and Chamberlain has a majority of twenty thousand.

That Procession.

On last Saturday night the Republicans of New Orleans turned out in torchlight procession, and numbered from eight to ten thousand. The display was in every respect highly honorable to the cause represented. The stirring strains of martial music, the floating banners, and the long lines of brilliant torches produced a magnificent effect. The marching was admirable, the order perfect. The handsome uniforms of the several clubs and the numerous carriages in the procession indicated that the Republicans have dimes, if the Democrats have dollars. The loyal portion of our population manifested much interest in the occasion, and thronged the streets, beholding with delight the defenders of our rights and the hope of the South. The Democratic part of our citizens affected disgust by remaining in-doors and darkening their dwellings, but this was only apparent darkness, as the anxious inmates could be seen peering through the latticed shutters, or standing beneath the deeper shade of the trees in their gardens, while one of the richer class of Democracy lay down on his upper piazza and watched the delightful scene. At all events, if the Democrats did not see the sons of freedom, they heard their joyous shouts.

The evening Times of Saturday advised the good people of New Orleans to close their houses while the "funeral procession of Louisiana was passing by," and the next morning denounced it in the most vulgar language. But the Times is a poor politician. It would have been simple common sense and good policy for the Times to have stated the facts, and awarded the praise due to the fine appearance of the colored men in that procession. The Times should have been proud that these colored men were capable of such a demonstration, and especially as the Times hopes to gain the colored vote for Seymour; but the Times is not capable of speaking the truth when its political enemies are represented. The Crescent is the better politician, for it gave the "devil his due," stated the facts as they appeared to every candid observer. Indeed, the New Orleans Crescent is the ablest and most honorable of Southern journals.

Great apprehensions existed during the day that a bloody riot would occur in the night. In view of these apparently well grounded fears. General Hatch telegraphed to the Secretary of War, who ordered Buchanan to call out the troops, which he did; and the night passed without trouble. The presence of the military had a good effect, but the manly and defiant demeanor of the Republicans had the greater influence to preserve the peace.

The dwellings of principal Republicans were brilliantly illuminated and decorated with the nation's flag, and conspicuous among them was the residence of Captain Armstrong, which was a light amid the darkness of his neighbors, and from whose balcony General Howard viewed the procession.

Major General Howard.

This distinguished Christian soldier has just paid another visit to our city and was the guest of Captain W. B. Armstrong. He is on a tour of inspection through the Southern States, and especially interested as to the condition of the colored people. He is in excellent health and cheerful spirits. He worshiped in our church last Sabbath morning; in the afternoon he addressed the large colored Sunday school organized last spring by Mrs. Newman, and in the evening spoke to a large audience in Wesley Chapel. The afternoon exercises were very interesting. The body of the church was well filled with colored children and adult persons of a lighter hue. Mrs. Richardson and Miss Warner were there with fifty of our orphans, and children from other schools were present. Mr. Badenhousen conducted the exercises in a very handsome manner, and the singing was led by Messrs. Smith and Pratt. The children were well dressed, behaved prettily, recited and sang with much spirit and correctness. Captain Pierce introduced General Howard in a neat little speech, and the General then spoke to the little auditors on, "Thou God seest me," as a motto to be remembered. He was followed by Dr. Rayburn, who related some interesting facts.

In the evening General Howard spoke of the domestic, social, industrial, educational, and religious duties of the colored people, and was listened to with marked attention. We greatly desired the presence of the Democrats, that they might hear this gentleman, who is more constantly misrepresented by the Southern press than any other man in the nation. But such will not believe the truth, and desire not to know any good of a true patriot and Christian if he happens to be a Republican.

Grant.

Since our return many have inquired as to the probable election of General Grant. Having spent the summer in the North, traveling through most of the Middle, Eastern, and Western States, and even to the Rocky Mountains; and having met large bodies of citizens, in conventions, conferences, and at camp meetings, we have had a pretty fair opportunity to form an opinion of the coming national election. Wherever we went we noticed that the Democrats had adopted the "game of brag," and were whistling to keep their courage up, but the Republicans were quietly at work, saying but little, but doing much. Blair's letter has insured Seymour's defeat. The people are unwilling to have another war, and equally unwilling to sacrifice the fruits of the late war. They may not like Congress; they may prefer a milder Republican party, but they prefer Congress with all its faults, and the Republican party with all its errors, to the restoration of Lee, Davis, and their fallen conspirators to political power, which is the significance of Seymour's election. They vote against the spirit of secession and slavery, which is the life and breath of the Democratic party. Such is the calm, settled, determined conviction of the people of the North, and as goes Vermont and Maine so will go their sister States of the loyal North. Grant and Colfax will be elected by a majority never equaled in this country. But more anon.

Rev. R. K. Diossy.

On resuming the editorial management of the ADVOCATE, it is our first and pleasant duty to make our hearty acknowledgments to the Rev. R. K. Diossy, who for more than two months has had the exclusive control of this journal, and although we wrote editorials from afar and occasionally, yet the supervision of the paper has been with him; and how admirably he has performed his duties our readers well know, and we most cordially acknowledge. He has displayed excellent taste in the selection of articles from other papers, in collecting Church news, and in writing editorials, which though brief were pointed.

And in addition, Mr. Diossy has preached for us in the Ames church during July and August, when it was not safe for him to travel his large interior district. He has greatly endeared himself to our people, and has made hosts of friends in this city. And at the last prayer meeting he attended prior to our arrival the people testified their appreciation in words of Christian affection.

Mr. Diossy is now in the prime of life; of medium statue, well formed head, a soft blue eye, and of a quiet and gentle spirit. Too good to be envious of his brethren, he is content to do his own work; and without a flourish of trumpets he has quietly and thoroughly organized our Church in Western Louisiana. Coming to us from the Protestant Methodist Church, he has proved his attachment to our Church by an unwavering devotion. An extensive reader, he is intelligent; and an humble follower of the Master, he is a Christian gentleman.

Going the Rounds.

Some time ago a clerical friend in Chicago wrote us a letter, and as we were then in the North, in the vicinity of Troy and Albany, directed his epistle to Troy, New York; but as we did not happen to call for our mail, the obliging postmaster of the New York Trojans sent our letter to Troy, Pennsylvania, August 11; not being called for, and the Pennsylvania custodian of a nation's mail, supposing we were somewhere, sent our letter to Troy, Ohio, ugust 18. Not to be less obliging than his followers, the Ohioan master of the post remailed the unclaimed missive to Troy, Indiana August 23. Whence it was sent to Albany, New York, but by whose authority and knowledge, deponent saith not, for it beareth not the honored name of that old Dutch city. The envelope is now before us, on which are four Troys, and it might have had other two had the guardians of the people's mail been sufficiently posted in ancient and modern geography, and sent the wandering letter first to Troy, Mississippi, and then to the mother of all Troys—Troy, in Asia Minor. It may be gratifying to our hearers to know that the letter in question was a request to become pastor of one of the most active Congregational churches in the Northwest. It was the longest call we have ever had.

The New York Medical College for women will begin its sixth annual term of twenty weeks, at their new college on Twelfth street, corner of Second avenue, New York city, the first Monday in November. ### Hardy Ryan.

Three years ago this coming December, when the first considerable missionary appropriation was made for the South, we sent out two local preachers to travel between New Orleans and Baton Rouge, to gather the colored people into our Church, to be followed by others to complete the organization. To facilitate them in their work we gave each a Bible, Methodist hymn book, and book of discipline; and for each we bought a mustang pony, at a cost of $40 a piece, which included saddle and saddle bags. It rained the day they had set to start on their long journey; yet intent on their work, and at the appointed hour they rode up to the parsonage for final orders and a last good bye. But all was not ready. A cold Northwest rain storm was raging, and the preachers were without overcoats, and without money to buy. Giving them an order on Daniel Pierson, they went to his clothing store, where they obtained good, strong overcoats on our account. Returning to the parsonage, their dark faces shone with brightness, for it had been a long time since they had had a new coat.

Now all was ready. Benedictions were exchanged. The itinerants mounted, and spread their broad, blue umbrellas, trimmed with a white border. In one side of the saddle bag was the little library of three volumes, and out of the other side appeared the the little white bundle, the never failing accompaniment of the colored traveler. One of the preachers was a small man, and he by chance had the taller pony, while the other was a man over six feet in his stockings, and his pony so short in the legs that the rider's big brogans touched the ground when not in the stirrups.

"Good bye, Doctor!"

"Good bye, Hardy. Good bye, Samuel! The Lord bless you!" and in another moment the first two itinerants of our beloved Church were on their way to reopen the door of the old Church to the freedmen of the Southwest; and since then not less than 25,000 freedmen have entered that Church. These men were Samuel Small and Hardy Ryan; the former is still in our Conference, a most efficient pastor, while Hardy Ryan is in Liberia, the forerunner of many whom God may move to follow. This little sketch has been suggested by the following letter:

MONROVIA, Liberia, July 27.

REV. DR. NEWMAN:

Dear Sir—I to-day inform you I am safe in Liberia, at Monrovia. One lone star waves over our happy land; a good country for freedmen. Doctor, my dear brother, I am now a great deal nigher Jerusalem than I was there. I am now writing to you sitting in the chapel, in care of the Colonization Society. I am now passing through acclimation. I have been blessed with one glorious privilege—preaching to the noble men of Liberia, with the President right at my side. The people of Liberia say the Lord sent me here. There are a good many preachers here, but we want Holy Ghost men. Tell my missionary brethren there is a field here large for them. The people in America know what preaching is, but this great people but few know. I am told there are a hundred million in this country.

My dear brother, I am now fifteen miles from the tribe which my grandfather came out. I am glad to say to my brethren that I have returned to my native home.

Brother Newman, the Annual Conference comes in session next December, at a place called Cape Mount, about sixty miles from here across a bow of the sea. I hope you will write to Bishop Ames for me to be transferred to the Annual Conference of Liberia. I did not come here to forsake my field of labor. I thought I had a good chance to come home to preach to my people, where the Gospel is much needed. O, that we had a thousand ministers to commence this mighty work.

There are two things here to do: one is to civilize, the other to Christianize. No smarter people in their way. They will work; they gather the palm nut; they make the palm oil; they make the palm wine; and they make the palm butter; and they cut down the palm tree, and get out of it the palm cabbage. No such a tree as that in America. I see the cocoanut tree; it grows full of cocoanuts. I have eaten the mango plum.

This is a good country for the freedmen to live. The ground is rich. Industry and economy in a few years will make this the star of the world. This is a warm climate; not as warm as Louisiana at any time. Tell all of my brethren "howdy" for me. Doctor, I never expect to see them any more till the judgment of the great day. I have one desire: Preaching to all, crying till death, Behold, behold the Lamb!

The first sermon I preached in Liberia from the fifth chapter of Matthew, and the eighth verse was the text. The hymn I sung was the 209th.

"Give my respects to Mrs. Newman," says Mrs. Fanny Ryan, "and write I hope to meet her in heaven."

Write soon. I would be glad to hear from you. I'll close my letter by saying God bless you all.

I still remain your affectionate brother, HARDY RYAN.

Ames Methodist Episcopal Church.

There will be preaching every Sabbath at 11 A. M. in Dr. Newman's church, corner of St. Charles and Calliope streets, and social meetings for conference and prayer every Sunday and Thursday evening from eight to nine o'clock in the lecture room. You are invited.

From the Churches.

Rev. E. Jackson writes from Washington and Opelousas circuit:

Our Washington church is quite alive. We have every Sunday about three hundred present. The Sunday school is prosperous, having eighty to ninety scholars. The sisters have prayers every Monday night, and the children meet me every Sunday morning early for prayer. Last Sunday night, after nine o'clock prayers, we were all quiet in bed, when two white men came to the house, cursing and swearing, threatening to break in the door. We were all very much frightened, but I got up and opened the door. The first thing I saw was fire arms presented. They demanded: "Is Sam Johnson here." I answered that we knew nothing about him. He said: "Don't tell me a lie. Is he not at your church?" I told him that we did not hold church at that time of night. I was standing at the bedside to protect my wife. One of them raised his gun, and my wife escaped from the room. They then left. I have as yet got no satifaction for this affair. On last Saturday I was visiting a sick family, whose mother I buried last week. She left a family of fourteen children, and had been abandoned by her husband. I met there a colored man with his head broken, and who had been shot. He was hiding from some white men who threatened his life. I felt very unhappy to be among a crowd of murderers, and they watching me, thinking that I came to protect the man, when I was only talking about the Lord.

At the Bayou Teche appointment last Thursday, thirteen children were baptized. Next Sunday we have a baptizing in the church at Washington, where from twenty to twenty-five are to be baptized.

There was a man killed here by the Sheriff lately in the wrong cause. I was sent for to see him, but before I got there he was dead.

A correspondent writes from Donaldsonville, September 2:

The colored school was opened again in the Methodist Episcopal church, under the care of F. Fobb and P. F. Valfroit. It is hoped that the school will increase during the month. Parents are very anxious about the free school. The campaign for Grant and Colfax is about to open. The Democrats have already opened. They have gained one of our colored citizens here, one Manuel Bossier, who took the Stump for Seymour and Blair last Saturday, made a speech in Iberville parish, and came back home. The boys laugh at him, and of course, being one of our playmates, he could not have kept out of our company, and he could not go to the coffeehouse and sit, for as they say he is a negro, he is not allowed.

The young man takes it hard to see the way they do to him, so we talk to him and shame him. Now, to-day, he is back in our ranks. He made a speech last night at our meeting, and said before the people that he was really ashamed of his past conduct, but hoped that they will consider the case and accept him in their ranks again. The Democrats seem to have a good prospect, but the Republicans have a better one, and they expect to carry this parish for Grant and Colfax.

Rev. Mr. Kennedy is going on well with his church.

Rev. E. Hayward writes from Natchitoches:

"We received your kind letter and were glad to know you had heard of our trouble with Mr. Harkins, the builder. He has employed a lawyer to attend to getting his money. After paying him all but about $500 he has become impatient, though we do all we can. We have no way now of getting money; the people have none yet, but will have before very long. Everybody has good crops of corn and cotton, and we will have the money this fall, by the help of God and good friends. I hope you will do all you can for our help. No one has yet given us anything. Harkins is also trying to make us pay interest, which is not in the contract, though it may be all right. The church is doing well otherwise. Our country churches are very prosperous; the prospect is excellent all over the Parish. God has given us the people. I would be glad to have you do all you can for us, for we are poorer than I would like to say to you at this time, but in hopes it will not long be so with us. All are in good heart as yet. My wife has again been sick for two months past, but is getting about now."

From Mississippi.

DURANT—CANTON—REVIVALS—READING THE NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE—METHODIST HOME JOURNAL—THE GREAT ORGAN OF THE CHURCH.

CANTON, Miss., Sept. 14.

EDITOR ADVOCATE:

My last was written from Durant. Before our meeting closed on Monday night last there were received on probation forty-six members; and I left Durant with a deep and wide-spread revival in progress.

Our Quarterly Meeting at Canton has just closed. The change exhibits signs of rapid progress. The Sabbath and day schools are in good condition. I noticed an interesting feature in the Sabbath school, which was the reading of several columns of the New Orleans ADVOCATE at the close, as there are many adult members, and always a number of persons awaiting the commencement of divine service. This exercise is highly profitable, as it not only cultivates a love for our Church papers, but scatters information among the people.

Our congregations were remarkably good. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity yesterday afternoon and evening. In the afternoon eighteen persons joined the Church. At night there were seventy-five penitents around the altar, and four professed to be happily converted to God.

Canton charge embraces four appointments, viz: Canton, Sharon, Ross Chapel and Breck's Chapel. Three of these points have been added since Conference. Rev. Alfred Handy, preacher in charge, is active and successful in extending and managing the work. The blessing of God attends his labors.

Mrs. H. F. Highgate has opened the school taught last term by Mr. Spellman and Mrs. Willela Highgate. The people are anxiously awaiting the return of her accomplished daughter, who is at present visiting in Albany, New York.

The people at Canton are exceedingly anxious to improve, and are about the most susceptible community in the State.

I must join with many others in expressing my thanks for the great spiritual profit I receive from reading the Methodist Home Journal, published in Philadelphia. It has quickened my zeal this season to win triumphs for the Redeemer, and a kindred influence has thus been exercised over the preachers of the district, and many of our charges are in a blaze of heavenly power.

The Methodist Home Journal is dear to me also, because of the friendly and confidential relation formed by a short acquaintanceship with its editor while I was his fellow-townsman and co-temporary in the profession. Admiration and regard for the Methodist Home Journal, however, could never lead us to consider it, as do our not model Methodists of the border, a model church paper. It is a model in its specialty, but not in its adaptedness to the various wants of the Church and the times. While it frequently gets up steam, it is too timid to plan the machinery. Disloyalty, caste and political corruption are to be battled with fearlessly and uncompromisingly, that around the Church and State bulwarks of security may be erected. We could not do without the well-directed Columbiad shots of Zion's Herald, the New York Advocate, the Northwestern and the New Orleans ADVOCATE; even if we had a hundred Methodist Home Journals and ten thousand Westerns, edited by as able logicians and great expounders of Church constitutional law as the editor at Cincinnati. I lend the Methadist Home Journal to the preachers of my district, and they are so much interested in it that the demand is unequal to my ability of supply. Though making the foregoing criticism, I can but testify to its marvelous influence wherever read, and thank God for its able Christian editor and his glorious instrumentality.

It is a source of gratification to learn through a communication from Dr. Riley, of Covington, Kentucky, published in the Methodist Home Journal, of the kindliness of bishops and ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in that region. It is hoped that some thing else beside the atmosphere of Ohio loyal Methodism wafted across the stream, and its bold advancing current in Kentucky has caused it, that, indeed, the spirit of the Master is moving in that denomination; then can we hope for a similar state of feeling soon to exist in the Gulf States, where their presiding elders, preachers and press indulge in and inculcate a hostility to loyal Methodism more bitter and malignant than do the Southern politicians.

Our next Quarterly Meeting will be held at Vicksburg.

JAMES LYNCH,
Presiding Elder Jackson District.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, September 9.

This month opens a new scholastic year for our teachers and little ones. The public schools are filled to overflowing, and it is said a thousand pupils have to await vacancies. This is a sad mistake; the capacity of the buildings and the school fund should be equal to the demand. It is difficult to estimate the value of this feature in our government; we shall only approach a proper estimate of it when ignorance of letters is made a crime. While the public schools of this city, embracing both white and colored pupils, commend themselves to public confidence, and are accomplishing a grand work, there is an imperative demand for one or more institutions of the highest order to be placed under Protestant control, it is a reproach to this Protestant community that none such exists. There are of course many private schools entitled to patronage, but they are not such as attract public attention; this remark applies more particularly to female than male schools. Columbia College, under Baptist control, is doing a good work, but on a limited scale. Among others opening schools we have some Southern "carpet-baggers;" no objection to them; let us give and receive.

The Methodist Church alone ought to sustain an institution of the highest grade, but there is no unity among them in such an enterprise.

The camp meetings among the colored people, noticed in my last letter, have proved to be little else than religious pic-nics, inuring more to the benefit of the land holders and truck-patches in the neighborhood, than to the increase of spiritual life among the congregations represented by them. One of these meetings was held on the land of a man who left the M. E. Church on slavery grounds; but more remarkable still, a "carpet-bagger" of the Southern Methodist Church got so near "negro equality" as to preach to this "servile progeny of Ham!" No objection; it is pleasing to see men's religion towering above their prejudices. Services have been held in the "Foundry," and some other Methodist Churches, during the week, while some have professed justification, there is not that deep and wide-spread religious feeling to which we may apply the epithet "revival."

Rev. Mr. Markham, of Capitol Hill Church, has returned to his charge, but not restored to health. It is sad to see one in life's bloom, and as useful as he is, sinking under his labors. Rev. Dr. Gurley, of the Presbyterian Church, has improved in his symptoms, but has not been able to return to his home.

A part of General Grant's family has returned; the rest, with the General himself, remains at Galena, Illinois. When he is in the city I see him almost daily, and have looked and inquired in vain for evidence of those irregular habits which rumor had some time ago settled upon him; indeed, in one instance I took special pains to trace an alleged departure from propriety, and found the whole to be an arrant fabrication. The General is a trustee of the Metropolitan Church—his children attend Wesley Chapel Sunday school, and I think he and his family frequently attend service there. Sometimes he slips into the Foundry Church and takes the first seat he comes to. Of all public men I have ever seen, he seems to shrink the most from public gaze. My sympathies have really been taxed at seeing what appeared to be an oppression upon his feelings, produced by public attention. With all he is affable and approachable at all times.

An instance of a strnnge church organization came to view yesterday: A young man formerly connected with the Foundry Church here has recently returned from South Carolina, where he had been employed under the Freedman's Bureau. While there he offered himself to the pastor of the Methodist Church South, for membership, but was refused admission because he was employed by the Bureau. He offered to aid in the Sunday school connected with a Presbyterian church, but was refused because he was considered to be a Radical. These are the people that prate about "mixing politics and religion!" This is shrewd, considering the end they have in view; they only want the politics—religion would spoil them. The young man in question is as upright and devout a man as can be found in any community. The district in South Carolina where he lived owes the government more than three hundred thousand pounds of produce. What an illustration of Solomon's proverb: "The lying tongue hateth him that is afflicted by it." It is impossible for man to feel kindly toward one whom he has injured.

An interesting meeting was held last night in the Foundry Church, the object of which was to compact the denominational interest in this city by united efforts in church extension and domestic missionary labor. The question here has been asked, "are we doing here our duty toward a class of people who are driven by business pressure to the suburbs of the city?" And while this class has not been entirely neglected, it is doubted whether the most successful means have been adopted to meet the obligations of Methodism in the premises. The small churches built for use as places for worship and Sunday school have been too contiguous to each other in some cases to answer their design; the result has been two feeble societies instead of one strong and self-sustaining church. And during preaching the children have been crowded out—the very class that ought to be retained. There must be some place to put the Sunday school in church during public worship, or one great object, both of Sunday school and preaching, fails entirely. The love-feast connected with this reunion meeting will be held in the same place, on Sunday afternoon.

There have been a number of conversions at the Young Men's Christian Association prayer meeting during the week.

The open air temperance meetings are still largely attended on Sunday afternoon, in different parts of this city and Georgetown. These temperance meetings are also held on Sunday night, in Temperance Hall, during the regular church hours. The leaders in this movement will find this to be an error; no class of men needs the aid of the church more than the reformed drunkard—the thing has been tried and failed. Mitchell, the President of the old Washington Society, used rather to boast in his public addresses that the object of the society was to sober church members and others. But where is that society to-day? If any of the old members are found they are members of Christian churches.

Fort Gribble, a short distance below the city, has recently received the signal corps, from Fort Columbus, N. Y., and forms part of the camp of instruction in connection with Lincoln Depot.

The "The Barry Farm" continues to be an object of interest to the community. It was purchased by the Freedman's Bureau, and is sold in one or more acre lots to freedmen, at from one to three hundred dollars, according to quality and location, and on easy terms; to this the Bureau adds a certain quantity of lumber, enough to build a cottage. More than a hundred of these dot the hill slopes of that picturesque section—a beautiful contrast to the wilderness which it substitutes. But I will return to this at another time.

The mission of Mr. Rosecrans continues to be the theme of discussion; all sober minds fix his conduct as beneath the dignity of contempt.

MORDECAI.

Sur la Persecution Religieuse.

Il n'est que trop vrai que des hommes qui se décoraient du titre de chrétiens ont persécuté leurs frères avec la plus impitoyable cruauté, et qu'ils ont répandu des flots de sang innocent. Si le christianisme avait autorisé de si horribles forfaits il mériterait d'être banni de la surface de la terre. Mais loin que ce soit là son esprit il défend formellement d'employer pour sa défense la violence et l'injustice. Depuis le jour où Christ est mort sur la croix, le christianisme n'a pas versé une seule goutte du sang de ses ennemis; mais ses vrais enfants ont été prodigues de leur propre sang. Jamais il ne forgea des chaînes pour en charger ses adversaires ou les hérétiques; jamais il ne construisit des prisons pour les y renfermer; il n'a jamais trempé sa plume dans le sang ou dans les larmes pour tracer une loi de supplices ou de vengeances contre les incrédules, et jamais il n'a eu à se reprocher d'avoir arraché à ses plus cruels ennemis un seul gémissement, en leur infligeant des souffrances corporelles. La vérité et la prière, voilà ses uniques armes et pour l'attaque et pour la défense. Il rend le bien pour le mal, il bénit celui qui le charge de malédictions.

Si des hommes qui se donnent le nom de disciples de Jésus, poussés par l'orgueil, par la soif du pouvoir et par le désir d'assouvir de criminelles passions, osent faire violence à une seule créature humaine sous prétexte de zèle pour la religion, leur conduite est directement opposée à l'esprit et à la lettre de l'Evangile, et l'on ne peut les juger avec trop de sévérité. Mais assurément ce serait à tort que l'on attribuerait à l'Evangile des actes auxquels il défend aux hommes de se livrer sous peine de s'attirer le courroux du ciel. Et si des chrétiens eux-mêmes ont cru de bonne foi pouvoir employer la violence pour arrêter les progrès de l'incrédulité ou de l'erreur, ou pour propager le règne de l'Evangile sur la terre—et malheureusement il n'y a eu que trop d'examples de cet excès d'égarement—ceux qui ont agi ainsi ne seront pas mieux accueillis de Christ que les trois disciples lorsqu'ils lui demandèrent de faire tomber le feu du ciel pour détruire les Samaritains: "Vous ne savez de quel esprit vous êtes animés."

Et les paroles qu'il adressa à Pierre dans une occasion différente il ne les croirait pas trop sévères pour les leur appliquer ici:

"Retire-toi de moi, Satan, tu m'es en scandale: car tu ne comprends pas les choses qui sont de Dieu, mais celles qui sont des hommes."

Mais autant il y a de distance entre un pole et l'autre, autant il y en a entre la persécution et les principes et les maximes de l'Evangile, entre la persécution et la conduite de Christ et de ses apotres.

La Saintete.

Quand Jésus-Christ est venu au monde il s'est proposé de détruire les œuvres du diable; et les œuvres du diable sont principalement deux: le péché et la peine qui suit le péché. Ne vous imeginez donc pas que Jésus-Christ soit venu au monde pour oter seulement la peine et pour laisser le péché: il est venu pour détruire l'un et l'autre, et je dirais même qu'il est beaucoup plutot venu pour détruire le péché que la peine. La peine n'intéresse que la créature, mais le péché intéresse et la créature et le Créateur: il déshonore l'une et offense l'autre. La peine rend, à la vérité, l'homme malheureux; mais elle glorifie au moins la justice de Dieu, au lieu que le péché est également contraire et à la gloire de Dieu et à celle de l'homme. Quelle apparence y a-t-il que Jésus-Christ ait quitté le séjour de sa gloire et qu'il soit descendu du ciel pour acquérir l'impunité à des criminels, en les laissant, au reste, abimés dans leur corruption? Quelle apparence qu'il puisse donner sa communion à des rebelles et à des profanes?

Un des plus ardents ennemis de l'Evangile reprochait autrefois aux Chrétiens que leur Jésus était venu pour faire la plus horrible de toutes les sociétés. "Il appelle à soi, disait-il, les pécheurs, et laisse là les justes: ainsi il a rejeté tout ce qu'il y avait de bon au monde, et n'a ramassé que le mauvais." Fausse et cruelle accusation! "Il est vrai, répondait Origène, notre Jésus est venu pour appler les pécheurs mais c'est pour les appeler à la repentance, il rassemble les scélérats, mais c'est pour les convertir en nouveaux hommes, nous venons à lui avares et il nous rend libéraux; injustes et il nous fait équitables; emportés et il nous rend débonnaires; impies et il nous rend religieux. "C'est là le véritable effet que produit en nous la communion de Christ; elle nous transforme en son image; et ainsi la sainteté, la charité, la justice, sont inséparables de la communion de Jésus-Christ, car il est venu au monde pour détruire le péché.

Wine Bibbing and Mental Bankruptcy.—I can now say to young fellows who order a bottle of wine, and flatter themselves that in so doing they approve themselves "jolly dogs." No, my lads, it is because you are dull dogs that you want the wine. You are forced to borrow excitement because you have squandered your natural gaiety. The ordering of the wine is a confession of insolvency. When we feel it necessary to "take something" at certain times during the day, we are in a condition similar to that of a merchant who every day about the anxious hour of half past two, has to run around among his neighbors borrowing credit. Its something disgraceful or suspicious. Nature does not supply enough of inward force. We are in arrears. Our condition is absurd, and, if we ought not to alarmed, we ought at least to be ashamed. Nor does the borrowed credit increase our store: it leaves nothing behind to enrich us, but takes something from our already insufficient stock; and the more pressing our need the more it costs us to borrow.

The Germans of Missouri are nearly a unit against Blair, whom they know to distrust. They are full of enthusiasm, and ready to take a most active part in the campaign whenever called upon; and many good Germans who last year voted the Conservative local tickets have avowed themselves in favor of Grant and Colfax.

Letter from Omaha.

Omaha, September 7.

An invitation from a friend to us to visit Laramie City was joyfully accepted, and a few days later found us in one of Pullman's elegant palace cars, several of which make daily trips over the Union Pacific railroad. Leaving Omaha at 4:20 P. M., we arrived at our destination on Laramie plain at 8:15 P. M. the following day, a distance of 560 miles, and found our host and hostess very pleasantly located a short distance from the city of Laramie. I suppose you are aware that all these Western towns are dignified by the title of cities.

I would have been pleased if some of my Eastern friends who lamented our forlorn and desolate life upon the frontier, could have looked into that pleasant dining room the evening of our arrival; the table with its snowy cloth, handsome silver, and viands fit for a prince. The cuisine was furnished with all the dainties of the season—fresh fruits and vegetables, with all the delicacies of the East. The hardships usually attendant upon a frontier life which have hitherto deterred many from visiting the West are fast disappearing before the advancing power of the age in this Western land—the Union Pacific railroad.

The residence of mine host is situated on the plain, looking south; and from the piazza in front, where I spent most of my leisure time, could be seen on the left the long range of the Black Hills, distant about ten miles, but apparently not more than two. The constantly shifting lights and shadows chasing each other over their rugged slopes were a never ceasing delight and attraction to me. Upon the plain, at a distance of twenty-five miles extends the long blue of the Medicine Bow mountains, while far to the south appears the snowy range, its lofty peaks as white and cold in the rays of the midsummer sun as in the month of January. Just before us could be seen the log houses of the military post, Fort Saunders, so plainly visible that I proposed we should just step over and speak with a friend of mine residing there while waiting for breakfast, when I was told that my "step over" would be rather a protracted one, as the post was in reality two and a half miles distant. It requires a great stretch of imagination for an Eastern person to realize the distance of objects on these vast plains, which are so distinctly visible to the naked eye and seemingly close at hand. The altitude at this point is over seven thousand feet above the level of the sea. The grandest and most sublime celestial phenomena are of frequent occurrence here. I saw the most perfect and brilliant hued rainbow spanning the Black Hills that I ever beheld, the reflection being as bright, perfect, and entire as any I ever saw in the East, while the first or main bow was formed entire of the deepest and most gorgeous colors. Again, I witnessed a striking feature of these plains at this season—three thunder storms at different points at the same time, while the sun shone brightly in the clear blue expanse over our heads. Of the sunsets ever varying, yet ever beautiful beyond description, I will say I do not believe it possible there can be anything superior in beauty in any land.

I have spent many an hour in the depths of our New England forest, where I sought solitude and silence, but never did I fully realize the sense of those words till I stood alone on Laramie plain, with no tree or shrub visible through which the breeze might cause a whispering sound to break the silence, where no murmuring of brooks, singing of birds, lowing of herds, or any other sound falls upon the ear: it is one unbroken silence. I could imagine the feeling of utter lonliness, desolation, and despair that would fall upon a traveler lost in these wilds a few years ago. This vast plain, walled in by two ranges of mountains, the snow-crowned peaks of which are visible for sixty or seventy miles, with no human habitation for hundreds of miles. That was a sense of solitude few would care to experience. But witness the change in the past three years, and the star of empire still marches steadily on. Magic cities spring up along the great iron highway. What a field is here for the labors of the missionary!

A sad tragedy was enacted in Laramie the morning following our arrival there. A youth of sixteen was hung for the murder of two men. His remains were borne past the house in a rough pine box, to find a resting place neath the sod on this lonely plain, thousands of miles from the home where perchance a good mother watches for the return or her boy, still so fondly loved, who will come no more forever. The scene has haunted me; so young in years, so old in crime. O, that some word fitly spoken might have reached him in time to save; but, alas! death came to him in the midst of crime, and there were none to speak a kindly word.

"The Indians again on the war path!" is a cry that spreads a panic through the land. We had been in the bluffs but a few days before when,

> "All was as peaceful and as still
> As the mist slumbering on yon hill;
> These dangerous chiefs were then afar,
> Nor soon expected back for war."

But the word came, a man scalped and the woodcutters in the hills driven in by the Sioux. A man herding his stock a few miles from Cheyenne was surprised by a band of Sioux and killed. I met a member of the peace commission, who attributed this latter warlike demonstration on the part of the Sioux to the fact that their ancient enemies the Pawnees, under their white commander, Colonel North, had been killing buffalo on their (the Sioux) hunting grounds. However that may be, it is evident we may look for trouble from them. I met the physician who attended Mr. Cahoor, the man who was twice scalped last spring, and he gave me all the facts in the case. The man was pierced with ten arrows, one passing entirely through his left lung, entering at the back and coming out through the chest; besides this five other arrows penetrated his lungs, but not so deep. He was scalped by two Indians, the first taking what is called the scalp lock from the top of the head, the other cutting a round piece from the back of the head, near the neck. It would seem impossible that a man left in such a state for dead could recover, but such is the case. The surgeon said his wounds healed much more rapidly in the pure mountain air than they would have done elsewhere. As soon as he was sufficiently recovered he returned to his home in the East. I learned a few days since that he would shortly return to the Territory again.

I heard many interesting incidents relative to the manners and custums of the Indians on the plains from Dr. L——, of Cheyenne, who has spent many years on the frontier.

Some of the Indian names are very musical. Mahpalutah or Red Cloud, the chief of the Bad Faces, called in Sioux dialect Etasesha. He is the chief who has always refused to come into council with the pale faces. The Indian name for Spotted Tail, the great chief of the Sioux nation, is Sintagalisgah, which literally translated signifies spotted ox or cow. Many of the Indian names are corrupted by the interpreters, who are ignorant men, thereby losing half their beauty, for many of them are really poetical; yet there is little of poetry or romance in the Indian life as seen upon these plains. The Sioux widow during her term of mourning is an object of painful interest. Taking her seat where she can overlook the grave of her buried chief, and having cut off her hair with his hunting knife, she proceeds to cut huge gashes in her face, arms, and breast, with the design to thus disfigure herself that no other may love her, and that she may remain true to the memory of the loved and lost. She accompanies this self-torture by a monotonous wailing and howling fearful to listen to: few tears, however, follow this systemetic grief, which Dr. L—— said reminded him of the weeping women of Palestine. The term of their mourning is very short, when all their woe is evidently laid aside and forgotten.

How many of the pale face nation at the present day are there who

> "In their sable weeds appear,
> Grieve for an hour, perhaps, then mourn a year,
> And bear about the mockery of woe,
> To midnight dances, and the public show?"

A. J. S.

Adroit.—The conductors of the papers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South are entitled to some credit for ingenuity, if not for consistency. They cry out lustily against the policy of allowing religious papers to mix up with the discussions of mere partisan questions of a political character, and thus far we find no fault with them; but then they do indirectly what they deny themselves the right of doing directly. They do all in their power to build up the political party that is benefited by abuse of what they call radicalism. Their vituperation and bitter denunciation of the measures of Congress are not excelled by the rankest partisan sheets in the country. But we have looked in vain for a word of condemnation of the atrocities of the Ku-Klux in any one of them. On this subject they are silent as the grave; and when they find a word in a Northern paper condemning the inhuman conduct of these masked demons, they seize upon it and quote it as applied to the helpless, conquered people of the South! They boast of the power and influence of their Church, and affect to despise the feebleness of our efforts in the Southern States, and then send out such pitiful complaints of oppressions and persecutions by Northern Methodists as to carry the impression that they are a feeble, innocent people, struggling for existence, while these hated emissaries from the North are trampling them beneath the heel of power!—Western Advocate.

A correspondent from the Plains says:

The gap between the Union Pacific Railroad, eastern division, and the California end is now only seven hundred miles. Including both ends six miles a day are now being laid. Twelve thousand men are now at work building the road at the west end of the Omaha or eastern division. The company has also four thousand five hundred men operating the road. I have these figures from headquarters.

The Indians are still making trouble among the border settlements. General Sherman has given stringent orders to General Sheridan, and the red man will be driven from the white settlements if he does not keep the treaties made, or suffer the bloody consequences. Extermination will be the next order. The brave and noble old General Harney left here a few days ago for the scene of Indian difficulties. He seems to be almost the only General respected by the savages.

Drifting of the Current.

Ten old Democrats of Mishawaka, Indiana, have enrolled themselves among the Boys in Blue.

A Republican paper at Des Moines, Iowa, states that by actual count fifty-two persons in that township who have heretofore been Democrats, have declared their intention to vote for Grant and Colfax.

The La Salle Press, of Minnesota, which before the New York Convention gave the Republican party some pretty hard knocks, has since come out squarely and fairly for Grant and Colfax.

Horace Bemis, a recent prominent Democrat in Steuben county, made his first Republican speech at Darnsville, a few evenings since. Rebel affiliation of the Democrats is rapidly thinning their ranks.

It is stated that Hon. W. H. English, of Indiana, for several years a member of Congress from the Second District of that State, and the author of the celebrated "English bill," is a warm supporter of Grant and Colfax.

A large manufacturer in a town near Concord, New Hampshire, who has always been a Democrat, and who voted for McClellan four years ago, now declares openly and boldly that there is no course for men who value peace, stability, and security to person and property, except to vote for Grant and Colfax.

G. L. Bittinger, Esq., a leading Democrat of Montana, Boone county, Iowa, and chairman of the Democratic Executive committee for the Eleventh Judicial District, has declared his intention to support Grant and Colfax.

Though disfranchised, he could not refrain, he said, from paying his respects to the Great Captain of the Age. He said he was now called a "scallawag." He was a Union man in 1861, and he had rather be called a "scallawag" now than a Democrat. General Wickham is further reported as follows:

Seymour and Blair, he said, were the candidates of the Democratic party. General Blair had said it was the duty of the United States Government to use every means to overthrow the reconstructed governments of the Southern States. He asked if the people would submit to the carrying out of this doctrine without resistance, and would not the country again be launched into a war more ferocious and more bloody than the one through which we have just passed? If any thing could bring the States back into the Union it was the enforcement of the Reconstruction laws. The Southern States had no other rights but those given by the conqueror to the conquered, and the first terms offered by the United States Congress to the seceded States were the best they ever had, or ever will have, offered to them. These would have been accepted but for the policy of Andrew Johnson, which led the old Democratic leaders to believe they could still carry out—as they always had done—their views, and sway the affairs of the country.

He was in favor of the electian of Grant, because it would be a victory for all by breaking down the Democratic party. If this could be done everything would be made right in a short time. He declared that he never believed in the right of secession, but that when Virginia seceded he went with her, and fought the war through on the Southern side. He believed the election of Grant and Colfax would open a new page in the history of the nation, and that it would be a panacea for all the ills under which it is now suffering. He believed that any distinction of parties, based on a distinction of races, would be destructive of both the white and the colored race.

Retiring from and Assuming Command.

General Buchanan issued this order yesterday:

In obedience to paragraph 4, General Orders No. 55, Headquarters of the Army, dated Washington, D. C., July 28, 1868, the undersigned hereby relinquishes command of the Department of Louisiana to Brevet Major General Lovell H. Rousseau, United States army.

General Rousseau issued this as a sequence to the foregoing:

I. In obedience to paragraph 4, General Orders No. 55, Headquarters of the Army, dated Washington, D. C., July 28, 1868, the undersighed hereby assumes command of the Department of Louisiana.

II. The staff of the department will remain as at present organized.

Too Many Letters.—The Jacobin organ in this city says, in reference to the "tag, rag and bobtail" display Saturday night, "the masses are for Grant." This is about as true as its figures transforming some five into fifteen thousand. Said organ, however, made a nearer approximation to truth than usual, as, by merely dropping the first letter of "masses," it would have asserted what is well known in this community to be true.—Times.

We are extremely careful to make no mistakes which would let the Times man into our party.

Another Gun.—New Mexico held her territorial election on Tuesday, and did nobly. The response which she made to the voice of Vermont is of the most cheering and satisfactory tenor. Last year, Charles P. Clever was elected delegate to Congress over Chavez, the Republican candidate, by a majority of 97. In 1865, the Republicans had a majority of 2331, while in 1863 the Democrats carried the Territory by a majority of 1106. Now, New Mexico repudiates in toto her "reaction," and elects a territorial Legislature, two-thirds of the members of which are out-and-out Radicals. New Mexico being still in leading strings, has no voice in the Presidential contest, but the result of her appeal to the people shows how thoroughly they are in accordance with the spirit of the great Republican party. By-and-by another worthy member will be added to the sisterhood of States. She will prove in both houses of Congress and in the electoral college a fitting offset to rampant little Delaware.

Republican Victory In Colorado.—The Republicans have won a brilliant triumph in the Territorial election in Colorado. Denver, the capital, which last year elected a Democratic Mayor, now gives Bradford, (Republican) for Congress, 221 majority. As far as heard from, Bradford was ahead by 500 majority, and the Chairman of the Republican Central Committee estimates his majority in the whole Territory at 800 to 1000. At the last contest for Congress the vote was as follows:

|---|---|
| Republican | 4458 |
| Democratic | 4046 |
| Majority | 467 |

That majority is now doubled.

The contest was animated, and each side did its "level best," but the Grant men came out far ahead, as will be the case this fall in all the elections, except in Kentucky and other Ku-Klux ridden States.

George C. Bates, of Chicago, one of the most eloquent speakers in the West, who has recently acted with the Democrats, is speaking for Grant.

Hon. Nathaniel Boyden, Democratic Member of Congress from the Sixth District of North Carolina, has written a letter strongly in favor of the election of Grant and Colfax.

At a meeting of the First Ward Grant Club, Allegbany City, Pennsylvania, last week, an old man named Cornelius, seventy-five years of age, came forward and put down his name. He had never before voted any but the Democratic ticket, but couldn't go it any longer.

Seymour's Confidence.

"Isn't Seymour confident of his own election?" we are often asked. "He talks as though he was."

We cannot say; but we happen to know that he always talks so. Four years ago, making a Democratic speech at Milwaukee, he said:

"The Administration has lost faith in the people of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan, and they have lost faith in the Administration. If we have failed in this war, it is because the Administration has established a policy which has rendered ineffectual our efforts in the field. The result of the coming elections involves the liberty of our country. It is to decide whether you are to be safe in your own homes and by your own firesides; and there is no greater national trouble than that which penetrates the home and reaches the fireside. Greater questions, graver questions, questions which come more directly home to the hearts and interests of men, have never been submitted to the people for their arbitration; and in their decision, that which is for the interest of Democrats is also for the interest of Republicans. We believe we are to triumph in the contest. No man can doubt this who saw what I saw in Chicago. It was the largest number of men my eyes ever rested upon."

Two months later, the election took place, when Mr. Lincoln carried Ohio by nearly 60,000, Indiana by over 20,000, Illinois by over 30,000 and Michigan by nearly 17,000, with all the other States voting but New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, and Kentucky. That disposed of Seymour's prophecy; but he has since gone on prophesying as confidently as ever.—New York Tribune,

DIED:

PATTERSON—In the town of Canton, September 7, 1868, EMMA, daughter of Charles and Sarah Patterson, aged twelve years.

Emma was a very interesting and consistent member of the day and Sabbath school of this place, and it is with deep regret that we record her gain and our loss. Her schoolmates, draped in mourning followed her remains to the church, where the services were conducted by Rev. J. Lynch. I have never before witnessed an event that so deeply impressed the youth of her class as did this visitation. She was one of several that I had looked upon as peculiarly fitted by nature and God's grace in her heart to become a teacher of her own people. But God's ways are inscrutable and past finding out. He doeth all things well. I trust that the parents and schoolmates may through their blinding tears see the words of our Saviour, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." A TEACHER.

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Passed at the Second Session of the Fortieth Congress.

[Public—No. 70.]

AN ACT making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the government for the year ending June thirty, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums be and the same are hereby appropriated for the objects hereinafter expressed, for the fiscal year ending the thirtieth June, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, viz:

MISCELLANEOUS.

For necessary expenses in carrying into effect the several acts of Congress authorizing loans and the issue of treasury notes, one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars: Provided, That none of the said sum shall be used to pay commissions for the purchase, sale, or conversion of the bonds or notes of the United States: And provided further, That all necessary letter-press printing and book-binding, in all the departments and bureaus, shall be done and executed at the Government Printing Office, and not elsewhere, except registered bonds and written records, which may be bound as heretofore at the department.

For carrying out the provisions of the acts of the thirtieth of August, eighteen hundred and fifty-two, for the better protection of the lives of passengers on vessels propelled in whole or in part by steam, and of the acts amendatory thereof, the following sums, to wit: For the salaries of the supervising and local inspectors, eighty thousand four hundred dollars; for the traveling expenses of the supervising inspectors, ten thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary: Provided, That no supervising inspector shall be allowed for travel in his district in any one year a greater sum than one thousand dollars; for the traveling expenses of the local inspectors, twelve thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary: Provided further, That no local inspector shall be allowed for travel in any one year a greater sum than five hundred dollars. For the traveling expenses of a special agent of the department, one thousand five hundred dollars; for the expenses of the meeting of the board of supervising inspectors, including travel, printing of manual and report, three thousand five hundred dollars, and there shall be but one meeting annually of the said board, which shall be at the city of Washington, on the second Wednesday of January in each year: for stationery, for furniture of offices and repair thereof, for repair and transportation of instruments, and for fuel and lights, fifteen thousand dollars.

For facilitating communication between the Atlantic and Pacific States by electrical telegraph, forty thousand dollars.

For expenses in detecting and bringing to trial and punishment persons engaged in counterfeiting treasury notes, bonds, and other securities of the United States, as well as the coins of the United States, and other frauds upon the government, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

To meet expenses incurred in the prosecution and collection of claims due the United States, fifteen thousand dollars, to be disbursed under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury.

For supplying deficiency in the fund for the relief of sick and disabled seamen, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; Provided, That hereafter the Secretary of the Treasury shall communicate at each annual session of Congress a full and complete statement in detail of the amounts collected from seamen, and also the amount expended for sick and disabled seamen, in accordance with the provisions of the act af May third, eighteen hundred and two.

For salaries of commissioners under "An act to provide for the revision and consolidation of the statute laws of the United States," approved June twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, and for clerical services and other incidental expenses, the printing to be done by the Government Printing Office, seventeen thousand dollars.

For payment of the messengers of the respective States for conveying to the seat of government the votes of the electors of said States for President and Vice-President of the United States, twenty-five thousand dollars.

Towards rebuilding the United States Military Asylum for disabled soldiers at Togus, near Augusta, Maine, destroyed by accidental fire, twenty-five thousand dollars; Provided, That the building shall be completed without any further appropriation by the government.

For the payment for the Congressional Globe and Appendix for the fiscal year ending June thirty, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, twenty thousand dollars; to be taken from the appropriation heretofore made and unexpended for the purchase of one complete set of the Congressional Globe and Appendix for each senator and representative who has not already received them.

SURVEY OF THE COAST.

For the survey of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts of the United States, including compensation of civilians engaged in the work and excluding pay and emoluments of officers of the army and navy, and petty officers and men of the navy employed in the work, two hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars.

For continuing the survey of the western coast of the United States, including compensation of civilians engaged in the work, one hundred and thirty thousand dollars.

For publishing the observations made in the progress of the coast survey of the United States, including compensation of civilians employed in the work, five thousand dollars.

For pay and rations of engineers for steamers used in the hydrography of the coast survey, no longer supplied by the Navy Department, per act of June twelfth, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, ten thousand dollars.

For repairs and maintenance of the complement of vessels used in the coast survey, thirty thousand dollars.

NORTHERN AND NORTHWESTERN LAKES.

For the survey of northern and northwestern lakes, seventy-five thousand dollars.

LIGHTHOUSE ESTABLISHMENT.

For the Atlantic, Gulf, Lake and Pacific coasts, viz:

For supplying the light-houses and beacon-lights with oil, wicks, glass chimneys, chamois skins, whiting, spirits of wine, polishing powder, cleaning towels, brushes, and other necessary expenses of the same, and repairing and keeping in repair the lighting apparatus, two hundred and forty six thousand dollars: Provided, That the Light-house Board be, and hereby is, authorized to apply the amount heretofore appropriated "for building a light house on a proper site at Trowbridge Point, in Thunder bay, in the State of Michigan," to building a light house on a more eligible site, if such can be found in the immediate vicinity: And provided further, That the appropriation now available for rebuilding the light house at Bailey's Harbor, Lake Michigan, be applied to the erection of a new structure between that point and North bay, and upon its completion the light at Bailey's Harbor shall be discontinued.

For the necessary repairs and incidental expenses, improving and refitting light-houses and buildings connected therewith, two hundred thousand dollars.

For salaries of five hundred and eighty-nine keepers of lighthouses and lighted beacons, and their assistants, four hundred and eighty-seven thousand three hundred and fifty-two dollars.

For salaries of keepers of light-vessels, twenty-one thousand three hundred dollars.

For seamen's wages, repairs, supplies, and incidental expenses of twenty-four light-vessels, two hundred and thirty-two thousand two hundred and ninety dollars.

For expenses of raising, cleaning, painting, repairing, remooring, and supplying losses of beacons and buoys, and for chains and sinkers for the same, two hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

For repairs and incidental expenses of refitting and improving fog-signals and buildings connected therewith, twenty thousand dollars.

For expenses of visiting and inspecting lights and other aids to navigation, two thousand dollars.

For a lighted beacon on Rose island, Narraganset bay, seven thousand five hundred dollars.

For repairs and renovations at Watch Hill, North Dumpling, and Saybrook light station, Connecticut, ten thousand dollars.

For a fog signal at Eaton's Neck light station, three thousand dollars.

For the erection of a permanent buoy on Success Rock, Long Island sound, three thousand dollars.

For repairs and renovations at Brockway's Reach and Bordeo's Flats beacons, eleven thousand four hundred dollars.

For protecting the lighthouse site at Barnegat, New Jersey, seven thousand dollars.

For a new lantern at Delaware Breakwater light station, two thousand dollars.

For range lights on Sullivan's island, Charleston harbor, fifteen thousand dollars.

For day beacons on Oyster Rocks, mouth of Savannah river, two thousand dollars.

For rebuilding the lighthouse at Cape Canaveral, Florida, and fitting it up with a first-order catadioptric light, in addition to former appropriations, thirty thousand dollars.

For reimbursing the keepers at Timbalier lighthouse the loss of their private property, destroyed with the lighthouse, four hundred dollars.

For range lights at Bailey's Harbor, Wisconsin, six thousand dollars.

For repairs and renovations at Beaver Island light station, five thousand dollars.

For renovating and relighting the lighthouse on Michigan island, Lake Superior, six thousand dollars.

For a range of lights for Cooper Harbor, Lake Superior, with a fog bell or such other ear signal as the Secretary of the Treasury on the recommendation of the Lighthouse Board may adopt, in addition to former appropriations, five thousand dollars.

For a first-order lighthouse at Point Ano Nuevo, or vicinity, California, ninety thousand dollars.

For a steam lighthouse tender for the twelfth district, to replace the one wrecked on the coast of California, ninety thousand dollars.

By his nephew, Pierre M. Irving, Vol. IV., page 272:

"The doctor prescribed as an experiment—what had been suggested by Dr. (O. W.) Holmes on his late visit—'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma,' a teaspoonful in a wine-glass of water, to be taken every four hours. A good night was the result."

In no case of purely Asthmatic character has it failed to give prompt relief, and in many cases a permanent cure has been effected. No danger need be apprehended from its use. An infant may take it with perfect safety. [See circular.]

AMERICAN MUSICAL CLASS BOOK.

Designed for Female Colleges, Institutes, Seminaries, and Normal and High Schools. Containing Elementary Instructions, Vocal Exercises and Solfeggios, and a valuable Collection of Duets, Trios, and Concerted Pieces.

By T. Bissell—Price 75c.

Among the numerous works of the kind this cannot fail of a prominence, since its peculiar features are such as will commend it at once to the patronage of those for whom it is chiefly intended. Its rudimental lessons proceed with a regularity of precision that cannot fail to fix permanently on the mind of the pupil the essentials of success in future studies. The exercises are in a form to attract the attention, and the selection of music is one of the best, if not the superior of all similar collections. Principals of Educational Institutions, Music Teachers, and others interested in books of this class, will find it advantageous to examine this volume. THE GERMANIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, established in 1860, and based upon the most approved principles of Life Insurance security, presents its claims for consideration, believing that its solid foundation already secured by the faithful and efficient management of its officers and Board of Directors will give it the preference above all other similar institutions.

It is purely Mutual, as the net profits are distributed among the parties insured, the interest of the capital stock being only five per cent according to its charter.

It assumed the system of cash payments at the commencement of its existence, and maintained it faithfully until now, and promises the same for the future, thereby securing to policy holders the full amount for which they are insured. The advantage of this system over the half cash and half note system is patent to every careful observer, but will be more fully illustrated by the following statement and table:

If a person of thirty years of age insures his life for the amount of $1000 in one of the credit companies, and pays a premium of $28 30 per year, with a note for half of the premium, then by means of this note and interests thereon the amount will become less and less in the following proportions:

| | |
|---|---|
| After 10 years the $1000 will amount to | $887 44 |
| After 15 years the $1000 will amount to | 795 28 |
| After 20 years the $1000 will amount to | 666 02 |
| After 25 years the $1000 will amount to | 484 73 |
| After 30 years the $1000 will amount to | 230 47 |
| After 33 years the $1000 will amount to | 32 53 |
| After 34 years the $1000 will amount to | Nothing. |

So that after a lapse of 34 years the whole amount will be eaten up, notwithstanding the parties insured paid their money in good faith.

The large dividend of 40 per cent declared last January is evidence of the care and success with which the Managers have conducted the enlarged and rapidly increasing interests of the Company, and vouches for its future brilliant and permanent prosperity.

Parties contemplating an assurance on their lives will do well to examine the status of this Company, every facility for which will be given by the

THE SUPERFLUOUS MAN.

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

[It is ascertained by the inspection of the registers of many countries that the uniform proportion of male to female births is twenty-one to twenty; accordingly, in respect to marriage, every twenty-first man is naturally superfluous.—Smith's Treatise on Population.]

I have long been puzzled to guess,
And so I have frequently said,
What the reason could really be
That I never have happened to wed;
But now it is perfectly clear—
I am under a natural ban:
The girls are already assigned—
And I'm a superfluous man!

These clever statistical chaps
Declare the numerical run
Of women and men in the world
Is twenty to twenty and one;
And hence in the pairing you see,
Since wooing and wedding began,
For every connubial score,
They've got a superfluous man!

By twenties and twenties they go,
And giddily rush to their fate,
For none of the number, of course,
Can fail of a conjugal mate;
But while they are yielding in scores
To nature's inflexible plan
There's never a woman for me—
For I'm a superfluous man.

It isn't that I am a churl,
To solitude over-inclined;
It isn't that I am at fault
In morals, or manners, or mind;
Then what is the reason, you ask,
I am still with the bachelor's clan?
I merely was numbered amiss—
And I'm a superfluous man!

It isn't that I am in want
Of personal beauty or grace,
For many a man with a wife
Is uglier far in the face;
Indeed among elegant men
I fancy myself in the van,
But what is the value of that,
When I'm a superfluous man?

Although I am fond of the girls,
For aught I could ever discern,
The tender emotion I feel
Is one that they never return;
'Tis idle to quarrel with fate,
For struggle as hard as I can,
They're mated already you know—
And I'm a superfluous man!

No wonder I grumble at times,
With women so pretty and plenty,
To know that I never was born
To figure as one of the twenty!
But yet when the average lot,
With critical vision I scan,
I think it may be for the best
That I'm a superfluous man.

ENIGMA.

As oft upon the distant plain
My timid first appears;
He turns affrighted back again,
When my second there he hears.

Where the sage-hen builds her nest
Beside the wild Sioux trail
On the rocky mountain crest
That overlooks the vale;

There my whole in beauty grows,
While far above its bed
Are piled the everlasting snows
On the loftier peaks o'erhead.

Letter from Omaha.

OMAHA, September 15.

Finding myself again at Cheyenne last week, I resumed my inquiries relative to our Indian difficulties, and elicited the following facts:

The different tribes who have hitherto made peace treaties with the whites, and broken them at the first opportunity, are once more on the war-path, showing the members of the Peace Commission the reed on which they leant—

Deeming these wilds they might pass through,
Trusting to treaties with the Sioux.

All these warlike tribes are alike treacherous and unreliable. The chiefs show their certificates from the Commission certifying them to be good, honest, peace-loving Indians, and laughing at the confiding white man, say:

"Pale face no fight; pale face all squaws: talk fight big, but no fight." They reason in this wise: "We fight pale face; we kill heap; then they come make treaty; give us heap to eat, heap clothes, heap everything; then Indian no fight any more; but when these things all gone, then Indian go fight again; kill heap more white men; then they come, want to make more treaties givie heap more things!" And so on to the end of the chapter. The Commission have cried peace, peace, when there was no peace, until the true state of the case as presented to them by every frontiersman seems to be dawning upon them now. Many of the Indians are armed with knives, revolvers, and rifles, with plenty of ammunition, while some of them even carry field glasses, with which from the bluffs they survey the distant trains and watch, themselves unseen, calculating the chances of a successful raid. What is to be done with a foe who breathing the spirit of the Seminole chief of yore, who said:

"I scorn your proffered treaty,
The pale face I defy;
I'll curse ye with my latest breath,
And fight ye till I die!"

Yet consent to the making of treaties, and go directly from the council to skulk about the hills, seeking an early opportunity to break their word and show their contempt for the white man.

It is a pity that this great garden of the West, stretching from the Missouri hundreds of miles toward the setting sun, should not be cultivated and its rich yielding soil made fruitful for the benefit of the countless thousands who are seeking homes upon our shores. Was not that sentence pronounced upon all nations of the earth: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread till thou return unto the ground;" and yet look at these Indians of the plains—a set of idle, vicious, thieving savages as ever infested a country. The "noble red man" is not all my fancy painted him, nor does the filthy uncouth being wandering about these prairies in the least resemble my noble, brave, handsome ideal chief. While contemplating a beautiful sunset a few evenings since, I was accosted by a couple of Pawnee squaws. I turned to look at them, and one, rather more intelligent looking than the most of them, attracted my attention. Here, thought I, as I observed she too was gazing into the glorious cloud-land, here, then, I have found an Indian with a poetic soul. Pointing to the west, she said:

"Pretty!"

"Yes; beautiful!" I exclaimed, happy in the belief that I had at length discovered a germ of refined taste in this people in whom I had been so disappointed. I inquired her name, to which she replied in good English, "Jessie," and said her companion's name was "Minnie." I involuntarily added the ha, ha! as I glanced at the true repulsive type of the Indian race before me, and mentally compared her with Mr. Longfellow's beautiful, attractive ideal "Laughing Water." Turning again to Jessie, who had expressed her admiration for the sunset, in the hope that she would continue the conversation in the same strain. The delusion was entirely dispelled by the next salutation: "Very good; givie ten cents," and the faint shadow of intelligence had faded out, leaving the greedy look of the beggar which characterizes them all. Were I a believer in the transmigration of souls I should say the souls now possessing the bodies of the Pawnees had once animated the forms of swine, the grunt (ugh!) is so suggestive of that animal, and then the life they lead, wallowing in filth, and feeding on garbage that the dogs would turn from in disgust, while in addition to their swinish attributes they possess a ferocity of nature worthy of the most savage, untamed panther or wildcat that ever pounced upon the unwary traveler in the wilderness. What shall be done with them? May a wise Providence direct those in authority to the best means of settling this momentous question.

Even while I write a report comes in from the road a man named Harkins, engaged in hauling stone for the culverts on the Union Pacific railroad, has been killed and scalped by the Indians near Potter Station on last Friday. The Indians took his span of mules, and left his wagon standing on the plains.

The Union Pacific Railroad company has doubled the guard force at all the stations along the route, and the military are making preparations to drive all the Indians out of that country.

The Omaha Herald of to-day has this telegram: "The amount appropriated at the last session of Congress to remove certain Indian tribes, with whom treaties were made by the Peace Commissioners last year, to the new reservations has just been transmitted to General Sherman, and the transfer is expected to commence in time to prevent further trouble."

At Cheyenne we had the good fortune to meet Mr. Colfax and party returning from their mountain trip. They reported the Indians as very troublesome all through that section of the country, and said they were committing terrible ravages even within twenty miles of Denver City. It seems the party were themselves threatened with an attack from the Arapahoe Indians, but as they were furnished with an escort of Utes on their return they came through safely. Mr. Colfax was received with great enthusiasm all along the line. He speaks easily, and with a warmth and impressiveness of manner which seems to win the hearts of his hearers. He was most enthusiastically greeted by a large concourse of people both at Fremont and Omaha. At the former place they had come in from all parts of the surrounding country, having heard that he was expected on the morning train, and loud, earnest and heartfelt were the cheers that greeted him, resounding over the prairies in the clear morning air. And may the gathering of our clans throughout the land "rise wild and high," until it merges into one song of victory, and the burden of that song be, Grant and Colfax, President and Vice-President elect of the United States.

A. J. S.

* Pale face, in the Sioux tongue called Wa-Secha, literally snow face, as from the poverty of their language they have no word signifying white; consequently the name of snow answers every purpose to convey their meaning when speaking of a white object.

Letter from Chicago.

The camp meeting season has closed. In this conference (Rock river), six, one in each presiding elder's district, were in session at the same time, the last of August. I had the pleasure of attending two of them, the Chicago and Joliet.

Both of these have become fixed institutions, the grounds being owned by the associations, and improved with permanent improvements. These associations are chartered corporations, which enables them to hold and transfer real estate. The Chicago association has expended this year some fifteen hundred dollars in permanent improvements; prominent among which are a ministers' house, and a boarding house, both built in a tasty and substantial manner.

Religiously, the meetings have not been all that could be desired. There were some sinners converted and some believers sanctified, but the proportion was altogether too small for the number in attendance. It is to be feared the object of camp meetings is too largely lost sight of by many who attend, especially in the vicinity of large cities. Many go to enjoy a day of recreation, or social visit, or to hear a good sermon, the religious benefits being overlooked. We can hardly expect anything more than this on the part of the unconverted, but Christian people ought to attend camp meetings for something more than to enjoy a picnic. Most of them we know do, but some we fear do not.

The experiment of holding the Chicago meeting, this year, between the Sabbaths proved very satisfactory. A more quiet and orderly meeting I never attended. But it resulted, as many anticipated it would, in having services on the ground two Sabbaths instead of one. But as no trains ran the crowd was not on the ground, and the tent-holders who were there had quiet and delightful Sabbaths.

Since writing my last the fearful heat has in a measure subsided, and we are now having most delightful weather. We have had abundant rains of late, which, together with the warm sunshine, is bringing forward the late crops with great rapidity, and in great abundance. The wheat crop, taking the country at large, was probably never better. The same may be said of corn and oats, and in fact all the staple crops. If any exception is to be made this year of the statement of abundance, it is with reference to the fruit crop, particularly of apples. The apple crop is a failure.

Another of those fearful lake disasters that have so often sent a thrill of horror through the community has just occurred opposite this city. Last Monday night the propeller Hippocampus, one the boats plying between this city and St. Joseph, Michigan, in the fruit trade, left the latter place for this. The boat had a cargo of some eight thousand boxes and baskets of peaches, and passengers and crew numbering forty-one souls. The boat was so heavily loaded it was rendered top heavy, and before it reached this port it capsized and went to the bottom of the lake. Out of the forty-one persons on board twenty-six found a watery grave. Nine of the crew and six of the passengers clung to bits of the wreck, and after floating upon the bosom of the lake from twenty-four to forty-eight hours were picked up by passing vessels. The failure of the vessel to be in on time had created the terrible suspicion that she was wrecked, and tugs had been sent out to search for her or such persons as might be found floating on pieces of the wreck, but the search was in vain. A passing vessel finally found the survivors and rescued them.

One would suppose such terrible disasters would have the effect of leading people to seek preparation for death by the repentance of their sins and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, but they do not. Judgments or calamities do not often have the effect of bringing people to Christ.

The political campaign is becoming quite exciting and interesting. Both parties are making earnest efforts to carry the day, and both claim to be confident of success. To elect Seymour and Blair would be equivalent to an indorsement of the rebellion, and a declaration that the war to put down the rebellion was all wrong. I can not believe that the people of this country are prepared to do any such thing, or to do anything that would be equivalent to saying so. I can not believe that the people of this country are so wanting in both gratitude and appreciation as to say to General Grant, "We have no further use for you; we prefer a man for President who did all he could to defeat your efforts to suppress the rebellion." But the ides of November will reveal the opinion of the people upon this subject. Vermont has ventured an opinion in advance, and it is wholesome. Maine has also expressed her opinion in a more emphatic manner, and Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and Iowa will soon follow in their footsteps. I am satisfied the people are not yet ready to surrender this government into the hands of traitors who ought to have expiated the terrible crimes of which they are guilty on the gallows.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, September 17.

September has made a vigorous effort to establish claims to be a summer month, and well nigh succeeded. The thermometer reached on Friday last ninety-two degrees in the shade, but as is usual with over-exertion, it was followed by a heavy thunder storm on Sunday. The rain fell in "solid column," though not as heavy in the city as in the environs. Since then preparations have been made for an equinoctial demonstration.

The reports concerning the corn crop in Maryland are very favorable, but otherwise in regard to tobacco.

It may not be amiss to fulfill the promise made last week, and return to the "Barry Farm." It is part of an extensive tract patented by Lord Baltimore, and called by him "St. Elizabeth." The farm embraces 375 acres, stretching from the Eastern Branch, opposite the navy yard, to the hills crowned by Fort Stanton, commanding an enchanting view of the city and its entire environs. It is regularly laid off into streets and avenues bearing the names of statesmen who have maintained the cause of freedom, such as Stevens, Sumner, Howard, and others known to fame. The mechanic, gardener, farmer, and day laborer are there, and so are the school master and minister. There is no grog shop. A cultivated patch, greater or less in extent, is connected with every cottage, the whole presenting an air of neatness and economy, and inspiring hope of future ease and substantial comfort. The products of some of these gardens have already yielded more than a thousand dollars this season. There is a moral lesson imparted by this humane enterprise that must be influential upon that class, and extending far beyond the hundreds now peopling those hills. It excites hope, and lifts the millstone of despair from the neck. It tells the poor man he may own his home as well as his body; that he has a future, because he is an actor in the present. Life has then a purpose, and its energies are stirred to accomplish it. An earthly home works wonders in the moral feelings of its possessor, and short as human life is, the munificent providence of God designed every man to own one. Our blessed Lord seems to have sanctioned and hallowed the associations of home and illustrated the purity of its joys in that tender expression: "In my Father's house are many mansions: I go to prepare a place for you." A homeless family is but a group of adult orphans, roaming the wilderness of life, burdened with its responsibilities, a stranger to its joys. Whence come the vagabond, the outcast, the pestilent in society? They come from the cloud-covered, houseless, thriftless class that has no tie to bind them to earth, and less to link them to heaven. To lift up the bowed down and give healing to the diseased is a work of moral grandeur resembling the infinite; but to invest the feeble with a bulwark of strength to shield himself from want is the work of divinity in self-resurrection. An exemplification of this truth, found in the munificent expenditures of Burdett Couts, sheds a lustre on human nature as well as upon her sex. This great benefactress, moved by the sublime teachings of the Redeemer, is contributing her vast fortune to build homes for the operatives of her neighborhood in England, and renting or selling them on terms within the reach of the poorest, but industrious laborer. Thus squalor yields to comfort, the solitary place becomes glad, and the desert blooms as the garden. Countless thousands will chant along the walks of virtuous life the name of this angel of the poor man's home, but for whom those tongues had been still in untimely graves; or if moved, only to "curse the day wherein it was said a man child is born."

There continues to prevail a very gratifying state of religious feeling in the Foundry Church, to which may be added the conversion of several persons at "Union," where service is held every evening. The storm of Sunday hindered the reunion love feast. Such, too, has been the interest connected with the daily prayer meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, that double the usual time is spent in its exercises.

A new feature of religious interest has recently come to notice in the arrangements made by the faculty of Columbia College for a theological chair to be connected with that institution.

The electric wires have announced to the country the meeting of Congress next Monday. The President has assured Tennessee that military protection and aid shall be afforded the civil authorities of that State to maintain the peace and order of the community.

Unmeasured censure has been bestowed on General Meade for his alleged cruelty in the treatment and imprisonment of witnesses and others connected with the Ashman murder in Georgia. President Johnson has recently allowed, in justice to General Meade, the publication of his report in the case; this report to headquarters places Meade where every mind expected to find him—entirely innocent of the malicious charge.

A letter written by General Grant to his father during the war, has recently been published. The letter places his conduct in regard to cotton speculators where every patriot desires to see it—free from taint of any sort.

A gentleman residing here has just returned from a visit to Virginia, where, for three weeks, he did not see a newspaper. A few "carpet-baggers" are needed in that section.

Judge William Johnson, of Ohio, is about to patent a burglar-proof window blind; the form and arrangement differs not materially from the common outside slat blind, but the material is iron instead of wood, except the frame, which is lined with iron; the slat made of Russia sheet iron, has a tube through the centre, an iron rod passes through and holds it to the frame. All the arrangements for admitting and excluding light and air now used in the most improved blinds are retained in this; but it gives the burglar vastly more trouble than he meets with in the blinds now used; it is also an improvement in ornament upon the old plan.

WORTH KNOWING.—A poison of any conceivable description and degree of potency, which has been taken into the stomach, may be rendered almost harmless by swallowing two gills of sweet oil. An individual with a very strong constitution should take twice the quantity. The oil will neutralize every form of vegetable or mineral poison with which the physicians and chemists are acquainted.

Les Pensees.

M. ANNESLEY.

God makes us happy by adapting us to our peculiar circumstances, that is, if we walk in the way of his providences. There is such a thing as making the crook in our own lot, then we are apt to fret in the yoke.

We see and desire many things that are beautiful, but do any of them at all equal the grand description God has given of the good things he has prepared for us who love and serve him? If we are his children, we will certainly, on the divine veracity, enter into that which "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him." Drooping, desponding Christian, look up, and rejoice with thanksgiving—now, in peaceful confidence in Christ enjoy your earnest of this glorious inheritance.

"The thoughts of such amazing bliss Should constant joys create."

There would be no trials of faith if there were no straight places. The church in all her passage through this world must continue the Bible testimony, and her individual members must strive to keep company with Abraham, Jacob, Elijah, Job, Paul and the Marys. If we would sit down at the supper of the Lamb, that worthy company, we must be able to enter into the spirit of notable exploits of faith—powerful conflicts, great and glorious conquests—all through the blood of the Lamb.

Idleness is a leading sin, at the head of a sorry train of crimes and vices. Teach your children from childhood to be useful, active and diligent. If they are poor weakly things it is better for them to die in the ways of industry than to waste away in sloth. Your heart will be sore stricken if you see them grow up without aim or purpose, useless and selfish, poor crouching mortals, unworthy a place in decent society. "The hand of the diligent maketh rich." "In all labor there is profit."

Charlotte Corday.

Not for the remarkable brilliancy of her intellect; not for a triumphant career of unsurpassed splendor; not for a life of patient and exalted suffering; but for one daring, self-sacrificing act does history perpetuate the name of Charlotte Corday.

Almost incompatible are the attributes of a beautiful, refined, gentle lady, with those of a cold-blooded murderess; yet amid the convulsions and agitations preceding the Reign of Terror such a seemingly incongruous combination of character appears as one of the many prominent actors in that heart-sickening period of French history. Dark is the background on which the fair picture of Charlotte Corday is painted, while the closing drama of her life falls over it like a gloomy pall.

Of noble descent, educated in a cloister, endowed with a native grace and dignity, possessed of a gentle yet enthusiastic nature, and so dazzlingly beautiful as to inspire her most bitter enemies with intense admiration, was this maiden of the eighteenth century, who conceived the heroic idea of devoting her own life to procure peace for her distracted country by being the messenger of death to one of its most despotic leaders.

Belonging to the Girondist party, she instinctively shuddered at the effect of the revolution, the anarchy and ruin attendant upon the usurpation of power by the Jacobins, and she resolved to resort to the assassination of the principal leader of the faction in order to relieve the country of their base tyranny.

She accordingly selected Marat for her victim, hoping, as she afterward declared, "by the death of one man to save a hundred thousand." With firmness she executed her resolution; Marat she killed; her own life she gave; but the disaster she sought to avert gathered more thickly than before around her fated country. The Jacobins remained in the ascendency. Danton and Robespierre assumed the control of power, executing the Girondists and all other opponents with the most barbarous inhumanity; and all the inexpressibly shocking horrors of the French revolution succeeded.

The deed which Charlotte Corday committed was not an act of fitful heroic impulse, but the ripe result of the growth of strong and deep-seated convictions. It was not Marat whom she hated, but his crimes. When questioned at her tribunal as to her purpose in committing so monstrous a crime, her answer, laconic, but replete with patriotism, was: "To prevent a civil war." To a friend she wrote just before her execution: "The happiness of my country makes mine."

Those who condemned her crime admired her undaunted bravery, and one who was deeply impressed with her lofty aim, her devoted purpose, proposed to erect a monument over the spot of her execution, with the inscription, "Greater than Brutus."

Although the grand results which she hoped to attain failed of accomplishment, yet among the heroines of past ages none exhibited more courageous devotion than did the heroic, misguided Charlotte Corday.

Church Zeal.

Now, you are Congregationalists in this Church, and if a division should come up among our Methodist brethren on the subject of lay representation, you should pray, and I should pray, that God would use this congregation for his own honor in that denomination. Let them not be damaged by anything you say or do. Men stand and see the troubles arising, or perhaps existing, in the Episcopal Church, and say, "Now, then, that Church will be got out of the way, and we shall have the spoils." We do not want the spoils. Christian, is not the Episcopal Church your Church? Is it not my Church? Where have I drawn the weapons with which I have contested with evils but from some of their most illustrious sons? Whence have come many of the most powerful aids by which I have been enabled to heal men's souls, and teach them the way of salvation, but from that Church? I am proud of their trophies; and when they put them upon their battlements, there is no envy in my heart. I own that Church, and every Church. I believe that Christ himself looks down from above upon every Church that looks up and calls him Lord and Master, and owns it as his. A true Christian spirit must do the same toward the Lord's children. And, my brethren, if a sect is brought into trouble, I pray God that they may safely come out of that trouble. Take care that you do not indulge in any feeling of envy or revenge. There is no Christianity in bitter sectarian feelings. Do not let them exist in your bosom. And if a sister Church is so unfortunate as to contain corrupt elements, pray God that He will purify them and make them more worthy of his name, and more worthy of your love.

No Church should seek to build itself up by pulling down another. I am very glad when members come into this church, on one side; and on one side I am very sorry. When men come into this church from the world, I am very glad; but when they come in from other Churches why should I rejoice? What does the common cause gain? It is their convenience, and therefore they come. But what advantage to God's cause is their coming? There is no more moral power in the world than there was before. The world is a hunting ground—not the Church. Christ is no richer if ten men that communed in the Episcopal Church yesterday communed here to-day. He is no better served. But if there are ten men that never knew the power of divine love, and I by showing them the power of divine love bring them into this church, then the Church of Christ is richer.

If in a village there should be a conference of families, and they should say, "Well, here are our sons who are about to be married, and have got to build themselves houses; and these sons, some twenty of them, should build them each a house, bringing the timber from the neighboring forests, the village would be richer; but suppose they go to pulling down poor men's houses, and using the material for building up houses of their own, and making one house out of three, is the village any richer?

Suppose I steal from the Baptist, is Christ any richer? Suppose I steal from the Methodist, is Christ any richer? Suppose I steal from the Episcopalians, is Christ any richer? Does religion have any more moral power in it? But if I steal from the devil, I get a clear gain. Every man that I take out of his hands is my lawful prey. I have a right to take from the world all I can, but not from Christian denominations. Is not that true? Does it not commend itself to every honest man's judgment as the true Christian doctrine in the sight of God? And if we all had this spirit would not Christianity gain incalculably in moral power in the great battle which it is waging with evil in this world?—Henry Ward Beecher.

Christ never designed his Church to be a bushel for the hiding place of the lights, but a candlestick from which each light is to send forth its rays.

STATE OF LOUISIANA.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

JOURNAL OF THE SENATE.

First Day's Proceedings.

SENATE CHAMBER, June 29, 1868—12 o'clock M.

The Senate was called to order by Lieutenant Governor O. J. Dunn, ex-officio President; after which prayer was offeoed by Rev. W. M. Henry.

The President then appointed Chas. H. Merritt Secretary pro tem.;

Mr. H. Mulford Sergeant-at-Arms pro tem., and Alfred Monroe Doorkeeper pro tem.

The Secretary then read the following communication from Headquarters, Fifth Military District:

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 27, 1868.

Special Orders No. 143.

[Extract.]

8. In obedience to instructions from the General commanding the army, Henry C. Warmoth is appointed Governor of the State of Louisiana in place of Joshua Baker, removed, and Oscar J. Dunn is appointed Lieutenant Governor in place of Albert Voorhies, removed, to take effect on Monday, the twenty-ninth instant, the date on which the Legislature of the State is notified to convene by the Governor elect.

The appointees will transmit to these Headquarters a copy of the required oath upon acceptance of their appointments.

By command of Brevet Major General R. C. Buchanan:

Official:

THOMAS H. NEILL,
Major Twentieth Infantry, Brevet Brigadier General U. S. A., A. A. A. G.

The following telegram received, dated Washington, June 18, 1868:

Received at New Orleans June, 1868.

To Brevet Major General R. C. Buchanan, Commanding Fifth Military District:

"General Grant returned this morning, and I have presented the entire subject to him. He instructed me to telegraph you as follows:

The instructions telegraphed on Saturday, in my absence, are approved and reaffirmed. Under the act of Congress now before the President and about to become a law the civil officers elected can not be installed in office until the State is admitted. Until then the State Government is provisional and entirely under your control. If you ordered the General Assembly not to meet, do not let it meet, but comply with the act of Congress herein referred to, and let its provisions have their full effect.

The matter of the oath to be taken by the members of the General Assembly is left entirely to your judgment. It is believed, however, that the oath prescribed by the new Constitution only should properly be required.

Your action with reference to municipal affairs is approved. Notify all concerned of the contents of this dispatch.

B. B. KEELER,
Brevet Major General, U. S. A.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT, New Orleans, La., June 29, 1868.

Official:

NATHANIEL BURBANK,
Second Lieutenant Thirty-seventh Infantry, U. S. A., A. A. A. General.

The following roll, furnished by the commander of the Fifth Military District, was then called, thirty-four members responding present, viz:

Twenty-second Senatorial District—J. B. Lewis.

Twenty-third Senatorial District—George Y. Kelso.

Twenty-fourth Senatorial District—J. D. Beares.

Messrs. Futch and Williams absent.

By direction of the President the Secretary read Article 99 of the Constitution; the President then decided that the test oath should be taken by each member in addition to the oath of office.

Mr. Blackman, of Twentieth District, appealed from the decision of the President.

The President decided that the appeal could not be entertained, because the members of the Senate were not yet qualified.

The subject was discussed by several members.

The Secretary, by direction of the President, read section 6 of the original reconstruction act, and section 9 of the supplemental act of March 2d, 1867.

The President then directed the roll to be called, and for each member, as his name was called, to come forward and take the test oath—to which Senators T. D. Beares, T. V. Coupland, J. J. Monette, C. B. Darrall, P. O'Hara, A. R. Francois, C. C. Packard, J. S. Harris, R. Poindexter, L. B. Jenks, C. Pollard, G. Y. Kelso, J. Ray, J. B. Lewis, W. F. Smith, J. Lynch, A. R. Whitney, C. Wilcox, J. Wittgenstein responded and were sworn; after which United States Commissioner Shannon administered the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution.

The roll of qualified members being called, all answered to their names but Mr. O'Hara.

The Sergeant-at-Arms was directed to bring Mr. O'Hara within the bar, which being done and a quorum being present, the Senate proceeded to business.

Mr. Smith moved that a committee of five be appointed by the President, on credentials.

Mr. Wilcox moved to amend by styling said committee "The Committee on Elections and Returns."

The amendment was accepted, and the motion as amended, adopted.

The President appointed M. F. Smith, chairman; G. Y. Kelso, Patrick O'Hara, Robert Poindexter, C. C. Packard, as said committee.

Mr. Lynch moved that the credentials of H[illegible] J. Campbell of the Second District [illegible]d by the Board of Registra[illegible] to the Committee on Elec-[illegible]

[illegible]ed that the protest of Messrs. G. W. Mader, David Wilson and S. R. Moses, of the First District, be referred to the Committee on Elections and Returns.

Adopted.

Mr. Ray moved that we adopt as a rule of this body, until otherwise ordered, that, when we adjourn daily, it be to twelve o'clock M. the following day.

Adopted.

On motion of Mr. Ray the Senate then adjourned.

C. H. MERRITT,
Secretary of the Senate.

Second Day's Session.

SENATE CHAMBER, New Orleans, June 30, 1868.

The Senate met pursuant to adjournment, and was called to order by President Dunn at twelve o'clock M.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Brakeman.

The roll was called by the Secretary pro tem, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Beares, Coupland, Darrall, François, Harris, Jenks, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Whitney, Wilcox, Wittgenstein.

Nineteen members present.

The minutes of yesterday were read and approved.

The Committee on Elections and Returns, being called on by the President, presented the following report:

Your committee would respectfully report, in the case of Hugh J. Campbell, that it appears by a certificate of the Board of Registration that Hugh J. Campbell received three thousand three hundred and ninety-seven (3397) votes, and that A. Sambola received three thousand three hundred and ninety-four (3394) votes, and that Hugh J. Campbell was duly elected from the Second Senatorial District; and your committee would also state that the said A. Sambola did offer to submit evidence that he was duly elected. Therefore, your committee would respectfully recommend that the said Hugh J. Campbell be allowed to take his seat in this body, and that the said A. Sambola be allowed to contest.

Your committee not recognizing the authority of the Commanding General to change the returns of said Registrars, who were duly appointed according to the act of Congress known as the "Reconstruction Act."

M. F. SMITH.
PATRICK O'HARA.
GEORGE Y. KELSO.
ROBERT POINDEXTER,
C. C. PACKARD,
Committee.

Mr. Ray moved that Mr. Blackman be allowed to address the Senate.

Mr. O'Hara moved to lay on the table.

The yeas and nays being called for, it was laid on the table by the following vote.

Yeas 16, nays 3.

Mr. Lynch moved that the report of the Committee on Elections and Returns be received.

Adopted.

Mr. Lynch moved that the report of the Committee on Elections and Returns be adopted.

Mr. Lynch moved that Hugh J. Campbell be sworn in as Senator for the Second Senatorial District of this State.

The yeas and nays being called for the motion was adopted by the following vote:

Yeas 18.

Nays, none.

The President of the Senate then administered the proper oaths to Hugh J. Campbell who then took his seat as a Senator from the Second Senatorial District.

The Secretary by direction of the President read the following communication:

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT, New Orleans, La., June 30, 1868.

Hon. O. J. Dunn, Lieutenant Governor, Presiding Officer of the Senate, State of Louisiana:

SIR—I am directed by the General Commanding the District to furnish you with the following copy of the the telegram just received from General Grant:

WAR DEPARTMENT, Washington, D. C., June 3d, 1868.

Brevet Major General R. C. Buchanan, Commanding Fifth Military District, New Orleans, Louisiana:

I have no orders at present to give, but I repeat to you as heretofore that the members of the Legislature of the State of Louisiana are only required to take the oath prescribed by their own Constitution, and are not required to take the test oath prescribed in the reconstruction acts.

Generals Meade and Canby are acting on this view of the case.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT, General.

And he instruct me to inform you that the oath prescribed in the new Constitution of the State, and no other will be required of the members of the House over which you are now presiding.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant.
(Signed) JOHN B. JOHNSON,
Brevet. Lieut. Col. U. S. A., Assistant Secretary Civil Affairs.

Mr. Wittgenstein moved that a committee of five (5) be appointed by the Chair to take into consideration the communication just read.

Adopted.

The President appointed as said committee Messrs. Wittgenstein, Monette, Harris, Pollard and Campbell.

Mr. O'Hara moved to proceed to permanent organization and the election of officers for the same.

Adopted.

The Senate then proceeded to an election for Secretary.

Mr. O'Hara nominated Chas. H. Merritt, and he, being the only nominee, was unanimously elected.

The Senate then proceeded to the election of an Assistant Secretary.

Mr. Whitney nominated B. P. Blanchard.

Mr. Monette nominated Eugene Staes.

Mr. Lewis nominated P. H. Noland.

Nominations were closed.

On a call of the roll, B. P. Blanchard received..........10 votes.

Mr. Staes received..........4 votes.

Mr. Noland..........5 votes.

Mr. B. P. Blanchard, having received a majority of all the votes cast, was declared elected Assistant Secretary.

The Senate then proceeded to the election of a Sergeant-at-Arms.

Mr. Smith nominated J. P. Farrell.

Mr. Pollard nominated William Mulford.

Mr. Jenks nominated O. H. Hempstead.

Mr. Harris nominated William Brown.

Nominations were then closed.

J. P. Farrell received..........1 vote.

William Mulford received..........10 votes.

O. H. Hempstead..........7 votes.

And William Mulford having received a majority of the votes cast, was declared elected Sergeant-at-Arms.

The Senate then proceeded to the election of a Door-keeper, and Alfred Monroe being the only nominee, the roll being called, was unanimously elected.

Mr. Lynch moved that the Secretary inform the House of Representatives that the Senate was duly organized and ready for business.

Adopted.

Mr. Lynch offered the following joint resolution:

A joint resolution ratifying the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States,

And moved that it be laid on the table until this body be notified of the permanent organization of the House of Representatives

Adopted.

Mr. Ray offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the standing rules and orders of the Senate of this State for the year Anno Domini 1860, be adopted as the rules and orders of proceedings of the Senate,

And moved that it be referred to a committee of three, to be appointed by the President.

Adopted.

The President appointed as said committee:

Messrs. Ray, Lynch and Kelso.

Mr. Wittgenstein moved that the President be empowered to appoint a postmaster and four (4) pages for this body.

Adopted.

The President appointed William H. Harmen Postmaster of the Senate.

Mr. Darrall moved that a committee of three be appointed by the President to inform the Governor that the Senate is organized and ready for business.

Withdrawn by the mover.

On motion of Mr. Ray the Senate adjourned.

C. H. MERRITT,
Secretary of the Senate.

Third Day's Session.

SENATE CHAMBER, July 1, 1868.

The Senate met pursuant to adjournment, and was called to order by President Dunn at twelve o'clock M.

The roll was called and the following members answered to their names.

Messrs. Beares, Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, François, Harris, Jenks, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Whitney, Wilcox and Wittgenstein—20 members present.

Prayer by the Rev. Mr. Fisk.

The minutes of yesterday were read.

Mr. Wilcox desired that his vote as it appeared on the minutes might be changed, as he had voted "nay" upon the motion of Mr. O'Hara to lay upon the table the motion of Mr. Ray "that Mr. Blackman be allowed to address the Senate."

The minutes were so amended and approved.

The President called upon the committee to which was referred the communication of the Commanding General received yesterday, and the following report was presented:

Your committee to whom was referred the communication from the Commanding General of the Fifth Military District in reference to the oath of office to be administered to members of the General Assembly, beg leave to report that they have given the subject careful consideration, and are unanimously of the opinion that the action of the President of this honorable body requiring members to take the oath of office prescribed by Congress, commonly known as the test oath, is well founded in law, and should be fully sustained by the Senate.

A due respect, however, to the wishes of the General commanding the armies of the United States induce your committee to recommend the discontinuance of the test oath, and that hereafter members be allowed to qualify in accordance with the Constitution of the State of Louisiana and the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States, known as the fourteenth article.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
JOS. WITTGENSTEIN,
Chairman.

Mr. Lynch moved to strike out the first paragraph of the report and the word "however" in the second.

Mr. O'Hara called for a second reading of the report, and it was again read by the Secretary.

Mr. Smith moved to lay the motion of Mr. Lynch on the table, and the yeas and nays being ordered, the roll was called with the following result:

Yeas: Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, François, Harris, Kelso, Lewis, Monette, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Smith, Whitney, Wilcox, Wittgenstein—16.

Nays: Beares, Jenks, Lynch, Ray—4.

And the motion to lay on the table prevailed.

Mr. Lynch called for a division of the report, that the Senate might vote upon the two clauses of it.

The President decided that the report be divided, and that the vote should be taken separately upon the two clauses.

Mr. Lewis moved that the report of the committee be received.

Adopted.

Mr. Campbell moved that the first paragraph of the report of the committee be adopted.

Adopted.

Mr. Lewis moved that the second paragraph of the report be adopted.

Adopted.

The President then announced that the report of the committee, as a whole, stood adopted.

Mr. Ray moved that the Secretary call the roll, and that all members not already sworn be permitted to come forward and take the "Constitutional oath," and then be allowed to take their seats as members of this body.

Mr. Campbell rose for information as to the proper time to object to the qualification of persons ineligible under the Constitution.

The President decided that it must be decided by the Senate.

The motion of Mr. Ray was adopted.

Mr. Campbell submitted the following resolution:

Resolved, That the President of the Senate be requested, as the members present themselves to be sworn, to ask each of them the question whether he is eligible to a seat in this body according to the requirements of articles ninety-nine and eighteen of the Constitution.

Mr. Ray moved to lay the resolution of Mr. Campbell on the table.

Adopted.

The roll was called and the following Senators, T. C. Anderson, G. H. Braughn, A. B. Bacon, W. F. Blackman, R. H. Day, J. C. Egan, M. A. Foute, R. White, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, W. Offutt, R N. Ogden, W. L. Thompson, S. M. Todd and J. R. Williams came forward as their names were called.

Mr. Wilcox here stated that he had yesterday offered the protest of Messrs. Mader, Wilson and Moses, who are contesting the seats of Messrs. Foute, Ogden and Braughn, and the same had been duly referred to the Committee on Elections and Returns, and he as the representative of Messrs. Mader, Wilcox and Moses thought it devolved upon him to object to the gentlemen named being sworn in; but as the Senate had already de cecided that contestants should lose none of their rights by the course being pursued, he would waive his objections.

The oath prescribed by the Constitution was then administered by the President to the gentlemen named, and they were declared entitled to seats in this body.

Mr. Campbell stated that he had in his possession the protest of the contestant of the seat of Mr. Jewell, of the Second Senatorial District, and the evidence in the case.

Mr. Smith stated that he was authorized to protest against the admission of Mr. Bacon, of the Fourth Senatorial District, on the ground of fraud and ineligibility.

The President decided that the claims of contestants would not be jeopardized by the present action of the Senate.

The Committee on Rules and Orders of Proceedings presented the following report:

The committee to whom was referred the resolutions to adopt the rules and orders of proceedings of the Senate, respectfully report by resolution as follows:

Resolved, That the rules and regulations of the Louisiana State Senate, adopted at its special session in 1864, except the changes made in the copy presented with and as part of this resolution, be adopted as the rules and regulations of this Senate.

JOHN, RAY, Chairman;
GEORGE Y. KELSO,
JOHN LYNCH.

Mr. Ray moved that the report be adopted.

Adopted.

The President then called upon the Committee on Elections and Returns, and they presented the following report:

SENATE COMMITTEE ON ELECTIONS AND RETURNS, July 1, 1868.

In the case of C. C. Antoine, who contests the right of Reuben White to a seat in this body, your committee would respectfully report that the said White is ineligible to hold any office under the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, and that upon the evidence it appears that in wards two and five in the parish of Caddo the votes in said wards should not have been counted.

Your committee would also report that the said White came before your committee, and did not desire to contest, as he, the said White, did not believe that he was eligible to a seat in this body.

Your committee also find that if the returns from wards two and five had not been counted the said C. C. Antoine would have had a majority of the legal votes cast, and would have been declared legally elected.

Therefore, your committee would most respectfully recommend that C. C. Antoine be declared entitled to a seat in this body for the Twenty-first Senatorial District of the State of Louisiana.

MORTIMER F. SMITH,
Chairman.

Mr. Lynch read article 159 of the constitution, and objected to the transaction of any further business until some action had been taken upon the ratification of the fourteenth article of the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The President decided that the point of order raised by Mr. Lynch was well taken.

Mr. Ray moved that the Committee on Elections and Returns, appointed during temporary organization, be discharged.

Adopted.

The Senate, upon motion of Mr. Lynch, adjourned.

C. H. MERRITT,
Secretary of the Senate.

Fourth Day' Session.

SENATE CHAMBER, July 2, 1868.

The Senate met pursuant to adjournment and was called to order by President Dunn at twelve o'clock M.

The roll was called by the President, and the following members responded to their names:

Anderson, Bacon, Beares, Braughn, Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, Day, Egan, Foute, François, Harris, E. L. Jewell, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, White, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams and Wittgenstein.

Twenty-seven members present.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Fisk.

The minutes of yesterday were read.

Mr. White rose to a question of privilege and stated that the report of the Committee on Elections and Returns, as it appeared on the minutes was not correct, as he had not appeared before that committee and had not made any such statement as reported by the committee.

Mr. Jewell asked to have the minutes corrected by inserting the words "furnished by the Military Commander" after the word "roll," in the motion of Mr. Ray, providing for the administration of the oath to members not already qualified.

Mr. Ray stated that the minutes were substantially correct.

Mr. Wittgenstein moved that the minutes be adopted as read.

Mr. Campbell moved the previous question.

The previous question was ordered (Mr. Ogden protesting against the right of Mr. Campbell to vote) by the following vote:

Yeas: Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, François, Harris, Jenks, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Todd, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams, Wittgeinstein—21.

Nays: Anderson, Bacon, Blackman, Braughn, Day, Egan, Foute, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Offutt, Ogden, Thompson and White—13.

The motion of Mr. Wittgenstein to approve the minutes as they were read by the Secretary was then adopted.

Mr. Lynch called up the joint resolution offered by him for the ratification of a proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States on the second day of the session.

Mr. Blackman objected to the taking up the joint resolution on the ground that the Senate was not properly organized.

The Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives, with a message from that body was announced, and stated that the House of Representatives was duly organized and ready to proceed to business and to receive any communication from the Senate.

Mr. Lynch withdrew his motion calling up the joint resolution, and moved a committee of two (2) be appointed to act with a committee from the House of Representatives, to wait upon and inform the Governor that the General Assembly was duly organized, and ready to receive any communications he might have to make.

Adopted.

The President appointed as said committee Messrs. Lynch and Ogden.

Mr. Jewell, of Orleans, rose to a privileged question, and explained and apologized for his action in the Senate on a previous occasion.

Mr. Braughn moved that the Senate proceed to draw for seats.

Mr. Todd moved to lay the motion on the table.

Adopted.

Mr. Lynch, of the joint committee to wait upon the Governor, submitted the following report:

The undersigned, on behalf of the joint committee of the General Assembly, appointed to wait on the Governor to inform him that the Legislature of the State of Louisiana is now fully organized and ready for business, and ready to receive from him any communication he might have to make, have the honor to report that they have performed that duty.

The Governor informed your committee that at present he had no communication to make, as he was now acting under military appointment, but that as soon as he was duly inducted into office as the Civil Governor of the State he would, in compliance with the provisions of the Constitution, from time to time make such communication as in his judgment might be necessary.

Respectfully,
JOHN LYNCH,
Chairman.

Mr. Anderson moved that the report of the joint committee on the part of the Senate be received and adopted, and the committee discharged.

Adopted.

The Secretary, by direction of the President, read the rules and orders of the Senate adopted yesterday.

Mr. Ray moved a reconsideration of the vote adopting the rules and orders.

Lost.

Mr. Wittgenstein gave notice that he should to-morrow move that rule thirty-three be so amended as to increase the Committee on Elections to seven members.

Mr. Braughn moved that two hundred and fifty copies of the Rules and Regulations be printed.

Mr. Ray moved to amend by adding the Constitution of the State.

The amendment was accepted, and the motion of Mr. Braughn adopted.

Mr. Lynch called up the joint resolution ratifying the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States, known as article fourteenth.

The resolution was read by the Secretary.

Mr. Blackman moved to adjourn.

Lost.

Mr. —— moved that the joint resolution be adopted on its first reading.

Adopted.

Mr. Lynch moved to adjourn.

Adopted.

The President then declared that the Senate stood adjourned to 12 M., the third instant.

C. H. MERRITT,
Secretary of the Senate.

Fifth Day's Session.

SENATE CHAMBER, New Orleans, July 3d, 1868.

The Senate met pursuant to adjournment and was called to order by President Dunn at 12 o'clock, M.

The roll was called by the Secretary and the following members answered to their names:

Messrs. Anderson, Bacon, Blackman, Braughn, Coupland, Campbell, Darrall, Day, Egan, Foute, Francois, Harris, Jenks, Jewell E. L., Jewell F. L., Kelso, Lynch, Monette, Offutt, Ogden, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Thompson, White, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams and Wittgenstein—32 members present.

Mr. Futch asked that his name might be called, and the President directed the Secretary to call it.

The Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives was announced with a message.

Mr. Jewell objected to the message being received, as the Senate had not organized for the day.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Turner.

Mr. Futch then came forward and qualified, and was presented by the President as a member of this body.

The minutes of yesterday were read.

Mr. Ray wished to correct the minutes, to read that he had moved to amend a motion made by Mr. Braughn, instead of Mr. Bacon, regarding the printing of the rules.

Mr. Bacon moved that the rules should be omitted from the minutes.

Adopted.

The minutes as amended were adopted.

The Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives delivered his message, and presented for concurrence bills one, two and three, passed by that body.

Mr. Lynch moved to take up the joint resolution, ratifying the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and pass it on its second reading.

Adopted.

Mr. Ray called for the reading of the resolution.

The resolution was read by the Secretary.

Mr. Bacon rose to a point of order on the forty-second rule, that the question now was, should the resolution be engrossed and passed to its third reading?

Mr. Lynch moved that the resolution be engrossed and passed to its third reading.

Adopted.

Mr. Braughn moved to suspend the rules and take up the resolution on the third reading.

Mr. Lynch moved to lay the motion on the table.

Mr. Ogden moved to adjourn.

Lost.

The motion to lay on the table Mr. Braughn's motion prevailed.

Mr. Jewell, of Orleans, moved to proceed to the election of a Warrant Clerk for the Senate.

Mr. Campbell asked leave to introduce a bill.

Mr. Jewell objected, as legislation was not in order until after action on the Constitutional amendment.

Mr. Campbell moved to lay the motion of Mr. Jewell, to elect a Warrant Clerk, on the table.

Mr. Jewell called for the yeas and nays, which were ordered.

The roll was called:

Yeas: Bacon, Darrall. Futch, Blackman, Egan, Harris, Campbell, Foute, Jenks, Coupland, François, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, Ogden, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Smith, Thompson, Todd, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams and Wittgenstein—27.

Yeas: Anderson, Beares, Braughn, Day, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Offutt, Ray and White—9.

Mr. Campbell asked leave to introduce a bill relating to the appointment of a Board of Police Commissioners for the city of New Orleans.

Mr. Bacon objected, as it was a step toward legislation, and referred to article 159 of the Constitution of the State in support of his position.

Mr. Campbell read article 159, but interpreted it differently, and moved to adopt and moved to accept bill on its first reading.

Adopted.

Mr. Ray called up House bill No. 4, relating to an appropriation for the expenses of the General Assembly.

Mr. Bacon objected to any legislation before the passage of the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The President ruled that action could be taken first and second readings.

Mr. Ray moved to adopt the bill on its first reading.

Adopted.

The Secretary read the bill.

Mr. Ray moved to suspend the rules and adopt the bill on its first reading.

Adopted, four-fifths of the Senate concurring.

Mr. Ray called for a second reading of the bill.

The Secretary read the bill.

Mr. Ray moved that the bill be engrossed and passed to its third reading.

Adopted.

Mr. Lynch asked leave to introduce a bill, "relating to the finances of the State," and moved to adopt it on its first reading.

Adopted.

Mr. Lynch asked leave to introduce a bill, "directing the Governor to enforce the third section of the fourteenth article of the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and the provisions of article ninety nine of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana.

Mr. Bacon objected, but afterward withdrew his objection.

The bill was read by the Secretary.

Mr. Anderson moved that 150 copies of the bill be ordered to be printed.

Adopted.

Mr. Wittgenstein moved to amend rule thirty-three, for the proceedings of the Senate, so as to increase the number of the Committee on Elections, to seven (7.)

Adopted.

Mr. Todd offered a resolution providing for the election of a Chaplain for the Senate.

Mr. Jewell, of Orleans, moved to amend to provide that the person chosen should serve without compensation.

Mr. Todd moved to lay the amendment on the table.

Mr. O'Hara moved to lay the whole subject on the table.

Adopted.

Mr. O'Hara moved that the President be empowered to invite a clergyman of some one of the various denominations, in the city, each morning to open the proceedings of the Senate with prayer.

Adopted.

Mr. Jewell asked leave to read a protest against the proceedings of the Senate on the first and second days of the session, and to have it spread upon the minutes.

Mr. Jewell read his protest, as follows:

PROTEST.

To the President and Members of the Senate:

The undersigned, a duly elected Senator of the State of Louisiana, asks leave to have spread upon the journal of the Senate the following protest againt the ruling of the President of the Senate, whereby he was unlawfully deprived of the privilege of participating in the organization of the Senate.

On the first day of the session the Lieutenant Governor by military appointment, and acting President of the Senate, was served with the following military orders by Colonel Gentry, Secretary of Civil Affairs, for the information and guidance of the Senate:

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1868.

Brevet Major General R. C. Buchanan, Commanding Fifth Military District:

General Grant returned this morning, and I have presented the entire subject to him. He instructs me to telegraph you as follows: "The instructions telegraphed on Saturday, in my absence, are approved and reaffirmed. Under the act of Congress, now before the President and about to become a law, the civil officers elected cannot be installed in office until the State is admitted. Until then the State Government is provisional and entirely under your control. If you have ordered the General Assembly not to meet, do not let it meet, but comply with the act of Congress herein referred to and let its provisions have full effect.

"The matter of the oath to be taken by the members of the General Assembly is left entirely to your judgment. It is believed, however, that the oath prescribed by the new Constitution only should properly be required. Your action with reference to municipal affairs is approved. Notify all concerned of the contents of this dispatch."

B. B. KEELER,
Brevet Major U. S. A.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT, New Orleans, La., June 18, 1868.

It is expected that the contents of this dispatch will be respected by all concerned.

By command of Brevet Major General R. C. Buchanan.

THOMAS H. NEILL,
Brevet Brig. General, Acting Asst. Adjt. General.

And the next day the following orders from General Grant:

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT, New Orleans, La., June 30, 1868

Hon. O. J. Dunn, Lieut. Governor, Presiding Officer of the Senate of the State of Louisiana:

SIR—I am directed by the General Commanding this District to furnish you with a copy of the following telegram just received from General Grant:

"WAR DEPARTMENT,
"Washington, D. C., June 30, 1868

"To Brevet Major General R. C. Buchanan, Commanding Fifth Military District, New Orleans, La.:

"I have no orders at present to give, but I repeat to you as heretofore that the members of the Legislature of the State of Louisiana are only required to take the oath prescribed by their own Constitution, and are not required to take the oath prescribed in the reconstruction acts. Generals Meade and Canby are acting on this view of the case.
U. S. GRANT,
"General."

And he instructs me to inform you that the oath prescribed in the new Constitution of the State, and no other, will be required of the members of the House over which you are now presiding.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
(Signed) JOHN B. JOHNSON,
Assistant Secretary of Civil Affairs.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the President of the Senate, the Hon. O. J. Dunn, refused to be governed by the suggestions therein contained, and decided to require the test oath from Senators elect before permitting them to qualify and participate in the deliberations of the Senate.

From this ruling an appeal to the Senate was peremptorily refused, contrary to all parliamentary rules and laws and in defiance of the Senate. The effect of this decision was to exclude from the Senate seventeen of the thirty-six Senators, and to debar them entirely from all participation in the proceedings of this body.

The undersigned therefore solemnly protest against this proceeding for the following reasons:

1. That if the government now existing be a provisional one, as decided by the President of the Senate, it is in all respects subject to the control of the military authorities, and the Hon. O. J. Dunn, a military appointee, must necessarily be governed by the orders and instructions emanating from military headquarters; and in ignoring the foregoing orders from General Buchanan prescribing the constitutional oath, the President of the Senate has transcended his authority to the utter deprivation of the rights of the undersigned.

2. That if the government be of a permanent character, and possessing all the attributes of a civil government, then the constitutional provisions must govern, and the only oath that could have been required of Senators elect was that prescribed by the Constitution.

3. That in exacting the test oath, nineteen Republican Senators were put in possession of the Senate, who then proceeded to organize, and to appoint a Committee on Elections, with power to pass upon the credentials of Democratic members, in violation of military order No. 121, and article 159 of the Constitution, which prohibits any legislation until the adoption of the constitutional amendment.

4. That in appointing the temporary officers of the Senate, the President assumed to exercise an authority not authorized by law, and in direct violation of article fifty-five of the Constitution, which limits his powers to a vote only when the Senate is equally divided.

5. That by refusing to recognize the right of the undersigned to participate, the presiding officer permitted the adoption of a committee report unseating one of the Senators elect and giving his place to a contestant, upon purely ex parte evidence, by a minority vote of the Senate, notwithstanding the fact was called to the attention of the President by one of the Senators.

For these reasons the undersigned asks permission to spread this protest against the illegal proceedings of the Senate and its presiding officer upon the journal.

E. L. JEWELL,
Senator from Orleans.

And moved that it be spread upon the minutes.

Mr. Harris and Mr. O'Hara objected.

Mr. Lynch asked for a second reading.

The President corrected the statement that there was not a quorum present when the report of the Committee on Elections and Returns was adopted.

Mr. Ray seconded the motion of Mr. Jewell.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. Jenks asked to be excused from voting as he was not present when the protest was read.

Mr. Ray moved that Mr. Jenks be excused from voting.

Adopted.

The Secretary called the roll:

Yeas: Messrs. Anderson, Bacon, Blackman, Braughn, Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, Day, Egan, Foute, François, Futch, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, Offutt, Ogden, Packard, Ray, Smith, Thompson, Todd, White, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams and Wittgenstein—30.

Nays—Messrs. Harris, O'Hara, Poindexter and Pollard—4.

The protest was ordered to be spread on the minutes.

Mr. Poindexter stated when he voted, "that the gentleman in his protest had not incorporated a summary of his action before the President and Senate on the first and second days of the session," therefore he voted "no."

Mr. Campbell moved to suspend the rules that the bill relating to the appointment of a Board of Police Commissioners by the Governor might be adopted on its second reading.

Lost.

Mr. O Hara moved that the President appoint the Committee on Elections.

Mr. Jewell, of Orleans, rose to a point of order, that the motion was superfluous.

Mr. O'Hara withdrew his motion.

Mr. Campbell moved to take from the table the motion of Mr. Jewell, to proceed to the election of a Warrant Clerk for the Senate.

Adopted.

Mr. O'Hara moved to adjourn.

Withdrawn by the mover.

The motion of Mr. Campbell was adopted.

Mr. Ray nominated J. Pinckney Smith.

Mr. Wittgenstein nominated O. H. Hempstead.

Mr. Coupland nominated E. Schlesinger.

Mr. O'Hara nominated G. E. Yarrington.

Mr. Day nominated Mr. Duggan.

Mr. Monette nominated J. H. Ingraham.

Nominations were then closed.

Mr. O'Hara moved to adjourn.

Mr. Blackman rose to a point of order, that the motion was not in order when there was a question pending, the election not being finished.

Mr. Campbell rose to a point of order, that a motion to adjourn was always in order.

Mr. O'Hara withdrew his motion.

Mr. Campbell moved to adjourn.

Mr. Campbell withdrew his motion to adjourn.

Mr. Campbell moved to adjourn.

Mr. Anderson rose for information, and asked if the Fourth of July being a National Holiday, was a setting day under the law or custom of the State.

The President decided that it was.

Mr. O'Hara rose to a point of order, that a motion to adjourn was not debatable.

The yeas and nays were called for and ordered.

The Secretary called the roll, with the following result:

Yeas: Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, Harris, Kelso, Lynch, Monette, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard and Wittgenstein—12.

Nays: Anderson, Bacon, Blackman, Braughn, Day, Egan, Foute, Futch, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Lewis, Offutt, Ogden, Ray, Smith, Thompson, Todd, White, Whitney and Williams—20.

And the motion to adjourn was lost.

Mr. Ray moved that the roll be called and the election of Warrant Clerk proceeded with.

Mr. Campbell moved to lay the motion on the table.

Lost.

Mr. Campbell moved to postpone the election of Warrant Clerk till Monday.

Adopted.

Mr. Blackman moved to adjourn to Monday at twelve o'clock M.

Mr. Smith called for the yeas and nays, which were ordered.

The Secretary called the roll:

Yeas: Anderson, Bacon, Blackman, Braughn, Day, Egan, Foute, Futch, E. L. Jewell, Lewis, Offutt, Ogden, Thompson, Todd, White and Wilcox—16.

Nays: Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, Harris, Kelso, Lynch, Monette, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Williams and Wittgenstein—15.

And the President declared that the Senate stood adjourned to Monday at twelve o'clock M.

C. H. MERRITT,
Secretary of the Senate.

Sixth Day's Session

SENATE CHAMBER, July 6, 1868.

The Senate met pursuant to adjournment, and was called to order by the President at twelve o'clock M.

The roll was called and the following members answered to their names:

Messrs. Anderson, Bacon, Beares, Blackman, Braugn, Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, Day, Egan, Foute, François, Futch, Harris, Jenks, E. J. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, Offutt, Ogden, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Todd, White, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams, Wittgenstein—35.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Fisk.

Minutes of the fifth day's proceedings were read.

Mr. Ogden moved to dispense with the reading of the protest of Mr. Jewell, of Orleans, contained in the minutes.

Adopted.

Mr. Jenks desired the minutes corrected, in so far as related to his vote upon the adjournment on Friday.

And the minutes as amended were adopted.

The President announced the following members as the Committee on Elections:

Messrs. Coupland, Smith, Poindexter, Kelso, Thompson, Futch and O'Hara.

Mr. Campbell presented the protest of twenty citizens against the election of A. B. Bacon, of the Fourth Senatorial District.

Referred to the Committee on Elections.

Mr. O'Hara presented the protest of Burkett B. Lindsey, contesting the seat of Mr. W. J. Blackman, of the Twentieth Senatorial District.

Referred to the Committee on Elections.

Mr. Day gave notice that on a future day he would introduce a bill relating to the State Penitentiary.

The Chief Clerk of the House appeared and presented for concurrence the following bills passed by that body:

No. 3, a bill relative to the appointment of a Board of Police Commissioners.

No. 6, an act directing the Governor of the State to enforce the third section of the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States, and the provisions of article ninety-nine of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana.

No. 2, relating to the finances of the State.

Mr. Jewell gave notice that on a future day he would introduce a bill to carry out the provisions of article 151 of the State Constitution.

Mr. Lewis moved that all papers in the hands of the old Committee on Elections be turned over to the new committee.

Adopted.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Mr. Ray moved that the election of a Warrant Clerk be postponed until to-morrow.

Adopted.

Mr. Jewell moved to proceed to the third reading and adoption of the Senate join tresolution ratifying the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. Ray moved to lay the motion of Mr. Jewell on the table.

Yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. Campbell rose to a point of order, that the resolution should be the last subject taken up under the head of unfinished business.

Mr. Jewell rose to a point of order, that a motion to table was not debatable.

Mr. Ray rose to a point of order, that the bill was not in order under the nineteenth rule adopted by the Senate.

The President ruled the motion to lay on the table in order.

The Secretary called the roll.

Yeas: Messrs. Anderson, Bacon, Beares, Blackman, Braughn, Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, Day, Egan, Foute, François, Futch, Harris, Jenks, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, Offutt, Ogden, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Todd, White, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams, Wittgenstein—35.

Nays—None.

And the motion of Mr. Jewell was declared to be laid on the table.

Mr. Jewell moved to reconsider the vote to lay on the table.

Laid on the table on motion of Mr. Lynch.

Mr. Ray called up for first reading the House bill No. 1, ratifying the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. Jewell rose to a point of order, that the proceeding was contrary to the rules of the Senate, as the Senate bill should have precedence.

Mr. Lynch seconded the call of Mr. Ray.

The motion of Mr. Ray was adopted.

The bill was read by the Secretary.

Mr. Jewell moved to refer the bill to the Committee on Federal Relations.

Mr. Ray moved to lay the motion on the table.

Adopted.

C. H. MERRITT
Secretary of the Senate.

Eighth Day's Session.

SENATE CHAMBER,
July 7, 1868.

The Senate met pursuant to adjournment and was called to order by President Dunn at twelve o'clock M.

The roll was called by the Secretary:

Messrs. Bacon, Beares, Blackman, Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, Day, Egan, Foute, François, Futch, Harris, Jenks, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Kelso, Lewis, Monette, Offutt, Ogden, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Thompson, Todd, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams, Wittgenstein, and Anderson—34 members.

Prayer by Rev. Father Lamette.

The minutes of the previous day were read and adopted.

Mr. Lynch asked leave to propose three amendments to rule thirty-three, increasing the number of members of certain standing committees as follows: Committees on Finance and Public Education from three to five; and on page nine, tenth line, inserting the words "corporations and" before the word "parochial."

The rules were suspended and the amendments were adopted.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Elections presented the following report:

C. C. ANTOINE VS. REUBEN WHITE.

Upon a hearing of the evidence in the above case, your committee would respectfully report that Reuben White is ineligible to a seat in this Senate, not being a qualified elector under the reconstruction acts or the Constitution of this State; and your committee would respectfully recommend that the seat of Reuben White be declared vacant, and that C. C. Antoine be declared elected, he having received the highest number of legal votes cast for Senator in the Twenty-first Senatorial District.

MORTIMER F. SMITH,
Chairman;
ROBERT POINDEXTER,
PATRICK O'HARA,
WM L. THOMPSON,
T. V. COUPLAND,
GEORGE Y. KELSO.

Mr. Todd moved that the report of the committee be made the special order of the day for Saturday next, the eleventh instant.

Mr. Smith moved to lay the motion on the table.

Lost.

Mr. Lynch called attention to rule thirty-seven, providing that reports of committees shall lie on the table one day.

The report lies over.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Ray offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on Elections be authorized to send for papers and persons in any case of contested election in the Senate, and that any member whose seat is contested be authorized to have brought before the said committee any persons or papers that he may think necessary for his defense.

Adopted.

Mr. Campbell offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Senate do now proceed to the election of two persons for Senators in Congress for this State, and that the election shall be held in the following order, to wit:

The Senate will vote first for a person to fill the unexpired term in 1873, and then for a person to fill the unexpired term in 1871.

Mr. Campbell moved to adopt the resolution.

Mr. Ogden moved to lay the motion to adopt on the table.

Mr. Blackman raised the point of order that the election was not now in order, as the Constitutional Amendment had not been acted upon finally, and the organization of the House of Representatives had not been completed on Tuesday last.

Mr. O'Hara rose to point of order, that as the election was for unexpired terms the election could be entered into at any time.

Mr. Bacon rose to a point of order, that if it is proposed to go into an election under the acts of Congress relative to the election of United States Senator requiring it to be on the Second Tuesday after the organization of the Legislature; that as it is officially known to the President that the General Assembly was not organized until Thursday, July 2, this is not the second Tuesday after the organization of the Legislature. That it is not competent for the Senate of itself to go into such election without the consent of the House of Representatives, and that he can not entertain this question. That if it is proposed to go into such election on a certain day to be fixed therein, and that neither House can otherwise go into such election, which must be the act of the Legislature, and not of either House alone.

The President said he was not prepared to-day, that the point of order was well founded, but he did not conceive it necessary to have a joint session.

Mr. Bacon asked for a decision on his point of order.

The President said it was a responsibility he did not care to take, but would prefer the Senate to decide.

Mr. Lynch called for a vote on the resolution, which would give the decision required.

Mr. Todd moved to amend the resolution by inserting "one Senator" instead of two Senators.

Mr. Campbell moved to lay the amendment on the table.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Yeas: Messrs. Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, François, Harris, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Whitney, Williams, Wittgenstein—18.

Nays: Messrs. Anderson, Bacon, Beares, Blackman, Day, Egan, Foute, Futch, Jenks, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Offutt, Ogden, Thompson, Todd, White and Wilcox—17.

And the amendment was declared laid on the table.

Mr. Blackman asked if the point of order had been decided.

The President ruled that no decision was necessary. The minutes had been read, showing when the Senate had been notified of the organization of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Thompson moved to adjourn.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The roll was called.

Yeas: Messrs. Anderson, Bacon, Blackman, Day, Egan, Foute, Futch, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Offutt, Thompson and White—12.

Nays: Messrs. Beares, Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, François, Harris, Jenks, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, Ogden, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Todd, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams, Wittgenstein—23.

And the motion to adjourn was lost.

Mr. Jewell moved to reconsider the vote on adjournment.

Mr. Campbell rose to a point of order, that a motion to reconsider a vote on adjournment was not in order.

The President decided the point of order not well taken.

Mr. Campbell appealed from the decision of the President.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The roll was called.

Yeas: Anderson, Bacon, Beares, Blackman Coulpand, Day, Egan, Foute, Futch, Jenks, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, Offutt, Ogden, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith Thompson, Todd, White, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams and Wittgenstein—31.

Nays: Campbell, Darrall, François and Harris—4.

And the President was sustained.

Mr. Lynch moved the previous question.

Mr. Jewell raised a point of order, that the previous question was not parliamentary in the Senate.

The President ruled that as the rules were silent on the subject, Jefferson Manual was authority.

Mr. Lynch withdrew his motion for the previous question temporarily.

Mr. Anderson moved to postpone the vote for Senators till Tuesday next.

Mr. —— moved to lay the motion on the table.

Lost on a decision.

The motion of Mr. Anderson being then before the House.

Mr. Jewell moved to amend "that we proceed Tuesday next at one o'clock P. M., to ballot for Senators.

The amendment was accepted, and the question being put was lost on a division.

Yeas 13; nays 21.

Mr. Lynch renewed his motion for the previous question.

Mr. Ogden moved to adjourn.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. Campbell rose to a point of order that after a question was stated a motion to adjourn was not in order.

The President decided a motion to adjourn was in order, and the roll was called:

Yeas: Anderson, Bacon, Blackman, Day, Egan, Foute, Futch Jenks, F. L. Jewell, Lewis, Offutt, Ogden, Thompson and White—14.

Nays: Beares, Campbell, Darrall, François, Harris, E. L. Jewell, Kelso, Lynch, Monette, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Todd, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams, Wittgenstein—20.

And the motion to adjourn was lost.

The previous question was ordered by the following vote:

Yeas: Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, François, Harris, Jenks, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, Ogden, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Todd, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams, Wittgenstein—22.

Nays: Anderson, Bacon, Blackman, Day, Egan, Foute, Futch, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Offutt, Thompson and White—12.

The yeas and nays were ordered on the resolution of Mr. Campbell to proceed to election of Senators.

Mr. Jewell moved to adjourn.

The President decided the question out of order, the previous question having been ordered.

The roll was called by the Secretary:

Adopted.

Mr. Lynch called up House resolution No. 1, ratifying the Constitutional Amendment, and moved that it be read for the last time, and put upon its passage.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. Bacon submitted the following objection to the amendment, and asked that it be spread upon the minutes:

The undersigned, Senator of the State of Louisiana from the Fourth Senatorial District, pending the vote to be taken on the joint resolution, adopting the Fourteenth Amendment proposed by the Congress of the United States, to the Constitution of the United States, presents the following as the chief among his reasons for voting against its passage.

The first objection which he makes thereto is: That the said Article 14 was definitively rejected by the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana, on the 9th day of February, A. D. 1867, and the act establishing this fact of rejection is to be found on page nine of the acts thereof, wherefore the undersigned declare it to be incompetent for this succeeding General Assembly, to take the same into consideration.

But if this be not held to be a fatal objection, he then objects that the Congress of the United States in and by its acts, known as the Reconstruction Acts, has so placed the State of Louisiana under duress, demanding the passage of this amendment as pre-requisite to ordinary legislation and self-government, that the passage thereof, under the circumstances and under this duress, will be hereafter held to be inoperative and void, as to such States as shall have so adopted, or undertaken to adopt the same, unless all inhibition and prohibition shall have been rescinded before it shall have been done, and that this will be in the mean time so productive of uncertainty and confusion as to be prejudicial to the interests of the country.

And, finally, that the said proposed amendment, in so far as it abridges the rights of any citizen of the United States, is contrary to good policy; and in so far as it punishes any one by such deprivation for past acts, is in violation of the principles of the government, as laid down by its founders, and to republican institutions and teachings in all countries, which are averse to the imposition of penalties and deprivations for political offenses, unless by due course of trial under legislation previously provided.

The undersigned has at all times favored the execution of the laws of the United States, popularly known as the "reconstruction acts" of Congress, and has openly and actively assisted the loyal men of the States in their efforts to restore Louisiana to her position in the Union. And for this reason he would advise that the Congress be respectfully asked to remit the necessity of acting on or adopting this amendment as a prerequisite to legislation or State government, so that whatever action may be had may be free and unrestrained, and therefore valid.

We believe that these objects can be the more surely obtained, and that as Congress has several times amended these acts to procure the more perfect accomplishment of reconstruction and restoration.

The undersigned does not doubt that it would, on further consideration, grant the request, so conducive to the great object, so much to be desired.

And the undersigned respectfully asks that these, his reasons, be spread upon the minutes.

A. B. BACON.

Mr. Jewell rose to a point of order, that the vote of Senator Harris should not be taken, as he was directly interested in the result, and being a United States Senator, he had no right to a seat in this body.

The President declared that the point of order was not well taken.

The roll was called.

Yeas: Messrs. Beares, Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, François, Harris, Jenks, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Todd, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams and Wittgenstein—22.

Nays: Messrs. Anderson, Bacon, Braughn, Day, Egan, Foute, Futch, E. L. Jewell, Ogden, Thompson, White—11.

And the President declared the joint resolution adopted.

Mr. Ray moved that the joint resolution be adopted by its title.

Adopted.

Grant.

The most hopeful intelligence comes to us, both through private and public sources, that Grant will carry every Northern State. Even in New York city the Republicans are joyous in hope, and send us the most cheering accounts of the "brightening prospects and assurances that they will carry the State. A letter from Indiana to a yonng and rising lawyer of this city, declares that the enthusiasm for Grant is unbounded; while the canvass in Ohio and Pennsylvania indicates splendid majorities.

One of the most encouraging features is the despondency of some of the wiser Democrats in New Orleans. They already sit in the projected shadow of defeat, and feel the chill of failure upon their souls. Well, we can't say we pity them, but we do invite them out into Grant's sunshine.

Correspondents.

Our readers will not fail to read the admirable letters from our regular correspondents, found on another page. Our fair correspondent from Omaha wields a graceful and beautifull pen, and residing as she does, in the very scene of the Indian troubles, will give us in her next some interesting facts. "Mordicai" writes from Washington with the "spiciness of youth," and keeps us well informed of "Scenes at the Capital," while "Lead Pencil" is recording the events in the great West, with a point and sharpness all his own.

Conference Collections.

It is expected of each preacher to take the several annual collections as ordered by the General Conference, and arranged at the Quarterly Conference. Take each collection, no matter how small it may prove to be. Remember that there are but three months and then cometh the Conference, where each preacher will be held responsible for the manner in which he has done his duty in this respect.

The Weather.

The weather in New Orleans still remains very warm, the thermometer during some portion of each day reaching eighty-eight degrees. The nights are also very warm, so that little, if any bed-clothing is needed for comfort. While our friends at the North are dressed in thick clothing, here the coolest summer clothing is still worn.

Ames Methodist Episcopal Church.

There will be preaching every Sabbath at 11 A. M. in Dr. Newman's church, corner of St. Charles and Calliope streets, and social meetings for conference and prayer every Sunday and Thursday evening from eight to nine o'clock in the lecture room. You are invited.

WHAT NEED OF BOUQUETS?—The odor of "Burnett's Florimel" is that of an exquisite bouquet of choice delicate flowers. Ask druggists to order this exquisite perfume.

"Burnett's Cocoaine" for the hair has nearly fifty different imitations. This demonstrates the great popularity of the genuine article. New York office, 592 Broadway.

The Wickedest Man in New York—The Great Revival.

Some months ago a writer for Packard's Magazine was scanning New York to find a subject for a sensational article, and passing down Water street, by chance fell in with John Allen, whose irreligious life was so gross as to suggest that Allen was the "Wickedest man in New York," and under this title he wrote his now famous article, which has been republished in nearly every journal in the country. This was the beginning of the present religious excitement in New York city, and of what promises to be one of the greatest movements of the kind since the great revival of 1857-8.

The biographical facts of this man's life are these: John Allen was reared by Christian parents; has one or more brothers who are ministers of the gospel; is a man of family, and has kept a low dance-house for over seventeen years, out of the income of which he has grown rich. He has a little son by the name of Chester, for whom he manifests a very tender solicitude and affection; who has been carefully educated, and especiallly instructed in religious subjects; and notwithstanding the damning atmosphere in which he lived, was taught to recite the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments and sing sweet hymns. When public attention was first excited, and persons began to visit Mr. Allen's place, the father took special pride to show his boy, and have him sing, and repeat the Lord's Prayer. It was passing strange that the "Wickedest man in New York" should have such a care for the moral training of his boy; yet, perhaps, this boy was the last tie that bound the father to Infinite Mercy; that every other channel to his moral nature had been closed; that every other medium of religious influence had been severed, and that his parental love, which was natural and beautiful amid ruins, was the effectual door through which the Holy Spirit entered Allen's soul. Yet it is stated that when he saw his name in the papers as the "wickedest man in New York," he sought to prove the contrary true: instituted comparisons between himself and neighbors, and asserted that he had annually contributed to the Bible cause and other religious enterprises. Beneath the atrocious crimes of seventeen years there was a conscience—not quite dead—which was startled by the public announcement that no man in New York was more wicked than John Allen. It was this appalling announcement that awakened him to a sense of his real condition. He denounced the charge as not true, but forgot that wickedness is measured by light and not by darkness—by knowledge of duty and not by ignorance thereof.

Thus awakened, Mr. Allen was induced to give up his business and open his dance house for a noonday prayer-meeting. His own conversion is neither startling nor clear; he manifests but little emotion, and has no marvelous vision or dream to relate, but tells a straightforward story, that he is a sinner and earnestly desires to lead a better life. We like this. It is grace working through nature, it is a profound conviction too deep to find expression in feeling. It is like the grief experienced at the death of some loved one, which has smitten the sensibilities with paralysis and by its intense heat, has dried up its fountain of tears. We have no fear for this new convert: we judge his case far more hopeful than had he rushed into the kingdom amid wild excitement.

The great city of New York begins to feel the power of this new convert. At twelve o'clock each day his house and street in front of it, are densely crowded with ministers, benevolent ladies, earnest Christian men and the curious of both sexes. Among the latter are hardened sailors and poor Magdalens, and not a few scoffers, some of whom have been hopefully converted to God. An old merchant who had done business in the neighborhood for twenty years, went to scoff but returned to pray, and a Western merchant went down to have a laugh at the new sensation, but God smote him, and he asked the prayers of the meeting. It has been a new life to some of the poor Magdalens, who like Mary Magdalene, have bowed at the feet of Jesus. Within a week past other dance-houses have been turned into houses of prayer, and Christ is showing Himself the friend and savior of the publicans and harlots, and that Christianity is adopted to man's worst condition. The good work is going on throughout the country, and it is hoped that a noonday prayer-meeting may be started in New Orleans, where the most wicked may find mercy.

We give below clippings from our exchanges on this great religious movement:

The freshest feature of the Water street prayer-meeting is the appearance of the famous 'Boston Corbett" on the scene as a leader. This morning he led in prayer with great unction. Many people went down to the dance-house, quite as anxious to see him, apparently, as John Allen. The latter does not relish this visitation from Corbett, as it threatens to draw attention from himself, and to make Corbett, and not himself, the lion of the place. The crowd in front of the house this afternoon was so dense as at times to impede travel.

Another incident of the proceedings was an unofficial announcement by Mrs. Allen, (John's wife) that she is a Roman Catholic, and intends to remain one. Her husband, she says, can be what he likes—Presbyterian, Methodist or anything else—but for her part, she is not going to change her religion to oblige any missionaries. This statement is calculated to create some confusion in the camp.

The clergymen who participated in the exercises were Rev. J. E. Bell, Rev. A. P. Graves, of Boston, Rev. Mr. Woodruff and Rev. Mr. Arnold, of the Howard Mission. The excitement is spreading to places of dubious resort in the vicinity. This morning, No. 374 Catherine street, kept by the notorious "Tommy" Hadden, was opened for prayer. Hadden himself stood at the door, and made his visitors welcome. Here the services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Allen. (John's brother,) Rev. W. C. Vanmeter and Rev. Mr. Ward. "Tommy" was in his shirt sleeves. He has not so much to say as Allen.

Almost A Riot.

Last Tuesday night a disturbance arose which might easily have terminated in a great riot. There was a flag presentation to one of the Grant and Colfax colored clubs, at Congo Square, after which several of the clubs paraded some of the streets.

About ten o'clock, as the rear of the procession was passing down Canal street, by Dumonteil's confectionary store and restaurant, a man on the upper gallery or piazza, fired a pistol shot into the procession. He was described as being a large man, with long whiskers and wearing a straw hat. About the same time a shot, or shots, were fired from the Constitution rooms on the opposite side of the street, also from a confectionary store at the corner of Rampart street. After the firing commenced from Dumonteil's, a rush was made on the place, as it would seem, to get hold of the aggressor. Either from the doors being closed against them, or from some other reason, the show window was broken in. Many shots were fired into the procession, killing one colored man ond wounding six or seven more, when a general panic and stampede took place. This is what we heard from persons in the procession, who seemed to be candid about the affair.

On the contrary, the Crescent, Times and some other papers lay the blame on the colored people in the procession, and intimate that most of the shots fired were by them. That because a man on the side walk hurrahed for Seymour and Blair, some one in the procession fired at him, and many then followed him into the confectionary: that then two or three shots were fired at them, when they dropped their transparencies, lamps, etc., and fled. As the Crescent only claims that two white people—members of a Democratic club, that came to the scene were injured, and they wounded but slightly; and there being one killed and six or seven wounded on the opposite side, it would seem to indicate who did the most shooting.

As General Rousseau promptly called out the cavalry, no further disturbance occurred. Considering the excited state of the public mind, every individual should be on his guard against bringing on trouble, and especially should this be the case with every procession that turns out. A single shot fired into a procession should never bring an assault against a crowd or a house from which the shot proceeds. For then a single drunken or irresponsible individual might precipitate the whole city into trouble, which, perhaps, would end only in great destruction of life and property.

If notice be taken of the matter let it be in the proper manner. Let the procession halt, and call upon policemen to arrest the aggressors. This is the reasonable way, and the way that will bring the respect and confidence of all the better class of each party.

As to anything less than acts of violence, it should not be noticed, as any man has a right to hurrah for whom he pleases, even if a procession of the opposite party are at the time passing; though such an act might not be in accordance with good taste and manners.

We hope the colored people will not allow any excitement whatever to influence them to acts of violence. You had better all suffer wrong than to commit it. Your present and future interests lie in preserving perfect peace. Do not let insult or any slight injury bring you into trouble. We think most of the colored people will by every means shun disturbance. But on Wednesday morning, in passing near the State House, we heard a mulatto man speaking to about half a dozen colored men and one white man, in a very excited manner. He was speaking of the disturbance of the previous night. One remarked that their marshals prevented any of them from setting fire to the building from whence they were fired upon.

Well, he said, marshals or no marshals, he would set fire to the building from which the people fired on him—that when a man was persecuted for opinions's sake it was time to burn, to shoot and to kill, etc., etc.

Considering such language very unwise, we inquired who the person was, and ascertained to our surprise that he was a member of the Legislature, from one of the northern parishes, bordering on the Mississippi river. We trust that all such language as this, from whatever source it may come, will not have the slightest influence with the colored people. We think it will not, as we have too much confidence in their love of order and harmony.

Georgia.

It is a sound principle in political science that the franchise carries with it the immunities of the franchise, unless said immunities, in whole or in part, are interdicted by special legislation. That the reconstruction acts of Congress invested the black man of Georgia with the right of suffrage can not be denied; that the new constitution of Georgia contains no clause excluding persons from office on account of race or color, is equally clear; that the negroes of Georgia voted for the present State Constitution and for the officers provided therein, are also facts.

By what authority, therefore, were twenty-five legislators declared ineligible to hold office, and unseated because persons of color? The reconstruction acts of Congress implicitly declare the eligibility of such citizens; it was the original intents of those acts, that they should be equal with white men before the law, and if elected, exercise the functions of office. These acts have been thus interpreted in each of the reconstructed States, and in said States black men do hold office. Will Congress suffer Georgia to be an exception to the general rule? If it can be shown that her State Constitution is violative of the organic law under which the State was reorganized, then it is in-operative and must be amended. It is not enough that there is therin no express provision forbidding of black men holding office, or express provision that they are ineligible. The silence of the instrument can not work to the injury of the citizen; and so far as we can see, the Georgia Constitution does not interdict their election. It is, therefore, sound to affirm that the lesser instrument must be interpreted by the greater, and that the Georgia Constitution must yield to the Constitution of the United States. And this, Congress is bound to demand.

The people of Georgia acted in good faith when they elected colored representatives, and these representatives acted in good faith in the discharge of their official duties; and upon investigation it will be found that the measures passed by the Georgia Legislature are jeopardized by the expulsion of these colored men. It is reasonable to suppose, that many laws were adopted by their votes, which would not have been adopted without them; and where large financial interests are involved the question of eligibility becomes more serious. And inasmuch as they voted for the ratification of the fourteenth amendment, and inasmuch as that amendment would not have been ratified without their votes; and inasmuch as the Legislature of the State has pronounced the voters ineligible and hence their votes illegal, therefore Georgia has placed herself in this dilemma. She must either readmit the expelled members or she is not in the Union. Now let her choose which horn of the dilemma she prefers.

The conduct of the white Democrats in the Georgia Legislature is a solemn warning to the people of color, not to trust their political promises and pretensions. What has been done in Georgia, will be repeated in every Southern State when the power is possessed. Your true political friends are those who fought for your liberty and who are here to aid you in the good work of reconstruction.

Democratic Procession.

To strengthen the feeble knees and hearts of the Democrats of New Orleans, the Democrats of St. Louis came to this city on Wednesday last and presented the former a beautiful banner, and on the occasion there was a grand torch-light procession which was imposing and orderly to the extent of our observation. The procession, banquet, and Opera House speeches must have cost the Democracy of this city fifty thousand dollars, which is liberal for "a downtrodden people who can't pay their taxes." With the exception of the negro steamboat club, composed of levee hands, about seventy-five in number, the only other negroes in the procession was a small squad of thirteen and a half, wearing their grandmother's old snuff-colored capes. The half negro was hobbling along on one leg. And these were the boasted "thousands of negroes who have joined the Democrats!" The streets were crowded with people, and the hosts of men, women, and children, (white), were the best evidence that the hearts of this people are still true to the "lost cause," and that they cordially hate the man who conquered Lee.

At the Opera House Harry T. Hays made the reception speech, in which Harry was a little injudicious. Hear his cry for war. This is what he said:

No people have borne more of tyranny, more of wanton cruel, and malignant oppression than we have borne None ever bore it with more calm and patient counsel. It may, however, come to pass that our forbearance will be suicidal, and if, when prompted by the law of self-preservation, we shall be constrained to make resistance, then shall your banner be unfurled, and by the grace of God, the Blair Knights will carry it to victory, with the battle cry of Blair and constitutional liberty.

Harry, this sounds like war. Well, they whipped you once, and if you want another turn with the "boys in blue" you shall have it to your heart's content. Come on.

At the banquet General Steedman was equally warlike, and the people of the North should know that this Government official made the following remarks:

General Steedman exhorted the St. Louis delegation, both ladies and gentlemen, to say to their people when they reach home that if the inhabitants of Missouri have suffered under Radical misrule to the verge of human endurance, the citizens of Louisana have wept blood. Louisianians intend to vote in November, notwithstanding what the accidental majority in our Legislature may attempt to dictate to us. Like our ancestors of '76, if an attempt is made to crush out the expression of popular will and the freedom of speech, we shall arise in our might, and publish and adhere to another declaration of independence.

Are these words of peace? Steedman is Blair's echo.

A Democratic Carpet-Bagger Writes to the North.

We take the following from the Belleville (Illinois) Democrat of September 3:

UNDER RADICAL RULE.

We take the liberty of transcribing a few lines from a private letter from Hon. P. B. Fouke, formerly Representative in Congress from this District, who is now in New Orleans, Louisiana. They convey a vivid idea of the deplorable condition of the South under the rule of Radicalism:

* * * "If we are permitted to vote for electors in this State, we will carry it by 30,000 majority at least. The negroes are becoming disgusted with the carpet-baggers, and are flocking over to the Democracy by thousands—that, too, without the hope of reward and without any promises from the Democracy.

"I wish every Radical in the old Twelfth District could look in on the Legislature here. Thirty-six negroes in the lower House, an equal proportion in the Senate, and that august (?) body presided over by a negro as black as night itself and weighing 275 pounds. White men are excluded from the galleries by the crowded attendance of the blacks; three-fourths of the officers of the Legislature are negroes—all the pages are negroes. White men are arrested upon the most trivial pretexts by negro policemen, taken before a negro judge to be tried, and often tried by negro jurymen.

"You have no idea of the state of affairs here. The soldier who has fought the good fight for the Union stands no chance here. The negro gets the places and the patronage from Radical rule, and the soldier is kicked out like a dog. We look to the Democracy of the North to save us."

Mr. Fouke states some things which are true and some things which are otherwise.

It is not true that the people of color are flocking over to the Democrats in thousands. Out of the eighty-five or ninety thousand registered colored voters in Louisiana, not five thousand have gone to the Democrats. The colored people of Louisiana will vote solid for Grant and Celfax. It is not true that inducements have not been held out to them to leave the Republican ranks. Both promises and threats are daily employed, and the few who have gone, have done so from fear of losing a good situation.

It is true that Lieutenant Governor Dunn is a person of color, and that he weighs 275 pounds; and it is equally true that Mr. Dunn is the most dignified member of the Senate: a gentleman in his bearing to all; one of the best presiding officers in the State; is well thought of by the Democrats, who would not object to his joining their party; and who will compare well with Mr. Fouke for truth telling and general intelligence.

It is not true that the negro gets the places, and the soldier is kicked out like a dog. The Governor of our State was a gallant soldier; Rev. Mr. Conway, State Superintendent of Public Education, was a chaplain; Hon. J. H. Sypher, member of Congress, was a brave soldier, and also Congressman Newsham; United States Senator Kellogg was in the army, and in our General Assembly may be found such noble soldiers as Campbell, and McMillen, and Lee, and many others, worthy of a nation's honor.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

MR. EDITOR:

An attempt was recently made by a colored man, named Gardner, to break up the colored schools in Carrollton. He succeeded in almost completely disorganizing one of the most prosperous. Mr. Wright, sub-Assistant Commissioner of the Bureau, waited on Captain H. H. Pierce, United States army, General Superintendent of Education, and urgently solicited his assistance.

Captain Pierce appeared before a very large audience of colored people, at their church, on Friday evening at eight o'clock, and addressed them upon the advantages of education. The Captain dwelt at length upon the fact that the Government, in making them "free," clothed them with the important duties of a Christian people. He impressed upon their minds the great necessity of bending every energy to the great work of educating the children, and illustrated his argument with many historical facts, tracing the early history of their race. The Captain's remarks throughout, were logical and to the point. He extolled the beautiful virtues of a Christian life; told them that the color of their faces was no longer any bar to their intellectual advancement; that their friends were anxions to establish this fact; that, without their willing co-operation, however, it would be labor in vain. He gave them many practical hints in reference to good citizenship, clearly defining their privileges as freemen; that freedom meant protection to life, property and the pursuit of happiness; but that it by no means gave them authority to infringe upon the rights of others. He said much of the moral and intellectual condition of their race; telling them how to meet their great obligations to their Maker, their country and themselves. His remarks were manifestly well received. The regular services of the evening then proceeded, and the Captain then retired, leaving an impression which will not soon be forgotten.

The disaffected school has been reopened and is doing even better than before. Respectfully,

JULIUS G. BADENHAUSEN.

Book Notices.

HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN CIVIL WAR. By John W. Draper, M. D., L. L. D. Published by Harper & Brothers, New York.

This we judge to be a reliable work. It is published in three volumes. The second volume, which is now before us, contains the events from the inauguration of President Lincoln to the proclamation of emancipation of the slaves, from March 4, 1861, to January 1, 1863, inclusive.

The events are grouped under certain sections or heads, and by that means are the better remembered and their relation to each other understood. The work is written in a plain, straightforward manner, without any attempt at embellishing, yet in an interesting style. Its candor must commend it to all, and it will no doubt meet wilh success.

THE OPIUM HABIT. Published by Harper & Brothers, New York. Pp. 335.

A work compiled for the benefit of opium eaters. It is a warning to those who are beginning to use this terrible drug, and it attempts to show the one already bound by the habit that there is hope of his escape from his thraldom. It treats the cases of DeQuincy, Coleridge, and others. Opium and alcohol are compared, and the full outlines of the opium cure are given.

Correction.

VICKSBURG, Miss., Sept. 21.

SIR—In my last published letter several typographical errors occur. "Change" should read charge. In speaking of the Methodist Home Journal I am made to say "the demand is unequal to my ability to supply." It should read, my ability to supply is unequal to the demand.

Respectfully,

JAMES LYNCH.

A gentleman who is greatly interested in the progress of the revival, recently called at the store of a friend, to whom he wished to present the claims of religion. His friend was not in, yet he, being unwilling to go away without having accomplished some good, spoke to one of the clerks, a young man about eighteen years of age, to whom he was a stranger, on the same subject, and after a few days was apprised of his conversion through the instrumentality of this conversation.

Isn't it remarkable that railway trains can run over so many sleepers without waking any of them?

Hints To Young Ministers.

BY BISHOP MORRIS.

Some preparation for the pulpit is indispensable. But few preachers of this age will assert their ability to preach without special preparation, and they will not be believed. When a minister is preparing to preach let him inquire what the audience will probably be, what text will be appropriate, what is the literal meaning of that text, when spoken or written, by whom, under what surroundings, what was intended by the speaker or writer, what doctrines or duties, what threats or promises are involved therein, how may these be most profitably presented? The answer to these questions will furnish the plan of the discourse, called a brief, which must be carefully studied in all its details, to the filling up of the entire plan, including the practical improvement and introduction if there be any introduction needed. Then let him pray for God's blessing upon the effort, and deliver it while fresh in his own mind and heart.

There are two general classes of subjects—topical and textual. The latter is preferable in many respects. Where a minister preaches over a hundred times a year to the same hearers, his topics will soon be exhausted, but they may use over a hundred text, and have left as many more of equal interest to be used as he may need them. A textual subject not only affords more variety, but is more instructive and interesting to most hearers. Therefore, instead of writing a topical sermon and prefixing a text for a motto, let the sermon be deducted from the text in all cases. This plan lasts longer and succeeds better. So I think.

There are two modes of composing: one is on paper and the other is in the mind. I think the latter vastly preferable. The paper composition can be made only in your office, with table, pen, and all the fixtures; but the mental composition may proceed anywhere—on horseback, in buggy, or in railroad cars. Again, the paper composition can be used only when you have a regular pulpit or reading desk; but the mental can be used in the schoolhouse, or under the trees, or wherever needed. The more we use manuscript the more dependent we are upon it; and the more we train ourselves to speak without notes the easier we feel, and the more confidence we have to proceed in our subject without them.

Here allow me to record my own little experience in the use of notes in the pulpit. I never read a written sermon to a congregation to my recollection, and never laid my brief before me for reference exceeding three times during my ministry of over fifty years, which plan was suggested for important occasions, when I had little time for preparation. But every effort of the kind failed. I was so much embarrassed each time with notes before me as to remind me of a man trying to run a foot race with his feet hoppled, or to box with his hands tied behind him. When I failed the last time I deliberately determined never to try it again. And I have not tried to preach with any notes before me in the third of a century. My purpose was to speak without the useless incumbrance of notes as long as memory endured, and then quit altogether. As a man of age and experience, I advise beginners not to allow themselves to become dependent on notes in the pulpit, and I advise such as have sold their liberty in this respect to recover it as soon as possible. Our most able and successful ministers preach as our fathers did, without any notes before them. "A word to the wise is sufficient."—Western Advocate.

Woman's Record in Literature.

Many honored names of women adorne the literature of our language. In an age when Pope cultivated letter writing as an art, Mary Wartley Montague wrote and published more brilliant letters than he. Dr. Johnson pronounced Elizabeth Carter the best Greek scholar in England. Hannah More, by the charms of her conversation and culture, added to the attractions of that circle of which Burke, Garrick and Johnson formed a part. Mrs. Hemans and Mrs. Sigourney have wreathed their brows with proud chaplets of poetic fame. Mrs. Browning, as a poet, has no modern superior unless it be Tennyson. Neither Bryant, nor Longfellow, nor Whittier have written anything equal to (Mrs. Browning's) "Aurora Leigh." Mrs. Browning, the woman of deep emotion, high-toned-thought and devout spirit, read almost every book worth reading in almost every language.

Miss Mitchell gained the gold medal for being the first to discover a comet when half the astronomers of the world were looking for it.

We owe to women's heart and women's pen not a few of the best hymns in our language. Charlotte Elliott gave us—

"Just as I am, without one plea,
But that Thy blood was shed for me."

And by its sweet influence many a soul has been brought to Christ. Mrs. Adams gave us "Nearer, my God, to thee." Mrs. Steele, "Father, whate'er of earthly bliss." Mrs. Barbauld, "How blest the righteous when he dies." Our own Miss Cary has given us—

"One sweetly solemn thought comes to me
o'er and o'er,
I'm nearer my home to day than I've ever been before."

And these and others written by women will be classics in sacred poetry for all time, lifting the hearts of God's people as their holy music ascends from the sanctuary and family altar nearer to God, nearer to Heaven, their eternal home. The wives of Luther, Edwards, Burke, Hitchcock, Agassiz, Howitt and others have shown how much educated women may aid their husbands in literary pursuits. Caroline Herschell did much of the work which made the name of her brother, Sir William, so eminent in astronomy. Rev. A. M. Reid.

From the Churches.

Rev. Scott Chinn, who was sent by the Presiding Elder, J. P. Newman, to hold the third quarterly meeting of the Laharpe street church in this city, reports seven persons received into full connection during the past quarter; two received by probation, and one by letter. Number of adults baptized 6; infants baptized 1. Number of deaths 2. Forty-eight dollars had been raised for the pastor, and twenty-five dollars for the Church Extension Society. Two were recommended to be licensed as exhorters. The pastor reported that he had preached to the children and catechised them frequently.

MARAIS STREET CHURCH.—Brother Chinn gives us the following report of the third quarterly meeting of his own church: Received in full connection 31; on probation 40; deaths 2; excluded from the church 4; adults baptized 34; infants baptized 4. Money raised for Church extension and other collections $61 50. Money raised for the pastor $134 50. The pastor recently addressed a house full of Sabbath school children in his church, and took up a collection for the school of $14 45.

CAMPBELL'S CHAPEL.—At the third quarterly meeting of this church two persons were reported as received on trial during the past quarter, and four expelled. Two children had been baptized. Number of Sabbath school scholars eighteen. Money raised for pastor's salary twenty-five dollars. Attention was called to the matter of attending to the aged and infirm; also to encourage the circulation of the New Orleans ADVOCATE.

JEFFERSON AND CARROLLTON.—Rev. Emperor Williams, the pastor of these churches, has sent us the following report, made at his third quarterly meeting: Number of members at Jefferson 250; probationers 50; number of conversions the past quarter 25; adults baptized 30; deaths 4; Sunday school scholars 60; officers and teachers 6.

At Carrollton there are 60 members; probationers 20; adults baptized 10; infants baptized 20; conversions the past quarter 16; scholars in Sabbath school 30; officers and teachers 3.

Brother Williams reports having preached, up to August 8, one hundred and eighty times. He has received on his salary $450.

FIRST STREET CHURCH.—At the third Quarterly Conference held at this church there were reported for the past quarter 18 baptisms of children, 5 excluded, 1 died, $100 raised for the pastor's salary; number of scholars in Sabbath school 137; officers and teachers 9.

SIXTH STREET CHURCH.—At the third Quarterly Conference of this church the number of Sunday school scholars reported was 35, being a decrease for the quarter; received in the Church in full connection 4; on probation 6; expelled 2. The congregations were increasing in numbers.

MANDEVILLE. — Brother Henry Green, who held the third Quarterly Meeting at Mandeville, says: "I left New Orleans August 18, and spent nearly a week in and about that place. I did not find many people at first; politics had scattered them. I went a good ways off and hunted up the people, and found them doing mighty well; large gardens and corn fields, with plenty of chickens and hogs. They were doing better than the people in town. There are many Christians among them. We had a reviving time finally before I returned to the city."

PASS CHRISTIAN CIRCUIT.—A few days after my return to the city I left for Pass Christian to hold the third Quarterly Meeting at that place. I landed from the boat at Mississippi City, and went on foot from there to Handsboro'. It being in the night, and our route through the woods, we lost our way. Finally we came to a house, and calling the gentleman up, he put us in the right way, and we reached the place after a couple of hours. I found few at the first; politics had scattered them here also. Toward the last we had a crowded house. Eight joined the Church. We then started for Mississippi City, to take the boat for Pass Christian. When we got there the boat had gone. We then started at eight o'clock in morning along the bay on foot, stopping in at the houses of some of the old Christians to sing and pray with them. We reached Pass Christian at three o'clock, which they said was sixteen or seventeen miles. It was the twenty-fifth of August. I commenced to hunt up the people; found the most of them making complaints. I preached to them that day, and Brother Gunby, who was with me, preached at night. I gave out that I would hold their third Quarterly Meeting; but the people did not come together. I gave it out again, and they came, and after that we had pretty much of a crowded house; but no one joined the Church. Wednesday morning I took the boat and left for Bay St. Louis. Walked around and gathered the people. Things were a little better than at Pass Christian. I preached two sermons, and Brother Gunby preached twice. We had sacrament on the twenty-eighth, Tuesday night, and had a very crowded house; and left for the city Saturday evening, the twenty-ninth.

LIVE OAK.—After my return from Pass Christian I remained a few days in the city, and on September 4 started to Shady Grove, to hold the second Quarterly Meeting at Live Oak church. I went by the way of Mandeville, arriving there on the evening of the fourth. The next morning I started in company with Brother Johnson, the preacher at Mandeville, and Brother Gunby, the preacher at Live Oak church, who left his charge for a days, as the white people were seeking to injure him. We traveled from Saturday morning until midnight, when we stopped at a house, and fed our horse and got a cup of coffee without sugar or milk, and a cake of corn bread. We hitched up again and drove on. The water was so high in some places that it was almost ready to fill the carryall. More than half a dozen people had advised us not to go to Live Oak church, as the people were bad. But we went on, and arrived there about four hours before noon on Sunday morning. We inquired for the exhorters, and found that they had left soon after Brother Gunley. I preached for them in the morning, and Brother Johnson in the evening. Sunday night we had sacrament, and had a very fine time. Monday morning we walked fourteen miles, going to Pearl River to hunt up the official board of the other church, New Hope; found some of them on the other side of Pearl River. We got them together, and I preached a quarterly meeting sermon, and held the Quarterly Conference. They are much pleased with the old Church, and want to live and die in it, though they are persecuted for belonging to it. I looded about to see how our colored people live. Some are very poor, but some are living mighty well. Plenty of cattle, chickens, hogs, gardens, etc. That night after Conference, about one o'clock, we started home, and traveled all night. Tuesday about one o'clock the carryall wheel broke all to pieces. We fixed a pole under it and carried it to a place which was twenty-seven miles from Mandeville. It cost six and a half dollars to get it mended. We had to cross three ferries in a boat, and at one we staid all night; slept in the carryall, with planks for our mattresses, and our carpet-bag for a pillow. Wednesday evening we arrived at Mandeville. During this distance I walked about eighteen miles on account of a sick wheel and a tired horse.

On the tenth the people at Indian Village, in St. Tammany parish, left word at Mandevill that when the elder came he must come to their church, which they had built near Indian Village. So we went there. We arrived there on Friday evening. We had to fight musquitoes and horse flies all the way across the prairie.

The white people had a church near there, but would not let the colored people come in, so they went to work and built them a good log church, and put seats in it.

Saturday we gathered the people, a good congregation. Brother Johnson preached, as he had been there before, and gathered the people. They liked him very much. I preached for them at three o'clock and at night. Four persons joined the Church.

They had no preacher nor licensed exhorter at the church. But there was a man there who was somewhat gifted as an exhorter, and only one thing in the way of his being licensed, which he was glad to have removed. He, like many of our colored people, was living with one with whom no marriage ceremony had ever been performed, either before or since he become free. So I married him to his wife, when Brother Johnson and the people recommended him to be licensed as an exhorter, and I licensed him. He was a good man, and had labored well among them. The church had thirty-six members in good standing.

On Sunday we had a basket meeting. The people come from twenty-five miles around, from Pearlington and Fort Pike, and they just spread their white clothes on the grass, put their dinners on them, and just walked around and ate what they wanted, and enjoyed themselves beautiful. I baptized twenty-seven persons. Our meeting lasted till five o'clock, when I left for Bayou LaCombe.

About sundown we got to the brickyards, and staid there and preached to the people. They have a Union teacher there, who keeps both the day school and Sanday school. But the people are so poor that they can not pay him scarcely anything, and he may be obliged to leave.

JACKSON, Miss., September 7.

EDITOR NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE:

It is a long time since I have written for the ADVOCATE. We have had some revival this year at Jackson. The Lord has called to his Zion forty-five souls in this place.

We had a good sermon here a short time since, preached by Rev. Mr. Roberts, lately from Washington city, who is engaged in the homestead land office, under General Howard.

We have a day school in session now, taught by a Miss Highgate, a young colored lady from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. She has fifty or sixty scholars. She teaches for fifty cents a month from each pupil. Yet the people are so poor that she only succeeds in collecting about half that. Times are hard. It is difficult for a Methodist preacher to live here and keep the rules in the discipline from page sixty-one to sixty-four. I have no bread to eat at the present time. We ate the last this morning. My wife asked me what we should do, and said that this was the darkest hour we had ever known. I told her though we had no bread now, we would have some before the sun went down. About mid-day a good old sister brought some bread to us, and said while she was sitting in her house she was impressed that she ought to take food to the pastor, and so she had come.

Brother Lynch preached a sermon here lately that I think will never be forgotten. It was from the text, "None of these things move me." I was at much expense in getting here, and after I came. And so want for temporal food, but I am still trusting in God, "the rock that is higher than I." Respectfully, yours,

MOSES ADAMS.

Franklin, Louisiana.

The third quarterly conference of Franklin circuit was held at the Methodist Episcopal church in Franklin, St. Mary's parish, Louisiana, September 12, 1868. R. K. Diossy, presiding elder, chairman. After religious services, Judge Josiah Fisk was chosen secretary. Twenty-three members were present and nine absent. There was one complaint, and no appeals. Brother Fisk was received as a local preacher from the Ames Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans. Reports were received from Brother John Lea.

Franklin Church—Members 200; probationers 43; baptized 119 adults 25 children. 1 Sunday school; 100 scholars; 4 teachers. 1 day school 65 scholars. 17 marriages; 7 deaths.

Baldwin Church—Benjamin Frere 45 members. 1 Sunday school; 45 scholars; 2 teachers. 1 day school. [illegible] 6 conversions. 6 adults and 5 infants baptized. 4 marriages; 1 death. 1 Sunday school; 41 scholars; 2 teachers.

Cypremort Church—Marcus Dale. 112 members; 37 probationers. 21 adults and 7 infants baptized. 1 Sunday school; 115 scholars; 4 teachers. 1 day school; 100 scholars. 1 death. 40 conversions.

Charenton Church—John Wesley. 108 members; 25 probationers; 30 conversions. 31 adults and 6 infants baptized. 6 marriages. 1 Sunday school; 40 scholars; 6 teachers. 1 day school; 40 scholars.

Jeannerettes—135 members. 2 missions. 40 members.

Total—661 members, 88 probationers; 222 baptisims; 5 Sunday schools, 331 scholars, 18 teachers; 4 day schools, 225 scholars; 23 marriages; 8 deaths.

Church buildings at Franklin, Charenton, Cypremort, and one being built at Centreville.

On examination of character, William Wadkins was suspended from official duties, and censured for dishonesty and insubordination. He was a defaulter to the amount of eighteen dollars. The stewards reported $68 80 received and expended. The people are very poor, and with difficulty pay the preachers' board and light the churches.

Mrs. Parks reported the Sunday school well attended, but not encouraged by the presence of preachers and leaders of the church. Day school hindered some by her ill health this summer.

The churches have enjoyed revivals, are united, and meet with no opposition. Brother Lea has labored very faithfully, but has had much sickness during two or three months. The local preachers and working brethren have done well.

The Sabbath services were well attended and interesting as usual. The Sunday school was examined by the elder. The singing and Bible lessons were good, but the catechism had been neglected. Meetings were held morning, evening, and night. People came to the feast from ten and fifteen miles distance.

J. FISK,
Secretary.

Progress of American Chromo-Lithography.

Mr. Prang is rapidly increasing his business and improving his beautiful art. He has begun his contemplated "Gallery of American Painters," in which he proposes to produce at least one characteristic picture by each of our eminent artists. He has already published several landscapes by Britcher, several groups of chickens and the like by Tait, several fruit pieces by Lily M. Spencer, and Miss V. Granberry, of New York, a couple genre pictures by Niles, of Boston, a series of Ruggles "gems" in oil colors, besides a great variety of illuminated texts and cards by Miss Jennie Lee, of Jersey, and cartoons and lithographs by Mr. Homer, and others. He has now in active preparation: A New England Winter Landscape" by the late Mr. Morveiller, of Malden; a figure piece, The Barefooted Boy, by Eastman Johnson: Easter Morning, by Mrs. Theresa Hart, wife of James Hart, the landscape painter; two brilliant pictures of children in the woods, The May Queen and The Little Rogue, by Mrs. S. G. Brown; The Shipwreck of Steerforth, by Moran; The Friends, by Giraud; The White Mountains in October, by Mr. George L. Brown; The Bay of New York, by the same artist; The Falls of the Yo Semite, by Bierstadt; two fruit pieces, by S. W. Fuller; Cherries and Basket, by Mrs. Granberry; and besides these he has a number of other compositions on the easels of distinguished New York painters. Tait is hard at work on his favorite subjects. We are not at liberty to name the paintings by foreign artists that are to be chromoed as rapidly as possible, because, in the absence of an international copyright law, fine-art publishers are liable to the same annoyances which are now experienced by the publishers of foreign books.

The Winter Landscape, by Morveiller, is a picture as essentially New Englandish—if we may coin the word—as pumpkin pies or Thanksgiving. Morveiller made a speciality of winter scenes, and was admitted to be the best painter of snow in America. This is one of the best of his small pieces. It represents an old farm house by the road-side, with its inevitable L's and out houses; grandma in the yard engaged in feeding poultry; a group of skaters on a frozen stream hard by, with spectators looking on at the sport; in the distance, the village, which is hidden by the trees on its outskirts. A grand old elm, under whose wide spreading branches the farm-house is built, is rendered with wonderful fidelity and spirit; and the apple-tree on the other side of the road seems to have been photographed from every family homestead in Massachusetts away from the great iron thoroughfares. The picture is a pleasant one; for it has a warm, cheerful glow—such as every one delights in, on fine mornings in winter when the snow lies deep and the sleigh bells are ringing merrily on every road.

The Falls of the Yo Semite is a characteristic bit of California scenery in Bierstadt's well-known style. It represents a bright sunset on a lonely lake, whose solitude is disturbed only by a pair of water fowl that hover and rest on the rocks at the shore. Abrupt, steep and rugged cliffs—over a part of which tumbles, headlong, a graceful waterfall—from the southern boundary of the lake; and a fringe of gigantic branchless fir-trees skirt the northern shore. It is a careful study after nature and every touch is Bierdstadtish.

The Barefooted Boy is a true artist's rendering of Whittier's familiar lines:

"Blessings on thee, little man,
Barefoot boy with cheeks of tan;
With thy turned-up pantaloons
And thy merry whistled tunes;
With thy red lip, redder still
Kissed by strawberries on the hill;
With the sunshine on thy face
Through thy torn brim's jaunty grace;
From my heart I give thee joy—
I was once a barefoot boy!
Prince thou art—the grown up man
Only is republican.
Let the million dollared ride;
Barefoot trudging at his side,
Thou hast more than he can buy
In the reach of ear and eye—
Outward sunshine, inward joy—
Blessings on thee, barefoot boy!"

It represents a comely rustic lad, clad in coarse homespun dress, with his trousers turned up, his hands in his pockets and the brightest of "knowing," yet innocent smiles on his face and in his eyes. His face is half shaded by his broad-brimmed hat; his feet are firmly planted on a gray rock; he looks so hopeful, so self-reliant, so entirely at his ease, that he seems the perfect incarnation of Young America. The accessories of this picture are a distant landscape with a tree in the middle and foreground. They are well handled, but they serve only to support the figure, which is one of the best pieces that Mr. Johnson has ever produced.

The Fringed Gentian, after Newman, is one of those fearfully and wonderfully elaborate and truthful representations of vegetable life in which the pre-Raphaelite school of artists of New York and elsewhere seem to delight. It is in water colors. It looks as if it had been drawn with the aid of a microscope—the most Lilliputian details are so exactly reproduced. It is one of the most difficult subjects to chromo, and we shall take an interest in examining the result.

Among the fruit pieces in press, judging from the original, we prefer the "Cherries" and the "Strawberries," of Miss Granberry, which are certainly admirably rendered, with a luscious fidelity to nature. Mr. Fuller's pieces are highly finished and harmonious in color, but it strikes us that the subjects are less likely to be universally popular.

The Friends, by Giraud—we forgot to name it in our list—is the picture of a little girl, who is petting a Newfoundland dog. Giraud has an excellent faculty for the conception and execution of this class of subjects, and this is one of his happiest efforts. It will charm the children everywhere.

In an entirely different style, but of the same character, are the companion pictures by J. G. Brown, of New York. This young artist excels in genre pictures; he renders children with a rare ability, especially when there is a single figure at rest, but in an attitude expressive of mental action. These subjects—the "May Queen" and the "Little Rogue"—are just suited to his peculiar genius. The "May Queen" is a little girl in the woods, brilliantly attired, self-adorned with wild flowers, bathed in sunlight, her eyes beaming with delight at the thought of surprising her friends by her new and gay decorations. The Little Rogue is the picture of a boy, four or five years old, who is trying to hide himself from somebody coming—which somebody he is evidently intending to startle. He is stooping under a sumac bush, which he gently bends over him. This gives the artist an opportunity for a brilliant piece of covering. It is autumn, and the declining sun shoots its rays through the misty atmosphere, brightening the gay hues of the sumac leaves and warming up the surroundings of the figure, which are rather cold and low in tone. The two pictures contrast finely; the clear, bright, summer glow of spring—in the May Queen—being harmonious offset against the dreamy, misty, autumnal vapors in the Little Rogue. Mr. Brown regards these pictures as his masterpieces.

Easter Morning, by Mrs. Hart, is a massive marble cross, hung round about with fushcias, panses, yellow roses and other exquisitely tinted flowers. It is a combination entirely novel, peculiar and lovely. We have seldom seen an effect so original produced by a combination of such simple and familiar elements. There is affluence of quiet beauty in the wreath that is essentially harmonious with Easter and its sacred memories. It is altogether charming. If there is a single flaw in it we have failed to detect it. As far as the chromo has gone it bids fair to rival the original; but we reserve our judgment upon it until it is completed, we know only that if it is at all comparable to the exquisite painting, it will soon be one of the most common ornaments of our boudoirs, vestries, Sunday schools and libraries.

The last painting on our list was handed in as we were taking notes of the new publications. It is a small reproduction of The Crown of New England—a painting which, both in England and America has secured for Mr. George L. Brown some of the highest encomiums from artists and art critics, which American productions have ever obtained. Glowing, poetically truthful, full of brilliancy and light and beauty, it represents the White Mountains when they are seen to the best advantage—when, as the portrait painters say, they are in their "highest moments"—transfigured under the early morning sunburst of a late October day. The original on a large scale is on exhibition at the Art Gallery of Childs & Co., where it has been visited and admired by thousand of our wealthiest and best educated citizens. If this beautiful creation, this lyric on canvas, can be reproduced in facsimile, it will mark an epoch in the art; for the vapors and mists that encircle the mountain sides, the subtle gradations of light and shade, and the marvelous blendings of colors and tints render it exceedingly difficult either to imitate or duplicate.

It is gratifying to know that the popular demand for pictures is almost in the exact ratio of their artistic excellence. Every touch of nature, whether on canvas or in chromo, is instantly recognized and applauded. The best things sell best; no reputation avails against the fact as it is. Ruggle's gems have not paid expenses; whereas Tait's groups go off with amazing rapidity. Of Britcher's pictures, on the other hand, The White Mountains and Esopus Creek and Sawyer's Pond (a little gem) and one or two others have a steady and rapid sale, while some others do not move off at all. The people have a truer taste than they generally have been credited with in the critical doomsday book. It is a faith in this instinctive taste that has borne on Mr Prang to the rare good fortune that has rewarded his efforts.

BERWICK.

The Pulpit.

Rev. Mr. Punshon, in his address at the Canada Conference, uttered these pregnant and powerful words on the dignity, topic, aim, and exceeding great reward of preaching:

Take heed to your preaching. This is, after all, the main thing. If you are no preacher, you are nothing. Let the pulpit be your throne. Who says that the pulpit has become effete? or that it has lost its power? God himself has put the pulpit on the throne. The preacher is not the lecturer, nor the philosopher, nor the critic, but the lifter up of the Cross and the Saviour. This is your work, O, if you fail here, you miss your way. If there be anything in your ministry that does not lead to Christ, it is a strange doctrine; God himself will destroy it; it is a blemish which disfigures the whole; it is but as the meteor of the marsh, which may beguile, but cannot dissipate the darkness. It suggests the idea of darkness in the blaze of day, like the glare of the city gaslight kindled in mockery of noon. Then preach Christ. You ask me how to preach Christ. In your own style. If you have the imaginations of the poet, use it; if you have the eloquence of a Cicero, use it; if you have a quiet style of your own, then be yourself. If you have the polish in the grain, bring it out; don't let the pine grain sneer at the mahogany grain. Don't let us have the class of revival and non-revival brethren. Be lucid as Matthew, if you can; logical as Paul, poetic as Isaiah, tender and melting as John the beloved, and stern and fiery as Ezekiel, only let us feel the power! You need power—power over the conscience. If you speak to the imagination, the poet will beat you; if you speak to the disputer, you will be worsted; but speak to the conscience, and no man can rival you there. You are a Czar of many lands.

Above all, be in earnest. Preach wisely; aim at the fifth rib; let there be no affectation; not the bursting of a volcano but the gentle dawning of the light, that, while it would not awake the slumbering babe, would fill the world with glory.

Aim at success. God's word promises it: "As I live, saith the Lord, my word shall not return void unto me." Trust God. The husbandman patiently waiteth, believeth, for the precious fruit of the earth; so may you. Expect success. You have the power and you have the promise. May God save us from invoking excuses for want of success, when our barrenness should drive us to our knees! Let us dread, above all things, the curse of an unfaithful ministry. Preach the gospel. Don't fear because of the pride of rank or of wealth; don't be afraid of them, lest you have the guilt of souls on your hands. Let not the blood of souls be on your skirts. "Deliver me from bloodguiltiness, O God, thou God of my salvation." He who labors for God will get souls. O, that you all may invoke the baptism of the Holy Ghost upon those young brethren! "and let the people say amen."

Boys Out After Nightfall.

A writer in the Fireside Companion moralizes as follows upon the above topic:

I have long been an observer, as I am a sympathizing lover of boys. I like to see them happy, cheerful, and gleesome. I am not willing that they should be cheated out of their rightful heritage of youth—indeed, I can hardly understand how a high-toned, useful man can be the ripened fruit of a boy who has not enjoyed a fair share of the glad privileges due to youth. But while I watch with a jealous eye all rights and customs which entrench upon the proper rights of boys, I am equally apprehensive lest parents, who are not forethoughtful, and have not habituated themselves to close observation upon this subject, permit their sons indulgences which are almost certain to result in their demoralization, if not in their total ruin; and among the habits which I have observed as tending most surely to ruin, I know of none more prominent than that of parents permitting their sons to be in the streets after nightfall. It is ruinous to their morals in almost all instances. They acquire, under cover of the night, an unhealthy and excited state of mind, bad language and practices, criminal sentiments, a lawless and riotous bearing; indeed it is in the street after nightfall that boys principally acquire the education for the bad capacity of becoming dissolute, criminal men.

Parents should adopt a most rigid, inflexible rule that never will permit a son under any circumstance whatever to go into the street after nightfall with a view of engaging in out-of-door sports, or of meeting other boys for social or chance occupation. A rigid rule of that kind, invariably adhered to, will soon deaden the desire for such dangerous practices.

PRANG'S AMERICAN CHROMOS

Are pronounced by distinguished painters, poets and critics the best that are now made. We challenge the most critical examination of our chromos in oil, such as Tait's Groups, Britcher's Landscapes, Lemmen's Poultry Pictures, Correggio's Magdalena, the Flower Bouquet, or the Kid's Play-ground.

Our CHROMOS, after WATER COLORS, are equally artistic. They are:

Wood Mosses and Ferns, by Ellen Robbins.....$1 50
Birds Nest and Lichens.....1 50
(Companion Pictures.)
The Baby, (after Bouguereau.).....$3 00
The Sisters, (after Bouguereau.).....3 00
(Companion Pictures.)
The Bullfinch, by William Cruikshank.....$3 00
The Linnet, by William Cruikshank.....3 00
(Companion Pictures.)

Of the last pictures, George L. Brown, the celebrated American artist, unrivaled as a colorist and and painter of atmospheric effects, says:

I admire them much. I saw some splendid specimens in Europe, which were wonderful; but never supposed that even finer ones were executed in Boston. What particularly excites my admiration is the tender and delicate half-tints, the high finish and the finesse and richness of tone. I think they must do much to educate the public in the way of color. How far superior to the hideous color lithographs we have been so shocked in seeing so long a time! I congratulate you on your success.

AMERICAN MUSICAL CLASS BOOK,

Designed for Female Colleges, Institutes, Seminaries, and Normal and High Schools. Containing Elementary Instructions, Vocal Exercises and Solfeggios, and a valuable Collection of Duets, Trios, and Concerted Pieces.

By T. Bissell—Price 75c.

Among the numerous works of the kind this cannot fail of a prominence, since its peculiar features are such as will commend it at once to the patronage of those for whom it is chiefly intended. Its rudimental lessons proceed with a regularity of precision that cannot fail to fix permanently on the mind of the pupil the essentials of success in future studies. The exercises are in a form to attract the attention, and the selection of music is one of the best, if not the superior of all similar collections. Principals of Educational Institutions, Music Teachers, and others interested in books of this class, will find it advantageous to examine this volume. THE GERMANIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, established in 1860, and based upon the most approved principles of Life Insurance security, presents its claims for consideration, believing that its solid foundation already secured by the faithful and efficient management of its officers and Board of Directors will give it the preference above all other similar institutions.

It is purely Mutual, as the net profits are distributed among the parties insured, the interest of the capital stock being only five per cent according to its charter.

It assumed the system of cash payments at the commencement of its existence, and maintained it faithfully until now, and promises the same for the future, thereby securing to policy holders the full amount for which they are insured. The advantage of this system over the half cash and half note system is patent to every careful observer, but will be more fully illustrated by the following statement and table:

If a person of thirty years of age insures his life for the amount of $1000 in one of the credit companies, and pays a premium of $28 30 per year, with a note for half of the premium, then by means of this note and interests thereon the amount will become less and less in the following proportions:

| | |
|---|---|
| After 10 years the $1000 will amount to | $887 44 |
| After 15 years the $1000 will amount to | 795 28 |
| After 20 years the $1000 will amount to | 666 02 |
| After 25 years the $1000 will amount to | 484 73 |
| After 30 years the $1000 will amount to | 250 47 |
| After 33 years the $1000 will amount to | 32 53 |
| After 34 years the $1000 will amount to | Nothing. |

So that after a lapse of 34 years the whole amount will be eaten up, notwithstanding the parties insured paid their money in good faith.

The large dividend of 40 per cent declared last January is evidence of the care and success with which the Managers have conducted the enlarged and rapidly increasing interests of the Company, and vouches for its future brilliant and permanent prosperity.

Parties contemplating an assurance on their lives will do well to examine the status of this Company, every facility for which will be given by the EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, State of Louisiana, New Orleans, July 14, 1868.

To the President of the Senate:

I transmit herewith for the information of the Senate a copy of Special Orders No. 154 from headquarters Fifth Military District, declaring that military law no longer exists. The civil law is supreme.

(Signed) H. C. WARMOTH,
Governor of Louisiana.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT, New Orleans, La., July 13, 1868.

Special Orders No. 154.

[Extract.]

2. The Commanding General having been officially notified of the ratification of the fourteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States by the Legislature of the State of Louisiana, on the ninth instant, it becomes his duty, under the act of Congress which became a law June 25, 1868, and the orders of the General of the Army, to announce to the people of the State and to the troops under his command, that the provisions of the reconstruction acts of Congress cease to operate in Louisiana from this date. Military authority will no longer be exercised under the reconstruction acts in said State, and all officers commanding post or detachments are forbidden to interfere in civil affairs unless upon a proper application by the civil authorities to preserve the peace, or under instructions duly received from the commanding general of the district. Military law no longer exists—the civil law is supreme.

All civil officers now acting under authority of appointments from these headquarters will at once transfer their offices, with the records, funds, and other property pertaining thereto, to their successors who have been declared duly elected, and who have qualified under the laws of the State. All other records properly belonging to the State will be transferred to the proper State officers.

The Commanding General cannot sever the relations heretofore existing between the State and himself without congratulating the people on an event which fully restores Louisiana to her former position among the other States of the Union, and to all her rights under the Constitution. Peace and quiet marked the late election, showing the softening influences of mutual forbearance. Should such forbearance animate the councils of the State, the era of kind feeling will return and the highest prosperity of the people will be attained.

That this may be the result under guidance of a merciful Providence, is his devout and earnest prayer. May her restoration to the benefits of our beloved Union mark the commencement of a new era of prosperity and happiness for her people.

By command of Brevet Major General R. C. Buchanan.

THOMAS H. NEILL,
Major Twentieth Infantry, Brevet Brigadier General, U. S. A., A. A. A. G.

Official: WM. RUSSELL, JR.,
Second Lieutenant 4th Cavalry, A. A. A. G.

Mr. Bacon moved that the message of the Governor and the order of General Buchanan be spread upon the minutes.

Adopted.

The President informed the Senate that he had received the resignation of Senator Harris, and had informed the Governor of the fact.

On motion of Mr. Lynch, the doors were closed, and the Senate went into executive session.

The executive session having been raised, Mr. O'Hara moved that the reports of the Committee on Elections with all of the evidence be referred to that committee, and that both parties have the privilege of producing such evidence, documentary and otherwise, as may be in their possession.

Mr. Packard offered an amendment that the committee be instructed to refer to the Attorney General of the State for decisions upon any questions of law that may arise.

The amendment was accepted, and the motion to recommit was adopted.

On motion of Mr. O'Hara, the Senate adjourned.

CHARLES H. MERRITT,
Secretary of Senate.

AN ACT

To Amend Article 1670 of the Civil Code.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That article sixteen hundred and seventy of the Civil Code of the State of Louisiana be and the same is hereby amended and re-enacted so as to read as follows, to wit:

The testamentary executor is not bound to accept the executorship, nor to give security when he does accept it, unless there should be debts due by the succession, or property in possession thereof, claimed by other persons.

Any person having a claim for money against the succession, or claiming the ownership of specific property in possession thereof, whether such claim be liquidated or not, can compel the testamentory executor to give security for an amount exceeding by one fourth the amount of money on the appraised value of the property claimed.

For this purpose he shall present in open court or in chambers, to the Judge of the Court of Probates wherein the succession has been opened, his petition, alleging under oath the sum due him or his ownership of the property described.

It shall be the duty of the Judge, without further proceeding or delay, to issue his order commanding the testamentary executor to give the required security within thirty days from the service of the order. Should the testamentary executor, if present in the parish, or in his absence, his agent or attorney at law, fail to furnish the required security within the delay allowed, it shall ipso facto work an immediate removal of the testamentary executor, and the judge shall appoint a dative testamentary executor.

But the testamentary executor shall not be required to give security for an aggregate sum exceeding one-fourth over and above the amount of the inventory, bad debts deducted, and the securities may be furnished from any part of the State; and no proceeding under this article shall decide in any manner the merits of the claim against the succession.

SEC. 11. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after its passage, and that all laws conflicting herewith be and the same are hereby repealed.

AN ACT

To Amend the Third Section of an Act Entitled an act to establish the Office of Inspectors of Hay for the City and Port of New Orleans, and to Regulate the Duties Pertaining to Same, Approved March 28, 1867.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the third section of an act entitled "an act to establish the office of Inspectors of Hay for the city and port of New Orleans and to regulate the duties pertaining to the same," approved March 28, 1867, which reads as follows:

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be the duty of said Inspectors of Hay, when called upon for that purpose, to inspect all lots of hay in the city and port of New Orleans, on the levee or in store, shall be amended and re-enacted so as to read as follows:

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be the duty of said Inspectors of Hay to inspect all lots of hay in the city and port of New Orleans, on the levee or in store; they shall have a proper office, or offices, which shall be open from eight o'clock in the morning until four o'clock in the afternoon, where shall be kept a complete record of all inspections of hay made by each Inspector, disclosing the date of inspection, the name of the holder or owner of the hay inspected, gross and net weight, tare and classification: provided, that no hay shall be sold in the city and port of New Orleans until it has been once inspected as provided for in this act, and that any person who shall sell hay in said city and port, that has not been inspected as aforesaid, shall be liable to a penalty of one dollar for every bale of hay so sold, to be recovered with costs of suit in any court of competent jurisdiction.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after its passage, and that all laws and parts of laws conflicting with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

[Dispatches to the Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, September 18.—Republican members who have canvassed the subject express certainty of a quorum on Monday.

The international cricket match between the All England 11 and 22 of New York, was won by the English.

Clarence Fendall, for fifteen years attached to the coast survey, is dead.

Attorney General Evarts has returned.

Schenck this afternoon has no doubt of a quorum on Monday.

A full Cabinet meeting to-day, with the exception of Browning.

The following appointments have been made.

Storekeepers, Edward J. Morgan, First Fistrict Alabama, and John H. Jessup, Third District Virginia; Guager, James Cibson, Second District Alabama; and L. B. Grigsby, Deputy Collector at New York, having charge of the transmission of merchandise between the Atlantic and Pacific States.

The "Tice" meters are ready. Prices range from $200 to $1050. Distillers must procure and use them, otherwise collectors will seize the distilleries and enforce the penalties. Distillers of apples, peaches and grapes need not use the meters.

WASHINGTON, September 19.—The New York Herald's Mazatlan letter of August 23d says: "The late New Orleans filibustering expedition is looked upon as a sign that the floating American population are rife for a descent upon Mexican territory, and that an able leader could instantly raise an army of 30,000 for that purpose, if our Government would only wink at the movement. The press of the whole country is alarmed about the filibutering movements from Cuba, New Orleans, the Rio Grande and the Pacific Coast.

WASHINGTON, September 19. — Collector Charles Abel has been appointed Collector in charge of exports for the port of Philadelphia. This is the first appointment under the new law of this class.

General Kilpatrick, Minister to Chili, is here.

Alexander H. Stephens is here. It is stated that Mr. Stephens's mission here is to obtain access to the Confederate archives held by the Government to aid him in the history of the war which he is writing. His success is probable.

Turkish agents are looking up homes in Virginia, Maryland and Delaware for Armenian families shortly expected.

Joseph T. Holden, son of Governer Holden, of North Carolina, in a dispatch to the Congressional Republican Committee, denies that he invoked the god of turpentine in his recent speech to the Radical negroes of North Carolina.

The Denver Tribune makes Bradford's majority for Congress 662, with two precincts to hear from.

WASHINGTON, September 21.—A nolle prosequi has been entered on the murder indictment in Surratt's case. His counsel make a special plea that the second indictment is barred by the amnesty proclamation, subsequent to which it was found. Court adjourned.

Both Houses have agreed to adjourn from to-day to the fifteenth of October, from that to the tenth of November, and from that to the first Monday in December.

WASHINGTON, September 22.—Commissioner Rollins has designated the store of William Marchant, 80 Front street, New York, as an export bonded warehouse for tobacco, under section seventy-three of the new tax law.

Surratt's counsel set forth amnesty in his defense, claiming safety for Surratt under that clause pardoning all who were not then under indictment for treason or felony in any court of the United States having competent jurisdiction. The counsel claim that Surratt at that time was under indictment at common law for murder, and not for treason or felony, and consequently entitled to the benefit of the proclamation. The prosecution demur, and the argument is progressing.

WASHINGTON, September 21.—There was no Democratic member in the House. The adjourning resolution, telegraphed at noon, passed without a call of yeas and nays. Subsequent proceedings showed that there was less than a quorum present, but the previous action was regarded binding.

In the House Schenck moved that the rules may be suspended any time during the remainder of the Fortieth Congress. Brooks, who had just arrived, objected, and a count showed no quorum. Schenck moved an investigation as to why no Supervisors had been appointed. He moved the previous question and a suspension of the rules, but no quorum voting. Colfax declared the House adjourned to the sixteenth of October.

The following is the verbiage of the resolution: When the House adjourns to-day, the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate do adjourn their respective Houses until the sixteenth of October, and then, unless otherwise ordered, that the two Houses be adjourned until the tenth of November, and then, unless otherwise ordered, a further adjournment take place until the first Monday in December.

In the Senate Mr. Buckalew carried the adjourning resolution by voting nay, his voice making a quorum present.

Mr. Buckalew moved an investigation as to whether a quorum was present in the House, when the resolution passed, but several objected to it as being disrespectful to the House, and Mr. Wade decided the recess was in the nature of an adjournment from day to day. It was for the House and not the Senate to judge whether or not a quorum of the House was present.

The Senate adjourned to the sixteenth of October, without doing any business.

WASHINGTON, September 21.—It is understood that Solicitor Binckley has gone to New York with enlarged powers. He has letters from the President, Secretary of the Treasury and Attorney General Evarts, recognizing him as an officer of the United States, to co-operate with Judge Fullerton, who will lead in the prosecution.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $400,000.

Olmstead's (not Armistead) defalcation amounts to $40,000, fully covered by bonds and property.

Hill and Miller, Senators elect from Georgia, are here, but did not present their credentials, having received instructions that the presentation of their credentials would open the question of Georgia's alleged violation of the reconstruction acts in expelling negroes, and the present presentation might lead to ultimate delay in their admission.

$1,120,000 in bonds were issued to-day to the Central Pacific Railroad.

It is stated at headquarters that General Grant will not return until the middle of October.

The House Committee on Retrenchments had a meeting to-day and determined to investigate why the Supervisors ordered by the late tax law had not been appointed. Also, the nature and extent of frauds charged by Binckley against Rollins. A sub committee will commence the investigation to-morrow.

WASHINGTON, September 23.—The argument on the special plea in the Surratt case still continues. Mr. Riddle, for the prosecution, argues that the act of Congress of January nineteenth, 1867, nullifies the President's amnestying power, and further, that if potent, Surratt is within its exceptions.

Nothing official has been received from Maine yet. The result will not vary much from 18,500 Republican majority.

WASHINGTON, September 22.—A full Cabinet present to-day, except Secretary Browning.

General Howard received a report of the Camilla riot, which he communicated to the Secretary of War. Subsequently, General Schofield had a prolonged interview with the President on the subject. Details not transpired.

General Butler yesterday filed papers in the House relative to the Kimberly suit, claiming that it was a breach of his privileges as a member of the House.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $171,-000.

The special plea in the Surratt case was argued all day and will be resumed to-morrow.

Colonel E. J. Stany relieves Captain Hoyt as Quartermaster at New Orleans.

Commissioner Rollins was before the Committee on Retrenchment to-day, explaining the hitch in the supervisorships.

WASHINGTON, September 23.—General Reynolds reports from Austin, Texas, that a detachment of the Ninth Cavalry, from Fort Davis, overtook two hundred Indians, killed thirty, captured thirty, and rescued captives; captured two hundred animals, and destroyed the Indian camp and their winter supplies.

WASHINGTON, September 24.—Surratt is now pleading the statute of limitation of 1799. The argument is progressing.

LATER.—The last plea is potent—Surratt is free.

WASHINGTON, September 24.—A dispatch from Fort Wallace says Colonel Forsyth, with fifty men, is hemmed in by a large number of Indians, ninety miles north of that place.

Colonel Forsyth was wounded in the leg and hip. Lieutenant Bucher was fatally wounded. Doctor Moore was shot in the head while dressing Colonel Forsyth's wounds. At last accounts the party had sixty-five rounds of ammunition, and were fortifying and eating horses. Troops were moving to their rescue.

WASHINGTON, September 23.—Judge Wylie sustained the potency of the President's amnesty proclamation, but rejected the special plea, saying: It does not appear from the record that the prisoner adhered to the enemy or that he committed treason, and therefore he does not come within the proclamation. The offense is a misdemeanor, and is not covered by the terms of the proclamation. He, for these reasons, sustained the demurrer. Defense asked leave to amend their plea, and the court adjourned.

General Meade is here; he had an interview with the President to-day.

Schofield instructed Gen. Meade to proceed at once to his headquarters. Gen. Meade departs this evening.

General Hatch, Bureau Commissioner for Louisiana, is here. He has had interviews with Secretary Schofield and Gen. Howard.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $263,-000.

NEW YORK, September 18.—Anxiety is felt for the safety of the steamship Northern Light, hence for Bremen, August 22.

NEW YORK, September 18.—Jamaica advices state that the smallpox continues with unabated violence.

NEW YORK, September 19.—The Commercial Advertiser states that a cable dispatch has been received, announcing the arrival of the Northern Light, heretofore feared lost.

Sailed: Steamship Guiding Star, for California, with 600 passengers.

Fire in New York this morning. Loss $175,000.

Foreign importations at this port this week amount to over $5,000,000.

Senator Sprague is confined to his room with a broken leg.

The Broadway Theatre shooting affray was before the court to-day, and Deputies Moore and Hickey were identified as the parties who did the shooting. Case continued.

NEW YORK, September 21—Cable Summary.—The naval force off Cadiz has revolted. Several generals recently banished have returned and joined the revolt, which the Marquis de la Favre heads, and the leaders of the old O'Donnell party sustain.

Several towns have joined the insurrection. An intense panic prevails at the Spanish Court. Troops have been sent southward under General Concha. A rumor prevailed at Paris that Queen Isabella had abdicated.

The war feeling is quieter. The ambiguity of Napoleon causes growing indignation. All other rulers are known to desire peace.

NEW YORK, September 22.—The Tribune has a dispatch from Atlanta regarding the Camilla, Ga., affair, stating that Colonel Pierce was dangerously shot and Captain Murphy badly hurt.

Official accounts place the number killed and wounded at fifty.

[Special Dispatch to the Missouri Democrat.]

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., September 15.—Two members of the Legislature, County Clerk, United States Assessor and Collector, and two United States contractors for building a freedmen's school-house, were driven from Lafayette county.

Twenty-one Union men were killed—three whites and eighteen negroes.

A large Ku-Klux meeting was held at Little Rock last Friday night. Leading rebels and desperadoes from all parts of the State were in attendance.

ATLANTA, September 18.—The House passed the Senate relief bill by 61 to 72.

A resolution was adopted repealing the former action of the House, staying the collection of debts, and declaring that collections can be made when the present relief bill receives the Governor's signature.

The Senate adopted an amendment to the tax bill, taxing foreign insurance companies one per cent on premiums or other receipts. State companies are taxed on the capital stock.

A document is circulating for signatures, irrespective of parties, requesting Hon. Alex. H. Stephens to deliver an address on the present condition of the country. It is signed by several members of both houses, and it is reported that Gov. Bullock signed the request, in the belief that it will do much toward restoring peace and quiet to the country.

A committee of the negroes declared ineligible has left for Washinton to present their case to Congress.

MONTGOMERY, September 18.—The time of the Senate this morning was wasted in the discussion of political topics.

The House adjourned after a few minutes session, and the Repub icans went into caucus with closed doors.

BOSTON, September 18.—John Quincy Adams accepts the Democratic nomination for Governor. His letter of acceptance says: "I think that two matters of material interest are involved in this election, one of which is important and the other vital. The former, which I take to be the financial question, was not treated by the New York Convention in a manner which satisfies my judgment.

"By providing for payment of the bonds known as five-twenties by the surplus revenues alone, thus ignoring what seems to me a valuable part of Mr. Pendleton's plan, viz: a withdrawal of the issues of the National banks, the Democratic party appeared to commit itself to an indefinite extension of the intolerable nuisance of an irredeemable paper currency.

"I am too much of a Democrat to regard any such prospect with patience. I believe in hard money, and therein hold myself to be a true Jacksonian Democrat."

PHILADELPHIA, September 18.—A heavy frost occurred throughout New England last night.

CLEVELAND, O., September 18.—The bark Clough went ashore twelve miles east of here, and all hands, numbering six, except the mate, were lost.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 18.—The steamer Idaho, with a cargo of sugar from the Sandwich Islands, has been seized. The sugar was adulterated with powdered charcoal, and passed the custom-house as low grade.

The Oregon Legislature assembled yesterday. Democratic majority in the Senate, four; in the House, eleven. Notice was given of a bill repealing the resolution adopting the fourteenth amendment.

Japanese complications are increasing. The anti foreign feeling is increasing. Another Imperial decree against Christians had been issued.

AUGUSTA, Me., September 17.—Official returns from more than three-quarters of the towns of the entire State fully confirm our claim to twenty thousand majority. We gain more than nine thousand on last year's majority and are seven thousand in excess of our average majority for the past twelve years. The total vote is by far the largest ever thrown in Maine.

JAMES G. BLAINE.

PHILADELPHIA, September 20.—One man killed at a political meeting in Franklin county, Pennsylvania.

OMAHA, September 19.—A party of government surveyors on the south fork of the Republican river were surprised by Indians, and one of the party killed. The others escaped, losing supplies, instruments and one team.

[Special Dispatch to the Missouri Democrat.]

OMAHA, Nebraska, September 17.—Trains on the Union Pacific to-day commenced running to Point of Rocks, eight hundred and four miles west of Omaha.

MONTGOMERY, September 21.—In the Senate this morning, a resolution was adopted, asking the President to send United States soldiers to this State to aid in preserving peace. The Democratic Senators denounced the resolution as a libel on the people of Alabama, and as being a political scheme to control the polls and to create the impression that the people of Alabama are not peaceable. The resolution passed the House also. It was bitterly denounced by the Democratic members.

A committee of five has been appointed to take the memorial to the President, and will leave for Washington in the morning.

The House passed a bill authorizing the publication of all the laws passed by the Legislature in some loyal paper. It is intended to build up a new Republican paper just started here, which can not live without such aid.

It is now thought that a registration law will be passed and an election held in November.

BALTIMORE, September 21.—The Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows met to-day. All the States and Territories were represented.

WILMINGTON, N. C., September 21.—A shooting affray occurred at Fayetteville on Friday, between Robert Winship Stedman, son of W. A. Stedman, and Dr. W. H. Morrow, United States Deputy Marshal, in which both were killed.

COLUMBIA, S. C., September 21.—The Senate to-day suspended for six months Senator Leslie, white, for alleged contempt. Leslie is Republican, but votes with the Democrats on questions of color.

OWENS SOUND, Canada, September 22.—John Robinson formerly of New Orleans, and four others started for Coopers' Island ten days ago; one of the party was found dead on White Cloud Island. The fate of the others is unknown.

LONDON, September 20—Midnight.—The following important news has just been received from Madrid:

Prime Minister Gonzalez, Bravo, Mayalde and Belda, members of the Spanish Cabinet, have resigned. The Marquis of Havana has been requested to fill their places ad interim. The Queen is returning to Madrid. Martial law has been proclaimed at the capital.

PARIS, September 21.—Some reports say that the rising in Spain is not a movement of the Liberals alone, but is supported by all parties. It is stated that the revolutionists have failed at some points owing to a want of leaders. The rumor that Queen Isabella had abdicated is generally discredited.

The Moniteur publishes exciting intelligence received yesterday from Spain, and says: "The reported accession of some of the crews of the fleet at Madrid to the revolutionary movement gives gravity to the news, but the accounts so far received are imperfect.

"It is certain, however, that the Ministry has resigned, and that General Concha has been summoned to Madrid to form a new Cabinet. At last accounts the capital remained quiet." The Moniteur adds: "This event prevented the Queen of Spain from meeting the Emperor Napoleon again, as she left St. Sebastian Saturday for Madrid."

HAMBURG, September 21.—King William visited the Bourse, and in response to an address said: Peace is desired by all. I have the surest hope it will not be broken. My speech at Kiel was intended to give the strongest assurance of that hope, and I can not understand how an opposite impression could have been derived from the words I used on that occasion. (Great cheering.)

RICHMOND, September 21.—A mass meeting was held this evening in the square. About a thousand negroes present. Speeches were made and a resolution adopted declaring a want of confidence in the Republican State Central Committee as not being in favor of justice and equal rights to all. Several white and colored speakers addressed the crowd, denouncing the carpet-baggers as needy politicians who had come to Virginia to make a living off the blacks and who did not intend that the blacks should have office.

The case of the negroes in the Georgia Legislature was brought up as a warning. The black speakers were particularly severe on the carpet-baggers, calling them dirty trash and scoundrels, and charging them with intending to betray the blacks. The Secretary of the State Central Committee obtained a hearing for five minutes in denial of the charges against that body, but the resolution passed by acclamation.

Captain R. G. Morris, surface manager of the Clover Hill coal pits, was killed by being run over by the railroad cars.

AUGUSTA, Ga., September 21.—The news of a riot at Camilla has caused some excitement. It is known that the negroes are armed throughout the State, but the whites have no serious fears of disturbances if the negroes are not precipitated into riots through pernicious counsels and violent appeals to their passions.

AUGUSTA, Ga., September 21.—A fearful riot occurred at Camella, the county seat of Mitchell county, Georgia, last Saturday. The following particulars have been telegraphed from Bainbridge, twenty-four miles from the scene of the riot:

Mr. Pierce, Radical nominee for Congress, and Mr. Murphy, ex-Bureau Agent, with about 200 negroes armed and equiped, started on Friday for Camilla, with three weeks' provisions and boxes of new arms and equipments, the intention being to overawe the citizens, and kill the leading Democrats of the town and vicinity. Before starting a friendly negro exposed the plan, and a negro courier was dispatched to Camilla to inform the citizens what was going on. A deputation of three prominent citizens met the mob at China church, five miles from town, the Governor's proclamation disarming and forbidding armed organizations was read, but the mob paid no attention to it, and determined to march on the town and kill such as they chose.

Two more deputations remonstrated with the negroes, entreating them to come in without arms, and they should not be molested. All efforts to dissuade were fruitless, and the negroes marched into town with banners flying and drums beating. They numbered nearly 400, numbers having joined on the route. The mob halted, and clamored for the blood of a man named Johns. Johns, in company with Dr. Twity, presented himself, when a hundred guns were leveled at them. The former, being intoxicated, fired, and the rest commenced, the mob firing at every one they could see. The citizens, white and colored, rallied, gathering about fifty stand of arms. The mob was vigorously attacked and driven back, beating a hasty retreat, which spread into a panic. The negroes were then pursued five miles, losing thirty-five killed and many wounded. The total loss so far as ascertained being from seventy-five to one hundred in killed and wounded.

Pierce and Murphy are reported mortally wounded. Owing to the panic among the mob, only five whites were severely wounded. The colored citizens of the town are reported to have rallied promptly with the whites in defeating the mob. Their stores and munitions were captured, amounting to three weeks provisions and boxes of arms. At last accounts Camilla was quiet.

ATLANTA, Sept. 22.—The rencontre at Camilla, Ga., creates much excitement here and throughout the State. Yesterday afternoon, the Governor sent a communication to both Houses relative to the disturbances in Mitchell county, recommending that the President of the United States be petitioned for military sufficient to preserve order in that county. The Governor says that in disregard of the proclamation of the 14th inst., the right of the people to peacefully assemble has been violently and barbarously impaired, and the civil officers are wholly unable to protect the the rights of the citizens or maintain peace, and earnestly recommends the Legislature to make immediate application to the President for sufficient military force, to be stationed in Mitchell county, to maintain peace, protect the lives and property of citizens, and have the guilty punished, after due process of law. The fact that this occurrence is the result of a determination, publicly expressed by irresponsible persons of one political party, that another political party shall not hold meetings is too well known. It is gratifying to know that the sentiment is confined to the lawless class and is not countenanced or supported by responsible citizens. The misfortune is that the outrages are not prevented, and unless physical force is added to the honest efforts of the officers of the law, we shall be thrown into a state of anarchy, where neither life or property will be regarded.

On the reading of this report a resolution was offered in the Senate to refer the message of the Governor to the Committee on the State of the Republic. Considerable debate ensued regarding telegraphing to the President. A resolution was offered that as the Senate had heard the statement of the negro, through the Governor, that an account from the white man be read; agreed to, but a substitute was offered for the whole that a special committee be appointed to investigate the whole matter, and report forthwith all the facts. The House also appointed a committee of five to investigate and lay a correct account before the Assembly.

At the request of Major Howard, Agent of the Bureau, Judge Vason and Captain Johnson will investigate the matter, and furnish the necessary papers for information this afternoon.

The Senate committee appointed to take into consideration the message of the Governor relative to the Camilla affair, made report that they find the testimony submitted to the Governor untrue, and accompanying the same with sworn testimony. The report gave rise to an exciting discussion, but was adopted—yeas 22, nays 10.

The House passed a bill, by 112 to 30, appointing the first Tuesday in November for the Congressional election.

The House received a majority and minority report relative to the Governor's message on the Camilla riot. After a heated discussion the majority report was adopted. It is, that they find the evidence referred to by the Governor is not sustained by the evidence produced before the committee, which was returned with the report. They have come to the conclusion that the whole difficulty occurred and originated from the determination of the parties referred to in the Governor's message, to wit: Pearce, Murphy, and Putney, to enter the town of Camilla at the head of an armed company of freedmen, which right was disputed by the sheriff of the county. The persistence of one and determination of the other caused the disturbance. They find that the civil authorities are able to execute the law, and that there is no necessity for military interference.

The report is signed by one Senator and four members of the House. One Senator dissenting from the report, and one said, "I agree with the committee, but believe that other legislation is necessary to preserve order and protect persons and property."

MONTGOMERY, September 22.—The Assembly did but little to-day. In the House a resolution was adopted for the appointment of a committee to wait on the Governor and learn what he desired the Legislature to do.

A member offered a resolution of instruction to the Committee on Registration, to report in the morning what progress they had made.

A member of the committee seconded the resolution, saying that the registration bill was delayed because every other member of the committee was opposed to an election by the people in November.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 22.—The Japanese Commissioners who purchased the Stonewall, returned in the Republic for safety. The Southern faction threatened to behead them. They will remain in the United States until the Japanese troubles are settled.

A tidal wave occurred in Yokohoma August fifteenth, twenty-four hours after its occurrence in South America.

BALTIMORE, September 22.—The Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows elected Edward D. Farnsworth, of Nashville, Grand Sire; Frederick D. Stuart, of the District of Columbia, Deputy Grand Sire; James L. Ridgely, Grand Secretary, and Joshua Van Sant, Grand Treasurer.

JERSEY CITY, September 22.—Richards & Verplanks' oil factory exploded to-day, killing two and fatally wounding two men.

PARIS, September 22.—Official dispatches from Spain admit that an insurrection has broken out in Madrid and Seville, but its existence in Murcia and Galicia is denied.

PARIS, September 22.—A report is current that the Minister of War will instantly issue orders for the dismissal to their homes of 80,000 men from the army on furlough.

TRIESTE, September 22.—A deputation of Greek citizens waited upon Admiral Farragut to-day and returned thanks for the sympathy which the United States manifested for the patriots in Candia.

The Admiral said the people of America not only sympathized with the Cretans, but would aid as far as possible the cause of liberty in Crete.

BERLIN, September 22.—The King of Prussia has returned to this city from a tour through the Northern States.

MADRID, September 21.—The decree accepting Gonzales Bravo's resignation named General Jose Concha President of the Council. He has not yet formed a ministry. This morning's Madrid Gazette announces that a revolt has occurred at Cadiz and Seville. The government has formed the army into three great divisions, comprising Catalonia, Castile and Andalusia, under Generals Pezuela, Manuel Concha and Novalschez.

These generals have decided to attack the insurgents in the rural districts. The Commandant of Madrid forbids assemblages in the city. A provisional government has been formed in Seville, with Espartero President. The strength of the insurgents is 4000 soldiers 1500 sailors and eleven ships of war. The revolt progresses at all points. Isabella left San Sabastian at midnight of the twentieth for Madrid.

LONDON, September 22.—It is rumored that the Spanish fleet off Cadiz has opened fire on that city, where, at last accounts, the citizens and troops continued firm for the Queen.

LONDON, September 21, Midnight.—The following has been received from Spain:

The resignations of Gonzales Bravo and his Cabinet have been accepted. A parley had been held between the loyal officers and some rebel leaders—result unknown. Fourteen thousand rebels were gathered near Valladolid to prevent the Queen's return to Madrid. The revolutionists hold the whole of Andalusia.

It is stated that the revolutionists are acting in the support of the Duke de Montpensier.

The Spanish Minister Bravo, who recently resigned, had fled. The Queen is at St. Sebastian, and the road infested with revolutionists to prevent her return to Madrid. Martial law has been proclaimed in Spain.

Later.—The telegraph wires in Spain are disordered in every direction. The news received is uncertain and contradictory. Generals Prim and Deroda are at the head of the insurgents, marching on the capital.

LONDON, September 24.—The insurgents are reported to have attacked Madrid, which is defended by barricades. No particulars.

The Spanish ministerial council has addressed a circular to the Spanish representatives at foreign courts, assuring them that the insurrection will be suppressed.

France remains entirely neutral.

Admiral Farragut, replying to the Greek delegation, intimated that his government would give the Cretans material aid.

The Aldermen and Councilors of Dublin have passed resolutions favoring the release of the imprisoned Fenians, the danger from the Fenian movement having passed away.

The Madrid Gazette says Navalchez had arrived on the north side of the Sierra Morena, with two regiments of cavalry, eight battalions of infantry and four batteries.

The revolutionary General Serrano was marching with a large force on Cordova to give the Loyalists battle. Great excitement existed in Madrid, where it was believed the success of the revolution was certain.

Isabella has signified her willingness to abdicate if the revolutionists will accept the young Prince Asturias as King, Isabella to act as Regent till Asturias attains his majority. The revolutionists refuse to compromise and demand the expulsion of the Bourbons, and the establishment of a provisional government.

LONDON, September 23.— Interesting news from Spain continues to come in. The provinces of Corunna, Lugo, Orenz. Pontevedra, Murcia, Albocete, Huesca, Zorajaca and Ternel, have pronounced for the revolutionists and appeal to the nation. The sovereignty of the people is the war cry of the insurgents. The rebels occupied Cadiz on Sunday. Seville is the headquarters of rebellion.

General Prim sailed from Paris. General Prim met the exiled gentlemen at Cadiz. Malcompo, of the ironclad Saragossa, brought his guns to bear on Cadiz barracks, compelling the loyal troops to surrender, and Cadiz declared for the rebellion. Each general then sailed to prearranged points on the coast, where each raised the standard of insurrection, and set movements on foot in his appointed theatre of operations.

The following additional from Spain has been received:

Santonia, a fortified town in Santander, has pronounced for the revolutionists. Railroads and telegraphs in the southeastern part of Spain are cut, and rapid communication destroyed. The excitement at Madrid is increasing.

The following from Madrid is official. General Novalschez, heading a large royal force, has gone to Andalusia. Troops have also been sent into Santander.

PARIS, September 23.—Latest advices report Madrid quiet. The Queen, finding the roads in possession of the enemy, was compelled to return to St. Sebastian. The rebels everywhere are proclaiming Espartero President.

LISBON, September 23.—Montpensier is preparing to return to Spain.

ATLANTA, September 23.—The Senate took up the vetoed Augusta Municipal Election bill, and passed it over the veto by 24 to 11.

In the House, Mr. Bryant, Republican, moved to reconsider the action of the House of yesterday in adopting the majority report of the committee to investigate the late difficulty between the whites and blacks at Camilla. The motion was lost by a large vote.

The report circulated that it is believed that the arms brought to Albany recently consigned to Rust, Johnson & Co., were sent to Camilla, is denied in a card published by one of the firm in an Atlanta paper. Captain Rust says: No guns have been consigned to or received by the firm, except four which were bought on private account, which are now and were on Saturday last in possession of the firm at Albany, and have never been out of Albany since received. So far from furnishing arms, the firm had no knowledge of the meeting at Camilla until news of the disturbance was received.

MONTGOMERY, September 23.—Governor Smith and five Republican members of the Legislature left for Washington this morning, with the memorial to the President, asking for troops.

The Democrats are holding an indignation meeting to-night, and denounce the language of the memorial as false. They have no objection to the presence of the soldiers, but object to the memorial as a slander on the white people of Alabama.

The Republicans are holding a meeting to-night. Very few present but negroes.

Nothing done in the Legislature to-day.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 23.—Mazatlan dates of the ninth have been received. General Canto, implicated in Patoni's assassination, with all the officers of his brigade, are under arrest. Troops are concentrating at Guadalajora to attack Lozada. Colonels Toledo and Grands, chiefs of the Sinaloa revolution, were shot by order of the military court martial.

VICKSBURG, September 24.—A fire occurred at two o'clock this A. M., on Washington street, destroying J. Guella's furniture store; building insured. Herrick & Dunn's photograph gallery, which is a total loss; no insurance. Button's barber shop; insured. Dr. Gilmore's office, which is a total loss, the family barely escaping with their lives.

Loss on buildings, stock, etc., about $30,000; amount of insurance $10,000.

MONTGOMERY, September 24.—The Legislature to-day did nothing, and will probably take no action relative to the election for President, untill the recent committee sent to Washington to ask for troops is heard from.

Large numbers of members are opposed to an election by the people, and will prevent it if they can. The memorial adopted by the Legislature and taken by five Republicans to Washington, alleges that there is really no respect for the laws in this city, and that the civil officers are prevented from discharging their duties by threats from the people.

A large meeting was held last night to take action about the memorial, and the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, Neither the Governor nor any other executive officer of the State of Alabama has ever found it necessary to call upon a posse of citizens to aid in executing the laws, and no proclamation has ever been issued by the Governor declaring that the due execution of the laws is impeded in any section of the State; and ...

Whereas, The Democratic and Conservative Convention of Alabama, at a recent meeting, resolved unanimously to obey the laws of the de facto State government, and as law-abiding citizens submit to the same until lawfully changed; therefore

Be it resolved, First, That the declaration of facts and apprehensions in the said memorial is untrue in every particular, and we, the people of Montgomery, do defy an investigation into the said alleged facts, resting satisfied that they are unsubstantiated by any evidence in the archives of the Executive office or in the declarations of the Chief Magistrate of the State.

Second—That we the people of Montgomery do solemnly declare our conviction, from the evidence existing around us and within our knowledge, and from evidence received from all sections of the State by reliable authority, that the people of the State were never more peaceably disposed than at present and never more ready to render prompt obedience to existi g laws.

Third—That the said memorial was promoted by a partisan spirit, which, for the temporary success of a certain policy or party, would wreck the prosperity of the State and plunge it into the horrors of civil war.

Fourth—That the people of Alabama, although knowing the rectitude of their own intentions, and fearing no molestation from an army of United States troops, would protest against the introduction of such an army into our midst as a violation of the Constitution of the United States, and as an unjust imputation upon our character and conduct.

Fifth—That we cordially indorse the letter of General Lee and others in reply to General Rosecrans, and solemnly declare our belief that the sentiments of that letter are the sentiments of the people. That we are peaceful and law-abiding, and will do nothing nor countenance anything in others tending to domestic violence.

Sixth—That the men composing the Legislature which has drawn up this monstrous indictment against a whole people are, for the most part, strangers in the State and were voted for at an election in which two-thirds of the adult males of the State, white and black, did not participate, and that the failure of the people to participate in said election was due, not to their approval of the men who were afterwards falsely declared elected, but to the pledge of Congress that non-voting would be equivalent to voting against them. That said legislators do not represent the people, but grossly misrepresent them; are robbing them of their money by extravagant appropriations; squandering the contents of the public treasury upon the vilest of the community; endeavoring to deprive the people of the privilege of the ballot; and breaking down their commerce and credit by enacting slanders which have no foundation in truth.

Seventh—That the Legislature which would relieve one of its members from the penalties of felony, and another from the penalties of bigamy, and which would attempt to cheat the people out of an election for President, is capable of perpetrating even greater outrages than the adoption of said memorial.

Eighth—That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the President of the United States.

RICHMOND, September 24.—Ex-Captain Schultz, of the Federal army, blew his brains out this morning in the garden of a citizen from whose employment he had been discharged. He leaves a family in New York city.

ton steady. Sales 10,000 bales. Sales for the week 67,000 bales, of which 14,000 bales were for export and 6000 bales for speculation. Stock 422,000, of which 126,000 bales are American. Breadstuffs quiet. Provisions unchanged.

LIVERPOOL, September 25, Afternoon.—Cotton steady. Stock afloat 645,000 bales, of which 3000 bales are American. Lard quiet. Pork firm. Bacon 56s. 6d.

WASHINGTON, September 24.—Politics were not discussed in the Cabinet to-day. The President having had no notification of Monday's session, will not recognize it. Consequently, the appointments made during the recess still hold good.

Lincoln's son, Robert, was married to Senator Harlan's daughther this evening.

Evarts has gone to New York for a few days.

The Court of Claims met, but having no quorum, adjourned to December.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $289,000.

The Administration will take no new action in Georgia matters. General Meade will be governed by previous orders.

Prominent gentlemen from Virginia are here consulting with high parties regarding an electoral ticket in Virginia. They are answered: "The Constitution provides for and there is no law of Congress against any State choosing electors."

Lieutenant Beecher, killed by the Indians recently, is a son of Henry Ward Beecher.

Supervisorships are unchanged. No prospect of an early settlement of the question.

Secretary Schofield does not feel authorized to publish General Hatch's letter on which his recent order to General Buchanan was based.

Suit has been brought in New York against Mr. Laird, builder of the privateer Alabama, by the owners of a vessel which she destroyed. It is claimed that she was fitted out in violation of law, and that her owners and builders are liable for damages sustained at her hands. It is understood that Laird had funds in this country, which have been attached and are held liable for whatever he may be held to pay. The claim in this case is for $119,000.

LONDON, September 24.—The report that Prim is marching directly on Madrid is reiterated. He is accompanied by Sorano—the Duke de la Torre—his force is estimated at 20,000. It is stated that the Duke de la Torre is acting as Provisional President. He has refused Concha's offers of accommodation. The Spanish war ships at San Sebastian have declared against the Queen. The revolutionists have issued a decree that any officer who orders an attack on the people or patriot soldiers, shall be adjudged a traitor to his country.

All Spain has been declared in a state of siege. General Isnoder has joined the rebels. Prim and Sorano are marching on Madrid with 20 000 men. Sorano, acting as President, refused the peace overtures from Concha. The Spanish fleet at San Sebastian has gone over to the rebels.

PARIS, September 24.—France immediately strengthens her military posts on the Spanish frontier. It is reported that Isabella had entered France, and that Prim had been arrested.

The Pays says: The Spanish army is loyal; the insurrection is confined to Andalusia and several seaports.

The Moniteur says: The Spanish revolution makes no headway—the people are indifferent and the government is taking active measures. The insurgents in Andalusia are retiring before the royal troops. It is officially announced from Madrid that Catalonia, Aragon and Valencia are quiet. The rumored rising in Calabria and Sicily is denied.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—It is stated that the steamer Dumbarton, reported a few days since as leaving here on a slaving cruise, really had munitions for the Spanish revolutionists.

In the Rollins revenue case Mr. McHenry swore to seeing one Lobe give Rollins a roll supposed to contain bills. Fullerton acts for the Government. Binckley is present.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24.—A Fort Dodge letter says: Gen. Sully drove the Indians beyond the borders of Texas. He had several fights, killing and wounding seventy.

FORTRESS MONROE, September 24.—A heavy easterly storm prevails and a large fleet is coming into the harbor.

HEADQUARTERS BUREAU OF REFUGEES, Freedmen, and Abandoned Lands, District of Louisiana, New Orleans, La., September 24, 1868.

Circular No. 17.

Planters who avail themselves of orders No. 18, current series, from these headquarters, are notified that said order has been modified, as follows:

In order to relieve the planter who so desires, and to avoid the necessity of his obtaining advances from a factor to liquidate his indebtedness to the Bureau, and to secure the freedmen for advances and labor, he will be required to ship a sufficient amount of his crop to the Bureau at New Orleans to cover the same; the amount so shipped to be forwarded as soon as it is put in marketable condition.

Any amount in excess of this indebtedness will be sold to the best advantage, and the proceeds held subject to shippers' order.

Until they can realize from their crops, supplies will continue to be advanced by the Commissary of the Bureau.

The crop thus shipped marked [F. B.] U. S. to A. C. S. at these headquarters, with such additional mark as the shipper may desire to use; the same to show on bill of lading, a duplicate of which must be sent to these headquarters.

Assistant Sub-Assistant and Sub-Assistant Commissioners are hereby instructed to offer every facility to the planter and freedmen, so as to enable them to avail themselves of the benefit of this circular.

By command of
BV'T MAJ. GEN. EDWARD HATCH,
U. S. A., Assistant Commissioner.

Grant in the Wilderness.

The following interesting sketch describes a midnight council of war held by General Grant after the first day's fighting in the Wilderness:

The result of the fierce conflict had been adverse to the army of the United States. General Lee had flung one wing of his army between our forces and the base of their supplies, which would require another battle to regain them. Each division and corps commander knew this sad condition of affairs. They were all summoned to a council of war, to be held at the headquarters at one o'clock at night. They were the saddest steps ever taken by that band of devoted hearts. Fifteen thousand brave soldiers, dead, or dying, or wounded, were lying on the field hard by.

One after another enter, and after making a noiseless salute, silently took their seats. Generals Schofield, Meade, Burnside, Sickles, Howard and others, I believe, were there. Not a word was spoken. A full half hour thus passed by. Their emotions were too deep for utterance. Hopes of millions hung on the decision of that council. At length General Grant asked each one in succession if they had any advice to proffer. Each one answered with a sad monosyllable, no! The commander then wrote a few lines, and handed the slip to Gen. Meade, and he retired. This was repeated until all were gone, and the General was left alone. One of the staff of a division commander, who was sick, was the last to retire, and he is authority for the above. All were ignorant of each other's order. They felt assured that retreat had been directed. Any other alternative would have been believed to be madness.

Had they known that the order had been given to advance, instant and universal mutiny would have been raised. The eloquent silence for which he has ever been noted, was the key to his success there. The next morning each corps moved, and General Lee, the instant he perceived it, with vehemence exclaimed, "Our enemy has a leader at last, and our cause is lost." He had bid his officers the night before to let their soldiers sleep long; but now he saw the army whom he thought utterly defeated, moving around between him and his base of supplies. He hastened to begin retracing his course, and confessed to an artillery officer of the Confederate army that the doom of their cause was sealed.

BE STILL.

BY REV. DWIGHT WILLIAMS.

"Be still, and know that I am God;"
The way is dark and wild
Through which thou goest, my child;
I can not promise thee a stormless path,
For lightning's scath
A thunder's roar the pilgrim's journey hath.

"Be still, and know that I am God;"
The elements are mine;
It is a hand divine
That guides the whirlwind in its awful course;
The mystic force
Of hail and tempest finds in me its source.

"Be still, and know that I am God;"
In danger's hour be calm;
This is thy secret balm,
To know that thou art safe when I command;
Then only stand
And see deliverance by my mighty hand.

"Be still, and know that I am God;"
Ask not the reason why
I weave such mystery
Through all the warp of thy frail life below:
For thou shalt know,
And read the plan in heaven's serener glow.

"Be still, and know that I am God;"
Through storms and fears be still;
Only thy part fulfill,
And as thou walkest I will shelter thee;
Thy foes shall flee,
And thou shalt journey all the way with me.

"Be still, and know that I am God;"
'Twill be enough at last,
When all thy warfare's past,
Star-crowned thy head and in thy hand a palm,
To sing thy psalm
Where storms of earth end in eternal calm.

SEPARATION.

We parted in silence, we parted at night,
On the banks of that lonely river,
Where the fragrant limbs their boughs unite,
We met and we parted forever.
The night winds sang, and the stars above
Told many a touching story
Of friends long past in the kingdom of love,
Where the soul wears its mantle of glory.

But ere we sighed our last farewell,
In wild and bitter sorrow,
Our whispered vows (remembered well)
Spoke peace to the coming morrow.
The lips that uttered that vow of mine
Are cold as that lonely river,
And that eye (the beautiful spirit-shine)
Has shrouded its fire forever.

And now on the midnight sky I look,
And my heart grows full to weeping:
Each star to me is a sealed book,
Some tale of the loved one keeping.
We parted in silence, we parted in tears,
On the banks of that lonely river,
But the fragrance and bloom of those bygone years
Will hang round its waters forever.

ANSWER TO ENIGMA.

Startling the sly and timid hare,
Comes oft the tinkling sound
Of bells, that tell the herdsman where
The wondering herd is found.

Upon the green and grassy knoll,
And in the mossy dells
Of distant hills I found my whole.
Those lovely blue hare-bells.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, September 24.

It is due to virtue always to record its triumphs, whether on a small or extensive scale, and obedient to this impulse, it is cheering to mention the continued religious interest existing and spreading in several of the Methodist Churches in this city and Baltimore: this, too, we feel assured, is attributable as an instrument to the recent camp-meetings. The Madison Avenue charge, in Baltimore, has shared more of this interest up to this time than any other in that city. In Washington, Union or Twentieth Street Church and Hamline, are the scenes of greatest interest. Some who had withdrawn from Union on political grounds, have returned on purely religious affinities. The secret of all this vociferation about politics in the Church, is found generally, yes always, to exist in a loss of religious life, spiritual delusion; and from this state it is easy to glide, under the influence of temptation, to Satan's ground; nor is the cheat less self-imposed because the backslider in heart transfers himself from one church to another. To backslide is unfortunate, but to remain so is worse. If all the backsliders from the Methodist Church were restored to her communion, what a vast army would witness for God and His truth. This is a subject that certainly claims the attention of this denomination.

Humanity has recently dictated, and measures have been taken for the founding in this city of a freedman's hospital. This much-needed institution is to be located near the Howard University: it is to be sixty by one hundred and eight feet, three stories high, with French roof, and built of "new American block," a material composed of lime, sand and some other ingredients, molded like brick, but much larger, and now attracting a good deal of attention; it is said to be superior to brick and much cheaper. This hospital building will cost $50,000, and is expected to start on its mission of mercy early next spring.

On Monday last, at 12 M., the "Stars and stripes" were again thrown to the breeze, and floated gracefully over the United States Senate Chamber and the House of Representatives; the display was brief. Both Houses resolved to adjourn till sixteenth October, sixteenth November or first of December, as circumstances might require. Whether the action was wise or otherwise, the future must determine. It seemed to be taken for granted that a quorum of the House was present when the motion for adjournment was carried, and pending the determination of the question of a quorum, a message from the Senate announced its concurrence in the mofor adjournment, as above indicated.

Rev. Mr. Old, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, closed his earthly labors last week. For some months he had been painfully afflicted with cancer of the face, and finally of the tongue also; thus fibre after fibre was corroded till the whole system yielded to this malignant disease. The funeral solemnities were connected with chants, robed ministers and the sacrament of the Lords' Supper, but no wax candles were burned, no incense offered. I should have named in connection with the religious items above, that the inmates of the jail, or some of them, profess to have the crust of their conscience penetrated by rays of divine truth. The effort to reach these unfortunate wretches with the elevating influences of the Gospel, originated with Mrs. General Canby some twelve or eighteen months since; the enterprise afterward fell into the hands of the Young Men's Christian Association, and by them it is still managed. It is doubtless a source of no ordinary gratification to this noble Christian woman, to find on her return to this city, that her humane effort has been crowned with a measure of success. It would be well for Christian people to learn the value of personal effort. "Words fitly spoken are like apples of gold in pictures of silver." Here is an illustration. A young lady was, a few weeks since, introduced to a youth of high social position, the son of a Christian minister, of extensive travel, and for his years, of fine culture and attractive personal appearance; but this young man had found his way to the sepulchres of sobriety, that are here adorned as of old; his hand was trembling under the cup, and his breath told a tale his lips were ashamed to utter; his habits were thus revealed; the lady kindly remonstrated with him, and mildly informed him that she admitted to her acquaintance no one whose breath was tainted with strong drink. It was a nail in a sure place; the youth pledged an abandonment of the accursed cup, and to this time has kept it. Were such a stand as this taken by woman, how soon would men, young and old, walk erect in the majesty of their being, instead of reeling, as thousands do, under the power of wine that stingeth like an adder!

Before this reaches you, Colonel Robert Lincoln, son of the martyr Presidnnt, will have joined himself in holy wedlock to Miss Mary Harlan, daughter of the United States Senator from Iowa. Mrs. Lincoln is not in France, as the press reports, but here to witness the interesting solemnities, which are to be performed by Bishop Simpson. The marriage will be a quiet one, witnessed by a very few friends. It takes place this (Thursday) evening. Miss Harlan is worthy of the noblest man of any community. This occasion is invested with the pleasing and the mournful, in a more than ordinary degree. Bishop Simpson solemnized the marriage of the brides parents, and none that heard or ever read, will forget the eloquent discourse delivered by him at the funeral of the bridegroom's father.

General O. O. Howard has returned from his Southern tour of inspection, and certainly looks the better for his usage; he is in fine health and spirits. The late Thaddeus Stevens said General Howard was the first, and at the time, the only man who had in this city (or perhaps elsewhere) spoken to him personally about religion. Here is a pocket volume for Christians touching personal effort.

The military aid promised by President Johnson to Tennessee, is highly commended. Let all good people labor to prevent the necessity for any such aid. The President's wife and daughter, Mrs. Patterson, have recently returned from their Tennessee home. Mrs. Diossy and Mrs. Captain Pierce left this city for their home in New Orleans, where we hope they will have safely arrived, 'ere this reaches your office. The Surratt case is again before the Criminal Court of this District, and a solemn farce similar to the preceding, will doubtless be enacted.

Cavalry are still being sent to the frontier. A rumor has gained currency that the President intends to withdraw the troops from the South. The fears excited by such rumor are groundless, as no measure of that kind is contemplated.

The Olmstead defalcation connected with the postoffice, is of less proportions than was at first reported, and hopes are entertained that further examination will show a clear balance sheet.

CONGRATULATIONS—FEELINGS OF THE PEOPLE—QUARTERLY MEETING AT VICKSBURG—PERILS OF KU-KLUXISM.

VICKSBURG, September 21, 1868.

MR. EDITOR:

Please accept congratulations on your return to your field of labor. There can be no doubt that during your vacation, your influence at the North in behalf of our missionary work and human rights has been compensatory for what we may have suffered by your absence from us.

Our people are feeling that their prospects are growing brighter, as every breeze from the North wafts to us renewed assurances of the election of Grant and Colfax, nor do these indications come from the North only—they are all around us in the desponding looks and utterances of the Southern Democracy. The colored people are finding out the hollowness of their promises, and the mutual dependence of capital and labor, and at another election their vote will never be controlled as it was at the last.

There can be no doubt that the election of Seymour and Blair would be followed in the South by a universal effort to reduce black men from citizenship to serfdom, that their schools and churches would be placed under such restrictions as would be an adjustment to this condition, and there would be also a persecution of men affiliating with the Republican party, that would drive them from the State. Insurrection at the South would be frequent and anarchy reign throughout the country.

Our schools are doing poorly in this State; there are many causes why, which may be mentioned at a future time.

Quarterly meeting has just closed at Vicksburg. Rev. Lev. Baker, preacher in charge, had been carrying on a protracted meeting, and I found the Church alive by the blessing of God. In three weeks over twenty-five have professed religion. Last night there were around the altar one hundred and four penitent souls. The increase this quarter in the Vicksburg charge is fifty-eight. The Sabbath School numbers one hundred and six; the day school, taught in the Church, eighty. There are several promising points connected with the Vicksburg charge, viz: Beech Grove, Black Head and Edward's station. These are attended by local preachers, who, like those of olden times, are giving themselves to Methodist pioneership.

Our great want at Vicksburg is a new church, and one we must have. This point can be made the very citadel of Methodism.

Next Sunday our quarterly meetings will commence in East Mississippi, and I shall be compelled to enter some hotbeds of Ku-Kluxism; when it is remembered that the majority of the Southern whites hold in the utmost contempt ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it is not strange that they should be the victims of Ku-Klux atrocity.

Muller's Trust in God

M. ANNESLEY.

No doubt this servant of God had a special call to his life, and works of faith and love. He began in a small way, yet some would think it a great hazard to cast his all upon the word of the Lord. He proved by his experience that he was in the right path; and every step he paced he was confirmed in his simple, unwavering plan of trusting God for his supplies, so that he undertook, in the name of the Lord, greater and greater things. His faith increased as he used it, by the very simple process of reasoning, its past success, and he had no other way of accomplishing his work, for it was repulsive to the spirit which led him to beg or solicit from man after man what God was able at once to bestow. Thus his time and feelings were saved and shielded by going to the source. He believed God's words "the gold and the silver are mine." This constant intercourse with God, for worldly wealth, had a reacting benefit upon the purity of his heart and life, for he knew if he regarded iniquity in his heart the Lord would not hear him, as we find him in difficult and trying places, making search for the anchor, and when it was found and cast out, the opened hand of blessing was again restored.

His life of faith, and its glorious results to the orphan and friendless, is held up to the Christian world as an example of trust in God, and has wrought wonders in making known to the Church the power of God on earth in controlling hearts for the dispensation of blessings upon the needy. Yet, we believe there are many Muller's, on a smaller scale, who are extending their daily usefulness upon the very same principle, trusting in God against outward appearances and expectations. He had gigantic plans and great wants, and others are equallly honoring God, to believe for what they need, if for themselves or others. Men who go about their daily business, to make and earn money in honesty for their families and the cause of God on the earth, have as much right to set faith in God for His blessing upon their efforts as Muller has to extract it from their pockets by his faith. Some one must make the money God asks from the purse, and we honor the givers as well as the receiver. And again, it would be a vain thing for any one, upon som slight pretext, to throw up his present employment or stated salary, to make an imitation of Muller. God made distinct provision for the Levite, and the new dispensation equally acknowledges the right of the ministry to live by the service of the altar.

God does not lead all his servants alike; there is a great variety in the exercise of our faith and patience, to the praise of his name, in the body of Christ. And some are ever to be disciplined in straits and necessities, and are not led to ask for greater things than present supply in a scanty way; and poor Sarah, with a cheerful, grateful heart, in the presence of Christ, and her crust, ever reads to us the blessing of an indwelling Christ; but is a severe reproof to fellow-members of the mystical body to let one thus suffer. "Give, give! be ever giving."

Sabbath Afternoon at Dr. Bonar's Church at Edinburgh.

The correspondent of the Methodist gives the following account of Dr. Bonar and his preaching:

Having gone to St. Giles' in the morning to sit where, if we had sat once, we should have heard John Knox preach, or seen Jennie Geddes throw her stool at the Dean, we sought out Chalmer's Memorial Chapel in the afternoon, to listen to Dr. Bonar, the sweetest hymn-writer of our day.

The morning's lifeless sermon had wearied us so much that we determined to make sure of Dr. Bonar before entering the church intending, in his absence, to return at once to our hotel. So, bowing to an old gentleman who stood in the door, I asked him (in a carefully prepared euphemism, for people in this country seem to suffer in their nerves when a straightforward question thrusts itself upon them) if Dr. Bonar would preach to-day. The courteous affirmative reply pleased and almost surprised me, so often is one's heart's desire defeated in this matter of the minister. I speedily forgot decorum, and exclaimed:

"How glad I am, for we Americans admire him greatly!"

The kind old gentleman became enthusiastic too.

"Good, good! You shall have the best seat we can find;" and soon he had us, by the sexton's intervention, installed in a most eligible place, whence we inspected the elegant church, whose comfortable seats contrasted pleasantly with the straight up and down board backs where we sat at the "Establishment" this morning.

DR. BONAR'S APPEARANCE.

Dr. Bonar is, in personal appearance, worthy to be the central figure in any picture. Of that medium height and rotund figure in which nature seems inclined to measure out greatness; of high, massive forehead, with silver gray hair in bushy locks at the sides of his fine head, to match the somewhat deeper tinged English whiskers on the sides of his face; with skin white as a woman's, yet detracting nothing from the strong, masculine tone of his face; with lips firm, full, and handsome, and eyes large, dark, peculiar, and with a glance that cleaves—this was Horatius Bonar, as in his black robe, with velvet colar, set off with bands of white, he walked up the pulpit-stairs. He looked the very man to write those Hymns of Faith and Hope, which have, to many a heart that never knew an item of his history, brought truest consolation.

SKETCH OF THE SERMON.

A few notes of the sermon will, perhaps, be interesting.

Notice the symbols in this passage:

1. The Ax.—You know what this is meant to do, and what it is not meant to do. It is not a pruning-knife, to lop off here and there a branch; it has one use alone—it is the weapon of destruction.

2. The Warning.—Laid at the root of the tree. Not a word is spoken; the symbol carries its own weight. The husbandman, when he lays an ax at the root of a tree, means to cut it down. (With startling emphasis these words are uttered).

3. The Execution.—For a while the ax lies idle, its sharp edge glittering in the sun; but now the mandate comes which calls it into quick, relentless action: 'Cut it down!'

4. The Doom.—Cast it into the fire! The tree cumbered the ground when living, it must not cumber it when dead.

Now, in conclusion, note the cause of this tremendous tragedy. It is simple unfruitfulness. I think it is just this that makes the whole symbol so unspeakably terrible. It is the cutting down of him who had everything but fruit. He had root, stem, leaves, branches—everything but fruit. Does not this charge, brought home to each of us, search through and through? But, oh! I would not have you hear these solemn words despairingly. Remember there is time to be fruitful yet. There's One who gives himself to each of us—One who is full of life. Fly, then, to Him, who came from heaven that, from earth's withered trees, He might rear for himself a fruit-producing forest!

May the Lord bless these words to all who hear!

The brief, impressive sermon, delivered in a manner wholly unique, borrowing no grace from any studied phrase or oratorical effect, derived great force from the firm fact that there was a truly Christian soul behind it. For well we know, when all is said, that character enforces utterances, as rarest gifts and richest culture ever fail to do.

Passing out quietly, when the service closed, full of thoughts inspired by ceremonies to us unusual, we agreed that, though the author of the brave, sweet hymns, which had so often brightened faith and hope for us, had in him more of fiery Peter and less of loving John than we had looked for, he was so truly great and manifestly good that to have seen and heard him was a pleasure long to be remembered.

Intelligence from Our Mission Rooms.

THE JUBILEE!—We name this approaching event just now that the whole Church may get the intelligence and keep it to be used at the right time. And we are the more careful now, lest when the time draws near, and we mention it again, our friends should start up and say, "Why did you not meation this before?" The General Conference said:

Whereas, the first half century of the existence of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church will expire with April 4, 1869; therefore,

Resolved, 1, By this General Conference, that the aforenamed day be and it is hereby set apart as a missionary jubilee, to be devoted in all our churches by Pastors and congregations (1) to reminiscence and devout thanksgiving in such special mode as the pastors and their missionary committees severally may for themselves devise; (2) to voluntary offerings, apart from, outside of, and extra to the regular missionary contributions of the year, for the sole, direct, and express purpose of erecting a mission house in the city of New York as a monument and memorial of the Missionary Semi-Centennial of 1869.

2. That the Missionary Secretaries and Board at New York be a Committee to devise and carry into effect the necessary arrangements for the celebration of the proposed Jubilee, to take place at the time above-named.

SWEDEN.—Rev. V. Witting, our Superintendent, writes from Gottenburg, August 3, 1868:

I have just arrived home from my visit for this quarter to the several missions, and I have found the work in every place in a good and hopeful condition. Our missionaries are working diligently, and, as a consequence, through the divine blessing, souls are awakened and converted at almost every meeting, and the friends bless God for the privilege they have to hear a Gospel which is proving itself almost every day the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. During this quarter we have had missionary festivals in Stockholm and Gottenburg, and these occasions proved of great interest to the friends. I presented the missionary cause, and the people showed their interest by giving liberally from their scanty means. In Stockholm they gave over 200 rix dollars, which is considerably more than $50 in gold; and in Gottenburg about 140 rix dollars, this is about sixty cents per member in gold, and is well, considering the circumstances of the friends, who are generally of the poorer class. About forty have joined our societies during the quarter, and still they are coming. The work is spreading, and we have invitations from all parts of the country to come and preach. There is a great work before us, and we are often constrained to cry out, "Who is sufficient for these things!"

May the Lord send more laborers into this field, for the work truly is urgent and the harvest is great! German rationalism and French infidelity are overflowing the country; with the preaching of the gospel we need a literature, pure and interesting, which would somewhat counteract these poisonous influences. The schools are contaminated with pernicious influences, and it is absolutely dangerous to send your children there. If, therefore, we want to lay foundations deep and strong for a great and glorious work in the future we must add to the pure Gospel a pure literature and schools of our own. We need two ordained men next year, one for Stockholm and one for Carlskrona. One, at least, is absolutely necessary.

REJOICE WITH ME.—The American Board will not need to call upon her sister societies to rejoice with her; they have heard of the favor she has obtained, that the tide of benevolence has risen among her friends and supporters which has borne her right over the bars of indebtedness into the deep water and an open sea! We hope to learn that the sixty men for China are still going forward, and that 1868 and 1969 will not have closed ere they are able to say, the men are in the field or on the way.

WEEK OF PRAYER.—This week of prayer, originating with foreign missionaries, is to be observed, beginning with January 3 and ending with the 10th of the same month. The Evangelical Alliance have this year wisely left it to the various Churches and localities to make arrangements to "plead before God for the gifts of his grace, and the outstretching of his arm to bless his Church and convert a perishing world."

Little Children's Work.

We remember being much struck by a little story, showing that "a word fitly spoken," or to use the expressive Hebrew reading given in the margin, "a word spoken upon wheels," even by the weakest and youngest, is precious as gold and silver.

One day a boy was tormenting a kitten, when his little sister said to him with tearful eyes, "O, Phillip, don't do it; it is God's kitten."

The word of the little one was not lost; it was set upon wheels. Phillip left off tormenting the kitten, but many thoughts were awakened in his mind, regarding the creatures he had before considered his own property.

"God's kitten, God's creature; for He made it." It was a new idea.

The next day, on his way to school, he met one of his companions who was beating unmercifully a poor starved-looking dog. Phillip ran up to him and almost unconsciously used his sister's words. He said, "Don't, don't; it is God's creature."

The boy looked abashed, and explained that the dog had stolen his breakfast.

"Never mind," said Phillip, "I will give you mine, which I have in my basket; and, sitting down together, the little boy's anger was soon forgotten.

Again had a word been unconsciously set upon wheels. Two passers-by heard Phillip's words; one, a young man in prosperous business in the neighboring town, and the other a dirty and ragged being, who, in consequence of his intemperate habits, had that morning been dismissed by his employer, and was now going home sullen and despairing.

"God's creature!" said the poor forlorn one; and it was a new idea to him also.

"If I, too, belong to God, He will take care of me, though no one else will."

Just then he came to a public house, where he had been in the habit of drowning his miseries, and then staggering home to inflict new ones on his wife and children. He stopped—the temptation was strong; but the new idea was stronger. "I am God's creature;"—and he passed on.

His wife was astonished to see him sober, and still more, when he burst into tears, declaring that he was a ruined man, but that he was determinto give up drinking, and to trust in God.

At that moment a knock was heard at the door, and the gentleman came in to whom we have before alluded. He, too, had been rebuked by the boy's words for the scorn and loathing which he had felt at the miserable object before him. "God's creature; therefore entitled to help and pity."

We need not detail the words of hope and comfort, the promise and performance of active assistance, which in a short time lifted up the poor man's head, and made him one of God's thankful, joyful "creatures."

It would be well for us all, old and young, to remember that our words and actions, yea, and our thoughts also, are set upon never-stopping wheels, rolling on and on into the pathway of eternity."—From "Work; or Plenty to do, and How to do it."

Fanny Fern on Preaching.

"Oh! if clergymen would only study their fellow-men more! If they would less often try to unravel some double-twisted theological knot, which, if pulled out straight, would never carry one drop of balm to a suffering fellow-being, or teach him how to bear bravely and patiently the trials under which soul and body are ready to faint! If, looking into some yearning face before them on a Sunday, they would preach only to its wistful asking for spiritual help, in words easy to be understood—in heart-tones not to be mistaken—how different would Sunday seem to many women, at least, whose heart-aches and unshared burdens none but their Maker knows. "Heavy laden!" Let our clergymen never forget that phrase in their abstruse examination of text and context. Let them not not forget that as Lazarus watched for the falling crumbs from Dives's table, so some poor, harrassed soul before them may be sitting with expectant ear, for the hopeful words that shall give courage to shoulder again the weary burden."

HER OPINION OF TOBACCO.

"I hate tobacco. I am a clean creature, and it smells bad. Smells is a mild word; but I use it, being a woman. I deny your right to smell bad in my presence, or the presence of any of our clean sisterhood. I deny your right to poison the air of our parlors, or our bed-rooms, with your breath, or your tobacco-saturated clothing, even though you may be our husbands. Terrible creature! I think I hear you say; I am glad you are not my wife. So am I. How would you like it, had you arranged your parlor with dainty fingers, and were rejoicing in the sweet-scented mignonettee, and violets, and heliotrope, in the pretty vase on your table, forgetting in your happiness that Bridget and Biddy had vexed your soul the greater part of the day—and in your nicely-cushioned chair were resting your spirits even more than your body, to have a man enter, with that detestable bar-room odor, and spoil it all? Or worse: light a cigar or pipe in your very presence, and puff away as if it were the heaven to you which it appears to be to him."

Provoke Not Your Children.

The divine wisdom forbids ignorant and passionate attempts at such an impossibility. "Fathers, provoke not your children, lest they be discouraged." On the prohibitory precept Mr. Barnes aptly says: "He who always finds fault with a child, who is never satisfied with what he does, who scolds, and frets and complains, lehim do as he will, breaks his spirit, and soon destroys in the delicate texture of his soul all desire of doing well. The child in despair soon gives over every effort to please. He becomes sullen, morose, stupid and indifferent to all the motives that can be presented to him, and to a great extent indifferent as to what he does, since all that he does meets with the same reception from the parent."

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE.

First Day's Session.

MONDAY, June 29, 1868.

At twelve o'clock M. the House was called to order by Colonel Batchelder, who proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, protested against the roll being called by a military officer, claiming that under existing laws he had no right to do so; but he advised the House to yield to military force under protest.

On motion of Mr. Harper, two-thirds of the House rose to their feet, thereby acknowledging their indorsement of Mr. McMillen's protest.

Mr. Gray, of St. James, moved to elect a temporary Speaker.

Declared out of order.

Colonel Batchelder proceeded to call the roll, the following members answering to their names.

Abbott, Antoine, Adolphe, Butler, Bennett, Belot, Borge, Brewster, Burrel, Bergeron, Briout, Chaney, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Curell, Cuny, Deslonde, Dufresne, De Grange, Dupart, Evans, Eager, Esnard, Faulkner, Alexander, Fouts, Guigonet, Gatlin, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, Huguet, Howell, Zac, Haskell, Humble, Hanlon, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Judice, Knapp, Kavanagh, LeBlanc, LeRoy, L'Hoste, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McCullen, Mahier, McMillen, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, May, Mathews, Magee, Noble, John Pearce, Pratt, Page, Pierce, Prescott, Raymond, Reese, Ray, Rengstorff, Slaton, Stringer, Smith, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, Wemple, William C. Williams, H. Williams, Waters, Wiltz, N. Young, Yorke, David Young, Zacharie, Zoelly—87 members present.

Colonel Batchelder then read an extract from the order of General Grant.

On motion of Mr. Gray, of St. James, R. H. Isabelle, of Orleans, was elected Speaker pro tem.

On motion of Mr. McMillen, Wm. Vigers was elected Clerk pro tem.

On motion of H. L. Rey, of Orleans, Geo. H. Dunford was elected Sergeant-at-Arms pro tem.

On motion of Mr. Yorke, of Carroll, Mr. Jordan was elected doorkeeper pro tem.

The following motion was then presented:

Resolved, That the Secretary proceed to call the roll, and that the members be sworn in as their names were called.

Carried.

Mr. Briout, of St. Martin, protested, denying the Speaker's right to administer the oath.

Thereupon the Speaker invited Judge Hyman, of the Supreme Court of Louisiana, to step forward and administer the oath.

The Judge having acquiesced, the Speaker announced that being under provisional government he would require first the test oath and then the oath prescribed by the Constitutional Convention.

Upon request of a member the different oaths were read by the Clerk.

Mr. Briout, of St. Martin, protested against the members being sworn in, and raised the point of order that the House not being organized could not qualify the members.

The Speaker decided that under preliminary organization the members would be duly sworn in.

An appeal was taken from the decision of the Chair.

The Chair decided that no appeal would be put to the House at the present moment.

The Speaker was then duly sworn in by Judge Hyman.

The roll was called, and the following members were sworn in:

Morris, Hill, Mollere, Washington, Guigonet, Le Blanc, Mahier, Wren, Wm. Pierce, Faulkner, McMillen, Yorke, D. Young, Abbott, William C. Williams, Taylor, Deslonde, Dufresne, Raymond, Evans, Garstkamp, Page, Reese, Murrell, H. The seats of the following members were contested, to wit:

John N. Howell, of Caddo, by Mr. Lowell.

Zac. Howell, of Caddo, by Mr. Lowell.

J. M. Gatlin by Mr. G. G. Walls.

J. D. Wemple by S. Humphreys.

Mr. Wemple offered to take the oath prescribed by the Constitution.

The Chair objected.

J. C. Humble—Seat contested by Isaac A. Crawford.

M. Judice—Seat contested by M. Casey.

Mr. J. E. Rengstorff—Seat contested by Mr. Carter.

W. P. Noble refused to take the oath.

Charles Eager, of Orleans—Seat contested by Mr. Battles.

Dr. Knapp denies the right of the House to require or administer the test oath, and declines to take said oath.

The seat of Dr. Knapp, of St. Bernard, was protested by A. L. Lee.

Mr. E. Detiege protests against the admission of L. P. Briout, of St. Martin.

Mr. M. Carr protests against the admission of Jacob Zoelly and G. H. DeGrange, of Orleans, as members of the House.

Messrs. Heidenhain and Hall protested against the admission of Messrs. Stringer and Zacharie, from the Fourth Representative District.

The seat of C. Q. Butler was contested by Mr. E. W. Dewees.

The Clerk having announced fifty-four members having been sworn in, and there being a quorum.

The Speaker announced the House ready for the transaction of business.

Colonel Yorke, of Carroll, moved that a committee to be known as Committee on Elections and Returns, composed of five members, be appointed by the Chair.

Carried.

The Chair appointed Mr. Yorke chairman, C. C. Antoine, O. H. Brewster, H. Lott, and W. B. Gray.

Mr. McMillen moved that the Committee on Elections and Returns be instructed to take charge of the subject of contestants and report immediately.

Carried.

On motion of Mr. Yorke the House adjourned till Tuesday at twelve o'clock M.

WILLIAM VIGERS,
Clerk pro tem.

Second Day's Session.

TUESDAY, June 30, 1868.

At twelve o'clock M. the House was called to order by Hon. R. H. Isabelle, Speaker pro tem.

The roll was called, and the following members answered to their names:

Abbott, Antoine, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dufresne, Dupart, Evans, Faulkner, Alexander, Guigonet, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Leroy, Lott, Morris, Mollere, Mahier, McMillen, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, Morand, May, Mathews, Noble, Pearce, Page, Pierce, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, William C. Williams, Yorke, Young—53 members present.

Prayer by the Rev. S. M. Kingston.

The following communication was received from headquarters Fifth Military District:

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT, New Orleans, June 30, 1868.

Hon. R. H. Isabelle, Speaker pro tem. House of Representatives:

SIR—I am directed by the General commanding this District to furnish you with the following copy of the telegram just received from General Grant.

WAR DEPARTMENT, Washington, D. C., June 30, 1868.

Brevet Major General R. C. Buchanan, Commanding Fifth Military District, New Orleans, La.:

I have no orders at present to give; but I repeat to you as heretofore that the members of the Legislature of the State of Louisian are only required to take the oath prescribed by their own constitution, and are not required to take the test oath prescribed in the reconstruction acts.

Generals Meade and Canby are acting on this view of the case.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT, General.

And he instructs me to inform you that the oath prescribed in the Constitution of the State, and no other, will be required of the members of the House over which you are now presiding.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant.
JOHN B. JOHNSON,
Brevet Lt. Col. U. S. A.,
Assistant Secretary Civil Affairs.

On motion of Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, the communication was received and referred to a Special Committee of three members.

The Speaker appointed the following members on the Special Committee of three.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, chairman; D. Burell, of St. John Baptist, John Carr, of Orleans.

Mr. Chaney, of East Baton Rouge, asked permission to have a protest spread on the journal.

Permission granted.

Mr. Chaney then submitted the following protest.

In the name and behalf of the people of East Baton Rouge enters this, his protest, to the illegal proceedings of this body in the temporary organization of this House; that the same was illegal, oppressive, and unjust, and that the seats of the Democratic members being now contested by their opponents, as I am informed from the Secretary's desk, without notice to us, as required by law.

The Committee on Contested Elections having been selected by this body in the most illegal and oppressive manner; that the people of East Baton Rouge will not submit to this act of violence against their rights, nor will they be bound by any legislation of this body for the reasons which I have stated, to wit: That everything which has been done thus far is absolutely illegal, null, and void, and in direct violation of the orders received from military headquarters.

That the test oath was not required of the members of the Legislature, and this having been made by the illegal action of the Radical members of this body a sine qua non for membership, ruled out the voice of Democratic members duly elected.

Therefore, everything so far is illegal, unjust, and not binding on any one.

(Signed) J. E. CHANEY,
East Baton Rouge.

O. H. Brewster, of Ouachita, moved that Mr. Honore, of Pointe Coupee, be called, and that he be permitted to qualify.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, moved to amend by adding that the roll be called, and that those who wished to qualify be sworn in.

Adopted.

Chief Justice Hyman was invited to administer the oath.

The following members were sworn in:

Messrs. Honore, of Pointe Coupee, Demarest, of St. Mary, William H. Pierce, of Livingston, D. C. Fouts, of Winn.

The following members declined to take the oath prescribed by the House:

Messrs. Bergeron, of St. Martin, Bryant, of St. Landry, Gatlin, of De Soto, Pratt, of Claiborne, Slaton, of Jackson, Bennett, of Claiborne.

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

Mr. McMillen, chairman, asked further time, and stated that the committee would report to-morrow at twelve o'clock M.

Report received.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON ELECTION RETURNS.

Mr. P. Jones Yorke, chairman, submitted the following report:

To the Speaker and Members of the Honorable House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The undersigned Committee on Election Returns, appointed by your honorable body, do report that they have carefully investigated the case of contested election of Representative in the parish of Bienville.

They report that from conclusive evidence adduced before them there was violence and force used at precinct No. 1 and precinct No. 2, (where the polls were opened in said parish) to such an extent as to prevent a fair expression of popular wil'.

It has been proven to our satisfaction that the supervisors of said polls and legal voters were assaulted and driven away from said polls by lawless men with force of arms; that said supervisors were prevented thereby from performing their duty, and many loyal voters were assaulted and driven away from said polls by lawless men and therefore prevented from casting their votes. That the whole proceedings of said two precincts were utterly illegal, and the returns of election from said precincts should not be counted in estimating the legal returns of election in said parish.

They further show that after excluding said two polls they found that E. W. Dewees received a majority of forty-one in said parish over his opponent C. Q. Butler. For the above reasons we recommend that E. W. Dewees be permitted to take his seat as member from the parish of Bienville.

P. JONES YORKE,
CHARLES GRAY,
HARRY LOTT,
O. H. BREWSTER,
FELIX C. ANTOINE.

Which on motion, was read and adopted.

Colonel Yorke, chairman, submitted the following report in regard to the contested seats, parish of De Soto:

To the Speaker and Members of the Honorable House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The undersigned, Committee on Elections and Returns, appointed by your honorable body, do report that they have investigated the case of contested election of Representative in the parish of De Soto.

They report that M. Gatlin, whose election as Representative has been announced by the commander of the Fifth Military District, is a person disqualified by law from holding said office.

That it has been proven before your committee that said M. Gatlin held an office of Judge of an inferior court in the State of Georgia prior to the war, and afterward rendered active aid and comfort to the rebellion carried on by the so-called Confederate States.

That under article ninety-nine of the Constitution of the State he is precluded from holding the office of Representative.

They further show that fraud and intimidation were used by lawless persons to prevent a fair election in said parish.

They further show that James J. Walsh received a majority of votes legally cast in said parish for Representative.

Therefore, your committee do recommend that James J. Walsh be permitted to take his seat as Representative from the parish of De Soto.

P. JONES YORKE,
CHARLES GRAY,
HARRY LOTT,
O. H. BREWSTER,
FELIX C. ANTOINE.

Which, on motion of Mr. Garstkamp, of Jefferson, was received and adopted.

Mr. Yorke, chairman of the Committee on Elections, submitted the following report in the matter of the contested seats of St. Bernard:

To the Speaker and Members of the Honorable House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The Committee on Elections and Returns, to whom was referred the case of A. L. Lee, who claims the seat of F. H. Knapp, from St. Bernard parish, respectfully report that they have investigated the claims of said contestant and found that gross fraud was committed at the election in said parish; and that according to the evidence which is herewith submitted and made a part of this report the said A. L. Lee was duly elected to represent said parish; we therefore recommend that he may be permitted to take his seat as a Representative from the parish of St. Bernard.

P. JONES YORKE,
CHARLES GRAY,
HARRY LOTT,
O. H. BREWSTER,
FELIX C. ANTOINE.

On motion of Mr. P. Jones Yorke, of Carroll, the privilege of the floor was extended to Dr. Knapp, of St. Bernard, to speak.

Dr. Knapp declined, but submitted the following protest, which was ordered to be spread on the journal:

The undersigned respectfully protests against any business being transacted by this House, it not having been organized according to law.

1. That demanding any oath other than prescribed by the Constitution under which we were convened was an outrage on the rights of a large number of the members legally elected to this body, and the constituency which they represent.

2. That even some persons who were willing to take the oath were refused to be sworn in.

3. That among the fifty-three names reported to have been sworn in that two or more are positively known not to have been present or sworn, and hence no quorum present.

4. That the call of the roll was repeatedly made to ascertain if a quorum was present, and refused.

F. H. KNAPP.

On motion of Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, Mr. A. L. Lee, of St. Bernard, contestant, was permitted to speak.

Mr. Lee availed himself of the privilege.

On motion of Mr. McMillen one hour was granted to Mr. Knapp, of St. Bernard, to plead his case.

At the expiration of the hour the previous question was demanded on the adoption of the report.

The previous question being sustained.

Mr. Garstkamp moved that the report be adopted.

Carried.

Mr. P. Jones Yorke, chairman of the Committee on Election Returns, submitted the following report:

To the Speaker and Members of the Honorable House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The Committee on Elections and Returns, to whom was referred the case of John H. McVean, Moses Sterrett, and Charles W. Lowell, contestants: who claims of John H. Howell, James Christian and Z. Howell, from the parish of Caddo, respectfully report, that they have investigated the claims of said contestants, and find that gross frauds were committed at the election in said parish, and according to the evidence which is herewith submitted and made a part of this report, the said John McVean, Moses Sterrett, and Charles W. Lowell, were duly elected to represent said parish.

Therefore your committee do recommend the following resolution:

Resolved, That John McVean, Moses Sterrett, and Charles W. Lowell be declared elected to represent the parish of Caddo, and they be permitted to take their seats as Representatives on the floor of this House.

Respectfully submitted.

P. JONES YORKE,
CHARLES GRAY,
HARRY LOTT,
O. H. BREWSTER.
FELIX C. ANTOINE.

Which, on motion of Mr. Carr, of Orleans, was received and adopted.

Mr. McMillen moved that the names of the contestants admitted to seats be called, and that they be permitted to qualify.

Adopted.

The following gentlemen were then duly sworn in by Chief Justice Hyman:

Messrs. J. H. McVean, M. Sterrett, of Caddo, Charles W. Lowell, of Caddo, A. L. Lee, of St. Bernard, E. W. Dewees, of Bienville, J. G. Walsh, of De Soto.

The following communication was received from the Senate and ordered to be filed.

SENATE CHAMBER, 1:25 P. M., June 30, 1868.

To the Honorable Speaker pro tem, House of Representatives, State of Louisiana:

SIR—I am directed to inform you that this body is now permanently organized and ready for business.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,
CHARLES H. MERRIT.
Secretary of Senate.

On motion of Mr. Faulkner, of Caldwell, the House adjourned until to-morrow at twelve o'clock M.

WILLIAM VIGERS,
Clerk pro tem.

Third Day's Session.

WEDNESDAY, July 1, 1868.

Pursuant to adjournment the House was called to order at twelve o'clock M., R. H. Isabelle in the Chair.

Roll call by the Clerk.

The following members answered to their names:

R. H. Isabelle, (Speaker), Abbott, Antoine, Dewees, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Lowell, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dufresne, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Faulkner, Frank Alexander, Fouts, Guigonet, Walsh, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, McVean, Sterrett, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, A. L. Lee, Le Blanc, Lott, Morris, Mollere, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Mathews, Pearce, Page, Pierce, W. H. Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Taylor, Washington, H. Williams, Wm. C. Williams, Henderson, Yorke, Young—53 members present.

Prayer by the Rev. Mr. Kingston.

REPORT OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

Mr. McMillen, chairman, submitted the following report:

To the Honorable Speaker pro tem and Members of the House of Representatives:

Your committee, to whom was referred the communication of General Buchanan, commanding Fifth Military District, beg leave to submit the following report:

The committee find it difficult to harmonize the position assumed by General Buchanan with any conceivable theory as to the character of this body. If, as is claimed, we are only a provisional assembly, then clearly it is the duty of the Military Commander of this District to exact the test oath as prescribed in the "act of Congress, approved July 2, 1862."

Any other course on the part of the commanding officer of this district is a direct violation of this law. If, on the other hand this body is a State assembly, convened under and by authority only of the Constitution of the State, then General Buchanan has no authority whatever to interfere with the action of this House. In neither view of the case can his order be justified; but your committee have concluded, after due consideration and in view of the fact that the General of the army has expressed an opinion that members of the Legislature are only required to take the oath prescribed in the Constitution, and of the further fact that the officer in command of the army of the United States in this district has seen proper to order that no oath be required, to recommend that the rule of the temporary Speaker requiring members to qualify according to the reconstruction laws of Congress be so far modified as to permit any person declared elected who is not disqualified from holding office by the proposed amendment of the Constitution of the United States known as article fourteen, to qualify by taking the oath prescribed in the new Constitution.

W. L. McMILLEN,
MORTIMER CARR,
DENNIS BURREL.

On motion of Mr. Faulkner, of Caldwell, the report was received.

Mr. Burrel, of St. John the Baptist, called for the previous question on the adoption of the report.

The previous question being sustained, the report, on motion of Mr. Carr, of Orleans, was adopted.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, moved that the House adhere to the rule heretofore established by the Speaker pro tem. in regard to contested seats.

Adopted.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, moved that the roll be called, and that those who had not yet qualified, and whose seats were not contested, and who were not disfranchised by the Constitution and laws of the United States and of this State, be permitted to qualify by taking the oath prescribed by the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, and that the Chair be directed to demand of applicants whether they are or not disfranchised.

Carried.

On motion of Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, the proposed fourteenth Constitutional amendment of the United States, and the ninety-ninth article of the Constitution of Louisiana were read by the Clerk.

The following members were sworn in by Chief Justice Hyman:

W. Pope Noble, of Orleans; C. R. May, of Orleans; M. D. Kavanagh, of St. Landry.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON ELECTIONS.

Mr. Yorke, Chairman, reported progress.

Mr. Faulkner, of Caldwell, moved that two members be added to the Committee on Elections.

Which, on motion of Mr. Garstkamp, of Jefferson, was laid on the table.

Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, moved that the House take a recess until two o'clock P. M.

Adopted.

TWO O'CLOCK P. M.

At the expiration of the recess the House was called to order, Mr. R. H. Isabelle in the chair.

The roll was called and the following members answered to their names:

Messrs. Isabelle, Abbott, Antoine, Alexander, Dewees, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Lowell, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dufresne, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Guigonet, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Lee, Kavanagh, Le Blanc, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McMillen, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, May, Mathews, Noble, John Pearce, Page, William H. Pearce, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, Wm. C. Williams, Henderson Williams, Yorke, Young—57.

Mr. Noble, of Orleans, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the roll of members of this House as returned by General Buchanan be called, and that those members returned as elected on that roll be allowed to be sworn whether their seats be contested or not.

Which, on motion of Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, was laid on the table.

Mr. McMillen moved that the House proceed to the election of a permanent Speaker.

Carried.

Mr. Brewster, of Ouachita, nominated Mr. Charles W. Lowell, of Caddo.

There being no other nominations, on motion of Mr. F. Morey, of Ouachita, Mr. Lowell was elected by acclamation.

Mr. McVean, of Caddo, moved that a committee of two be appointed by the Chair to escort the Speaker elect to the chair.

The Chair appointed Mr. Noble, of Orleans, and Mr. McVean, of Caddo.

On motion of Mr. Carr, of Orleans, the House proceeded to the election of a Chief Clerk.

On motion of Mr. Gray, of St. Charles, Mr. William Vigers was elected Chief Clerk by acclamation.

On motion, the House proceeded to elect a Sergeant-at-Arms.

Mr. Brewster nominated Mr. Dunford.

Mr. McVean nominated Mr. Burgess.

Mr. Williams nominated Mr. Barrett.

The names of Messrs. Burgess and Barrett having been withdrawn, on motion of Mr. Yorke Mr. Dunford was elected by acclamation.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, moved that the Clerk and Sergeant-at-Arms be empowered to appoint their assistants.

Mr. Gray, of St. James, offered the following amendment:

Provided they do not exceed two.

The motion as amended was adopted.

Mr. Rey, of Orleans, offered the following resolution:

Be it resolved, That a vote of thanks be tendered to R. H. Isabelle, chairman pro tem., for the able manner in which he has discharged his duties.

Which on motion was adopted.

The Clerk was ordered to notify the Senate that the House was organized, and ready to proceed to business.

On motion of Mr. McVean, of Caddo, a committee of three was appointed by the Chair to wait on the Governor, and notify him that the House was organized, and ready to receive communications.

The Chair appointed Messrs. Morey, of Ouachita, Isabelle, of Orleans, McVean, of Caddo, a committee to wait on the Governor.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans, offered the following joint resolution:

A joint resolution ratifying a proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

WHEREAS, The Congress of the United States has adopted a resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, to be submitted to the Legislatures of the several States, and to be known as article fourteenth of said Constitution, as follows:

ARTICLE XIV.—Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States, and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

SEC. 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of a Legislature thereof is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in proportion which the number of such male citizens shall be as to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

SEC. 3. No person shall be a Senator or Representavive in Congress, or elector of President and Vice-President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath as a member of Congress, or as a member of any State Legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid and comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may, by a vote of two-thirds of each house, remove such disability.

SEC. 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection and rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations, or claims shall be held illegal and void.

SEC. 5. Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the said constitutional amendment, in manner and form as proposed and submitted by the Congress of the United States, be and the same is, on the part of the State of Louisiana, hereby ratified and accepted.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, moved that the rule laid down in the forty-second article of the Constitution, in regard to the consideration of bills and joint resolutions be dispensed with.

The yeas and nays were demanded, and the motion was adopted by the following votes:

Yeas 57, nays 3.

Yeas: Abbott, Antoine, Adolphe, Dewees, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dufresne, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Faulkner, Frank, Fouts, Guigonet, Walsh, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, McVean, Sterrett, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Lee, Le Blanc, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McMillen, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, Mathews, John Pearce, Page, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Taylor, Washington, Wren, W. C. Williams, Henderson Williams, Yorke, Young—57.

Nays: May, Noble, W. H. Pierce—3.

Mr. McMillen moved that the resolution be put through its several readings.

Carried.

On the third reading the yeas and nays were ordered, and the resolution was adopted by the following vote, as follows—yeas 57, nays 3:

Yeas: Lowell, Abbott, Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Dewees, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dufresne, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Faulkner, Guigonet, Walsh, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, McVean, Sterrett, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Lee, Le Blanc, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McMillen, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, Mathews, John Pearce, Page, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Taylor, Washington, Wren, Wm. C. Williams, Henderson Williams, Yorke, Young—57.

Nays: May, Noble, Wm. H. Pierce.

And the resolution was ordered to be sent to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. Brewster, of Ouachita, moved that the House adopt as far as applicable the rules of the House of Representatives of the United States until rules shall have been drafted for the government of the House.

Seconded and adopted.

On motion of Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, the House adjourned until to-morrow at twelve o'clock M.

A true copy:

WILLIAM VIGERS,
Chief Clerk House Representatives.

Fourth Day's Session.

THURSDAY, July 21, 1868.

Pursuant to adjournment the House was called to order at twelve o'clock M.

Hon. C. W. Lowell, Speaker, in the chair.

The roll being called, the following members answered to their names:

Charles W. Lowell, Abbott, Antoine, Adolphe, Dewees, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dufresne, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Faulkner, Alexander, Guigonet, Garslkamp, Guidry, Hill, McVean, Honore, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Kavanagh, Le Blanc, Lott, Morris, Mollere, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, Mathews, Noble, J. Pearce, Page, W. H. Pierce, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, William C. Williams, H. Williams, Yorke, Young—55.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Stubs.

On motion of Mr. Kavanagh, of St. Landry, the members who had not yet qualified were invited to take the oath.

The oath was then administered by Judge Hyman, after the reading of the fourteenth article of the amendment to the United States Constitution, to the following members:

Messrs. W. W. Bennett, of Claiborne; J. B. Bergeron, of St. Martin; Alcee Dupre, of St. Landry; J. T. Hanlon, of Orleans; Amos Kent, of St. Helena; E. F. L'Hoste, of Orleans; J. B. Landry of Union; Jacob Magee, of Washington; C. B. Pratt, of Claiborne; Willis Prescott, of St. Landry; H. C. Slaton, of Jackson; Onezame Tate, of St. Landry—12.

A. W. Faulkner moved that the Committee on Election and Returns be discharged from any further consideration.

The above motion was laid on the table by a rising vote of 37 to 21.

On motion of Mr. McVean, of Caddo, the Committee on Election and Returns was requested to report; whereupon the said Committee on Election and Returns reported as follows:

To the Speaker and Members of the Honorable House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The report of the Committee on Election and Returns, appointed by your honorable body:

They report that they have investigated the case of contested elections in the parish of DeSoto.

They report that the said Jacob D. Wemple is not a registered voter of the parish of DeSoto; that he was rejected by two Boards of registration, and is consequently not qualified to vote or hold office.

Jacob D. Wemple held the office of Clerk of the Tenth District Court prior to the war; he also held the position of Parish Treasurer; also, that of member of the State Legislature prior.

They further show that frauds and intimidations were perpetrated by lawless persons to prevent a fair election in said parish.

They also show that Stephen Humphrey received a majority of votes cast legally in said parish for Representative over any other person legally entitled to hold said office.

Therefore, your Committee recommend that Stephen Humphrey be permitted to take his seat as Representative from the parish of DeSoto.

Respectfully submitted.

P. JONES YORKE,
CHARLES GRAY,
HARRY LOTT.
O. H. BREWSTER,
F. C. ANTOINE.

For the Committee on Elections and Returns.

Mr. McVean, of Caddo, moved to adopt the above report.

Mr. Kavanagh, of St. Landry, opposed the adoption, and moved to lay on the table, which was carried by a rising vote of 38 yeas to 24 nays, consequently the report was laid on the table.

The same committee made the following report, which, on motion, was also laid upon the table:

To the Speaker and Members of the Honorable House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The report of the Committee on Election and Returns appointed by your honorable body:

Your committee report that they have investigated the case of Frank Borge, and that, although in possession of his registration certificate, the said Frank Borge is a registered enemy to the United States. [Register, page twelve.]

There is no proof before your Committee to show that he has openly and actively assisted loyal men. Nor has he certified that he believes the rebellion to be morally and politically wrong, (article ninety nine of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana), and therefore is not entitled to a seat in the Legislature.

Therefore your committee recommend a new election.

P. JONES YORKE,
O. H. BREWSTER,
F. C. ANTOINE,
HARRY LOTT,
CHARLES GRAY.

On motion of Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, the Committee on Returns and Elections was discharged from all further consideration.

Mr. Gray, of St. James, moved that a committee of seven be appointed to which all cases of contested election should be referred.

Mr. McMillen offered the following substitute:

That a committee of five be appointed to report rules and regulations for the government of this House, and the number of standing committees necessary for the transaction of business.

The amendment being accepted by Mr. Gray, was adopted.

Under a suspension of the rules, Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, offered a bill entitled an act relating to the finances of the State, which went through its first reading.

An Act Relating to the Finances of the State.

WHEREAS, By special orders No. 40, issued from the headquarters of Fifth Military District on the twenty-second of February last, 1868, Major General W. S. Hancock, for the reasons stated in the said special orders, and on the recommendation of His Excellency Governor Joshua Baker, did order the licenses, revenues, taxes, and dues of the State of Louisiana to be payable and collected in United States legal tender treasury notes; and,

Whereas, It is important and proper that no change giving rise to uncertainty, inconvenience and confusion should be suddenly instituted before the Treasurer and Auditor of Public Accounts of this State, and the Committees on Finance in the two Houses of the Legislature shall have made an examination into the condition of our State finances with a view to their improvement; therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That until further legislation all the licenses on trades, professions, and occupations, the revenues, dues, and taxes of the State of Louisiana shall continue to be payable and collected in United States legal tender treasury notes, and it is hereby made the duty of the State Treasurer, and of all other persons charged with these collections, to exact payment as above.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Mr. Lee moved for a suspension of the rules in order to get the bill through its second and third readings.

Which motion was voted down.

Consequently the bill lies over under the rules.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans, under suspension of the rules, introduced the following bill, which was read and passed its first reading:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Assembly convened, That the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint a Board of five Police Commissioners for the city of New Orleans, who shall have full power to appoint and remove and control the officers and men of the police force of the city of New Orleans.

SEC. 2. That no officer or member of the police force shall be removed except for good and sufficient cause, and after a fair and impartial trial by the Police Board.

SEC. 3. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Mr. Carr moved that the rules be suspended in order that the bill be placed on its second and third readings.

Yeas and nays called, resulting as follows:

Yeas: Abbott, Antoine, Adolphe, Dewees, Belot, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dufresne, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Alexander, Guigonet, Walsh, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, Sterrett, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Lee, Le Blanc, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McMillen, Murrell, Mansion, Mathews, J. Pearce, Raymond, Rey, Smith, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, H. Williams, W. C. Williams, Yorke, Young—48 yeas.

Nays: Bennett, Brewster, Bergeron, Dupre, Demarest, Faulkner, Haskell, Hanlon, Kent, Kavanagh, L'Hoste, McCullen, Magee, Noble, Pratt, Page, W. H. Pierce, Preston, Reese, Slaton—20 nays.

Rules not suspended.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, moved a reconsideration of the vote last taken.

Yeas and nays called.

Yeas: Abbott, Antoine, Adolphe, Dewees, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dufresne, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Faulkner, Alexander, Guigonet, Walsh, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, McVean, Sterrett, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Lee, Le Blanc, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McMillen, Murrell Melvin, Mansion, Morey, Mathews, Pearce, Page, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, William C. Williams, H. Williams, Yorke, Young—55 yeas.

Nays: Bennett, Bergeron, Dupre, Haskell, Hanlon, Kent, Kavanagh, L'Hoste, McCullen, Magee, Noble, Pratt, William H. Pierce, Prescott, Slaton—15 nays.

The motion to reconsider prevailed.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, moved to put the bill on its second and third readings.

Yeas and nays called, which was lost by the following vote:

To suspend the rules were:

Yeas: Abbott, Antoine, Adolphe, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Dewees, Deslonde, Dufresne, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Faulkner, Alexander, Foute, Guigonet, Walsh, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, McVean, Sterrett, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Lee, Le Blanc, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McMillen, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, Mathews, John Pearce, Page, Raymond, Rey, Reese, Smith, Taylor, Tureaud, Williams, H. Williams, Yorke, Young: 55 yeas.

Nays: Bennett, Bergeron, Dupre, Haskell, Hanlon, Kent, Kavanagh, L'Hoste, McCullen, Magee, Noble, Pratt, Pierce, W. H. Prescott, Slaton—15 nays.

Under a suspension of the rules Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, offered the following bill:

An Act Making an Appropriation to Defray the Expenses of the General Assembly.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That there be and is hereby appropriated the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars out of any money now in the State Treasury, and out of the first money hereafter paid into the State Treasury, to be held and used for the sole purpose of paying the per diem of the members of the Legislature and the salaries of the several officers thereof, and such other expenses, incidental and otherwise, as may be incurred in holding the present session of the Legislature.

Be it further enacted, etc., That this act take effect from and after the date of its passage.

Which, under a suspension of the rules, underwent its several readings and adopted, and was ordered to be sent to the Senate for concurrence.

At this stage of the proceedings the Secretary of the Senate was announced, and informed the House that Messrs. Lynch and Ogden were appointed a committee on the part of the Senate to act conjointly with a committee from the House to inform the Governor that the General Assembly is properly organized and ready for business.

On motion, the committee appointed by the House to confer with the Governor withdrew, and shortly after reported that they had communicated with the Governor, and that his Excellency had nothing to communicate at present, but would do so from time to time.

Mr. McVean, of Caddo, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the members of the late Constitutional Convention, and who signed the constitution adopted on the seventeenth and eighteenth days of April last, and who are not members of the General Assembly, that the privilege of seats within the bar of the House be and are hereby cordially tendered to them.

Which was, on motion of Mr. Isabelle, of Orleans, laid on the table.

Mr. McMillen moved that the Clerk of the House be instructed to employ a competent Enrolling Clerk.

Carried.

Under a suspension of the rules the following resolution, offered by Mr. Carr, of Orleans, passed its first reading:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That all disbursements from the treasury of this State cease from and after the passage of this act, except in accordance with appropriations made by this General Assembly.

Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, moved to admit all members declared elected by General Buchanan's order;

Which, on motion of Mr. Morris, was laid on the table.

Mr. Prescott, of St. Landry, moved to reconsider the vote last taken.

Mr. Harper, of St. Charles, moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table;

Which was adopted by the following vote:

Yeas: Abbott, Antoine, Adolphe, Dewees, Belot, Burrell, Collins, Calhoun, Cuny, Deslonde, Dufresne, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Alexander, Guigonet, Walsh, Hill, McVean, Sterrett, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Lee, Le Blanc, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McMillen, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Mathews, J. Pearce, Page, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, H. Williams, Wm. C. Williams, Yorke, Young—48 yeas.

Nays: Bennett, Brewster, Bergeron, Dupre, Demarest, Faulkner, Garstkamp, Guidry, Haskell, Hanlon, Kent, Kavanagh, L'Hoste, McCullen, Morey, Mathews, Noble, Pratt, Wm. H. Pierce, Prescott, Slaton—21 nays.

Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, asked leave to introduce the following bill:

An Act Directing the Governor of the State to Enforce the Third Section of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and the Provisions of Article Ninety-nine of the Constitution of Louisiana.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the Governor of the State be and he is hereby authorized and required to inquire into the qualifications of all persons holding or claiming to hold any office or exercising or claiming to exercise the functions of any office by appointment of the Governor or by virtue of any election, State, judicial, or parochial, heretofore held or which may be hereafter holden in this State.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That if the Governor of the State shall ascertain that any person holding and exercising the functions of any office, or claiming the right to exercise the functions of any office in this State by virtue of appointment or election as aforesaid, is disqualified by the provisions of the third section of the proposed fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, or by the terms of article ninety-nine of the constitution of Louisiana, he shall withhold the commission from such person required by law to be issued to him by the Governor of the State, and he shall, moreover, declare such office vacant.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That if any person shall have received a commission, and in violation of said constitutional provisions shall have assumed the duties of office; or if any person shall have, without a commission and in violation of said constitutional provisions, assumed the duties of any office by virtue of any appointment or election as aforesaid prior to the passage of this act, who may be disqualified as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Governor and he is hereby authorized and required to declare such office vacant, and such office shall so be and remain vacant as if no such disqualified person had ever been appointed or elected thereto.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That whenever a vacancy in any office is created by the operation of this law, and the constitution does not provide for filling the same, it shall be the duty of the Governor, and he is hereby authorized to appoint a qualified citizen therto, who shall hold such office until his successor is duly appointed or elected and qualified.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That the provisions of this act shall not be construed so as to prevent any person from whom a commission has been withheld as aforesaid or who has been removed as aforesaid from contesting before any competent court with any person who may be appointed to such office his right thereto.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That all laws or parts of laws conflicting with this be and they are hereby repealed.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, That this law shall take effect from and after its passage.

Which, under a suspension of the rules, passed its first reading.

The Speaker announced the following Committee on Rules and Regulations:

McMillen, of Carroll, Taylor, of West Feliciana, Kavanagh, of St. Landry, Rey, of Orleans, Harper, of St. Charles.

Mr. McMillen having declined to serve, Mr. Carr, of Orleans, was appointed.

Under a suspension of the rules Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, offered a bill entitled an act to define the duties and fix the compensation of the State Printer.

Mr. McVean moved that 150 copies of the bill be printed for the use of members, and that the Speaker be authorized to contract for printing the same.

Adopted.

On motion of Mr. Morey the House adjourned until to-morrow at twelve o'clock M.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Kingston.

On motion of Mr. Ray, of Orleans, the reading of the journal was dispensed with.

*Mr. M*orey, of Ouachita, gave notice that he would offer to-morrow a resolution to amend the report of the Committee on Rules and Order, so as to add more committees therein.

*Mr. M*orey, of Ouachita, read an act of Congress relative to the election of Senators, and invited the Speaker to send a message to the Senate informing that honorable body that the House was ready to receive the Senators in joint session to proceed to the election of United States Senators.

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, objected, on the ground that the House had only organized on Wednesday last, and could not go into an election until the second Tuesday after.

The Chair decided that this was the day on which the joint session was to take place for the election of United States Senators, and instructed the Chief Clerk to deliver the message to the Senate, inviting the Senators to meet this House in joint session to elect two United States Senators.

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, appealed from the decision of the Chair.

The Chair decided that no appeal could be taken, as the law of Congress made it obligatory to proceed to the election of Senators on this day.

The Chief Clerk came in and announced to the Speaker that the Senate had complied with the invitation of the House, and would meet that body in joint session in a few moments.

Mr. Gray, of St. James, moved to take a recess of one hour.

Mr. Wren, of Bossier, moved to lay the above motion on the table.

Which was carried.

At a quarter after one o'clock the honorable President of the Senate and Senators were announced and took their seats.

Hon. O. J. Dunn, President of the Senate, called the House to order, announced the object of business, and ordered the Secretary of the Senate to call the roll of the Senate.

The following members answered to their names:

Anderson, Bacon, Beares, Blackman, Braughn, Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, Day, Egan, Foute, François, Futch, Harris, Jenks, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, Offutt, Ogden, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Thompson, Todd, White, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams, Wittgenstein—36.

The Speaker ordered the roll of the House to be called.

The following members answered to their names:

Speaker Lowell, Abbot, Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Bennett, Buckingham, Brewster, Barbee, Burrel, Bergeron, Collins, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dewees, Dufresne, Dupre, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Faulkner, Fouts, Guigonet, Haskell, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, Hanlon, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Isabelle, Kent, Kavanagh, Le Blanc, Lee, Leroy, L'Hoste, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McCullen, Mahier, McMillen, McVean, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, Morand, Mathews, Magee, Noble, Pearce, Pratt, Page, Pierce, Prescott, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Slaton, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, Wilson, William C. Williams, H. Williams, N. Young, Yorke, D. Young—75 members.

Senator Ray called for the reading of that part of the journal of the Senate relative to the election of United States Senators made yesterday.

The Secretary of the Senate then read from his journal the resolution relative to the election of United States Senators.

The Clerk of the House then read from his journal that part of the proceedings relative to the same subject.

Mr. Harris, of Concordia, nominated Mr. W. P. Kellogg for United States Senator, long term.

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, nominated Mr. Allen C. Hill.

Mr. Kavanagh, of St. Landry, nominated Mr. S. H. Torrey.

The roll of the Senate being called resulted as follows:

The President of the Senate then announced that Mr. J. S. Harris, having received a majority of the votes cast, was declared duly elected United States Senator of Louisiana for the short term.

On motion of Senator Ray the members of the Senate retired.

The Speaker called the House to order.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, moved to adjourn until to-morrow at ten o'clock A. M.

The motion to adjourn was withdrawn in order to allow the Committee on Elections and Qualifications to report.

Mr. Yorke, of Carroll chairman of the Committee on Elections and Qualifications, submitted the following report, which, on motion of Mr. Rey, ot Orleans, was received and adopted:

To the Speaker and Members of the Honorable House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The report of the Committee on Elections and Qualifications, appointed by your honorable body, states—

That in the case of C. B. Young against P. H. Waters, of the First Representative District of the parish, and that after having examined the evidence carefully, they conclude that said P. H. Waters is eligible and duly elected, and therefore entitled to his seat, and recommend that he be allowed to qualify.

P. JONES YORKE,
Chairman;
DENNIS BURREL,
HARRY LOTT,
F. C. ANTOINE,
M. CARR,
C. B. PRATT,
M. R. KAVANAGH.

The same committee submitted the following report, which was read:

To the Honorable House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana:

GENTLEMEN—The Committee on Contested Elections, taking into consideration the unavoidable delay attendant upon their action in relation to the numerous cases referred to them, and the injustice of depriving whole districts and parishes of representation upon the floor of the House, respectfully recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That those members who are returned as elected from districts and parishes not now represented, and whose seats are contested, be admitted to seats in this House and participation and votes in its deliberations until said contested seats are reported upon and decided by the House.

P. JONES YORKE,
DENNIS BURREL,
MORTIMER CARR,
CLARENCE B. PRATT,
M. D. KAVANAGH.

The following members dissent from the report of the committee: F. C. Antoine, H. Lott.

Mr. Garstkamp, of Jefferson, moved to lay the majority report on the table.

The yeas and nays were demanded, and resulted as follows:

Yeas: Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Cuny, Dewees, Evans, Esnard, Guigonet, Garstkamp, Hill, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Lott, Mollere, McVean, Murrell, Pearce, Raymond, Rey, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor, Washington, Wilson, William C. Williams—27 yeas.

Nays: Abbot, Bennett, Buckingham, Brewster, Barbee, Burrel, Bergeron, Collins, Carr, Dufresne, Dupart, Fouts, Gray, Guidry, Haskell, Hanlon, Isabelle, Kent, Le Blanc, Leroy, L'Hoste, McCullen, Mahier, Melvin, Morey, May, Mathews, Magee, Noble, Pratt, Page, Pierce, Prescott, Reese, Slaton, Tureaud, Wren, H. Williams, N. Young, Yorke—40 nays.

Mr. Harper, of St. Charles, moved to adjourn until twelve o'clock M. to-morrow.

Carried.

The House then adjourned until to-morrow at twelve o'clock M.

WM. VIGERS,
Chief Clerk House of Representatives.

Items.

Mr. Samuel Pollard, (colored), who recently spoke at a Democratic meeting, desires us to say that he is a Republican, and that the speech above referred to was an error, and he repents.

As we go to press, the intelligence reaches us of a bloody riot in Opelousas, between the blacks and whites. Troops have been dispatched to the scene of the disturbance. The trouble originated between two white men, which soon involved both races.

Ames Methodist Episcopal Church.

There will be preaching every Sabbath at 11 A. M., in Dr. Newman's church, corner of St. Charles and Calliope streets, and social meetings for conference and prayer every Sunday and Thursday evening from eight to nine o'clock in the lecture room. You are invited.

The Attakapas Register.

Messrs. Roberts and Joyner have commenced in Franklin, St. Marys parish, the publication of the above Republican journal. It is one of the best looking of our loyal papers, courteous and fearless in manner, varied and brilliant in matter, evidencing thorough acquaintance with both editorial and mechanical work. The Register is destined to be the people's banner.

The Weather.

Until the the twenty-fifth ultimo the thermometer reached nearly ninety degrees. On the twenty-fifth it fell about twenty degrees. The great change in the temperature caused people to lay aside their linen clothing and array themselves in woolen fabrics. The thermometer, however, is again rising, and for a few days has stood at eighty degrees.

State Elections.

The election in Nebraska will be held October 6; in Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Ohio October 13; in West Virginia October 22; in New York, Delaware, Illinois, Missouri, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, Maryland, Wisconsin, Michigan, Kansas and Massachusetts on November 3.

Ladies after bathing, who suffer from the smarting effects of the soap, will find instant relief in the use of Burnett's Kalliston. New York office, 592 Broadway.

Religious Prosperity.

Good old Nehemiah had some such experience as God's people are passing through at present in the South. In troublous times, with the sword in one hand and the trowel in the other, they labored to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, broken down and left desolate by civil commotions. In similar circumstances we labor, and we hear the same taunts, "that which they build, if a fox go up he shall even break down their stone wall."

Friends and foes of the Advocate family call us political preachers, and point to the display in our columns, of the names of Grant and Colfax; they mourn over our interest in the Presidential contest, and seem to fear a neglect of religion. It is perhaps to be expected that such a concern should be felt and expressed by friends and that our enemies and the envious should seize so good an opportunity to misrepresent and injure us. We are in the midst of a great civil commotion; the whole land is convulsed, but more especially our section. With us it is a question of existence, and not simply a struggle for the control of the Government and possession of the offices. The party we oppose declare that we have no business here, and by force, fraud and flattery seek to expel or perplex us. We are styled the Northern Yankee, Abolition Church, and the same elements that combined against us before the war, oppose us now. Then it was political, now it is the same; our friends should underrtand this, our enemies do.

It is a great mistake, however, to conclude that we neglect religion; that real Gospel work is not done here, of the same character as that observed in quieter sections of the land. There our preachers are not absorbed in politics; on the contrary, with every opportunity and inducement to accept of office and emolument, we know of very few who have yielded, only one in this Conference. They have sometimes stood alone in large parishes, the friend and counselor of the freed people, the most intelligent of their color, but have preferred the humble self-denying position of Methodist Circuit preacher, to that of town, parish or State official. One says, "I have had no trouble with politics or the Democrats, for I am trying to gain the people for Christ; and politics is dangerous for ministers. I fight my battle with prayer." They have the most unquestioning faith in the Republican cause, and a lofty disdain of bribes. Another writes, "the Democrats offer to build me a large church and school house, but I believe I will make out with the old sugar house a little longer."

As to revivals and their results, our Conferences will compare favorably with any others in this connection. There is scarcely a circuit or station that has not already enjoyed a revival; and at the next Annual Conference, conversions by thousands and new churches by scores will be reported. We have not the materials at hand for an exact statement of the religious prosperity enjoyed during the year, but a glance at the "letters from the Churches," published within two or three months, give us three or four hundred conversions. One preacher writes, "I could name fifty or sixty here, who a few days ago were reprobates, but now are most faithful in the Church. We have had a six weeks' protracted meeting." Another says, "I have just organized a church of forty-four members;" another, "I have just taken twenty-three new members, and have more calls for preaching than I can meet;" another, "we closed our pretracted meeting with great joy. I had the pleasure of taking the hands of thirty who had been redeemed." At the Bayou Goula camp-meeting about thirty professed conversion." Away up in Sabine parish one writes, "I have a hundred and ninety members, and have had twenty conversions." The Cypremot Church reports a thorough work, with thirty or forty adults converted. In far off Ouachita, among fierce persecutions, churches are being formed and many souls converted to God. The cities, perhaps, are less favored, being more disturbed by excitement, but sufficient evidence is shown to satisfy all concerned, that the old Methodist fire is burning here. The Gospel has its usual effect, and our preachers are the men for the times; some of them have had to "hug the black-jack," have been "staked down," have felt the cruel bull whip for the Gospel sake. They mean to be true to the Lord Jesus and to the Church of their choice.

Excitement Subsiding.

It is gratifying to observe the manifest change in the popular feeling within a few days. Our city is quiet. Dark looks and muttered threats are not now the order of the day. Be it owing to General Rousseau's plain talk, Governor Warmoth's veto, or a discovery that the Republicans refuse to be scared, we rejoice in the fact. Doubtless the warlike utterances of Democratic papers and orators cost the merchants many thousands of dollars, in loss of trade and credit during those days of excitement. This may be an additional reason for the change. Let us have peace

The Governor's Veto.

In another column we print what is known as the "Civil Rights Bill" and also Governor Warmoth's veto thereof. The bill was introduced into the House by Hon. Mr. Isabelle, and having passed both branches of the General Assembly was sent to the Governor for his signature but instead received his veto. The message of his excellency was sent to the House on Saturday last where it produced wild and angry excitement, but after a debate which lasted two days was finally sustained. The bill and its veto together with their historical incidents are subjects for profound reflection.

The intent of the bill is eminently proper, which is to secure to the colored citizens at hotels, at places of amusements and refreshments, and on all public conveyances, equal accommodations, for the same money, to those extended to our white citizens. This is all the people of color can demand; this is all they ask. They do not demand that when they travel on a steamboat they shall sleep in the same stateroom or eat at the same table with a white man; but they do demand, and of right, that they shall not be kept down below with the mules and bales of cotton and hogsheads of sugar, when they are willing to pay for a cabin passage and for a seat at the first table. Let there be staterooms assigned them and a first class table exclusively for them. At the Opera House let them be admitted to seats equally elegant to any others, on the one condition, that they pay the customary fee of admission. In all of our hotels they should be admitted to apartments furnished for them and to tables of equal elegance and bounty provided for their accommodation. If the proprietor of a soda fountain is unwilling to furnish his beverage to a person of color from the same fountain at which the whites drink, then let him provide a fountain equally good at another counter. This is all the people of color ask, and this is true equality. They will not force themselves into the society of white men unbidden, but they have a right to demand equal accommodations for an equal price.

And this should be reached by the General Assembly passing a law to the effect, that whenever a license is issued to a person to keep a hotel, a place of amusement, or of refreshment, said license shall provide for the accommodation of all citizens, and that a failure to extend such accommodations shall work a forfeiture of the license. Thus it shall be left optional with a citizen whether he will take out a license under such circumstances. And the same provision should be inserted into the charter of all railroad and steamboat companies. How this accommodation shall be provided, must be left to the licensed. This will obviate two difficulties in the bill under consideration. Proprietors of the abovenamed places and conveyances now complain, that if they accommodate the blacks on the same footing with the whites it will ruin their business; while we have no fear of such a result, yet it is optional with the proprietor whether he will take out such a license in view of such a result. It may be said that the object of a license is not a mere permission to engage in this or that business, but to secure a revenue to the State. Doubtless this is true, yet the revenue is a condition imposed by the licensing power, and that same power may impose other conditions and among them, that all citizens shall be accommodated on equal terms. And this will obviate class legislation and of making that penal, which by no sound principle of jurisprudence can be made penal.

Thus we have expressed the intent of the bill and suggested what we regard a safe and practicable remedy to the present system of gross injustice under which our colored citizens are compelled to live. Some may suggest that this is perpetuating caste and that all barriers should at once be broken down and all travel and eat indiscriminately. This is so in Europe and it will be so in America when a purer Christianity and a better civilization obtain, but until then we must wait the coming of the good time. Yet, the question is not what is right but how far can the law go in securing this right. Can we force a landlord to put a traveler in this room or that room, or seat him at this table or that table? By no means. The internal regulations of his hotel must be left to himself, and he may so dispose of his guests as may best profit his business; provided that he shall not practice extortion and that he shall entertain all citizens on conditions equal and fair. The law can go no further and can go only thus far by the expressed conditions of a license which is a mutual contract.

Mr. Isabelle's bill is exposed to fatal objections and we are surprised that the House enacted it into a law. It has been an evil under aristocratic governments that class legislation has prevailed. In Greece and in Rome there were laws for plebeians, and laws for patricians. In England the aristocracy have privileged rights secured by law of which a poor man is deprived; in the South, in the days of slavery, there were laws for the master and laws for the slave. This bill is taking us back into the shadowy past; it is reviving the old days of slavery; it is wholly in the interest of the colored people, and admit the principle and we shall soon have laws in favor of religious sects, political organizations, and the rich against the poor. The colored man is a citizen and upon his citizenship let him base the claim to the rights of his franchise and let him not ask for privileges which white men have never had.

In the construction of this bill, its author fails to discriminate between crime and civil obligations. Suppose Mr. Isabelle should apply to the captain of the Robert E. Lee for a first cabin passage, and the captain politely informs him that he can not accommodate him. What crime does he commit against the State? The refusal lacks the elements of crime; it is an act which has neither an existence, nor a name in the criminal code of this or of any other civilized country. Yet it proposes to fine and imprison the man who makes such a refusal. Had the bill become a law there is not a judge, either in our city, State, or national courts, who would not have pronounced it unconstitutional. In addition to his refusal, should a steamboat captain knock Mr. Isabelle down that would be a crime of assault and battery, but the mere refusal would not be considered even a ground of complaint, unless the party refused could show that he had suffered in person or property and thereby claim damages. But while we dislike the bill itself we, insist that our colored citizens should be relieved of their present embarrassments; that on all roads, on all rivers, in all hotels, in all places of amusement, they should receive the same accommodations, for the same money, as white men do, and that the General Assembly is competent to legislate in the matter by modifying the license law as above suggested.

Viewed from this standpoint, we believe the majority of the colored people will sustain Governor Warmoth in his veto. As a true citizen and Republican he cannot desire otherwise than to secure to the colored man all his rights; and our colored people should make the distinction between the principle of the bill and the manner in which that principle is sought to be carried out. The Governor's objections are against a bad law and not against the rights of the colored man. Present to the Governor a law without these objectionable features and we will guarantee his signature.

It required no ordinary courage to veto this bill passed by both Houses of the Legislature by a large vote, advocated by many of our best white Republicans, and regarded by our colored citizens as their Magna Charta. It was a hazardous step for our young Governor to take; yet rising above the ties of party, alike indifferent to the smiles and frowns of others, he only aimed to secure for Louisiana a jurisprudence that shall endure the test of ages. The law was defective and he vetoed it. And by this official act he has proved himself equal to the situation. During the balance of his executive term he will not, probably, be called to pass through a more trying ordeal than the one under consideration, and should not this prove true we have the uttermost confidence in Governor Warmoth's integrity, ability, patriotism and courage.

How Will the Colored Man Vote?

Less than three months ago the Democratic press, both North and South, commenced to publish a series of reports and editorials on the sudden conversion of the colored people to Democracy.

To one not posted in the tricks of political journalism the result appeared inevitable that nine-tenths of the colored voters of the South had openly espoused the cause of Seymour and Blair. Especially was this said to be true of Louisiana and particularly so of New Orleans. But the opposite is the truth. Never did politicians work more desperately to gain votes than did the Democrats of this city, to secure the suffrages of our colored people. Promises and threatenings; blessings and cursings; plenty and starvation, were the potent agencies employed. But the attempt is a downright failure. They did secure a negro by the name of Rollins, who, for a while, was Seymour's black elephant. Where he came from is not material, but where he went is more important. Pleased with their "colored pet," the Democrats provided lodgings for him in the rooms of the "Constitution Club," and to treat him like a "distinguished guest," they had his meals sent to him from one of our best restaurants. They called on "de stinguish gemmem," sent a carriage for his service, and lauded him to the heavens. But Rollins was too smart for his new friends. His bills which were sent to the Democrats were altogether too large, and utterly failing to impress the colored people with the benefits of Democracy, they found the black elephant a too expensive animal and turned him out to pick up a straw or lift a stick of timber as fortune might smile or disposition incline.

Then the Democrats found a colored man by the name of Sam Pollard, unto whom they said in this wise: "Now, Pollard, you ought to be a Moses unto your people, and go down into Egypt and say to the crrpet-baggers, 'let my people go,' for these carpet-baggers are like the old Egyptians pursuing after Israel, and in the language of one of your fine hymns you should

Go down, Moses, go down;
And tell King Pharaoh
To let my people go."

Pollard was overcome by this sublime comparison and mounting the platform at a Democratic meeting began to preach a sermon on "Moses among the bulrushes." But Sam had a hard time speaking, for some of his brother Methodists were there out of curiosity and in seeing their brother among the true Egyptians called out to him: "Is dat you Sam?" "What are you doing there, Pollard?" Which so confounded Sam that he hasn't made a Democratic speech since. Indeed, Mr. Pollard has been to see us and says that he always was a Radical and is a Radical and would not be anything else but a Radical.

Having grown wise by past experience the Democrats of Louisiana have about given up all hopes of a large colored vote; and have concluded that a white man's government must be sustained by white men. There are not in New Orleans a hundred colored men who will vote for Seymour and not a thousand in the whole State. If Grant fails of the colored vote of the South, violence and not choice will cause the failure. The great General who finally broke the slave power to pieces, like a potter's vessel, is the man unto whom the freedmen of the South look as their friend and protector. Next to the name of Abraham Lincoln no name is so dear to our colored people as the name of Ulysses S. Grant.

Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars.

It is now fifty years since the organization of our Missionary Society, and it is proposed to celebrate the Semi-Centennial of the Society in April, 1869. In commemoration of an event so illustrious, and as a memorial structure, it is proposed to erect a Mission House in New York for the accommodation of the officers of the society. The South should respond nobly to the call for funds for the erection of this building, for the Missionary Society has appropriated hundreds of thousands of dollars to build up our Church in the South, both in the erection of places of worship and the support of our ministers. And now we propose that our Church in the South shall give $25,000 towards the new Mission House. What say you, preachers and laymen? Twenty-five cents per member will realize the amount. Louisiana Conference will raise her quota. What say you, Texas? What say you, Mississippi? And what say ye Alabama, Delaware, Georgia, Holston, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Washington? Let this amount be given over and above our regular collections. We may plead our poverty, yet remember that less than twenty-five cents for each member will be sufficient. It can be done; it should be done. Let us say, it shall be done.

Free Speech.

The Camilla, Georgia, outrage on free speech has its admirers and imitators in Louisiana. At Washington, St. Landry parish, the Democrats armed and mounted, prepared to prevent or disperse a meeting of Republicans. Only by great circumspection was a fearful tragedy prevented. Failing to intimidate the Republicans, and finding it doubtful which side would suffer most loss, the rioters subsided, not without threats and curses equal to those of a certain army in Flanders. The same thing has been tried lately in St. Martinsville. Democratic papers have published partisan statements reflecting upon their opponents, but we have a letter from Rev. Mr. Bryan, which gives the facts. "On Sunday, the twentieth, we had morning service and Sunday-school, as usual, dismissing at twelve o'clock, because of the excitement of the political meeting. It was a day long to be remembered. At least fifteen hundred people were in town, and as I passed the stand, the speaking was going on. Every thing proceeded finely until old Dr. Smith came up. He had been severely beaten by a Democrat, on account of their different political views. This incident threw the meeting into confusion. At the same time the Democrats were preparing their guns, unloading and putting in fresh charges. I went home to see about my wife and children. When I met them, my wife said some one had told her the white people were preparing to fire upon the colored procession as it passed through the streets. It was a dreadful day. I soon heard the Republicans coming and cheering; the Democrats formed a line of battle across the streets; the two parties met, each daring the other to shoot. The Mayor called for peace, but others cried to kill the colored people; these replied let us go out into the prairie and fight it out; the end would have been burning the town; but God was stronger than all, and we were saved from these dangers; in a little while the excitement was over, the Democrats finding they could not intimidate the others. We hope peace will now prevail.

Imported Congressmen.

It is more than whispered that it is the purpose of certain gentlemen to become residents of particular districts and therein run for Congress. Whatever may have been the necessity for this in the commencement of the organization of our State, we hold that no such necessity exists at the present time. We have heard old citizens of such districts, and who are tried Republicans, condemn this practice of imported Congressmen. We know the boundless patriotism of such gentlemen, and that to serve their country's cause in Congress they are perfectly willing to sacrifice themselves and run from the most distant parish in the State. But, gentlemen, don't run before you are sent. Remain where you are, restrain your ardent patriotism and cherish the belief that you can serve your country's cause as well by the faithful discharge of the little office you now hold, or working at your trade, or by raising corn and sweet potatoes. Don't gentlemen, be unduly anxious lest there may be a district without a man to go to Congress. Should such be the case we promise to inform you by telegraph and otherwise aid you in your patriotic and self-sacrificing endeavor to serve your country's cause. In the meantime let our friends in each Congressional District choose their man to the "manor born," one who knows your wants, one who owns a foot of land, and stand not upon his color, for that matters not. Yet we would suggest that a colored man would look well in the Congress of the United States.

Read the Laws.

We are now publishing the doings of our General Assembly and we desire to impress upon all our readers the importance of reading with care the proceedings and laws of that legislature which your votes created. By a careful perusal of the proceedings you can trace the course of your representative, and judge whether he has faithfully met the great responsibility which you committed to him. By reading the laws you will therefrom learn your own duty; for you should remember that, while it is the duty of the State to publish its laws, it is the duty of the citizens to read those laws. You will also become familiar with public and legislative matters. We now write more particularly to our colored readers. You are now citizens; you are now eligible to office; you have entered upon a new life and should therefore qualify yourselves for your duty. Especially should our preachers take it upon themselves to see that the Advocate is carried into each family. We have enlarged our edition and send each preacher an additional number of copies.

Book Notices.

Bulwer's Miscellaneous Works. By Edward Bulwer, Lord Lytton. In two volumes of about 400 pages each. Published by Harper & Brothers, New York.

The writings of Bulwer are too well known to the reading public to need words of ours to recommend them. All that is necessary from us is simply to state the subjects on which the author treats. Volume one—on "The Beign of Terror; its Causes and Results;" "Oliver Goldsmith;" Charles Lamb and some of his Companions;" "Gray's Works;" "Sir Thomas Browne;" "Pitt and Fox;" "Pym vs. Falkland; "The Life of Schiller." Among the table of contents of the second volume we find "On the difference between authors and the impressions of them conveyed by their works;" 'Monos and Diamonos;" "On the Departure of Youth;" "The World as It Is;" "Lake Leman and its Associations;" "The True Ordeal of Love; on the want of sympathy; on satiety; on infidelity in love; many-sidedness and self-completion; conversations with an ambitious student in his last illness. etc.

For sale by Krull & Dickey, 106 Canal street, New Orleans.

Children with the Poets.—By Harriet B. M'Keever. Published by Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

A beautiful work of 360 pages, being a compilation of poetry for children between eight and fourteen years of age, by the best American, English and German Poets. It contains a great variety of selections, but all high toned.

As it is a generally admitted fact that the songs, the poetry, etc., learned in childhood exercises a great influence in moulding the character of the child, it becomes a matter of importance as to the reading furnished them, the poetry they commit to memory, etc. The influence of this work can be only good.

For sale by James A. Gresham, Bookseller and Stationer. 92 Camp street, New Orleans.

The Dower House.—A story by Annie Thomas, author of "Dennis Donne;" "On Guard;" "Theodore Leigh," etc. Published by Harper & Brothers, New York, and for sale by Krull & Dickey, 106 Canal street, New Orleans.

Notices of Periodicals.

Harper's Magazine for October contains accounts of Explorations in Lower California; The Chinese Embassy to the Foreign Powers; The Fire Log; George and Robert Stephenson; The Day of My Death; The military Form of the Civil War; Origin of Printing; The Woman's Kingdom, a love story; Our Neighbors, the Birds; Maximilian in Mexico, etc.

The Galaxy.—This large magazine of over 140 pages has in its table of contents: Cipher, a novel; Vittoria Colonna; The History of Tears; John Lester Wallack; The Death of Hope; Beechdale; Words and their Uses; Is Labor a Curse? Tides; The Galaxy Miscellany, Drift Wood; Nebula, etc.

The Phrenological Journal for October is as interesting as those of previous months. Among its contents we notice an article on Charles Darwin, the eminent naturalist; Variety vs. Pride; Who are the Yankees, and What? My Creed; Does Affection Spring from the Heart? Self Culture; Address to a Jug of Rum; How to Travel, etc.

Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The venerable Dr. Lovick Pierce, father of Bishop Pierce, is still able to preach occasionally. Recently he has accompanied his son to several of his episcopal appointments.

The Jackson (Miss.) Methodist announces "a temporary suspension on account of the stringency of the times, the scarcity of money, the failure of a large number of its subscribers to pay their subscriptions, together with the fact that labor and all printing material necessary to the publication of a newspaper have to be paid for in cash."

Dr. Redford, book agent of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has undertaken the task of collecting funds to make up the deficiency in the salaries of the Bishops. He is forwarding circulars to all the preachers in the southern conferences urging them to raise for the purpose in their congregations the small sum of five or ten dollars.

The papers of the Church South mention numerous accounts of revivals said to be now in progress.

Fiake's Galveston (Texas) Bulletin prints the following, dated at Bethel, Anderson County, and signed by the Pastor, Rev. H. Clay:

Brother King: On last Saturday a charge was preferred against you in our church for inconsistency as a follower of Christ. The charge is here below copied:

I charge Brother W. H. King, a regular member of our Church, and our former clerk, with having openly avowed himself as a Black Republican and Radical by accepting of the appointment as County Clerk under the military authority.

H. M. MORRIS.

The Church wants you to be in attendance next meeting, and bring your Church letter. The Church will not fellowship a radical. I am one of the committee to notify you. Your brother in Christ.

The "Residence Buildings" of Female College, Sharon, Mississippi, were burned with all the furniture, etc., a few days since. The professors lost their libraries and all their other effects, their families barely escaping with their lives.

Rev. L. Q. Allen, of the North Georgia Conference, died of cancer at Cumming, Georgia, August 10.

Bishop Paine's health has so far improved that his friends hope he will be able to attend the sessions of his Conferences.

Dr. William A. Smith has consented to take the Presidency of Central College, Missouri.

There has been some religious interest of late in both the Felicity street and Moreau street Churches. At the latter place, on last Sunday evening, the 29th ultimo, six persons came forward for prayers two of whom professed conversion. An extra service was given out for the following Wednesday evening.

Incendiarism in Algiers.—A short time before daylight this morning, a fire broke out in the premises of Mr. Henry Carter, known as the Brooklyn House. The flames spread so rapidly that it was impossible to check them. The conflagration extended over all the buildings contiguous to Carter's, consisting of five frame houses, belonging to Mr. Olivier, which were all consumed. Had there not been vacant lots on the north and east sides of the burning houses the whole square, including the Catholic church of St. Bartholomew would have been burned to the ground. The proprietor of the Brooklyn House, Mr. Carter, did not reside on the premises; he moved his family away after the attempt to fire his premises a few weeks ago. There is information already in the hands of the authorities to prove incendiarism, and the matter is undergoing a rigid investigtion.

A young Democrat at Lewiston, Maine, was converted to Republicanism, just before the recent election, by a brickbat. He had accepted an invitation to attend a Tanner's meeting, and while in procession was hit by a brick, thrown by a brother Democrat, which carried him over, and he voted for Chamberlain. For once this favorite Copperhead argument carried conviction to the young man.

VETO OF THE CIVIL RIGHTS BILL.

Message of the Governor.

Governor Warmoth this morning returned the Civil Rights bill to the House without his approval, accompanied by the following message:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, State of Louisiana
New Orleans, September 25, 1868.

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives:

I return to the House of Representatives an Act to Protect all Persons in their Public and Civil Rights without my signature, for the following reasons, to wit:

The rights and privileges enumerated in the first section of this bill and sought to be enforced thereby are fully and explicitly recognized and established in the Constitution of the State. Even a foreigner, not a citizen, has the same right to travel and be entertained as a citizen, and there is nothing in our jurisprudence which makes distinctions on account of race or color, except in so far as relates to slavery. The organic law of the land gives to "all persons" perfect equality of civil and political rights, including the privilege of enforcing these rights in the courts and employing all the legal remedies which have heretofore been found requisite to secure their rights to all persons; the means, however, proposed in the fourth section of the bill for enforcing these rights are, in my judgment, not merely novel and unprecedented, but impracticable and pernicious. It seeks to make that a crime which has never to my knowledge been so considered in those communities where the highest regard is paid to the personal rights of all men.

There is, and always ought to be, a broad line of demarcation fixed between a crime and the breach of obligations growing out of civil contracts, and we demoralize the public conscience and confuse its conceptions of right and wrong when we seek to obliterate so evident a distinction. Our statute book is filled already with criminal laws that are never enforced, and never will be, until public opinion rises to their respective levels. The history of the world is full of examples of this sort, when acts not in themselves criminal have been vainly declared so, and in this way a levity, or feeling in regard to real crimes produced, we relapse into the legislation of a less enlightened period, when we try to convert an act which is properly a question of civil damages into an offense against the peace and dignity of the State. And it ought to be carefully borne in mind that we cannot hope by legislation to control questions of personal association; much less can we hope to force on those who differ from us our views of what is humane, or courteous, or Christian-like. Mutual forbearance and kindness, and the noble belief in the brotherhood of man, must spring from a higher source than the fear of punishment. They can never be forced to grow by pains and penalties.

Again, so far as railroads and steamboats are concerned, it must be borne in mind that the regulation of commerce between the several States was wisely confided, under the Constitution of the United States, to the national Congress. The object of this grant of power was clearly to prevent the confusion which would arise from conflicting legislation on such subjects by the different contiguous States; and the wisdom of the provision appears more clearly every day as the means of transportation are increased and improved. By the second and third sections of this act, no distinction is clearly made between railroads and steamboats whose routes are wholly within this State, and those whose routes are beyond. Of course, our criminal jurisdiction cannot go beyond our State lines, and in this respect the act seems impolitic and liable to produce unnecessary confusion and litigation. For experimental legislation of this kind, for which the sanction of no successful precedent can be adduced, a more unfavorable occasion than the present, could hardly be imagined. In the midst of a most exciting political campaign, at a time when the passions, ammosities, and resentments consequent upon a great war, and attendant upon great and sudden changes in affairs, are roused to the highest pitch of intensity, and when the prejudices regarding race are inflamed to the utmost, it is here proposed to enforce by penal remedies what is practically class legislation, and to maintain and confirm class distinctions. The effect, in my judgment, of such an act, would be to defeat rather than to promote the ends apparently had in view by the author of the bill. The barriers of race, instead of being thereby removed, would be increased in height and breadth, in firmness and strength. So long as these barriers are maintained, so long will be deferred the era of peace, order and prosperity in the State, to which mutual harmony and good will are essential, and so long will the rights of the lately enfranchised linger in the condition of doubt and insecurity. The prejudices upon which these barriers are founded have no foundation in reason or nature, and will surely give way to the softening influences of time, unless they are constantly fretted into activity. In the mean time any person, colored as well as white, is equally secured by the Constitution in the enjoyment of political and civil rights, and in his remedy for their infringement. The couris are open to all alike; the same rule obtains in National and State Courts. The Judges of the State Courts and their officers are amenable to and dependent upon all citizens alike. Colored and white alike constitute juries. Those of the lately enfranchised who are wise and reflecting will not ask for more. They will rather deprecate a kind of legislation which, instead of advancing their present condition, only renders the enemies of their race more bitter and determined in their hostility, and furnishes them weapons whereby to assail the rights which the colored men have already acquired. In returning this bill without my signature, it is hardly necessary for me to say that I am prepared, so far as lies in my province and power, to enforce the new Constitution as it exists; such is my desire, as well as my duty. But when I find the act in question to be, in my best judgment, unnecessary and unwise, and, for the reasons I have stated, calculated to demoralize the public conscience, and intensify distinctions which will surely yield to the power of time, and the growth of more catholic views of our personal relations, it becomes no less clearly my duty to decline to sign it.

H. C. WARMOTH,
Governor of Louisiana.

The following is a copy of the bill above referred to by the Governor:

An act to protect all persons in their civil and public rights.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That all persons, without regard to race, color, or previous condition, shall enjoy equal rights and privileges in their traveling, being entertained, etc., upon any conveyance of a public character, or place of public resort or any place of business where a license is required in this State.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons commanding any steam or sailing vessel or water craft, plying in this State, to make any distinction on board of any of the above mentioned vessels to refuse accommodation on account of race or color.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons conducting or controlling any railroad company, stage line, or vehicle, to make any distinction or refuse accommodation to any person or persons on account of race or color.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That any person or persons violating the provisions of this act, on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars, and not exceeding five hundred ($500) dollars, recoverable before any competent tribunal in this State, or imprisoned not less than three months, and not exceeding one (1) year.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, etc., That all acts, parts of acts, and ordinances in force in this State, contrary to the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed and of non-effect.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall go into effect from and after its passage.

A grim old Judge, after hearing a flowery discourse from a pretentious young barister, advised him thus: Pluck out the feathers from the wings of your imagination and stick them in the tail of your judgment.

The Crimes of the Loyal North.

When the war ended the world was amazed at the magnanimity of the victor to the vanquished; none were more astonished than our enemies, who expected their punishment to be commensurate with their guilt. They remembered the stern order of the Confederate Government expelling all Northern men from the Southern States; the barbarous military orders, refusing quarter to colored Union soldiers; the fiendish system of starvation established in the Southern prisons; they knew the magnitude of the evils they had brought upon the country, and their just fears were increased by the assassination of Abraham Lincoln by an instrument of the rebellion. They had given us no mercy; they expected little in return, and when Lee surrendered his sword, the whole South trembled at the feet of the Government. Many of its leaders fled to Mexico and Europe; Jefferson Davis, pursued by a few hundred men, hid himself, disguised, in Alabama. A plea for mercy came from the entire South; it stood appalled at the greatness of its own crimes, and the terrors of its stupendous failure.

Into almost every Northern family the war brought death; rebel bullets had laid the flower of the North low in nameless graves; the treachery of the South had imposed upon the North a vast debt, which generations will have to bear. The wrath of the loyal people had been wrought to excess by a struggle of unparalleled ferocity. Our foes had even invoked foreign interference to aid in the destruction of the Union. What could they expect but punishment—confiscation, banishment or the gallows? Such penalties had been inflicted by all other civilized nations in dealing with a conquered rebellion. Austria had shot the Hungarian leaders, and England had hung her Irish patriots, and had blown her Sepoys to fragments at the cannon's mouth. If America had so understood human justice, if she had but faintly imitated this severity, all civilized precedents would have justified her action. But Christianity had made unknown progress in the North; its spirit triumphed over all counsels of vengeance; and for the first time in the history of the world a great nation was found great enough to live up to the doctrine "forgive your enemies, and do good to those that despitefully use you." We forgave them all. Our pardon was as free and general as the air. Four murderers were hung; the miserable Wirz atoned upon the scaffold for crimes for which, perhaps, he was not responsible; but all the great criminals of the South were unconditionally pardoned. Not an inch of Southern land was confiscated; Jefferson Davis was imprisoned, it is true—but not at Andersonville. All that we demanded was this: that the leaders of the rebelliion should not retain the control of the South, and that none but loyal men should take part in its reconstruction. At first the people of the Southern States were bewildered by the generosity they received. For a time they were unable to understand that it would continue; but now how do they repay it? Let the New Orleans massacre, the reign of terror in Texas, the speeches of Wade Hampton and Howell Cobb, the threats of the rebel press, the cruelties of the Ku-Klux Klan, answer for their gratitude.

Under the guidance of a party controlled by professional politicians and office-hunters, the South now assumes the attitude of a wronged and outraged people. It has forgotten all that has happened since 1860, and remembers only the golden age of Buchanan and Pierce, when none but Southerners were permitted to rule the country; when the North was regarded only as a mighty slave to do the work of its Southern masters. It has forgotten all that it did to destroy the Constitution, and claims to be the especial champion of that document which Davis trampled in the dust, and Lee riddled with bullets. It has forgotten that to all crimes penalties are attached, and has transferred to the North the entire responsibility of the war and the miseries which the rebellion caused. Democratic orators and conventions accuse the Government of the United States of military despotism; of overthrowing the freedom of speech and the press; of converting the National Capitol into a Bastile, and of aiming to effect the subjugation of the people "amid the ruins of liberty and the shattered fragments of the Constitution." Rebel Generals meet in the North to nominate a President for the Republic, and to dictate the principles of reconstruction. A pirate and a guerrilla declare the General of the Union armies an enemy of the country he saved. From all parts of the Rebel States comes the cry that American magnanimity is worse than Russian tyranny, and it is the favorite theme of the Rebel Ciceros to represent the South as a beautiful and bleeding Poland, trampled upon by the brutal heels of Northern Huns, and tortured because of her virtues. Mouths which are most eloquent in curses, represent the South as drenched in her own tears, and men whose highest inspiration is hatred of the negro, whose dearest hope is to reduce him again to abject servitude, denounce their merciful conquerors as traitors and vandals. The North is arraigned as the Judas of the age, the enemy of all good, and the authors of the rebellion claim to be the sole possessors of what little patriotism is left on the American continent.

This picture of the relations of the conquered rebellion to the Union is but faintly drawn; the great change since the close of the war has been so gradually effected that it is not easily understood. Then the South crouched at our feet; now it towers above us. Then its hands were clasped in supplication; now they are uplifted in menace. No one could have believed when Lee surrendered to Grant, begging generous terms for his army, that in a few years he would dare to arraign his magnanimous conqueror as a tyrant and oppressor. This he has done, not directly, it is true, but by the strongest implication, in that letter which holds up the government which Grant represents as an unconstitutional despotism. It is unpardonable insolence that the military chief of the rebellion should pretend that his rights under the Constitution are withheld; that he endures oppressive misrule, and that he can talk of self-government as his birthright—he who eight years ago broke the oath he had taken to support the Constitution of his country, and who fought for years to destroy the Republic he now claims an inalienable right to govern. Effrontery could go no further than General Lee has carried it when he says that if the action of the Southern people, in submitting to the govern ment when they could no longer resist, "had been met in a spirit of frankness and cordiality" by loyal men, our national troubles would have ended. He and his comrades, and the corrupt leaders of the Democratic party, throw the whole blame of the war, and the debt, and the miseries which have followed, upon the North. The men who saved liberty are accused of plotting to destroy it, and the worst Rebels in the land announce themselves as the only true defenders of the Republic. To this have we been brought by a generosity without example. Do we regret it? No. The insolent ingratitude which repays the magnanimity of the American people makes it the greater virtue. We would still forgive the rebellion, but we will not surrender the Union.—New York Tribune.

The Southern Press.

We copy the following from a late Western journal:

There is something contemptibly mean in the conduct of the Northern Copperhead press toward their Southern brethren, the rebel press, and traitors generally. The Northern traitor press never copy any of the sharp and spicy articles found in Southern papers, or the sharp sayings of Southern orators. This is contemptible. They find means, however, to convey to their Southern friends that they are in full sympathy with them; but they have not the manliness to lay before their Northern readers the Southern programme. There are some Democrats in the North who are not really anxious for another rebellion, and it would not really be prudent to lay the thing before them. Therefore, for the benefit of our Northern Democratic friends, we lay before them the Democratic programme, which is not to be revealed until the proper time, anywhere but in the South.

FROM SOUTHERN PAPERS — WAR THREATENED—BLAIRISM JUSTIFIED, DEFINED AND ILLUSTRATED.

After quoting Blair's letter, the Memphis Avalanche says:

"For uttering similar sentiment to the above, we would have been denounced and called imprudent. Had the above appeared in the Avalanche as editorial, the political fossils would have raised their hands in holy horror, and stigmatized us as revolutionists. We would have been taunted with the worn out stereotyped complaint that such imprudent expressions injure the Northern Democracy and the Southern people in the North. But, strange to say, it was the publication of the letter from which we take the above extract that secured Mr. Blair his nomination for the Vice-Presidency! Thus it will be seen that the North is far ahead of the South. They are ripe for revolution. They are determined that all the infamous and unconstitutional legislation of Radicalism shall be wiped out. The position which General Blair has taken, strong as it is, had been echoed by the Democracy of the North. This fact shows an intensity of feeling against Radicalism more bitter than that which exists in the South."

"In fact, it is right here that the shoe pinches—Blair has devoted himself, not only to defeating the Radical party, but to undoing their infamous work! They know from the character of the man that he will devote his life to this work."—Missouri Blair paper.

"We venture the assertion, that if he were elected President instead of Vice-President, and there should be left out some States of the South by virtue of the recent legislation of Congress, he would wipe it all out, take possession of the White Honse, and blot out the record of infamy made by Congress since 1865."—Kentucky Times.

"There is no obligation resting on the citizens to obey every law that the Legislature of a republic or free State may pass any more than every enactment of a parliament or emperor."—Memphis Appeal.

"If we are successful in the approaching contest we shall gain all that we lost in the 'Lost Cause.'"—Mobile Tribune.

"If Governor Seymour should undertake to smooth off the rough corners of General Blair's platform, he will only injure the cause he desires to promote, and lessen the chances of his own success. This is no time for temporizing."—Richmond Dispatch.

"The country is by far too large to remain very long under one government; and the day will come when the South will be independent."—Memphis Appeal.

"Not one honest man south of Mason's and Dixon's line is ashamed of the musket he bore or the sword he drew in defense of the Confederate flag. The man who says he is ashamed of it lies. Let every honest man at the North be sure of the fact, that the man who says so wants to swindle money out of somebody. He is a knave either in the first or last degree."—Charleston Mercury.

"The people of all this Union, from the Aroostook to the Rio Grande, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, have an account to settle with the Radical party, and a terrible reckoning will it be for the latter; such a one as will make them hide their heads in shame and compel many of them to fly the country to escape the retribution that will befall them for their wickedness."—Norfolk (Va) Journal.

"A WAR OF RACES.—Then let us prepare for it! We sound the note of warning to the people, and bid them be on the alert. Preparations may be preventive; but, if in spite of preparations the conflict is precipitated upon us, it can have but one conclusion. The negro element in the South is like a gangrene upon the body politic, and the first drop of blood shed in a servile war will be the signal for the extermination of the whole race.

"If such a war must come, let it come quickly. The South wants peace, and if it is now to be required to wade through a sea of blood to reach it, the sooner commenced the sooner ended. Our white allies in Maryland and Kentucky, not to mention States further North, may be relied on for assistance, if we need it."—Richmond Examiner.

"The bold declaration of Frank P. Blair, Jr., the Democratic candidate for Vice-President, that if duly elected he would have his rights, and the rights of those electing him, by force of arms, if necessary, alarms them. They do not relish such bold declaration. They tell of freemen who know their rights, and knowing, will dare maintain them. * * * The Democratic party has also declared the reconstruction acts unconstitutional, null and void, and if their candidates are elected the legal Governments of the Southern States shall be reinstated, though the sword has to be invoked."—Augutsa Constitutionalist.

"We do not admit that the consolidation of the States and the destruction of their sovereignty are legitimated by the result of the appeal to arms. We do not love, and will not pretend to love, that Union, though we have agreed to obey the laws of the conqueror. If the old Union can not be restored, we will hope to see the South independent before we die; and if Jacobinism is to became supreme in the North, we wish there could be an impassable wall or gulf of fire between it and our Southern States. The day will come when the South will be independent."—Memphis Appeal.

"Some old fogy New York politicians recently telegraphed to Frank Blair asking him to moderate the tone of his speeches. His reply was decisive. He told them that he had studied the situation carefully, thought he understood it, and meant to treat it freely and fearlessly. It is said that Governor Seymour is very much pleased with General Blair's speeches."—Louiscille Journal.

"Are we meekly to bow whenever traitors choose to issue their mandates? Virginia will with brave determination resist all and every effort of traitors who shall rashly endeavor to strip her of her guaranteed rights."—Petersburg (Virginia) Express.

"The Northern people announce that the reconstruction acts are illegal, unconstitutional and void; that they are conceived in iniquity and brought forth in sin, and without warrant of law; that they do violence to every vital principle on which our institutions are founded; that they are arbitrary, unjust and despotic, and that they shall be wiped out."—Memphis Avalanche.

"Go on, boys; swear to murder Northern Huns! Arm yourselves and organize, and be ready to respond promptly when called on, and fight bravely even if you get killed!"—Memphis Appeal.

"Should deliverance from Radical rule fail to come, there are millions in the South to whom life will become so worthless that they would gladly throw it away to be avenged on their adversary."—Petersburg Index.

"The reconstruction acts are null and void, and shall not stand. * * * * The grinning skeletons which have been set up in our midst as legislators shall be ousted by Frank Blair, whom our party has expressly appointed for that purpose. All these things shall be swept away from the bosom of the country. * * * * It is needless to tell them (the Republicans) that there is but one great principle of justice which should rule, and that resistance to tyrants is obedience to God."—Robert Toombs.

"These are, indeed, revolutionary times, and call for revolutionary heroes—men of nerve, backbone and physical courage. Whoever hopes to deceive the Northern people, and make them believe that it is only an ordinary Presidential election, pays but a poor compliment to his powers of perception, and makes himself unfit to be a leader of any party. There was evidently a faction of the Democratic party at the North which hoped to do this thing; but Blair's letter has rendered it impossible for them to deceive themselves much longer. They will wake up and trim their lamps soon."—Richmond Dispatch.

"Under our laws, Virginia has a right to vote at the next Presidential election. Traitors would deny us that right and accompany that denial with threats. Virginians are not to be frightened. Virginia has an unquestionable right to vote, and Virginia will vote. We owe it to ourselves—to truth—to the National Democracy. The law is clear. Virginia must vote. To the counting of our votes the National Democracy stands solemnly pledged. Let us do our duty—and vote. Let us leave to the people of the North their duty—counting our vote."—Petersburg Express.

"We have aroused in our might once more, under the leadership of Seymour and Blair, to raise the Constitution from the dust. Georgia has passed through a fiery ordeal. Some of her children, during the war she was compelled to wage, deserted her and joined her enemies. Let them be like Arnold, forever accursed. We have seen our soldiers fall, our cities in flames, our citizens torn from peaceful homes. We looked upon it unmoved and unblanched. But we can bear it no longer. We will now, at all hazzards, recover our lost liberties and restore the State. We are in the midst of a great revolution, which may end peacefully at the ballot-box; but if not, then the true men of the South will rally once more under their now folded banner, and will try the issue at the ballot-box. Remember the ancestors from whom you sprung. There are men in the North who are now truly with you, and who will in such a conflict, if necessary, lead your battalions. We did not make the other war; it was forced upon us. We simply stood for the rights for which our forefathers bled! And we will stand there again, come peace or war!"—J. M. Ramsay, of the Georgia State Courier.

"I want to express it and urge it upon you, until there shall exist in the heart and soul of every son and daughter that walks and breathes her pure air, and lives upon her happy soil, this conviction that these men of the North, these Chicago men, these men who called upon you to vote for Grant and Colfax, and that Grant and Colfax, who have endorsed these things, are neither worthy of your vote, your respect or of your confidence, much less of your kindness and hospitality. My friends, they are your enemies. I state it in a cool and calm debate. Enemies they were in war, and enemies they continue to be in peace. In war we drew the sword and bade them defiance; in peace we gather up the manhood of the South and raising the banner of Constitutional equality, and gathering around it the good men of the North as well as the South, we hurl into their teeth to-day the same defiance and bid them come on to the struggle. We are ready for it if you are."—Howell Cobb.

"I yield to none in devotion to that 'Lost Cause' for which we fought. Never shall I admit that the cause itself failed, and that the principles which gave it life were wrong. Never shall I brand the men who upheld it so nobly as 'rebels' or 'traitors.' Should this dear old mother of ours call her sons together to defend her altars, if life and volition are left to me, none will respond more cheerfully and promptly than myself."—Wade Hampton.

"I have been a Democrat all my life—before the war, during the war and since the war—and fought the war on principles of Democracy,' and as such 'I drew my sword against the old flag. * * * The grand old Democratic party has risen from the long slumber in which it has indulged, and now gives signs of new life and vitality, and I have come here to-night to ratify and rejoice with you in the nomination of Seymour and Blair."—Pirate Semmes, at Mobile.

"Young men, it is for you to bring back to the country those golden days. The South is our land; the North is a foreign and hostile realm. Stand at the altar of your country. Swear eternal hatred of its oppressors. Swear that the day shall come when the Susquehannah and Ohio shall be like rivers of fire, as they are now rivers of blood, between your native land and that of the Northern Huns, which no man shall attempt to cross and live."—Alber Pike.

"Secession is not dead; it is more alive to-day than ever. * * * I support Blair because he promises a revolution."—Governor Wise, Richmond.

"Denounce the loyal league upon every occasion; organize a Ku-Klux-Klan whenever they organize a league; meet in friendship and peace as Christians should; meet midnight leaguers and enemies as manhood dares."—John Forsyth, Mobile.

The Law of Veracity Violated

When we state as true what we do not know to be true.

When we intentionally produce a false impression.

When we find that we have, though undesignedly, conveyed a false impression, and do not hasten to correct it.

When we state a matter in the least degree different from the shape it has in our own minds.

When in the statement of what may be true in fact, we purposely omit any circumstances which are necessary to a correct apprehension of the truth.

When we exaggerate or extenuate any of those circumstances.

When we purposely arrange the facts of a true representation in such a manner as to deceive.

When, with intention to deceive, we accompany a statement with a look of the eye, a tone of the voice, a motion of the head, or anything which may influence the mind and conduct to a false impression.

When we answer a question evasively, so as to deceive, under the secret pretence that the inquirer has no right to know the truth.

When by word or act we create an expectation which we do not intend to fulfill.

When we create an expectation which, though we intended to fulfill it, we afterward fail to fulfill, without due care to explain the cause of the failure.

When we do not fulfill a promise in every respect precisely as we supposed the promisee understood it.

When we fulfill a contract or a promise in every particular, except as to time, and make no effort, show no disposition, to give early notice that the delay was unavoidable.—Watchman and Reflector.

The St. Louis Democrat is inclined t obe severe on the parties mentioned in the following extract from one of its editorials:

It appears from New Orleans papers that Captain T. P. Leathers, of the General Quitman, discharged from his boat all hands who did not belong to the Democratic party; that a public meeting was held at Point Coupee applauding his proscription of political opponents as the most patriotic thing in the world, and that the New Orleans Times has the meanness to indorse it. * * * * * *

We need not say that we have always condemned and do now most emphatically condemn this spirit of proscription. It is mean, unmanly, contemptible, at war with the first principles of free government. The men who resort to it show that they have not the slightest conception of the freedom of an American citizen. To attempt to control a man against his convictions by proscription in business is hardly less villainous and much more mean than to resort to force and compel voters at the point of the bowie-knife and the muzzle of the revolver to sacrifice their opinions and convictions. Any party is disgraced in whose behalf such efforts are made, and to the honor of the Republican party be it said that it never stoops to such meanness. In almost every State, before the war and since, Democrats have resorted to proscription, especially at the South. But men who feel the justice of their cause can afford to rely upon argument.

A Sensible Democrat.

Last Sunday, as the Republican clubs were marching through the streets in Plaquemine to attend a mass meeting of their party, at the Courthouse, several white Democrats were standing on the corners of the street, and as the procession marched by, one of them said, "Look at that—there are all the men in the d—d Radical procession that were at our barbecue yesterday at Bayou Goula, and ate our beef and drank all our Democratic whisky, etc. I tell you what it is, there is no use in spending our money in trying to deceive the colored men, and I, for one, am done lying to niggers."—Iberville Pioneer.

PRANG'S AMERICAN CHROMOS

Are pronounced by distinguished painters, poets and critics the best that are now made. We challenge the most critical examination of our chromos in oil, such as Tait's Groups, Britcher's Landscapes, Lemmen's Poultry Pictures, Correggio's Magdalena, the Flower Bouquet, or the Kid's Play-ground.

Our CHROMOS, after WATER COLORS, are equally artistic. They are:

Wood Mosses and Ferns, by Ellen Robbins.....$1 50
Birds Nest and Lichens..... 1 50
(Companion Pictures.)

The Baby, (after Bouguereau.).....$3 00
The Sisters, (after Bouguereau.)..... 3 00
(Companion Pictures.)

The Bullfinch, by William Cruikshank.....$3 00
The Linnet, by William Cruikshank..... 3 00
(Companion Pictures.)

Of the last pictures, George L. Brown, the celebrated American artist, unrivaled as a colorist and and painter of atmospheric effects, says:

I admire them much. I saw some splendid specimens in Europe, which were wonderful; but never supposed that even finer ones were executed in Boston. What particularly excites my admiration is the tender and delicate half-tints, the high finish, and the finesse and richness of tone. I think they must do much to educate the public in the way of color. How far superior to the hideous color lithographs we have been so shocked in seeing so long a time! I congratu ate you on your success.

GEORGE L. BROWN.

AMERICAN MUSICAL CLASS BOOK,

Designed for Female Colleges, Institutes, Seminaries, and Normal and High Schools. Containing Elementary Instructions, Vocal Exercises and Solfeggios, and a valuable Collection of Duets, Trios, and Concerted Pieces.

By T. Bissell—Price 75c.

Among the numerous works of the kind this cannot fail of a prominence, since its peculiar features are such as will commend it at once to the patronage of those for whom it is chiefly intended. Its rudimental lessons proceed with a regularity of precision that cannot fail to fix permanently on the mind of the pupil the essentials of success in future studies. The exercises are in a form to attract the attention, and the selection of music is one of the best, if not the superior of all similar collections. Principals of Educational Institutions, Music Teachers, and others interested in books of this class, will find it advantageous to examine this volume. THE GERMANIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, established in 1860, and based upon the most approved principles of Life Insurance security, presents its claims for consideration, believing that its solid foundation already secured by the faithful and efficient management of its officers and Board of Directors will give it the preference above all other similar institutions.

It is purely Mutual, as the net profits are distributed among the parties insured, the interest of the capital stock being only five per cent according to its charter.

It assumed the system of cash payments at the commencement of its existence, and maintained it faithfully until now, and promises the same for the future, thereby securing to policy holders the full amount for which they are insured. The advantage of this system over the half cash and half note system is patent to every careful observer, but will be more fully illustrated by the following statement and table:

If a person of thirty years of age insures his life for the amount of $1000 in one of the credit companies, and pays a premium of $28 30 per year, with a note for half of the premium, then by means of this note and interests thereon the amount will become less and less in the following proportions:

After 10 years the $1000 will amount to.....$887 44
After 15 years the $1000 will amount to..... 785 28
After 20 years the $1000 will amount to..... 666 02
After 25 years the $1000 will amount to..... 484 73
After 30 years the $1000 will amount to..... 230 47
After 33 years the $1000 will amount to..... 32 53
After 34 years the $1000 will amount to.....Nothing.

So that after a lapse of 34 years the whole amount will be eaten up, notwithstanding the parties insured paid their money in good faith.

The large dividend of 40 per cent declared last January is evidence of the care and success with which the Managers have conducted the enlarged and rapidly increasing interests of the Company, and vouches for its future brilliant and permanent prosperity.

Parties contemplating an assurance on their lives will do well to examine the status of this Company, every facility for which will be given by the

"The doctor prescribed, as an experiment—what had been suggested by Dr. (O. W.) Holmes on his late visit—'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma,' a teaspoonful in a wineglass of water, to be taken every four hours. A good night was the result."

In no case of purely Asthmatic character has it failed to give prompt relief, and in many cases a permanent cure has been effected. No danger need be apprehended from its use. An infant may take it with perfect safety. [See circular.]

Pratt, Page, Pierce, Prescott, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Slaton, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, H. Williams, N. Young, Yorke, D. Young—69 members.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Brown.

On motion of Mr. Rey, of Orleans, the reading of the journal was dispensed with.

Mr. Wren, of Bossier, moved to reconsider the vote taken on the election of Warrant Clerk of the House.

The Chair declared the motion out of order.

Mr. Noble, of Orleans, moved that the name of Mr. P. H. Waters, of Orleans, be called, and that he be sworn in.

The Speaker ordered the Chief Clerk to call the name of Mr. Waters.

Mr. Waters, of Orleans, came up, and having stated that he would qualify under the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States and the ninety-ninth article of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, was sworn in by Chief Justice Hyman.

Mr. Page moved that when the House adjourn it adjourn to meet every morning at ten o'clock.

Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, moved to lay the motion on the table, upon which a rising vote was taken, resulting as follows:

Yeas 44; nays 20.

Lost.

Mr. Mathews, of Tensas, offered the following resolutions:

Resolved, That until otherwise provided the Sergeant-at-Arms will purchase stationery and other articles necessary for the transaction of business in the House.

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms be authorized to employ a sufficient number of persons to clean the committee rooms in the fourth story of this building for the use of the various committees to be appointed, and authorized to purchase what is necessary for fitting up the same.

Mr. Hanlon, of Orleans, moved to adopt.

Carried by a rising vote of 40 yeas to 11 nays.

Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, offered the following amendment to the rules and orders, in conformity with the notice given the day previous:

Resolved, That the rules of the House be amended so as to include a Committee on Registration, a Committee on Pensions, a Committee on Railroads, a Committee on Constitution, a Committee on Immigration, a Committee on Agriculture, a Committee on Public Health and Quarantine, to consist of seven members each.

That article eighty-two of rules and regulations be amended so as to include one Chaplain, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House; and that rule thirty-four be so amended as to read twenty-six standing committee instead of nineteen; and that the names of the committees be added thereto, the first one being No. 20.

Mr. Harper, of St. Charles, objected to the consideration of the above resolution, and raised the point of order that a resolution for a change of the rules required one day's notice; that the member from Ouachita gave the notice that he would offer a resolution to amend the rules, but did not specify the nature of the change.

The speaker decided that the notice given by the member of Ouachita was sufficient.

Mr. Hanlon, of Orleans, offered the following amendment:

That the Speaker invite a clergymen of each denomination to open the House daily with prayer.

Mr. Burrel, of St. John Baptist, moved to lay the motion on the table.

Which was carried by a vote of 38 yeas to 28 nays.

The question recurring on the original resolution of Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, to amend the rules, was adopted.

CALL OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Elections and Qualifications reported progress.

Mr. Lott, of Rapides, gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill entitled "An act to provide for supplying the loss of the public records and papers consumed by the burning of the courthouse in the parish of Rapides during the month of May, 1864, and to ratify the appointment by Governor Wells of a Commissioner for that purpose."

Lies over under the rules.

Documents relative to contested elections in the parish of St. Landry were offered, and on motion referred to the Committee on Election and Qualifications.

Mr. Carr gave notice that he would on to-morrow make a motion to amend rule number eighty-two so as to allow the Sergeant-at-Arms to employ three Assistant Porters.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The report of the Committee on Elections and Qualifications on motion of Mr. Yorke, of Carroll, was taken up and read.

Mr. Garstkamp, of Jefferson, moved to postpone it indefinitely.

Mr. Abbott, of Concordia, moved to lay the motion on the table, which was lost by a vote of 46 nays to 27 yeas.

The question recurring on the indefinite postponement was carried by a vote of 48 yeas to 27 nays—as follows:

Yeas: Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Belot, Barbee, Burrel, Collins, Cuny, Deslonde, Dewees, Dufresne, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Guigonet, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Le Blanc, Lee, Leroy, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McMillen, McVean, Murrell, Moran, Pearce, Page, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor, Tureaud, Walsh, Washington, Wren, William C. Mr. Brewster, of Ouachita, offered the following resolution, which, on motion of Mr. McVean, of Caddo, was laid on the table:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms be required to take a receipt from every member, officer, committee and employe of this House for all stationery furnished. And at the expiration of each month the quantity of stationery and the amount which it has cost the State, together with the names of members, officers, committees, and employes using the same, shall be reported to this House and spread upon the journal.

Mr. Lott, of Rapides, gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill entitled an act relative to Justice of the Peace for the town of Alexandria.

Lies over under under the rules.

Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, moved to take up an act relative to Notaries Public introduced by him.

The bill was taken up and passed its first reading.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the Governor shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate appoint as many Notaries Public as may be deemed necessary without the limits of the parish of Orleans, who shall hold their office for the term of four years.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Governor shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate appoint not less than forty nor more than seventy Notaries Public for the parish of Orleans, who shall hold their office for the term of four years.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Governor shall appoint one of the Notaries for the parish of Orleans to be Parish Notary and Custodian of Notarial Records. In addition to the other duties and powers conferred upon Notaries Public, such Notary shall be the Notary of the State of Louisiana and of the city of New Orleans, before whom shall be passed and executed all contracts, agreements, acts of sale, and purchase, and all other authentic acts in which the State of Louisiana, the parish of Orleans and the city of New Orleans may be a party or have any interest, and also shall have the charge and possession of the records of all Notaries in the parish of Orleans who shall have ceased to be such either by death, removal or otherwise.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Governor shall not appoint or commission any Notary Public in and for the parish of Orleans who shall fail to furnish him with a certificate from the Judges of the Supreme Court, certifying to his having the qualifications requisite to perform the duties of said office.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, etc., That all Notaries Public in and for the parish of Orleans shall give bond, with one or more solvent sureties, in the sum of ten thousand dollars, subscribed in favor of the Governor of the State, and conditioned as the law directs for the faithful performance of his duties: which bond shall be recorded in the office of the Register of Conveyances for said parish of Orleans in a special book kept for that purpose, after the said bond shall have been duly approved by the Judge of the First District Court of New Orleans. Said bond shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and shall be renewed whenever one or more of the sureties therein may become insolvent, or shall have died.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, etc., That Nortaries Public shall have power within their several parishes to make inventories, appraisements, partitions; to receive wills, make protests of bills of exchange, notes and other obligations, marine, and other protests, matrimonial contracts, conveyances, mortgages and generally all contracts and instruments of writing to hold family meetings and meetings of creditors, to take and certify depositions, administer any and all oaths, receive the acknowledgments of parties to instruments made under private signature, affix the seals upon the effects of deceased persons, and raise the same; and all acts executed by them in conformity with the provisions of article two thousand two hundred and thirty-one of the Civil Code shall be authentic acts.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, etc., That the said Parish Notary and Custodian of Notarial Records shall collect together, and safely keep in his possession the records of all Notaries in the parish of Orleans who shall have ceased or may hereafter cease to be such, either by death, removal, or otherwise; provided, that the foregoing shall not be construed as embracing the records of such persons who may be within three months again commissioned under the provisions of this act. He shall classify said records according to their dates, and in such manner as will most facilitate access to them, and shall have power to certify as true any and all copies of acts and records of all kinds made by him from such records.

SEC. 8. Be it further enacted, etc., That all notarial acts shall be drawn in the English language, and made and executed in the office of the notary, unless where the illness of the parties or some other sufficient cause shall prevent them from attending in such office.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, etc., That whenever they shall pass any acts wherein a married woman or a widow is a party they shall be bound to mention the Christian and family name of such women, adding that she is the wife, or widow of ——, husband's name.

SEC. 10. Be it further enacted, etc., That they shall insert in their acts the Christian name of the parties in full, and not with the initial letters alone, and shall also state whether the vendor or mortgager in any act is single, married, or a widower.

SEC. 11. Be it further enacted, etc., That all Notaries, or other persons acting as such, contravening the provisions of the two preceding sections shall be liable to a fine of one hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered before any court of competent jurisdiction, one-half for the benefit of the informer.

SEC. 12. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Governor shall be authorized to grant leave of absence to Notaries Public for a period not exceeding eight months, to date from the day of the permission granted by the Governor; Notaries Public thus permitted to absent themselves shall be required to name and designate another Notary Public of the same parish to represent them during their absence.

SEC. 13. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be the duty of all Notaries Public within this State without the limits of the parish of Orleans to deposit in the office of the Parish Recorder of the parish in which they may be respectively commissioned, within fifteen days at farthest, after the same shall have been passed the original of all acts passed before them, and in the order of their respective dates, first having caused such acts to be recorded in the records of conveyances or mortgages as the case may require, of said parish Recorder; provided, That the foregoing shall not be construed as embracing inventories, family meetings, partition, or any other act (not of sale or mortgage) required by law to be performed by them under any order of the court, but the original of all such acts without being recorded shall be returned to the court from which the order issued.

SEC. 14. Be it further enacted, etc., That all Notaries without the limits of the parish of Orleans who may contravene the provisions of the preceding section shall be liable to a fine of one hundred dollars for each infraction of the same, to be recovered before any court of competent jurisdiction, one half for the benefit of the informer.

SEC. 15. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be the duty of all Notaries in the parish of Orleans to cause every act of sale, donation, or other conveyance of real estate situated in said parish passed before them respectively, even when the parties shall agree to dispense therewith, to be registered in the office of the Register of Conveyances for the parish of Orleans within forty-eight hours after the passage of said acts. A certificate shall be affixed to each such original act by said Register of Conveyances to the effect that the same has been enregistered.

SEC. 16. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be the duty of all Notaries Public in the parish of Orleans to cause every act of mortgage or donation, as also any other act or instrument importing a mortgage, and required by law to be placed on record in the office of the Recorder of Mortgages for the parish of Orleans, to be recorded in said office within forty-eight hours after the passage of such act.

SEC. 17. Be it further enacted, etc., That all Notaries Public in and for the parish of Orleans who may contravene the provisions of the two preceding sections, or either of them, shall be liable to a fine of five hundred dollars for each infraction of the same, to be recovered before any court of competent jurisdiction, for the use and benefit of the Charity Hospital of New Orleans, and also liable in damages toward any person who shall suffer thereby.

SEC. 18. Be it further enacted, etc., That every Notary Public in the city of New Orleans having the custody of public records shall have his office in a brick building, covered with slate, on the ground or lowest floor thereof, and cause the same to be opened to the public for access to his records from nine o'clock A. M. until three o'clock P. M. of each day, (days of public rest excepted), in default whereof he shall be deprived of office.

SEC. 19. Be it further enacted, etc., That hereafter neither the Sheriff nor the Notaries Public of the parish of Orleans shall pass or execute any act for the sale, exchange, or transfer of any real estate situated within said parish, unless the State, parish, and municipal taxes due on the same be first paid, to be shown by the Tax Collector's receipt or certificate to that effect; provided, that the party acquiring by such act may, by a written clause therein, assume the payment of all such taxes, or waive on his or her own responsibility, their payment by the vendor, and relieve the Sheriff or Notary from all responsibility therefor.

SEC. 20. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Sheriff or Notary Public violating the provisions of the preceding section shall be liable to a fine of two hundred dollars, to be recovered before any court of competent jurisdiction by the District Attorney of the said parish of Orleans, for the use and benefit of the public schools of the city of New Orleans.

SEC. 21. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be lawful for each and every Notary Public in and for the parish of Orleans to appoint one or more deputies to assist him in the making of protests and delivery of notices of protest of bills of exchange and promissory notes; provided, that each Notary and his sureties shall be responsible for the acts of each deputy employed by him. Each deputy shall take an oath faithfully to perform his duties as such, as also the oath prescribed by the Constitution. The certificate of notice of protest shall state by whom made or served.

SEC. 22. Be it further enacted, etc., That said parish Notary and Custodian of Notarial Records be and is hereby authorized to appoint a deputy, who shall take the oath prescribed by the Constitution, and when appointed and sworn shall have power, in case of the sickness or absence of said parish Notary and Custodian of Public Records, to certify as true copies of acts and records of all kinds made from the records of said office; provided, That said parish Notary and Custodian of Notarial Records, and his sureties, shall be responsible for all official acts of said deputy.

SEC. 23. Be it further enacted, etc., That from and after the first day of October, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, the offices of each and every Notary Public appointed previous to that date shall be and they are declared to be vacant, and their commissions null and void.

SEC. 24. Be it further enacted, etc., That all laws contrary to the provisions of this act, and all laws upon the same subject matter, except what is contained in the Civil Code and Code of Practice, be and are hereby repealed.

SEC. 25. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after the first day of October, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. Cuny, of Rapides, presented the following petition of J. Madison Wells, which was read, and on motion referred to the Committee on Claims:

To the Honorable Senators and Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana, convened:

Your petitioner avers that under the provisions of the Constitution of 1864 he was elected Governor of the State for a term of four years, commencing on the first Monday in January, A. D. 1866, and continuing to the first of January, A. D. 1870; that the Constitution of 1864 was at the time recognized by President Lincoln, his successor, and the Congress as the fundamental law of this State.

Your petitioner further represents that on the second day of June, A. D. 1867, he was superseded in the functions of his office, and the duties thereof assigned to a military appointee. Your petitioner further avers that he is legally and justly entitled to his salary from the day of his supersedure to the inducting of H. C. Warmoth to office as the civil Governor of the State.

That your petitioner most respectfully requests your honorable body cause to be paid as provided for in the Constitution of 1864, and grant any other equitable relief in the premises you may deem proper.

J. MADISON WELLS.

REPORT OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Elections and Qualifications, through its chairman, Mr. Yorke, of Carroll, made the following report:

To the Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The report of the Committee on Elections and Qualifications, appointed by your honorable body, report that having carefully examined the cases of Joseph H. De Grange and Jacob Zoelly, beg leave to report that no evidence has been elicited as to the ineligibility of those gentlemen, and it having been further proven tnat those gentlemen did aid the reconstruction of the State under the reconstruction acts, do recommend that Jacob Zoelly and Joseph De Grange be admitted to their seats as Representatives from the Second Representative District from the parish of Orleans.

P. JONES YORKE.

Under a suspension of the rules the following bill, offered by Mr. Carr, of Orleans, went through its first and second readings, and was referred to the Committee on Education:

An Act providing for the Administration of the Public Schools of the city of New Orleans.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the administration of the Public Schools of the city of New Orleans shall be vested in a Board of Directors, to consist of seventeen members, who shall be appointed by the Governor of the State, with the advice and consent of the Senate, one-half of said members to be appointed for one year, and one-half for two years, and thereafter respectively for two years.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That at the first meeting of the said Board, the time for which shall be designated by the Governor, a permanent organization shall be effected by the election of a President, a Vice-President, Secretary, Sergeant-at-Arms and Superintendent, who shall hold their respective offices during the pleasure of said Board.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That the said Board of Directors shall have power to establish rules for the government of the Board, as also of the Superintendent, teachers and schools, arrange the gradation of the schools, prescribe the course of study, and text books to be used, regulate the salaries, furnish all supplies, have power to define or change the districts of the schools, and do everything relating to finances and expenses necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this act be and the same are hereby repealed; and that this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Under a suspension of the rules a bill introduced by Mr. Isabelle, of Orleans, entitled an act to protect all persons in their civil and public rights, passed its first reading, as follows:

An act to protect all persons in their civil and public rights.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That all persons, without regard to race, color, or previous condition, shall enjoy equal rights and privileges in their traveling, being entertained, etc., upon any conveyance of a public character, or place of public resort or any place of business where a license is required in this State.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons commanding any steam or sailing vessel or water craft, plying in this State, to make any distinction on board of any of the above-mentioned vessels to refuse accommodation on account of race or color.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons conducting or controlling any railroad company, stage line, or vehicle, to make any distinction or refuse accommodation to any person or persons on account of race or color.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That any person or persons violating the intents and spirit of this act, on conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding five hundred ($500) dollars, recoverable before any competent tribunal in this State, or imprisonment not exceeding one (1) year.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, etc., That all acts, parts of acts, ordinances in force in this State, contrary to the intents and spirit of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed and of non-effect.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall go into effect from and after its passage.

Mr. Faulkner, of Caldwell, introduced a joint resolution, and asked that the rules be suspended in order to place it on its second and third readings.

Carried.

And asked that it be made the special order of the day for Tuesday next, which was granted:

Joint Resolution to aid in the restoration of the Credit of the State of Louisiana, and the Redemption of the State Notes.

WHEREAS, The State of Louisiana has issued its circulating notes to a considerable amount, which has not been redeemed, and no provision has been made for their redemption; and

Whereas, The said notes are now greatly depreciated in the hands of the people of this State, to their serious injury and loss, owing to the fact that no adequate measure for their redemption has been adopted; therefore

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the notes of the State of Louisiana issued in pursuance of law be hereafter received by the State Treasurer and State Tax Collectors at par in payment of all taxes and dues payable to the State.

An act to amend and extend the provisions of an act entitled an act to provide for supplying the loss of the public records and other papers consumed by the burning of the Courthouse in the parish of Rapides during the month of May, 1864, and to ratify the appointment by Governor Wells of a commissioner for that purpose.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the provision of an act entitled an act to provide for supplying the loss of the public records and other papers consumed by the burning of the Courthouse in the parish of Rapides during the month of May, 1864, and to ratify the appointment by Governor Wells of a commissioner for that purpose, approved February 28, 1866, shall have effect until the first of January, 1875, and shall not extend beyond that time, and if not decided shall not be affected by this limitation.

Which underwent its first and second readings, and on motion of Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, was referred back to the delegation of Rapides.

Mr. Faulkner, of Caldwell, offered the following motion:

It is moved that all persons declared members elect of this House by General Buchanan's order, whose seats are now contested and who have not taken their seats, be allowed to take their seats upon taking the Constitutional oath.

Lies over under the rules.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans, called up the following bill, which, under a suspension of the rules, passed its first and second readings, and was referred to the Committee on Corporations:

An act to explain and amend the forty-second section of the act entitled an act to incorporate the Commercial Bank of New Orleans.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the forty-second section of the act entitled an act to incorporate the Commercial Bank of New Orleans, approved April 1, 1833, be amended so as to read as follows: That when, after the expiration of thirty-five years, the said corporation of New Orleans shall be inclined to buy the said Waterworks from the Commercial Bank of New Orleans, the price shall be fixed by arbitrators, five of whom shall be chosen by the president and directors of the Commercial Bank of New Orleans, and five by the City Council of New Orleans; said arbitrators not to be stockholders in said company, nor members of the City Council of New Orleans.

Said arbitrators shall take into consideration the value of the Waterworks and grounds appertaining thereto for supplying the city and faubourgs of New Orleans with water by said company; and if said arbitrators shall unanimously agree, and so report in writing, the award shall be binding on the respective parties; but in case of any disagreement on the part of any of said arbitrators, the Judge of any of the District Courts of New Orleans shall, upon application of the city of New Orleans or the said Commercial Bank, or of any resident taxpayer of the city of New Orleans, appoint as umpires five disinterested individuals residing in the city of New Orleans, whose decision and award in writing, reported to the Judge who shall have made the appointment, shall be binding and conclusive.

And the amount so agreed upon shall be payable in the bonds of the city of New Orleans, bearing an interest of five per centum per annum, and redeemable in not less than ten nor more than thirty years from the day on which said award shall be signed, and the said Waterworks delivered over to the said corporation of New Orleans.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, submitted the following petition, which was read, and on motion of Mr. Noble, of Orleans, was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means:

SOUTHWESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY,
New Orleans, July 8, 1868.

To the Honorable the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

GENTLEMEN—The Southwestern Bible Society respectfully petition your honorable body to enact a law exempting the property of the Southwestern Bible Society from taxation, viz: Their house and lot, 163 Camp street, and their stock of Bibles and Testaments, with special relief from the tax now assessed as due, as appears from the Collector's bill hereto attached, for the following reasons:

1. This society is purely a benevolent one, supported by contributions from its friends and the public.

2. Its sales of Bibles and Testaments are at cost. Its donations of the same are from one hundred and fifty to two hundred dollars worth every month.

3. The society makes no profit, nor are any of its officers pecuniarily benefited by its operations.

4. Our contributions of Bibles and Testaments to colored schools and Sunday schools all over the State constitute a large part of our donations.

We also respectfully represent that the last Common Council of New Orleans passed an ordinance exempting us from the payment of the tax of last year, after full discussion of the merits of our appeal, on the ground stated herein.

We pray your relief, special and general, and your petitioners will ever pray.

By authority of the Board of Directors of the Southwestern Bible Society.

J. E. C. DOREMUS,
General Agent Southwestern Bible Society.

Mr. De Grange, of Orleans, made the following motion, which lies over under the rules:

That the Sergeant-at-Arms be requested to furnish the members of the House the New Orleans Daily Times, in addition to the other papers now furnished.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Elections and Qualifications reported progress.

Mr. Kent, of St. Helena, moved that a leave of absence of four days be granted Mr. Magee, of Washington.

Carried.

The Speaker requested the Chief Clerk to inform the Senate that the House was now ready to meet the Senate in joint session to inaugurate the Governor.

The message being delivered, the Chief Clerk announced that the Senate would meet the House in a few minutes.

The Senate was then announced, entered the hall and took their seats.

The President of the Senate ordered the roll to be called, which resulted as follows:

Thirty-three members of the Senate answered to their names:

Anderson, Bacon, Beares, Blackman, Braughn, Campbell, Coupland, Darrall, Egan, Foute, François, Jenks, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Kelso, Lewis, Lynch, Monette, Offutt, Ogden, O'Hara, Packard, Poindexter, Pollard, Ray, Smith, Thompson, Todd, White, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams, Wittgenstein—33.

The roll of the House was then called and seventy-nine members answered to their names:

Speaker Lowell, Abbot, Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Bennett, Buckingham, Belot, Brewster, Barbee, Burrel, Bergeron, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dewees, Dufresne, De Grange, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Faulkner, Fouts, Guigonet, Gair, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, Haskell, Harper, Holland, Isabelle, Kent, Kavanagh, Le Blanc, Lee, Leroy, L'Hoste, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McCullen, Mahier, McMillen, McVean, Murrell, Melvin, Marion, Morand, May, Mathews, Noble, Pearce, Pratt, Page, Pierce, Prescott, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Slaton, Sterrett, Taylor, Tureaud, Walsh, Washington, Wren, Wilson, William C. Williams, H. Williams, Waters, N. Young, David Young, Yorke, Zoelly—79.

The President announced that the joint session was now ready to proceed to the inauguration of the Governor.

Senator. F. L. Jewell, of Pointe Coupee, moved that a committee of five be appointed, composed of two Senators and three Representatives, to wait upon the Governor and inform him that the Senate and House of Representatives in joint session were ready to receive his Excellency the Governor of the State of Louisiana.

The motion being carried,

The President of the Senate appointed the following members of the Senate: Messrs. F. L. Jewell and George Y. Kelso.

Of the House—Messrs. McMillen, Noble and Burrel.

The committee repaired to the Governor's room and a few moments after appeared, escorting his Excellency the Governor.

Senator F. L. Jewell introduced the Governor to the President, who then introduced him to the General Assembly.

The Governor then read his inaugural address, as follows:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

I am deeply impressed with the grave and peculiar significance of this occasion and the magnitude of the responsibility which I am this day to assume. I trust the hearts of all of us are moved and pervaded by a realizing sense of the new and serious duties we have been called upon to discharge. Before me is the first Legislature as an equal member of the American Union that has set for seven years. I need not recount to you the history of these seven years, so full of startling and wonderful as well as painful and terrible events—so pregnant with momentous issues, so productive of great and glorious results. Nor do I deem it expedient at this time to trace the chain of causes which led to these events and produced these results, or to discuss the questions of who have been most culpable and responsible for whatever has been wrong or mistaken in the past and who are most deserving of credit for whatever is good in the present. We have met here not to speculate upon the past nor to brood and quarrel over its ashes, but rather to meet the great living issues of the present and the duties which it imposes upon us. We stand amid the ruins of an old order of things; it should be ours to work wisely and manfully for the establishment of a new and better order of things upon the foundation which these seven years have established. So long as time is spent in futile and irritating discussions upon the realness and probable permanency of these foundations, or persistent and perhaps turbulent efforts to unsettle and upheave them, so long will the public peace, order and tranquility refuse to be restored, and so long will the restoration and development of all the great interests of the State be delayed and endangered.

Gentlemen, the corner stone of these foundation laid and fixed forever by a great war, sealed as I firmly believe by the hand of God himself, and recognized by that organic law under which we have assembled and which I am here to swear to support and defend is the equality before the law and the enjoyment of every political right of all the citizens of the State, regardless of race, color or previous condition; and only when this grand distinctive feature of the new Constitution shall be stamped on every act of legislation, when such legislation shall find approval and support in that general public sentiment which gives to law its vitality, will our State fairly enter upon that career of greatness and prosperity which the Almighty designed for her. It would be idle to deny that while a large majority of our people have testified in the strongest manner to their approval of that feature of the Constitution of which I have spoken, there is still a minority, not wanting in intelligence and virtue, who are strenuously opposed to it. Much is to be hoped from the good sense, the discretion and inherent love of justice of the American people for the gradual wearing away of the prejudices upon which alone this opposition is founded. Meantime let our course, while resolute and manly, be also moderate and discreet. Let legislation be kept as much as possible in harmony with the sentiments of the whole people. It is better that the course of legislation should rather fall behind than to outstrip the popular wishes and demands. Let everything consistent with right and justice be done to bring back the era of good feeling, and to wash from the memories of all everything that tends to alienate one class or one party from another.

I refrain at this time from entering into any discussion of measures which I may deem of importance. In future I will discharge the duty imposed upon me by giving to the Gneeral Assembly information respecting the condition of the State, and recommending to its consideration such legislation as may seem expedient. I venture however, to urge immediate measures for the repression of lawlessness and disorder now rife in many parts of the State. From many parishes we have almost daily accounts of violence and outrage—in many cases most brutal and revolting murders—without any effort on the part of the people to prevent or punish them.

We want peace and order; without it we can have no prosperity. Such measures must be adopted to secure life and property as may be necessary. If the taxpayers prefer to support a strong constabulary force to doing their duty as citizens by helping the officers, yes, by making the officers of the law keep the peace and protect the life of every man, however poor, then the responsibility will be upon them and not the State administration. Everybody knows that the strong men, the property holders and those who claim and command the respect of their parishes, could make it as peaceable and safe throughout the State as any part of the Union.

The hands of the courts must be strengthened and upheld—the peace officers must do their duty—the good people must rise up and vindicate the law. The press, too, vindictive and partisan, should unite with the government in denouncing crime and aid in the establishment of a healthy public sentiment which of itself would protect the peace by its frowns upon evil doers. You should drive those drones upon society who eat but do not work, who consume and produce nothing more dangerous to peace and prosperity than famine or pestilence to go to work or find another country than this to curse.

I appear before you to-day not as a partisan, but to take the oath of office prescribed for those who are chosen by the people to discharge the duties of the office of Governor of our State. My object will be to enforce the law, protect the people and aid in advancing the social, material and political interests of the whole people. I believe the epoch has the smiles of Providence. Cursed for our sins with war, scourged with the epidemic, our crops blighted for a succession of years, our fair State overflowed by the torrents of the Mississippi, commerce paralyzed, the people impoverished—the event of my inauguration is welcomed by the full restoration of civil government and readmission into the Union, the fairest prospect for crops, receding floods and improving credit. Let us vie with each other in seeing who of us shall receive most blessings for good and faithful services rendered the State.

He then announced that he was ready to take the constitutional oath. Chief Justice Hyman being called upon, administered the oath of office.

The President of the Senate announced a recess of ten minutes for the purpose of allowing the friends of the Governor to shake hands with him.

The recess having expired, on motion of Senator Bacon the Senate retired.

The House was called to order, and resumed its business.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans, moved that one thousand copies of the inaugural address be printed for the use of the members.

Mr. Brewster, of Ouachita, moved to amend to print five thousand copies.

Carried.

Resolutions being in order, Mr. Wren, of Bossier, offered the following, which was read, and lies over under the rules:

Resolved, That the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana be authorized to appoint a special committee of five, to be composed of the best legal talent, who are not members of this House, whose duty shall be to revise the Statutes and Civil Code of the State, and recommend amendments to such laws as are in conflict with the provisions of the Constitution of the State, and that they be requested to report the result of their labors as early as practicable.

By Mr. Morand, of Plaquemines:

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana tender thanks to R. L. Bradley, Aid to the Chief of Police, and special officer in charge of the police force detailed in and about the Legislative Hall, for the efficient and energetic manner he has discharged the critical and important trust confided to him since the meeting of this body.

Lies over under the rules.

By Mr. Carr, of Orleans:

Resolved, That three hundred copies of the weekly journals of this House be printed for the use of the members, and that the Sergeant-at-Arms be instructed to procure files for the preservation of the same.

Lies over under the rules.

By Mr. Dewees, of Bienville:

Motion, that mileage and per diem be and hereby is allowed to contestants who have been unseated. Per diem to be allowed from the twenty-second of June up to time of being unseated, or declared by the action of the House to be not entitled to seats.

Lies over under the rules.

Mr. McVean, of Caddo, moved that the rules be suspended in order to take up the resolution offered by Mr. Dewees, of Bienville.

Carried.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, offered the following amendment:

That per diem be allowed to contestants from the commencement of the session, and mileage according to law.

On motion, the resolution as amended was adopted.

REPORTS FROM STANDING COMMITTEES.

Mr. Dewees, of Bienville, chairman of the Committee on Printing, made the following report:

To the Honorable Speaker and House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

Your Committee on Printing herewith report House bill number seven, with amendments, and recommend its final passage:

E. W. DEWEES,
Chairman;
R. J. MORAND,
A. W. FAULKNER,
L. BARBEE,
W. MURRELL.

The bill is as follows:

An Act relative to Public Printing.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and Speaker of the House of Representatives, or a majority of them, shall be and are hereby authorized and directed to contract with such person as they may deem proper in the interest of the State to do and perform all the printing and publishing of whatever nature shall be necessary for the use of both Houses of the General Assembly, for the Executive Departments of the State, and for the Supreme Court. Such person contracting to do and perform such printing as provided in this act, shall, for purposes of reference herein, be termed the State Printer, and the terms, provisions, and conditions of the contract with him executed shall be as hereinafter provided. The newspaper in which he shall publish the journals of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the laws of the State, and other official matter as herein provided, shall be known and designated as the official journal of the State.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That said contract shall be entered on and concluded for the term of the existence of the present General Assembly, and until a further contract shall be consummated, as provided in this act or otherwise.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That the State Printer shall print each bill, report, or other document that may be delivered to him by order of either House of the General Assembly, in the order in which it shall be numbered and delivered to him; and shall return them in like manner, so that no subsequent number shall be printed and returned until all previous numbers shall have been first returned, unless otherwise specially ordered.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That all bills, reports, or other documents which may be ordered for printing shall be printed and returned to the House which may have ordered them within three days after the delivery of the copy of the same to the State Printer, unless, on motion, a longer delay be granted.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That all officers of the several departments of the State who, by existing and future laws, may be required to make reports to the General Assembly, shall cause the same to be printed by the State Printer for the use of the Legislature, and shall present the same within the first week of each session.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That the State Printer shall furnish and have ready for delivery the acts of the General Assembly, and the journals of both Houses of the Legislature, within sixty days from the time when copies of the same shall have been delivered by the Secretary of State, under pain of forfeiting and paying the sum of ten dollars for each and every day he shall be in default after expiration of the time. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to deliver to the State Printer within thirty days next after the adjournment sine die of both Houses of the Legislature, duly certified copies of all the acts passed during the session, under penalty of twenty-five dollars for each and every day he shall be in default after the expiration of the time. The Secretary of State shall forward to each member of the Legislature one copy of the journal, and one copy of the acts of the Legislature.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, That the State Printer shall publish the journals of each day of both Houses in the official journal, within two days after the same shall have been read and approved.

SEC. 8. Be it further enacted, That the State Printer shall deliver to the Secretary of State copies of his official journal containing any of the laws or resolutions of the General Assembly of this State which shall have been hereafter enacted or agreed to, immediately after the same shall have been published therein; and as soon as practicable thereafter the said Secretary of State shall cause the said official journal to be sent to the Judges and Clerks of Courts, and it shall be their duty to preserve all copies of the official journal so received carefully in their respective courts for the use thereof, until they shall have received the copies of the laws in pamphlet form.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, That the State Printer shall receive sixteen dollars for every three hundred papers delivered to the Secretary of State, as directed by the preceding section.

SEC. 10. Be it further enacted, That all printing for the State, or for any department of the State Government, or for the Supreme Court, or for the corporation of New Orleans, shall be performed by the State Printer, who shall execute the same according to the specifications, and at the prices set down in the following items:

Item First—The laws shall be published in the English language only, with a list of the acts, the date of their promulgation, and an index thereto attached; they shall be printed on good strong book printing paper, in long primer type, solid, each page twenty-four ems pica in width, and forty-seven in length, including the running title and white line under it, and foot line, with marginal notes in nonpareil, five ems pica in width to be added thereto. The same to be stitched and covered with colored paper, and delivered to the Secretary of State within the time fixed by law, for which there shall be allowed six dollars per page for five hundred copies, and fifty cents per page for each hundred copies ordered in excess of five hundred.

Item Second—The journals of each House shall be printed in the English language only, in book form, in minion type, and made up from the journal matter as published in the official newspaper, the pages to be forty-five ems pica in length, including head and foot line, the book to be covered and stitched in the same manner as the laws, delivered to the Secretary of State within the time fixed by law, for which there shall be allowed three dollars per page for two hundred and fifty copies, and for each additional hundred copies ordered fifty cents per page.

Item Third—Bills and resolutions shall be printed on foolscap paper, in pica type, leaded with pica slugs or reglets, to be sixteen ems pica in width, and sixty-five in length, and printed broadside; the lines and sections to be numbered. Two hundred copies shall be printed, one hundred and fifty to be furnished the House and fifty to the Senate. For the two hundred copies five dollars per page shall be paid, and two dollars per page for each additional one hundred copies.

Item Fourth—For all reports, documents, or other matter in book or pamphlet form, in long primer type, twenty-four ems pica in width and forty-three in length, including head and foot line, three dollars per page for one hundred copies, and fifty cents per page for each additional hundred copies or fraction thereof.

Item Fifth—For all rule and figure work contained in any description of work performed by the State Printer, one dollar and fifty cents per thousand ems shall be allowed in addition to the other charges specified herein; and the State Printer shall embrace such charges in separate items in his accounts rendered to the proper auditing officer.

Item Sixth—For all printed blanks, folio post size, whole sheet, twenty-eight dollars per ream; each additional half ream, twelve dollars; if only a half ream or less be ordered, seventeen dollars and fifty cents shall be paid for it. For all blanks cap size, twenty-two dollars per ream; for every additional half ream, ten dollars; if only a half ream or less is ordered, fifteen dollars shall be paid for it. For all blanks letter size, fifteen dollars per ream: and eight dollars for each additional half ream; if a half ream or less is ordered, ten dollars shall be paid for it.

Item Seventh—For all matter published in the official journal in obedience to the provisions of this act, the State Printer shall be allowed one dollar per square for each insertion. A square shall consist of the space of ten lines solid agate.

Item Eighth—For all binding, octavo size, in calf, two dollars and fifty cents per volume; in sheep, one dollar and fifty cents; in muslin, seventy-five cents.

SEC. 11. Be it further enacted, That in addition to the other duties herein imposed upon the State Printer, he shall be required to publish in his official journal all judicial advertisements required by law to be published in the parish of Orleans, including Sheriffs' and Constables' sales, notices of elections, succession notices, and all proceedings and orders of any court that may be ordered published in said parish, whether in the English or French language, or both. Also all municipal advertisements of every description whatsoever of the corporation of the city of New Orleans, whether the same may be authorized by a law of the State, or an ordinance of the Common Council, or by any officer or department of the city government. And any such publication or advertisement, whether parochial or municipal, shall be utterly null and void, unless so published in the official journal: Provided, That advertisements of the city of New Orleans may be published in one or more additional papers whenever in the opinion of the Common Council the public interests may demand such additional publication. And the Sheriff of the parish of Orleans is hereby authorized to insert notices of elections in one or more papers in addition to the official journal.

SEC. 12. Be it further enacted, That the State Printer shall render once in each month to the Auditor of Public Accounts a detailed statement of all the printing and advertising done for the State, for either house of the General Assembly, or any officer or department of the State government, and the said Auditor shall examine the same, and if he find it to be correct, shall audit the said account and draw his warrant on the State Treasurer for the payment of the same. It shall be the duty of the State Printer, upon the payment of the printer's fee, to file in the clerk's office of the court having jurisdiction his affidavit, with a copy of any judicial advertisement ordered by said court to be published, appended together with his receipt for the payment of the printer's fee, paid by the party at whose instance or for whose benefit such advertisement shall have been made, to be collected as other costs, which affidavit shall give the dates of the paper in which the advertisement appeared, and be filed and recorded by the clerk as the legal evidence of the publication of the same, to be read, or a certified copy thereof, in all courts of law or equity; and no other evidence of such publication shall be required or allowed. The State Printer shall render once in each month to the Controller of New Orleans a detailed statement of all advertising done for the corporation of New Orleans, or any department or officer thereof; and it shall be the duty of the said Controller to examine the same, and if found correct he shall immediately give his warrant on the City Treasurer in payment, and it shall not be necessary for any other officer or department of the city government to examine or approve said account.

SEC. 13. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the State Printer to perform all printing of every description, for which the city of New Orleans may be chargeable, at the rates fixed by section ten of this act, and he shall be paid therefor in the manner prescribed in the preceding section for the payment for municipal advertisements.

SEC. 14. Be it further enacted, That the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Speaker of the House of Representatives, or a majority of them, shall also select and contract with such other papers in the parish of Orleans, as they may deem proper and necessary, to publish either the laws of the State or the journals of the General Assembly, or both, at such rates as are provided by this act.

SEC. 15. Be it further enacted, That in any of the parishes of this State other than the parish of Orleans, the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Speaker, etc., or a majority of them, shall also select and contract with journals published in such parishes, to publish either the laws of the State or the journals of the General Assembly, or both, as may be deemed necessary and proper, and also be and hereby are empowered to designate certain journals to perform and publish the parochial and judiciary printing and advertising of the parishes respectively in which such journals may be published. In case no paper is published in any parish of this State, such publication may be authorized to be made in a paper published nearest thereto. Such selection and contract shall be for the same period prescribed by the second section of this act. Each paper so contracted with shall be the official journal of the parish wherein it shall be published, and all parochial and judicial printing and advertising for or in said parish shall be done by and published in said journal, and after such selection and contract, and notice thereof to the Police Jury, Clerk of Court and Sheriff of said parish, every publication and advertisement in any other paper than the one so selected shall, during the term of such selection and contract, be null and void for any legal purpose.

SEC. 16. Be it further enacted, That all acts or parts of acts conflicting with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 17. Be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Mr. Noble, of Orleans, moved that 100 copies of the bill be printed in French, and that it be made the special order of the day for Wednesday at one o'clock P. M., in Committee of the Whole.

Carried.

The Committee on Enrollment, through its chairman, Mr. Brewster, of Ouachita, reported progress.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Kent, of St. Helena, offered the following resolution, which lies over under the rules:

Resolved, That the Postmaster be hereby authorized to procure postage stamps, to be placed upon the newspapers, public documents and letters which members may desire to send to their constituents, and that the amount necessary to carry into effect this resolution be paid out of the contingent fund of this House.

By Mr. Gair, of East Feliciana, the following resolution, which was not entertained by the chair. The Speaker stated that if the vote of any member was not correctly recorded in the election held for the Warrant Clerk, the member complaining should make it known, and then a resolution of the kind would be considered:

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives, That the election of Warrant Clerk of this House be annulled, owing to error in the recording of the votes cast in said election, and the House at once proceed to the election of a Warrant Clerk.

Mr. Rey, of Orleans, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That each standing committee be authorized to employ a page.

Lies over under the rules.

Under a suspension of the rules, M. Lee, of St. Bernard, offered the following resolution, which underwent its several readings, and was adopted:

Resolved, That the Committee of Ways and Means be authorized to employ a clerk for the transaction of their business and hire an apartment for their use.

By Mr. May, of Orleans, notice of his intention to introduce a bill entitled an act relative to appeals.

Under a suspension of the rules, Mr. Carr, of Orleans, introduced the following bill, which was placed on its first and second readings, 200 copies ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee on Ways and Means:

An act relative to taxes and debts due the city of New Orleans, and to the certificates or notes known as city money, heretofore issued by said city of New Orleans.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the authorities of the city of New Orleans are authorized and required to demand and enforce the collection of all back taxes due said city for the years eighteen hundred and sixty-one, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, eighteen hundred and sixty-three and eighteen hundred and sixty-four, seizures for which have heretofore been postponed by virtue of an act of the Legislature of this State, passed in eighteen hundred and sixty-six, entitled an act to postpone all seizures for city taxes, and hereafter all taxes, licenses and debts coming, belonging and payable to said city of New Orleans, shall be due and payable at the time regularly designated by law, and no seizure or legal proceedings from the non-payment of such obligations shall be interfered with or postponed under any pretended authority of the Legislature of eighteen hundred and sixty-six and sixty-seven.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That the issue of certificates or notes known as city money hitherto made by the city of New Orleans shall always be received by the proper officers of said city at par in compensation and payment of all taxes, licenses and debts due said city.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, moved to suspend the rules in order to place on its second reading the following bill:

Carried.

Rules suspended, 200 copies ordered to be printed, and the bill referred to the Committee on Judiciary.

An act to amend an act entitled an act relative to monitions and mode of proceding.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the eleventh section of an act entitled an act relative to monitions and modes of proceedings be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

The provisions of the foregoing sections, as far as practible, shall extend to tax sales; and the Clerk of the District Court of the parish in which is situated the land sold at tax sale, shall grant the monition in the name of the State; and the judgment of homologation shall cure all defects, irregularities and illegalities in the proceedings preceding the monition, such as informality in the assessment, irregularity in the manner of giving notice to pay taxes, etc.

Be it enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
State of Louisiana,
New Orleans, July 14, 1868.

To the Speaker of the House of Representatives:

I am instructed by his Excellency the Governor to inform the House of Representatives that he has approved and signed:

An act making an appropriation to defray the expenses of the General Assembly; and

An act relative to the finances of the State.

FRANK C. REMICK,
Private Secretary.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
State of Louisiana,
New Orleans, July 14, 1868.

To the Speaker of the House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith, for the information of the House of Representatives, a copy of special orders No. 154, from headquarters Fifth Military District, declaring that military law no longer exists; the civil law is supreme.

H. C. WARMOTH,
Governor of Louisiana.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT,
New Orleans, La., July 13, 1868.

Special Orders No. 154.

[Extract.]

* * * * * *

2. The Commanding General, having been officially notified of the ratification of the fourteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States by the Legislature of the State of Louisiana, on the ninth instant, it becomes his duty, under the act of Congress which became a law July 25, 1868, and the orders of the General of the Army, to announce to the people of the State and to the troops under his command, that the provisions of the reconstruction acts of Congress cease to operate in Louisiana from this date. Military authority will no longer be exercised under the reconstruction acts in said State, and all officers commanding posts or detachments are forbidden to interfere in civil affairs, unless under a proper application by the civil authorities to preserve the peace, or under instructions duly received from the Commanding General of the district. Military law no longer exists; the civil law is supreme.

All civil officers now acting under authority of appointments from these headquarters will at once transfer their offices, with the records, funds and other property pertaining thereto to their successors, who have been declared duly elected, and who have qualified under the laws of the State. All other records properly belonging to the State will be transferred to the proper State officers.

The Commanding General can not sever the relations heretofore existing between the State and himself without congratulating the people upon an event which fully restores Louisiana to her former position among the other States of the Union, and to all her rights under the Constitution. Peace and quiet marked the late election, showing the softening influences of mutual forbearance. Should such forbearance animate the councils of the State, the era of kind feeling will return, and the highest prosperity of the people will be attained.

That this may be the result, under the guidance of a merciful Providence, is his devout and earnest prayer. May her restoration to the benefits of our beloved Union mark the commencement of a new era of prosperity and happiness for her people.

Under a suspension of the rules, Mr. Reese of Lafourche, introduced the following bill, which underwent its first and second readings, and was referred to the Committee on Judiciary:

An Act to regulate the practice and the dispatch of business in the District Courts of New Orleans.

SECTION 1. The District Courts of New Orleans shall be opened at ten o'clock A. M., and shall remain open until three o'clock P. M., on all legal days—except from Christmas to the second of January—from the first Monday of November to the fourth of July, and for every day that any Judge of said courts shall fail to sit as herein provided, twenty dollars shall be deducted from his salary, unless he shall send to the Clerk a certificate of sickness given by some practicing physician of good standing; and the Clerk shall certify each day in which there is no court as provided in this section, to the Auditor, on pain of dismissal from office.

SEC. 2. From the fifteenth of October to the first Monday of November the Clerks of said Courts shall have the right to fix cases at ten o'clock A. M. on Saturdays without the presence of the Judges.

SEC. 3. Six cases and no more, except promissory note cases, shall be fixed for each day; and no case shall be continued nor witnesses discharged by the Judges before three o'clock.

SEC. 4. No case shall be continued over to a particular day in preference to cases fixed for that day: but if not concluded on the day of trial, shall be continued in its order for that day two weeks. Cases may be contiaued to any day, to be taken up after the cases fixed for that day. Jury cases shall not be governed by this section.

SEC. 5. All cases when continued shall be placed at the foot of the docket, except such as may not be reached or concluded on the day fixed for trial for want of time.

SEC. 6. No judgment shall be confessed in order to have judgment entered up via ordinaria, except on sworn affidavit of debt, or setting forth the consideration.

SEC. 7. When a case is at issue either party shall have the right, upon suggesting to the Court that he fears that he may be deprived of the testimony of his witnesses by delay, death or other accident, to obtain upon motion an order of Court to have the testimony of said witnesses reduced to writing by the Clerk, after notice to the opposite party, reserving to each party the right to except to any question, and such exceptions shall be written out with the testimony and inclosed in brackets, and the testimony and exceptions thus taken shall be argued and used on the trial.

SEC. 8. Judges shall not allow counsel to consume time unnecessarily when the question is plain and they are satisfied that there is no need of further argument or authority.

SEC. 9. Cases shall be tried in their order. There shall be no preference cases, except State and City cases, promissory note cases, and injunction cases against executory process, and writs of fieri facias, which shall be placed, as soon as they are at issue, on one trial or call docket, to be called the summary docket, and shall be called in their order. All other cases shall be placed as soon as at issue on another trial or call docket, to be called the ordinary docket, and shall be called in their order. Clerks shall not fix nor refix cases without calling them in a loud and audible voice. Any Clerk or Deputy Clerk who shall violate the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction by a rule taken by any one interested, before the Judge of the Court, be fined fifty dollars for the first offense, to be paid to the plaintiff in rule; and for the second offense he shall be dismissed from office.

Under a dispensation of the rules, Mr. Reese, of Lafourche, introduced the following bill, which underwent its first and second readings, and was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means:

Be it further enacted, etc., That whenever any party to a suit pending in any of the Courts of this State shall desire to have the depositions of witnesses, on whose testimony he relies, taking in writing, said party shall apply to the Clerk of the Court in which said suit is pending to take the testimony of his witnesses, and thereupon said Clerk shall proceed to take the testimony of such witnesses in writing, either by himself or some other disinterested person, in his presence, after giving to the opposite party or parties, or their attorneys, at least two days previous notice of the time and place specified in said notice; and if the party or his counsel reside out of the parish, ten days' notice shall be given, to date from the service of notice; which depositions, when so reduced to writing as aforesaid, shall be sworn to and signed by each witness if they know how to write, if not, by their ordinary mark, attested by the Clerk taking the same, which depositions, when so taken, shall be certified to by the Clerk taking the same, under the seal of the Court attached thereto, and forthwith filed in the records of the suit.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That should any objection be made by either of the parties, or their attorneys, to the taking any part or the whole of the deposition of any witness, it shall be the duty of the Clerk to take down the question of the party, the answer of the witness thereto, as well as the objections made to the same, stating by whom such objection is made, as a part of the proceedings had, the regularity of which, or any part of which, objection shall be determined by the Court in which the depositions are to be made on the trial of the cause.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That all depositions of witnesses taken as aforesaid, shall be evidence for either party desiring to use the same on the trial of the suit in which they are taken, subject to the rejection by the Court of such portion or the whole thereof, as may have been objected to at the taking of the same, or such other legal objection as may be made to the introduction thereof at the trial of the cause.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, etc., That for the purpose of carrying this act into effect, the Clerks of the Courts be and they are hereby empowered to compel attendance of witnesses by subpena or attachment, as the case may be, issued in the case and in the name of the court where the testimony is to be taken.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, etc., That all notices, subpenas or attachments issued by said Clerk shall be served by the Sheriff of the Parish or by his Deputy, or by a Constable in case of the absence of the Sheriff or his Deputy, who shall make due return of the mode and manner of the services.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Sheriff or Constable serving such notice, subpena or attachment shall be entitled to charge the same fees and mileage allowed by the fee bill for serving subpenas, and that the Clerk taking such depositions shall be allowed to charge and receive the following fees, and no more, to wit:

For issuing each notice to parties, with seal, twenty-five cents, including copy of the same.

For issuing each subpena or attachment, with seal, twenty-five cents, including copy of the same.

For swearing each witness, twenty cents.

For writing each caption and deposition of each witness and certificate for each one hundred words, twenty cents.

For affixing seal, twenty-five cents, which fee shall be charged like other costs, with the cost of the suit they are taken.

SEC. 8. Be it further enacted, etc., That for the purposes of this act within the parish of Orleans, any notary public or clerk of a District Court is hereby appointed Commissioner to take testimony of witnesses in suits pending in the courts of the parish of Orleans, before either of whom the parties to any suit pending in any court of the parish of Orleans may proceed to have the testimony of witnesses taken in the mode and manner hereinbefore specified, and said commissioners shall be vested with all the powers hereingranted to the Clerks of the Courts out of the parish of Orleans; and provided that said commissioners, or either of them, may proceed to take such deposition, on giving twenty-four hours' notice to the opposite party, or his counsel, of the time and place of taking the deposition: for this purpose notaries public are authorized to administer oaths and to execute commissions, to take testimony issued from other States or parishes of this State in the manner required by law.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, etc., That said commissioners shall, on the completion of the deposition taken before them, securely inclose the same in an envelop and deliver the same to the Clerk of the Court in which the suit is pending.

SEC. 10. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Sheriff of the parish of Orleans or any of his lawful deputies, or any constable of said parish shall serve all notices, subpenas, attachments or other process herein authorized to be issued, who shall make due return of the mode and manner of service to the Commissioner who issued it, and for which he shall be entitled to demand and receive the following fees and no more:

For serving each notice or subpena fifty cents.

For serving each attachment one dollar.

SEC. 11. Be it further enacted, etc., That each of said Commissioners shall be authorized to charge and receive the following fees and no more, to wit:

For issuing each notice twenty-five cents, including copy of the same.

For each subpena or attachment twenty-five cents, including copy of the same.

For writing depositions of witnesses, with caption and certificate, for each one hundred words, twenty cents.

For affixing official seal, twenty-five cents.

For swearing each witness, twenty cents; to be charged like other costs, with the costs of the suit in which the testimony is taken, the above fees and no more may be charged when executing commissions from other parishes or States.

SEC. 12. Be it further enacted, etc., That any party to a suit or proceeding in any of the courts of this State shall have the right to have the personal attendance of any witness in open court, on the trial of his case, by his filing in the suit his application for a subpena for any such witness, accompanied by the affidavit of himself or his attorney, that the personal attendance of such witness in open court on the trial of the case is necessary, in order to elicit the truth from such witness, which cannot be done by taking his deposition out of court, and that in all cases where a jury is prayed for and granted by the court, the party shall be entitled to have the witnesses subpenaed to attend in open court without the above affidavit, if he shall so desire in writing filed in the suit.

SEC. 13. Be it further enacted, etc., That all laws or parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

SEC. 14. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect thirty days from its passage.

AN ACT

To Amend an Act to Provide for Supplying the Loss of the Public Records and other Papers consumed by the Burning of the Courthouse, in the Parish of Rapides, during the month of May, 1864, (eighteen hundred and sixty-four), and to ratify the Appointment by Governor Wells of a Commissioner for that Purpose.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the appointment by Governor Wells of A. N. Ogden, Jr., as a Commissioner to restore the lost records of Rapides parish, and the acts done by the said A. N. Ogden, Jr., under the authority conferred by the Governor, are hereby ratified and approved.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That the functions of the said Commissioner shall cease from and after the passage of this act, and that hereafter any person desiring to establish any deed, bond, mortgage, judgment, or any writing whatsoever which was of record or deposited in any office in said parish, and destroyed by the burning of the Courthouse in May, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, (1864), may have the same established by applying to the Judge of the District by petition, setting forth the contents and description of the deed, bond, mortgage, judgment or any writing whatsoever which he, she or they may wish to establish, with as much specific certainty as possible which petition must be served on the maker, or their party or parties in interest of the said maker or other party or parties in interest, residing in the parish of Rapides; but if the said party or parties in interest reside out of the State, it shall be set forth by the petitioner under oath, and the Judge of the District Court shall appoint a curator ad hoc for such person or persons, upon whom service of citation and petition shall be made.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That the party defendant in all applications as aforesaid shall have the usual legal delay as in other suits, but when the said party answers he shall admit the petition or deny it partially or wholly, and said denial shall be under oath; whereupon the Judge shall proceed to the trial without the intervention of a jury, and upon hearing the evidence shall decide and render judgment, establishing or not, such deed, bond, mortgage, judgment or other writing as the evidence proves to have existed.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That if the plaintiff or applicant make oath to the allegations of his petition, it shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such deed, bond, mortgage, judgment or other writing which may be rebutted by the denial, under oath, of the defendant; provided that the only issue to be raised shall be the existence or non-existence, registry or non-registry and date of the document or instrument of writing in controversy and sought to be established.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, etc., That the costs incurred in suits to establish instruments of writing by this act shall be paid by the plaintiff if no opposition be made, and if opposition be made, it shall be paid by the party cast.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, etc., That in all cases in which there are costs due, the clerk, sheriff, recorder, or other officer, they shall be collected as in other cases, upon the clerk, sheriff, recorder, or other officer making out specific fee bill verified under oath.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, etc., That the recording in the proper books in the office of the Parish Recorder, of a copy of any judgment rendered under the provisions of this act, establishing any deed, bond, mortgage, judgment, or other writing, shall have the same force and effect, as the recording of the original deed, bond, mortgage, judgment or other writing which was destroyed.

SEC. 8. Be it further enacted, etc., That the registry in the Recorder's office of a certified copy of any deed, bond, mortgage, judgment or other writing, the original of which has been destroyed by fire, shall have the same force and effect as the original had previous to its destruction.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, etc., That in all criminal prosecutions, when bills of indictment had been formed and destroyed by the burning of the courthouse of the parish of Rapides aforesaid, the Grand Jury shall be authorized to find new bills and substitute them in the place of those destroyed.

SEC. 10. Be it further enacted, etc., That the District Judges of the parish of Rapides shall have exclusive, original jurisdiction in all suits brought under the provisions of this act when the amount in dispute exceeds the sum of five hundred dollars and all amounts of five hundred dollars and under in dispute, the parish Judge in and for the parish of Rapides shall have exclusive jurisdiction; but when there is no amount in dispute, then either judge can act accordingly with the provisions of this act, whether as against persons residing in or out of the parish, and that that they shall have power to try the cases contemplated by this act in chambers.

SEC. 11. Be it further enacted, etc., That the provisions of this act shall not extend beyond the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy-five: Provided that this limitation shall not apply to applications made and decided within that time.

SEC. 12. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

An Act. No. 17.

To Amend and re-enact the First Section of an act entitled "An Act Relative to Bonds of State and Parish Officers," approved March 12, 1855.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the first section of an act entitled "An Act relative to the Bonds of the State and Parish officers," approved March 12, 1855, be amended and re-enacted so as to read as follows:

That all bonds given by the tax collectors of the State, and by pr[illegible]sons charged with the collection of the parish taxes, and by all public officers, together State or parish (except the Treasurer of the State, Auditor of Public Accounts, Parish Recorders, and Clerks of the District Courts,) who by existing laws, or those to be hereafter enacted, may be required to give bonds, shall, when the securities given on such bonds reside in the parish where the officer is to exercise his office, be accepted by the Parish Recorder, the Clerk of the Court, and the President of the Police Jnry of the parish for which such officers have been elected or appointed and in which the securities reside.

That if the securities on such bonds reside out of the parish for which such officer was elected or appointed, such bonds shall be approved by the Parish Recorder, the Clerk of the Court, and the President of the Police Jury of the parish in which such securities reside.

That in either of the above cases, if either the Parish Recorder, Clerk of the Court, or President of the Police Jury should be absent from the parish or unable to act, then the Parish Judge of the parish in which the security may reside, or the Judge of the District Court of the district in which such security may reside, shall act in place of such absent officer.

That when the securities on any such bonds reside in the city of New Orleans, such bonds shall be approved by the Recorder of the district where the security resides, and the Recorder of Mortgages of the the parish of Orleans, and in that part of the parish of Orleans lying on the right bank of the Mississippi river by the Justice of the Peace for that district, and three members of the Police Jury, to be designated by the President thereof; said bonds in all cases to be executed within thirty days from the date of the commission, and before entering into the discharge of the duties of the office.

That all such persons required to give bonds as State or Parish officers as above provided for, shall be required to furnish security residing in any parish in the State.

That all such bonds shall be authencated by the attestation of two witnesses and the signature of the Recorder of the parish in which the securities reside, and shall be marked in a separate book kept for that purpose, and also be registered in the mortgage book of judicial mortgages of the parish where the officer giving the bond exercises his office.

SEC. 2. All power of the corporation shall be vested in a Board of Directors to consist of seven persons, each of whom shall own at least ten shares of the capital stock.

SEC. 3. The corporation shall have the right to sue and be sued, to plead and to be impleaded, and to appear in any court of justice and to do any other lawful act such as any person or persons might do for their own defense, interest, and safety.

SEC. 4. The President of the Board of Directors shall be the proper person upon whom to serve citations, notices, and other legal process wherein this corporation may be interested.

ARTICLE 5. Section 1. The corporation shall pay to the State of Louisiana the sum of forty thousand ($40,000) dollars per annum, which sum shall be payable quarterly in advance from and after the first day of January, 1869, to the State Auditor, who shall deposit the same in the Treasury of the State, and which sum shall be credited to the educational fund; and said corporation shall be exempt from all other taxes and licenses of any kind whatever, whether from State, parish, or municipal authorities.

SEC. 2. The corporation shall furnish bonds to the Auditor in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, as security for prompt and punctual payment of the sums set forth in the preceeding section.

ART. 6. The Board of Directors shall have power to establish as many agencies as may be necessary, and to appoint a President, Superintendent, Secretary, Treasurer, and such clerks and agents as may be required, and may remove them at pleasure, fix the salaries of all officers and employees of the corporation, and the amount of the securities, and shall make and established such rules and by-laws for the proper management and regulation of the affairs of the corporation as may be necessary and proper.

A majority of said Board shall be necessary to constitute a quorum, as also to elect or remove any officer or employee.

The Board shall have power to fill any vacancy that may occur by death or resignation.

ART. 7. Each stockholder at all meetings for the election of directors or for other purposes, shall be entitled directly or by proxy to cast one vote for each share of the capital stock held by him; all transfers of stocks shall be made on the books of the corporation.

ART. 8. The aforesaid named persons in section second of this act shall be and are hereby constituted the first Board of Directors, who shall at their first meeting appoint one of their number President, and the said board shall serve for two years from the first of January, 1869, and thereafter until their successors are elected and qualified; at the expiration of which time a meeting of the Stockholders for the election of a Board of Directors shall be held and a day fixed for all elections thereafter.

A two-third vote shall be necessary to constitute an election, and if no election is had the meeting shall adjourn over for one year.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted. That any person or persons selling or offering or exposing for sale after the thirty-first day of December, 1868, any lottery, policy or combination tickets, devices, or certificates, or fractional parts thereof in violation of this act, and of the rights and privileges herein granted to this corporation, shall be liable to said corporation in damages in a sum not exceeding five thousand nor less than one thousand dollars for each offense, recoverable by suits before any court of competent jurisdiction.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc. That this corporation shall be and continue for and during the term of twenty five years from the first day of January, 1869, for which time it shall have the sole and exclusive privilege of establishing and authorizing a lottery or series of lotteries, and selling and disposing of lottery tickets, policy, combination devices, and certificates and fractional parts thereof.

SEC 5. Be it further enacted, etc., That the said corporation shall also have the sole right and privilege, during the whole term of its existence as hereinbefore provided for, to dispose of by lottery or series of lotteries, any lands, improved or unimproved, which said corporation may become possessed of by purchase or otherwise.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, etc., That at the expiration of this corporation three commissioners shall be elected by the stockholders, whose duty it shall be to liquidate its affairs on such terms and in such manner as shall be determined by a majority of stockholders voting.

Relative to the New Orleans, Mobile, and Chattanooga Railroad Company, a corporation of the State of Alabama, and authorizing and empowering said company to exercise and enjoy its corporate powers and franchises in the State of Louisiana.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in Generrl Assembly convened, That the New Orleans, Mobile, and Chattanooga Railroad Company, a corporation incorporated, organized, and existing under and by virtue of its act of incorporation duly enacted by the Legislature of the State of Alabama, entitled an act to incorporate the New Orleans, Mobile, and Chattanooga Railroad Company, approved November 24, 1866, and anended by an act approved February 12, 1867, is hereby recognized and approved as a body politic and corporate, with all the powers, privileges, rights, and franchises granted to it by the said State of Alabama, in and by said act of incorporation, hereby adopting, confirming, and approving all the provisions of said act of incorporation granted to said company, so far as the same may be applicable to this State, and may be adopted, approved, and confirmed thereby. The said company is hereby invested with the powers, privileges, and franchises granted to it in its said acts of incorporation, and is empowered and authorized to exercise and enjoy the same in the State of Louisiana, and to have, exercise, and enjoy all the rights, powers, privileges, and franchises pertaining to corporate bodies within the said State of Louisiana necessary for the full enjoyment and exercise of said rights, powers, privileges, and franchises granted and secured to it by its said acts of incorporation, and necessary to secure, attain, and accomplish the objects and purposes of its incorporation, in the same manner and with the like power and effect as if said company had been incorporated by virtue of any grant or law of this State, subject only to the conditions, provisions, and restrictions of this act as hereinafter set forth.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That to enable said company to accomplish the purposes and objects of its incorporation, the furtherance and pursuit of which in the State of Louisiaua is hereby granted, the said company is hereby empowered and authorized:

First—To locate, construct, and build, and thereafter to own, maintain, and use, by running thereon its engines, cars, and trains of cars, a railroad, with one or more tracks and suitable turnouts from any point between Calliope and Girod streets and between Delta street and the Levee in the city of New Orleans, along and upon the Levee of said city, or along and upon a street or streets near the Levee, as may be deemed most proper and expedient (provided that the grounds and buildings now owned by the Pontchartrain Railroad company or any other railroad company between Girod, Poydras, Delta, and Water streets, shall not in any manner be interfered with), to a point at or near the junction of the Levee and Spain street, thence by a curve line to Enghein street; thence along and upon Enghein street and Lafayette Avenue to Claiborne street, and thence upon such a course or route as may be deemed by a majority of the directors of said company most proper, expedient, or necessary, and best adapted for the public accommodation, to any point on the line between the State of Louisiana and the State of Mississippi, and thence extending the same through the States of Mississippi and Alabama to the city of Mobile, in the State of Alabama, and thence to other places as provided in said act of incorporation. Provided, That in the construction of that part of said railroad and tracks and turnouts thereof between Calliope street and Claiborne street the said company shall not in any manner obstruct or impair the drainage of the streets along, upon, or across which the said part of said railroad is hereby located, and that the said company at all times, in the construction and maintenance of the said part of said railroad, conform with the levels and grades to be established by the City Surveyor of New Orleans; and whenever the company shall find it necessary to cover the channel of any drain, the sides thereof shall be first protected with brick or wood in a good and substantial manner, and such covered channel shall be kept in repair, open and clear for the passage of water, by said company; and the said part of said railroad shall be so constructed and maintained as not to in any manner unnecessarily impair the usefulness of any street, or impede the traffic thereon.

Second—To locate, construct, and build, and thereafter own, maintain, manage, and use, by running thereon its engines, cars, and trains of cars, and railroads, with one or more tracks and suitable turnouts, from a point on Rampart street, between Lafayette street and Girod street, in the city of New Orleans, across, along, and upon intervening streets and grounds, to Locust street, thence across, along, and upon intervening streets in such course as may be deemed necessary by a majority of the directors of said company, to the said neutral ground in the centre of Claiborne street; thence along and upon the central portion of said neutral ground in the centre of Claiborne street to St. Bernard Avenue; thence in a direct line with Claiborne street to the line of Lafayette avenue, and thence upon such a course or route as may be deemed by a majority of the directors of said company most proper, expedient, or necessary, and best adapted for the public accommodation (to any point on the line of railroad hereinbefore authorized, between the junction of Lafayette avenue with Claiborne street and the said line and the State line; and thence along said line of railroad), to any point on the line between the State of Louisiana and the State of Misssissippi, and thence extending the same through the States of Mississippi and Alabama to the city of Mobile, in the State of Alabama; and thence to other places, as provided in said act of incorporation. (And the said company may, if it shall be deemed by a majority of its directors expedient and necessary for its interests locate, construct, maintain, and use, as hereinbefore designated, a railroad, with one or more tracks, and necessary turnouts, from the junction of Claiborne street and St. Bernard avenue, along the central portion of the neutral ground in the centre of Claiborne street to Elysian Fields street; and thence easterly by such a course as may be deemed proper and expedient by a majority of the directors of the company, to a junction with the line of railroad hereinbefore authorized, and southerly along and upon Elysian Fields street to the levee line hereinbefore authorized.) And the said company may locate, construct, and build, and therefore own, maintain, manage, and use, by running thereon its cars drawn by the power of horses or mules, a railroad with one track upon and along Girod street, from Liberty street to the Mississippi river, with necesssary turnouts, to and from a freight depot located on any grounds near the levee which the said company may acquire for the purpose; but in the construction of such railroad in Girod street, and the turnouts thereof, only such iron rails shall be used as shall least impede the traffic of the streets, and such as shall be approved by the City Surveyor. And the said company may locate, construct, and thereafter maintain and use, for the safe and convenient transaction of its business, a passenger depot and a freight depot, and other structures, as it may deem necessary for its business and purposes, upon the three blocks of ground bounded by Girod street, Lafayette street, Liberty street, and Rampart street, in the city of New Orleans; and may close and occupy for such purpose that portion of Franklin street, and that portion of Basin street lying between Girod street and Lafayette street, in said city; and the said company may inclose for its business and purposes the three blocks of ground bounded by Perilliat street, Locost street, Lafayette street, and Liberty street, in said city; and may close and occupy for its business and purposes that portion of Freret street, and that portion of Howard street lying between Perilliat street and Lafayette street, and that portion of Perilliat street lying between Liberty street and Locust street, in the city of New Orleans, Provided, however, That the said company shall, before constructing said depots, acquire the title to all private property to be occupied and used therefor, by purchase or in accordance with the provisions of this act.

And provided further, That the said company shall, for its crossing of Carondelet canal, construct and maintain a drawbridge adapted and suitable for its own use, and the free use of the public, and the passage of carriages and vehicles, which, when open, shall give a clear space for the passage of vessels of not less than fifty (50) feet in width, and said company, after the construction of said drawbridge, shall at all times thereafter provide that said drawbridge shall be opened for the passage of any and all vessels seeking to pass through the same, without unnecessary delay, and to keep the same always in repair and good order for the aforesaid use of the public.

And provided further, That in the construction of that part of said railroad, and the tracks and turnouts thereof, between the levee and Elysian Fields street the said company shall not, in any manner, obstruct or impair the drainage of the streets along, upon, or across which the said railroad is hereby located, and that the said company shall at all times in the construction and mamtenance of the said part of said railroad, conform with the levels and grades to be established by the City Surveyor of New Orleans; and whenever the said company shall find it necessary to cover the channel of any drain, the sides thereof shall be first protected with brick or wood in good and substantial manner, and such covered channel shall be kept in repair, open and clear for the passage of water by said company; and the said part of said railroad shall be so constructed and maintained as not to in any manner unnecessarily impair the usefulness of any streets, or impede the traffic thereon.

Third—To construct and build, and thereafter to own, maintain, manage, and use, by running thereon its engines, cars, and trains of cars, a railroad, with one or more tracks and suitable turnouts, upon such course or route as may be deemed by a majority of the directors of said company most proper, expedient, or necessary, and best adapted for the public accommodation, and most for the interest of the said company, from its terminus, as hereinafter designated, on or near the levee, in the city of New Orleans in the State of Louisiana, toward and to any point on the line between the State of Louisiana and the State of Texas. Provided, however, That the part of the said railroad within the corporate limits of the city of New Orleans shall be located and built upon and along the levee, or upon and along a street or streets near the levee, unless otherwise authorized by the municipal council of the said city of New Orleans. And provided further, That the crossing of the Mississippi river, unless otherwise authorized hereafter, shall be by means of a ferryboat of suitable construction for the transfer of engines, cars, and trains of cars.

Fourth—To construct, establish, or purchase in the State of Louisiana, and thereafter to own, maintain, and use suitable wharves, piers, warehouses, steamboats, harbors, depots, stations, and other works and appurtenances connected with and incidental to said railroad and the business of said company, and by the directors of said company deemed necessary and expedient for said company to own or manage.

Fifth—To take, transport, carry, and convey persons and property upon its said railroads and its boats, by power of steam or any other power, and to receive for the the same such tolls and charges as shall be established by the directors of said company.

Sixth—To obtain and receive by purchase, grant, gift, devise, and bequest, and to have and to hold real and personal estate in the State of Louisiana for the objects, purposes, and business of said company, and to extent provided and set forth in its said acts of incorporation, and in this act, excepting that in the taking and holding of lands for the use of said company, as lands taken for public use, the said company shall take and obtain the same as in this act provided.

Seventh—To lay out its said railroads and to construct the same not exceeding two hundred feet in width upon any lands of the State of Louisiana, and to take, hold, and use for the purpose of necessary depots, stations, cuttings, turnouts, and for obtaining stone, gravel, earth, and timber for the construction of its said railroad, any lands of the State of Louisiana lying along or upon or adjacent to the route or course of said railroad that may be necessary for the construction, maintenance, and security of said railroad; Provided, however, that any and all damages that may be occasioned or that may arise to any person, corporation, or association other than the State of Louisiana by the taking and using of such lands and material for the use of said company as aforesaid, shall be assessed and paid for by said company, as provided in this act.

Eighth—To construct and maintain its said railroad or any part of the same, and to have the right of way therefor across or along or upon any waters, water course, river, lake, bay, inlet, street, highway, turnpike, or canal within the State of Louisiana which the course of said railroad may intersect, touch or cross, provided the said company shall preserve any water course, street, highway, turnpike, or canal which its said railroad may so pass upon, along, intersect, touch, or cross, so as not to impair its usefulness to the public unnecessarily; or if temporarily impaired in and during the construction of said railroad, the said company shall restore the same to its former state, or to such a state that its usefulness and convenience to the public shall not be unnecessarily impaired, or materially impaired or injured; and it is also provided that said company is authorized and empowered to construct and maintain its said railroad over and across the waters of the State of Louisiana, known as the Pass Chef Menteur, Little Rigolet, Great Rigolet, or that part of Lake Pontchartrain east of the west line of Point aux Herbs, and the West Pearl river, and other streams and bayous between Lake Pontchartrain and Pearl river, and Pearl river by bridges; provided, however, that in the channel of that part of Lake Pontchartrain hereinbefore named there shall be constructed and maintained by said company a drawbridge, which, when open, shall give a clear space for the passage of vessels of not less than one hundred feet in width; and in the channel of the Pearl river the said company shall construct and maintain a drawbridge, which, when open, shall give clear space for the passage of vessels of not less than sixty feet in width, except in case the company shall locate their road across the Great Rigolet at a point South of (or below) the principle entrance of Pearl river into the Great Rigolet, when the company shall only be required to construct one drawbridge, which shall be in the channel of the Great Rigolet, as hereinbefore named; and said company, after the construction of the said drawbridges or drawbridge, shall at all times thereafter provide that said drawbridges or drawbridge shall be opened for the passage of any and all vessels seeking to pass through the same, without unnecessary delay. It is also provided that such part of this section as relates to Pearl river, if the line of the road shall be located across the said river at a point where it constitutes the boundary line between the State of Louisiana and the State of Mississippi, shall not take effect until the State of Mississippi has consented to, and authorized the same, or said company has built such a bridge across said Pearl river for its said railroad as shall be in accordance with this section, and also with any authority or power granted to said company by the State of Mississippi in the premises; and such drawbridge may be built in the centre of the channel of said Pearl river, or in that portion of the same within the territory of the State of Mississippi or of this State, as most convenient for public use.

Ninth—That the said Company is hereby authorized and empowered to obtain by grant or otherwise, from any incorporated city or village within the State of Louisiana that may be situated upon its railroad, any right, privileges, or franchises that any of said incorporated cities or vilages may choose to grant in reference to the construction, maintenance, and management of the railroad of said Company, its depots, cars, locomotives, and its business within the limits of such, or any of said incorporated city and villege as herein before named, is hereby authorized and empowered to grant to said Company any such rights, privileges, and franchises when granted to and accepted by said Compony from and such incorporated city or village, shall be deemed and taken as rights, privileges, and franchises vested and confirmed in said company, and not liable to be hereafter revoked, changed, injured, or impaired, except with the consent of said company, and the rights, privileges, and franchises which have been heretofore granted to said company by the city of New Orleans are hereby recognized, approved, and vested and comfirmed in said company, subject to all the benefits and provisions of this act.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That said company, being hereby authorized to purchase, receive, and hold such real estate as may be necessary and convenient in accomplishing the object for which said company is organized, it may, by its agents, surveyors, engineers, and servants, enter upon all lands and tenements through which it may conclude to make such railroads, and survey, lay out, and construct the same, and may agree and contract for the land or right of way, with the owners of the land through which it intends to make said roads. In case said lands belongs to the estate of any deceased persons, then with the executor or administrator of such; or in case of the same belonging to a minor, or a person non compos mentis, then with his or her guardian, or in case said lands be held by trustees of school sections, or other trustees of estates, then with such trustees. And said executors, administrators, tutors, guardians, and trustees, are hereby declared competent for such estate, person, or minor, to contract with said company to use, occupy, and possess the lands of such estates, persons, minors, or trustees, so far as may be useful or necessary for the purposes of said railroad, and the act and deed of such executors, administrators, tutors, guardians, or trustees in relation thereto shall pass a title in such lands in the same manner as if the said deed or act was made or done by a legal owner, of full age and sound mind; and such executor, administrator, tutor, guardian, or trustee shall account to those interested in their respective bonds for the amount paid him in pursuance of such agreement and composition; and if the said company and the parties representing lands prefer, they may refer the question of compensation to arbitrators mutually chosen, whose award or that of their umpire (in case of disagreement) shall vest title according to its terms.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc,, That if said company is unable to agree for the purchase of any real estate, or the right of way thereupon, or any estate therein required for the use and purposes of said company, as provided in the preceding section, or is unable to obtain the title or right of way therein, it shall have the right to acquire title of the same in the following manner: The said company may apply to the District Court of the parish in which the land—the title wherein is sought—is situated for the appointment of commissioners of appeal, at any general or special term, or to any judge thereof, in vacation; such application shall be made in writing and signed by the president or one of the directors of said company, or by an agent or attorney of said company authorized for that purpose, and shall substantially set forth and state.

First—It must be entitled so as to describe the court wherein or the judge to whom the application is made, and the character of the application.

Second—The name and official character of the person applying in behalf of the company must be stated.

Third—The real estate which the company seek to acquire must be described by metes and bounds, and the estate therein which the company seeks to acquire must be set forth; and severa parcels of land, owned by differen persons, may be included in one application.

Fourth—That the company has not been able to acquire the estate in said lands required, and the reason of such inability.

Fifth—The names of all owners or parties interested in said real estate, so far as the same are known to the applicant, must be set forth, and if not known, that fact must be stated; a copy of such appplication and notice of the time and place the same be presented, must be served on all persons named in said application, as owners or interested in said real estate, at least ten days prior to the presentation of the same, provided such owners so named are residents, and can be found within the State of Louisiana, and are not infants, idiots, or persons of unsound minds, in that case, their tutors, curators, or guardians.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, etc., That on the presentation of the application to the court or judge therein named, and no person appearing to oppose said application, and whenever it shall satisfactorily appear, from said application, and proofs thereunto attached, that service of notice of the time and place of the presentation of said application upon all the owners and persons interested in said land has been made, the said court, or the judge thereof, shall forthwith make an order appointing three disinterested and competent freeholders who reside in the parish where the premises are situated, or an adjoining parish thereto, as Commissioners to ascertain and appraise the compensation to be made to the owners or persons interested in the real estate proposed to be taken by said company for its purposes, and shall fix the time and place for the first meeting of said Commissioners. In case any person who shall be an owner, or who shall have a vested interest in said premises, shall appear at the time and place of the presentation of such application, the said court or judge, before making said appiontment of Commissioners, may hear such person and said company in relation to any persons proposed for appointment as such Commissioners, their place of residence, their competency and interest; and after such hearing, the said court or judge shall make an appointment of three Commissisners, as aforesaid, in accordance with the discretion and judgment of said court or judge. In case it shall appear by said application that any person, or any of the persons owning or interested in the said premises described in the application, or any part of the same, are not knows to the said company, or are not residents of the parish wherein said real estate is situated, or can not be found therein after due diligence, or are infants, idiots, or persons of unsound mind, then, and in such case, the Court or Judge, before making said appointment of Commissioners, shall make such inquiries as to such owners or parties interested in said premises, and shall make such orders for service of notice upon them, or upon any persons in regard to said application, and such other order or orders in the premises as the said court or judge may deem necessary, proper, and just; and shall then make such appointment of Commissioners as aforesaid; and in connection therewith make such order as to the service of any future notice upon the owners of said premises, of the meeting and appraisement of said Commissioners, and the confirmation of the same, as may seem to said Court or Judge equitable and just.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Commissioners so appointed, or a majority of them, shall hold their first meeting at a time and place appointed by the Court or Judge, and may adjourn from time to time at their discretion: they shall take and subscribe an oath before any officer authorized to administer oaths in the State of Louisiana, to the effect that they and each of them will impartially, and to the best of their judgment and ability, perform the duties of said Commissioner. And any one of said Commissioners may issue subpenas and administer oaths to witnesses. Whenever they meet to take testimony or hear the parties, except by appointment of the said Court or Judge, or putsuant to adjournment, they shall cause reasonable notice of such meeting to be given to any of the parties in interest who shall have theretofore appeared before them, or to their agent or attorney. They shall hear the proofs and allegations of the parties, and reduce the same to writing, and after all the testimony ofiered in the case that in the judgment of said Commissioners is pertinent to the value of said premises is taken, they, or a majority of them, shall, without unnecessayy delay, ascertain and determine the compensation which ought justly and equitably to be made by the said company to the owners or persons interested in said real estate appraised by them; and said Commissioners shall take into consideration the advantages that the said owners or persons interested in said real estate may derive from the construction of said proposed railroad, for which said real estate is proposed to be taken. They shall make a report in writing to the Court or Judge by whom they were appointed, which shall contain the proceedings in the cases before them, with the minutes of the testimony taken by them, if any, and their award and determination. They shall be compensated for services as such Commissioners by the said company at the rate of five dollars per day for actual service.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, etc., That on such report being made by said Commissioners, the Court or Judge shall appoint a time and place for the hearing of said company, and all parties interested in said lands in regard to the confirmation of said report, and shall by order direct the manner and form of the service of any notice of the same upon any persons that in the judgment of the said Court or Judge should be notified; and, on the day of such hearing, if no person shall appear to oppose the confirmation of the said report, the same shall be confirmed by the said Court or Judge, and an order shall be made reciting the proceedings of the appraisal, the confirmation of the same, and a description of the real estate, and directing to whom the money or value of said real estate is to be paid, or in what manner the same shall be deposited by said company for the use and benefit of said owners. And if any person shall appear to oppose the confirmation of said report, the said Court or Judge shall hear the parties for and against such confirmation, and if said Court or Judge shall decide in favor of such confirmation, then the same proceedings shall be had in the premises as heretofore provided in case no person appeared to oppose such confirmation; and if said Court or Judge shall decide against such confirmation, an order shall be entered directing said Commissioners or other Commissioners named in said order to proceed to a reappraisal of the said premises, the proceedings of which shall be afterwards conducted as in the first instance, except that the appraisal and report of the Commissioners on the reappraisal order shall be final, and shall be confirmed by said Court or Judge and the order of said Court or Judge confirming any appraisal as aforesaid shall be final and conclusive on all parties interested; Provided, That any party to said decree shall have the right of appeal to the Supreme Court from any decree adverse to their interests or the interests of those they represent.

Sec. 8. Be it further enacted, etc., That the order of the said Court or Judge confirming an appraisal of lands as heretofore provided, or a certified copy of the same, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the District Court of the district in which the said real estate appraised shall be situate, and there shall remain a record, and such order so entered and filed shall vest in said company the lands described therein, and such estate as may therein be set forth, on the payment or tender of payment or deposit of the amount of the appraisal and damages by said company, as provided in said order, and said order, or a duly certified copy thereof, with proof of such payment and deposit as therein provided, will be considered as legal evidence of the title and estate of said company to the real estate acquired by said company under and pursuant to this act, shall be deemed to be acquired for public use.

Sec 9. Be it further enacted, etc., That the said company is hereby authorized to cross, intersect, join, and unite its railroad with any other railroad heretofore or hereafter constructed in the State of Louisiana at any point upon its route, and upon the ground of such other railroad company, with the necessary turnouts, sidings, switches, and other conveniences in furtherance of the objects of its connections; and every railroad company in the State of Louisiana whose railroad shall be hereafter intersected by the railroads of this company, shall unite with it in forming such intersections and connections, and grant the facilities aforesaid; and if the said railroad companies cannot agree upon the points and manner of such crossing, intersection, and the division and apportionment of the cost and expense of the same between said companies, the same shall be ascertained and determined by Commissioners appointed by the Court, as provided in this act, in respect to acquiring title to real estate.

Sec. 10. Be it further enacted, etc., That said company is empowered and authorized to purchase or lease from any railroad company or corporation its railroad, and the charter, franchises, property, and appurtenances thereof, and maintain and use the same as a part of the property of said company, and the said company is also authorized and empowered to enter into any mutual contract with any other railroad company or corporation by which the capital stock and property of said other company or corporation shall become merged and consolidated with this said company, and into joint and common stock, and be and exist as one company, professing and enjoying all the powers, franchises, rights, and privileges granted to or vested in each and all of the companies so consolidated and united by the State of Louisiana, or by other States through which the railroad of said company so consolidated and united may pass, the provisions of any statute heretofore passed by the State of Louisiana to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sec. 11. Be it further enacted, etc., That said company is authorized and empowered from time to time to borrow money or to purchase property upon its own credit, for the purpose of constructing and maintaining said railroads, or establishing continuous and connecting lines of railroads as heretofore and in its act of incorporation provided, and as evidence of the indebtedness of said company for such loans or the purchase of such property, may issue its corporate bonds or promissory notes, bearing interest at a rate not to exceed eight per cent per annum; and to secure the payment of said bonds and notes, may mortgage its railroads, its capital stock, its corporate franchises, and any of its real or personal property, or any part or portion of the same; and it may, by its President or other officers or agents duly authorized by its Directors, sell, dispose of, or regulate such bonds and notes, or may sell, dispose of, or negotiate its capital stock; said capital stock being declared to be personal property and transferable as such, or any of its personal property, at such times and places, and at such rates and for such prices, either within or without the limits of this State as in the judgment of said Company or its Directors will best advance its interests; and if such bonds, notes, or stocks are thus sold at a discount, such sale shall be in all respects valid and binding upon this Company, and such stocks, bonds, or notes shall be as valid for the par value thereof as if the same had been sold at par value.

Sec. 12. Be it further enacted, etc., That the said Company can sue and be sued in Courts of the State of Louisiana of competent jurisdiction, and in such manner and form only as corporations of the State of Louisiana can sue and be sued; and service of process in any action against the said Company can be made only by service of the same upon either the President, the Secretary, Treasurer, or any of the Directors of said Company, or upon the agent of the Company resident in the City of New Orleans, in the State of Louisiana, and designated by the Company to receive such service; and it shall be the duty of the Company to designate one of its agents residing in the said city of New Orleans as the agent upon whom such service of process can be made, and to give public notice thereof by advertisement for four consecutive weeks, in a newspaper published in the city of New Orleans; and like public notice shall be given whenever any change is made in such agency.

Sec. 13. Be it further enacted, etc., That if any person or persons shall willfully do, or cause to be done any act or acts whatever, whereby any building, construction, or works of said Company, or any engine, machine, or structure, or any matter or thing appertaining to the same shall be stopped, obstructed, impaired, weakened, injured or destroyed, the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall forfeit and pay to the said Company double the amount of damage sustained by reason of such offenses or injury, to be recovered in the name of said Company, with costs of suit, by action of debt; and such offenders shall also be subject to indictment, and shall be sentenced, on conviction, at the discretion of the Court, for a period not exceeding eighteen months.

Sec. 14. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall be favorably and liberally construed, so as to favor all the purposes and objects of the same, and the operations of the provisions thereof.

An Act. No. 32.

Making a new division of the State of Louisiana into Five Congressional Distrcts.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That until otherwise directed by law, the State of Louisiana shall be divided into five Congressional Districts, and the qualified electors of each district shall choose one Representative to Congress, as follows:

The first Congressional District shall comprise all that portion of the parish of Orleans on the right bank of the Mississippi river, and so much of said parish on the left bank of said river as is below and east of Canal street, in the city of New Orleans, comprising the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Representative Districts, of the parish of Orleans, and parishes of St. Bernard, Plaquemines, St. Tammany, Washington, St. Helena, and Livingston.

The Second Congressional District shall comprise all that portion of parish of Orleans on the left bank of the Mississippi river above and west of Canal street, in the city of New Orleans, comprising the First, Second, Third, and Tenth Representative Districts of the parish of Orleans, and the parish of Jefferson, St. Charles, St. John the Baptist, St. James, Lafourche and Terrebone.

The Third Congressional District shall comprise the parishes of St. Mary, St. Martin, Assumption, Ascension, Vermillion, Calcasieu, Lafayette, St. Landry, Iberville, East Feliciana, East Baton Rouge and West Baton Rouge,

The Fourth Congressional District shall comprise the parishes of West Feliciana, Point Coupee, Avoyelles, Rapides, Sabine, Natchitoches, DeSoto, Caddo Bossier and Winn.

The Fifth Congressional District shall comprise the parishes of Claiborne, Bienville, Jackson, Union, Morehouse, Carroll, Ouachita, Madison, Caldwell, Franklin, Tensas, Catahoula and Concordia.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act be in force and take effect from and after its passage.

An Act. 33.

Granting to Gabriel Mullen the exclusive right to build a toll bridge across the Amite river.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the exclusive right is hereby given to Gabriel Mullen, of the Parish of Livingston, to build a toll bridge across the Amite river at a point to be selected by him, between McKay's ferry and T. Bradford's on said river.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That all persons are prohibited from building any toll-bridge or bridges across said river Amite within five miles above and five miles below the point selected for the bridge contemplated by this act, provided the said Mullen completes his said bridge within twelve months after the passage of this act.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That the said Gabriel Mullen, his heirs and assigns shall have and enjoy all the rights and privileges, and emoluments for the time of ten (10) years, to date from the passage of this act; provided said bridge is built and completed for and within twelve months from the passage of this act; and provided further, that all the expenses in constructing and keeping in repair said bridge shall never be a charge upon the State, but be hereby borne by the said Mullen, his heirs or assigns.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That the rate of toll or transfer for crossing shall be charged by the said Mullen as fixed by the police jury of the parishes of Livingston and East Baton Rouge.

Poetry.

From the Changed Cross.

GOD OUR STRENGTH.

Man, in his weakness, needs a stronger stay
Than fellow-men, the holiest and the best:
And yet we turn to them from day to day,
As if in them our spirits could find rest.

Gently untwine our childish hands, that cling
To such inadequate supports as these
And shelter us beneath Thy heavenly wing,
Till we have learned to walk alone with ease.

Help us, O Lord! with patient love to bear
Each other's faults, to suffer with true meekness,
Help us each other's joys and griefs to share,
But let us turn to Thee alone in weakness.

THROUGH THE WORLD.

Some hearts go hungering through the world,
And never find the love they seek;
Some lips with pride or scorn are curled,
To hide the pain they may not speak.
The eyes may flash, the mouth may smile,
The voice in gladdest music thrill,
And yet beneath them all the while
The hungry heart be pining still!

These know their doom and walk their way
With level steps and steadfast eyes,
Nor strive with Fate, nor weep, nor pray—
While others, not so sadly wise,
Are mocked by phantoms evermore,
And lured by seemings of delight,
Fair to their eye, but at the core
Holding but bitter dust and blight.

I see them gaze from wistful eyes,
I mark their sign of fading cheeks:
I hear them breathe with smothered sighs,
And note the grief that never speaks;
For them no might redresses wrong,
No eye with pity is impearled,
Oh, misconstrued and suffering long,
O hearts that hunger through the world!

For you does life's dull desert hold
No fountain shade, no date-grove fair,
No gush of waters clear and cold,
But sandy reaches wide and bare.
The foot may fail, the soul may faint,
And weigh to earth the weary frame,
Yet still ye make no weak complaint,
And speak no word of grief or blame.

O eager eyes which gaze afar!
O arms which clasp the empty air!
Not all unmarked your sorrows are,
Not all unpitied your despair.
Smile, patient lips so proudly dumb—
When life's frail tent at last is furled,
Your glorious recompense shall come,
O hearts that hunger through the world!

"Hallow My Sabbaths."

"I will show you next autumn as nice a field of grain as ever was raised in this town; and, in defiance of your God, I will perform all the work on the Sabbath," said a bold impious man to a pious neighbor who had expostulated with him upon the sin of laboring upon God's holy day.

In accordance with his threat, the ground was prepared and the seed sown upon the Sabbath; and he who had defied the God of Heaven sat down to wait for the gentle showers and genial sunshine, little realizing that even in this he was dependent upon the forbearance of Him whose laws he was setting at naught. But He who sendeth His rain upon the just and upon the unjust, permitted this bold blasphemer to prosper in his undertaking, until he could say to those about him, "I have plowed and sowed, and garnered into my barn, the best field of wheat ever raised in the town of M.; and all the labor has been performed on the Sabbath."

Even the quiet of God's holy day was disturbed by the clashing sound of separating the chaff from the wheat; and heaps of golden grain lay in the autumn sunshine, waiting to be stored away for future use.

Suddenly the low muttering thunder was heard, growing stronger and stronger, until crash followed crash, and the impious crew fled in dismay from such a manifestation of a power they had so recently disregarded. In a few hours the tempest ceased; but they returned not to their labors; for the lightning's stroke had finished their work. The huge barn, with all its contents, was laid low; and the language of its smouldering ruins was, "Hallow my Sabbath, and they shall be a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am the Lord your God.—Christian Banner.

Future Punishment.

Let the fairest star be selected, like a beauteous island in the vast and shoreless sea of the azure Heavens, as the future home of the criminals from the earth, and let them possess whatever they most love, and all that it is possible for God to bestow: let them be endowed with undying bodies, and with minds which shall forever retain their intellectual powers; let no Savior ever press his claims upon them, no God reveal himself to them, no Sabbath ever dawn upon them, no saint ever live among them, no prayer ever be heard within their borders; but let society exist there forever, smitten only by the leprosy of hatred to God, and with utter selfishness as its all-prevailing and eternal purpose—then, as sure as the law of righteousness exists, on which rests the throne of God, and the government of the universe, a society so constituted must work out for itself a hell of solitary and bitter suffering, to which there is no limit except the capacity of a finite nature. Alas! the spirit that is without love to its God or to its neighbor, is already possessed by a power which must at last create for its own self-torment a worm that will never die, and a fire that can never more be quenched!—Dr. Norman Macleod.

The Selection of Rulers.

BY OLD MORDECAI.

Thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness: and place such over them to be rulers of thousands and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties and rulers of tens. And let them judge the people at all seasons.—Exodus xviii, 21, 22.

This wonderful book, unfolding as it does, the mind of God, leaves no darkness on the pathway of duty, or the destiny of man.

The principles of Revelation are comparatively few, but clearly defined, embodying everything necessary to the happiness of man in all his relations to God and his creatures. The subjects for pulpit discussion are supposed to be limited in range, though diversified in elucidation, and too much has been yielded to this narrow demand. Whatever tends to enlighten and guide the public conscience, to elevate and sustain virtue, to promote the peace and order of society, to build up and firmly establish government is as much the theme for pulpit discourse as any of the essential doctrines of Christianity; and may and ought to share attention as necessity demands.

Government, for example, is as much an institution of God as the Christian church, and as such may challenge pulpit discussion, and kindred to this the proper Selection of Rulers.

A glance at the eighteenth chapter will show the Israelites emerging from degradation to a higher civilization: chaos was yielding to order and the appointments of law. Moses, the civil law-giver, was dispensing justice according to divine precept. Jethro, his father-in-law, seeing the labor imposed on him, suggested that to avoid wearing himself and the people out, he should appoint suitable persons to share these toils. Further, Moses was the legislator and executive while Aaron ministered at the altar: both were divinely appointed. Moses as a ruler was the representative of God; this accords with the New Testament view of this subject. "For he is the minister of God," says St. Paul, and "the powers that be are ordained of God."* The minister of the law should fear God as well as the minister of the gospel, and hence the qualifications of rulers set forth in the text. Notice: 1. A ruler should be an "able man."

The ability referred to is more than a sound body, capable of enduring the toils of office: it embraces intellect, a mind well balanced and cultivated. It is mind that rules the world. Man's intelligence is a part of the divine nature imparted to him; and it is only as man receives wisdom from God, is he properly his agent, in governing the beings under his control. A ruler without intelligence is no better than an idiot. As a wise son maketh a glad father, while a foolish son is the heaviness of his mother, so a wise ruler is the joy of a nation, while a foolish one fills the nation with sorrow and covers it with shame. A ruler should be eminent for understanding and common sense; without these his mind is like an ill-adjusted scales—heavy on one side and light on the other. Without wisdom he is unable to use knowledge aright. It was these qualities that distinguished the government of David and Solomon. Solomon asked God to give him a wise and understanding heart to rule the people; he understood the interests of society and how to secure them, and therefore the glory af his reign was such as had never crowned an earthly sovereign. A wise ruler will know men as well as subjects: this is a branch of knowledge essential to good government, because its toils are to be divided among the several grades of rulers as indicated in the divisions of "thousands, hundreds, fifties and tens."

It is said that a certain man applied to President Jackson for an appointment to a foreign mission; pending the consideration of the case, the man and the President attended church; the next day a friend of the applicant inquired of the General if he intended to make the appointment, to which indeed he had at first been rather favorable, he replied with emphasis, "No, sir, he is no judge of gospel preaching. I shall not appoint him; he with myself was yesterday at the "Foundry" Methodist Church, and heard Dr. Deubin preach as sound a gospel sermon as I ever heard; he found fault and criticised it. Sir, he is no judge of gospel preaching; I shall not appoint him!" This man's criticism of the sermon opened an avenue to his heart and head, and revealed his character; the sequel proved the man's total unfitness for the mission.

2. A ruler should fear God. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and to depart from evil is understanding."

To fear God is to recognize his august authority and man's personal responsibility to him; and while the term "fear of God," may not here imply the regeneration of the nature, yet a rulers moral qualification must not fall below this standard. For as he is God's deputy he must reflect the moral character of his superior. "It is an abomination to (rulers) commit wickedness; for the throne, or government, is establishment by righteousness."* "When the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn." This is God's account, and history confirms it. The fear of God is a principle serving as a foundation on which the superstructure of government is reared, and foundation and fabric alike immovable. This principle gives unity, loftiness, purity and stability to the ruler's purpose; it is the fountain of motive; and to his actions the tower of his strength and the shield which quenches the fiery darts of enemies. It is the bulwark of character, and the lustre of reputation. Virtue can never be put to shame.

3. A ruler should be a man of truth. This includes truth as the basis of moral character, and all that is righteous in government. God demands of rulers to speak the truth and to love and pursue it. "Excellence of speech becometh not a fool, much less do lying lips a ruler." "If a ruler hearken to lies, all his servants are wicked." If a man is born a fool no law of his nature can make him wise; it is unreasonable and absurd to expect of him propriety and excellence of speech. So the office of a ruler is the symbol of all truth and virtue; these qualities inhere there, and the very being of it is not only outraged, but entirely subverted, when it is associated with falsehood and hypocrisy. Lying brings man into close relationship to the devil; he is styled "the father of lies," and is therefore held up to human gaze as the basest and most detestable of all beings. A lying, hypocritical ruler, then, represents the devil, and not the God of truth; and toward such there is no law of human nature that will allow any other feeling than profound contempt. It is as impossible to avoid classifying character as it is objects or animals. A mouse on the mountain top is nothing but a mouse; position does not class him with the mammoth. Satan is called "the prince of the power of the air," and though the sway of his infernal sceptre might be extended over other regions, still he would be nothing but Satan, as he is now; position would not class him with the ministering spirits that do God's pleasure; and so with the deceitful ruler; his excellent positon, the power wielded, the resources at his command, the vast treasures he might distribute, would not, could not shield him from being classed with the base and vile, if his character were marked by falsehood instead of truth.

4. A ruler must "hate covetousness." Covetousness is an intense and inordinate desire for gain, and may take a wide range in the thoughts, and may be formed into corresponding actions. God has forbidden covetousness in the tenth commandment, and therefore it is under ban in all persons.

God declares his hatred of this sin in the tenth Psalm. The prophet Micah denounces it because of the cruelty and oppression and robbery it engenders. Throughout the Scriptures it is denounced and classed with the vilest sins and abominations. Covetousness is the mainspring of unholy ambition. What plunder, bloodshed, carnage and desolation has it instigated! It rends the heart to contemplate the warring elements and the destruction that follow—the harvest a heap of desperate sorrow, homes laid waste, thousands on thousands in community hurled in a moment from luxury and comfort to wander as houseless vagabonds, and moving heaven with wails and lamentation. The earthquake girded with omnipotence asserts its power; Islands disappear, vast mountains are hurled from their foundation, ocean bursts the rocky bars, navies are driven like chaff before the whirlwind, while a continent trembles in convulsions. Such widespread ruin but faintly represents the blasting influence and devastations of a covetous ruler. Cruel as death and insatiable as the grave it has darked heaven with arrows of vengeance, swept the ship of state from her moorings and given her to the surges of merciless anarchy; it deified reason and dethroned God and forced out human blood like water, till insulted heaven commissioned the tempest of his wrath to break the tyrant's sceptre and sepulchre the covetous ruler amid the wreck of empires.

The Sovereign of the universe, from whom government emanates, holds up to the admiration of all ages the noble Samuel as an example of inflexible integrity as a ruler: one who hated covetousness, resisted bribery, despised oppression, dispensed justice and mercy, established peace and established the prosperity of his coventry, and died amid their lamentations and tears of affection, his character spotless, his memory blessed. The same hands present a character the reverse of this. Ahab, foolish as he was haughty, weak as he was wicked, he scattered fire brands, arrows and death; hated of God, despised of men, the companion of lying spirits, he was pierced by the archer amid his battle for plunder, and dogs licked his blood in the pool of Samaria! It is impossible for a government long to stand if God be ignored in the appointment of its rulers, unless indeed such a government may be designed as a scourge to others.

To modern times belong the shame of that senseless cry, "No mixture of politics and religion!" Now, by politics we understand the science and interest of government; and as the stream can never rise higher than its fountain, so no nation can ever rise above its religion. From what source comes this wail and dread of religious influence in government? Does it proceed from the virtuous statesman, the sound philosopher, or the devout worshipper in Christian assemblies? No, verily. This cry is Satan's watchword, echoed, it may be by a few who mistake him for an angel of light, but more generally by those wandering stars in body politic, from the pulpit demagogue to the rude fellows of the baser sort. Marvellous indeed that such should tremble for the Ark of the Lord!

The blessed Redeemer enjoined "the things due to Cæsar," then the things of Cæsar must be studied to be understood; otherwise "our liberty in choosing may be used as a 'cloak' for covetousness."

In our heaven-favored country the appointment of rulers belongs primarily to the people; if the constituency be virtuous and enlightened, the representative will bear its image. The privilege to choose is a glorious one, but the exercise of it is of fearful responsibility, but nevertheless imperatively demanded. As nations have no existence in another world, their follies and vices are punished in this life: by reading the past, it is easy to unvail the future; as it is with individuals, so it is with nations, to them that seek for glory, and honor, and immortality, a life of prosperity shall be the reward; but to them that are contentious and disobedient, tribulation and anguish, indignation and wrath, shall be the portion of such a nation.

Let the ignorant be instructed, the low elevated, the vicious reclaimed; let it be written on the hearts of the people, on the walls and altars of our temples—The nation that fears not God shall be blotted out! Then shall our rulers be able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness, and our country and government shall continue while the sun and the moon endure!

A YOUNG THEOLOGIAN.—A missionary among the freedmen of Tennessee, after relating to some little colored children the story of Ananias and Sapphira, asked them why God does not strike every body dead who tells a lie, when one of the least in the room quickly answered: "because there wouldn't be any body left!"

A little girl seeking celestial information, asked her mother, "have angels wings?" The unsuspecting mamma, full of memories of pictures and traditions, answered, "certainly they have." Straightway young inquisitive sprung her trap; "then what did they want a ladder for to get down to Jacob?" Mamma's answer is not recorded.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.

General Howard's lecture, on Tuesday night, was attended in Dr. Boynton's large church; the lecture was delivered by request of several leading friends of progress in this city and Baltimore. It was a narrative of what the General saw and heard during his recent tour of inspection of the affairs of the Bureau in the South. The speaker made the audience his companions in travel, dashing along the railway or traveling the deck of a steamer, introducing them to fellow passengers of all shades of color, positions in society, political opinions and grades of intelligence, stopping here to examine an object of interest to contemplate a scene of beauty, or survey the blood-stained battle field where he and some of his fellow-passengers had met in deadly conflict; he had mingled with the crowds at political meetings of Democrats and others, visited workshop and plantation, talked with the most educated and illiterate, but had received no mark of disrespect, or breach of courtesy from any one, excepting some newspaper articles. This kind reception was not considered personal, but in deference to a government officer, and was cited as an evidence that its authority was not ignored. The conversations he held with different classes and persons were detailed, representing the candid and the most inveterately prejudiced, facts were stated as he saw or heard them from others; he concealed nothing, he apologized for nothing; not a harsh epithet was employed, no approbrium was fastened here or there, existing evils were more heartily deplored than censured, whether among the native born or emigrant; the crops were rather hopeful than otherwise; the trials of Union men were such as the Southern papers represent them to be. The General did not spare the improper persons who had in some cases been sent there, or employed there, in the interests of the Bureau. In view of all that he saw and heard his inferences were hopeful. The violence existing in some parts he believes does not meet the approval of the majority of the people, but at the same time they do not address themselves to remedy it; he believes that existing prejudices must give way, and that freer intercourse and candid exchange of opinions will contribute to hasten the restoration to fraternal feeling; he found more candor among those who had served as officers in the Southern army than among any others not in sympathy with the government. Several interesting incidents were introduced exhibiting the commendable candor and common sense of large planters, in dealing with the Freedmen, and their manly conduct in accepting in faith the mutual interest pledged to them by their employer; where candor triumphed over prejudice and distrust, things worked well and smoothly. It is impossible for the most stupid victim of prejudice to find fault with the spirit and language of this interesting narrative. Considering the peculiar relation sustained by General Howard to the people and subjects presented in this discourse, and also the prejudices of his education, it is difficult to imagine a more beautiful representation of a noble Christian statesman than was presented in the faultless language, tone and sentiments of that address.

The President has consented to furnish troops to the civil authorities of Alabama; the interviews held by them with the President and Secretary of War were highly gratifying to all parties.

On Sunday last, part of the 29th Infantry left here for Tennessee; an allusion was made to it in the Young Men's Association prayer meeting, Monday evening. One of the speakers narrated some incidents of his interview with these troops, just taking up the line of march; some of them cursed and gnashed upon him with their teeth. He offered tracts to one who raised his gun at him, but was told he feared no such threats of violence; the soldier after lowering his gun remarked, "If it will do you any good I'll take one." "Ah, my boys," remarked the Evangelist, "you will want something more than your rations when you leave this place." On Monday the train carrying these troops was run off the track and some thirty wounded and four killed! "He that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed and that without remedy.

Protestant Episcopal Controversy.

The issues involved in the controversy between the High Church and Low Church parties in the Protestant Episcopal Church, begin to assume a more practical shape. Low Churchmen are determined on relief. They will not suffer themselves to be cramped and hindered any longer in their ministerial work by the "restrictions and limitations imposed upon them by the church formularies and canons." The last Protestant Episcopalian contains several articles, written by able and leading men of the denomination, which are exceedingly expressive on this subject. One of these writers repeats (what he says "every one knows") that "there are clauses in the Offices and Catechism which have been a well-nigh intolerable burden on the consciences of men for three hundred years," and then asks, "have we borne this burden long enough? or should we carry it to our graves, and bequeath it as a legacy to our children?" As to the mode of obtaining relief, he says: "There are but two ways. One is for each man, according to his view of duty, either to leave this church, or, with such strength and courage as he may possess, to fight the battle singly and alone, and of course, be overwhelmed and crushed. The other is, by a kind and Christian, but a united and determined demand that will not be denied, for our whole birthright liberty. If all whose consciences approved the course of Hubbard and Tyng, had by concert simultaneously done the same things, there would not have been High Churchmen enough in the land to sit as judges to try them. Persecution would have been silenced by the universal derision and indignation with which the attempt would have been greeted."

Another writer boldly suggests a General Council of Low Churchmen preliminary to a thorough expurgation of the prayer book from "every Romanizing Germ," and from every unfraternal and offensive canon, and preliminary also to the formation of a new denominational organization. The writer says, and his statements are fully and emphatically indorsed by the editors of the Protestant Churchman:

1. Let a call at once be issued for a General Council of all the evangelical members of our commuion, to sit, before, during, or immediately after the session of the "General Convention," as may seem most expedient. The "call" to embrace the clergy of every Low Church parish in the land, together with a full delegation of the laity. And there need be no difficulty as to who shall issue this call. This is no time to stand upon ceremonial. Let Drs. Tyng, Muhlenberg and Newton, or any half dozen or more of the leading clergy at the East convene the council, and we have no doubt of a hearty response. Nor need there be serious difficulty as to attendance. We say, state the object of the convocation clearly and concisely, and invite all who can attend personally to do so. For those who can not attend in person there remains the litera scripta resort.

2. The Council, once assembled, should proceed to the appointment of (1) A committee of Liturgical Revision, whose duty it shall be thoroughly to expurgate the prayer book of every "Romanizing Germ," and suggest improvements and alterations. It is worse than useless to await the action of the High Church and Ritualistic majority in the interests of Gospel truth. Any revision under such auspices, would, of course, be a revision in favor of their views. Should concessions be made to meet our demands, as for alternate forms, they would ask concession in return. And the result would be a mongrel production deserving only the contempt of the wise and good, and the indignation of the God of truth. The longer revision is postponed, therefore, the more difficult it becomes. Nor care the Ritualists for revision; the book is sufficiently Romanized already to answer their purpose as a stepping-stone to Rome. (2) And furthermore, a Committee on Canons and Church Relations, men of fraternal spirit, imbued with a love of those who love the Lord Jesus Christ, and make His law their guide. Such committee might be deputed to invite all friends of evangelical truth, whether in this church or out of it, who favor a liturgical form of worship and a moderate historic episcopate, to unite with us in the formation of the Reformed Protestant Episcopal Church of these United States. And they would not invite in vain.

3. The Council, duly organized by the election of provisional officers, should next invite the evangelical Bishops of the present House—men known as such—to head the movement for the establishment of a pure reformed church, distinctively evangelic in doctrine, fraternal in aim, catholic in spirit; a movement having for its object to secure the respect and love, not the fear and hatred, of the people of this land, and to afford an asylum to the thousands who, by reason of the objectionable portions of our Liturgy and of the exclusive unchurching spirit of many of our clergy and members, have been heretofore restrained from entering the fold.

4. In the improbable event of refusal by all the Bishops, then let truth be above order. Thereupon the church might proceed to organize in all the States, electing provisional Bishops or overseers, these to hold office until, in the ordering of Divine Providence, a permanent polity shall have been agreed upon. The funds heretofore given so largely toward the building up of High Church dioceses and Ritualistic parishes, would be devoted to better uses; and in a few years, by God's blessing, the Reformed Church would be numerically larger, and incalculably more a power for good than we are to day.

Contrasts—Which do You Prefer?

"An athiest's laugh is a poor exchange
For Deity offended."

Dr. Johnson, after speaking of various spectacles of human suffering, and of the sighs and groans by which the afflicted seek relief, once remarked, "The laugh of a merry and careless sinner is worse than all." Few remarks of the learned apothegmatist convey a more instructive moral lesson.

Madame Guyon was imprisoned for loving her Savior more than the glitter of courts; when put in a dungeon she was blessed with the presence of Christ and delightful views of heaven, and she triumphantly sung,

"Strong are the walls around me
That hold me night and day;
But they who thus have bound me
Cannot keep God away:
My very dungeon walls are dear,
Because the Lord I love is here.

"They know who thus oppress me
'Tis hard to be alone;
But know not One can bless me
Who comes through bars and stone;
He makes my dungeon's darkness bright,
And fills my bosom with delight."

Not long after the death of Madame Guyon, Madame de Pompadour was made mistress of Versailles by that voluptuous old monarch, Louis XV. Alluding to the popular dissatisfaction of her imprudent conduct, and to the revolution which she saw approaching, she used to remark, "Après nous, le deluge"—after us the deluge. During her life the French court was the scene of unexampled gayety and dissipation. She died in misery, trembling at the wrath of the people, and the judgment of God.

"My whole life," she said in a gloomy hour, "has been a continual death."

Which appears the most enviable situation, Madame Guyon, feeding on angel's food in her dungeon, or Madame de Pompadour, trifling with the most important concerns in the most splendid court of Europe?

John Bunyan sung in Bedford jail,

"I am indeed in prison now
In body, but my mind
Is free to follow Christ, and now
Unto me He is kind.

"For though men keep my outward man
With their locks and bars,
Yet by the faith of Christ I can
Mount higher than the stars.

"This jail to me is as a hill
From whence I plainly see
Beyond this world, and take my fill
Of things that lasting be."

His conscience was clear, his spirit free. His soul soared aloft amid the glories of a celestial atmosphere, and drank from the fountains of heavenly bliss.

Robert Burns suffered no persecution. His genius was universally admired, and he held a conspicuous place in the polished circles of Edinburgh. But though not circumscribed by the walls of a prison, he was helplessly bound by his own vices. Once, during sickness, he wrote an affecting prayer, in which he thus confesses his moral weakness:

"With Thy controlling power assist even me
These headlong, furious passions to confine;
For all unfit I feel my power to be
To rule their current in the allowed line—
O, aid me with Thy strength, Omnipotence."

Burns died from exposure, occasioned by tarrying too long at the wine cup, and his last words were a careless jest.

Sad are the afflictions of the Christian, and more melancholy are the trials of those who have no religious comforts, but the laugh, and jest, and trifling of an unconcerned soul are indeed worse than all.—Watchman and Reflector.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIVE BOYS.—Boys, let me talk to you about one hundred and five boys who were arrested one night by the police in New York.

Where did the police find them, think you? Not in pleasant homes, you may be sure. No not there, but in gambling houses, where they were smoking bad cigars and drinking bad liquor. What a place for boys!

Why did the police arrest them? Because they were thieves, pickpockets and gamblers. Think of it, one hundred and five boys between the ages of nine and thirteen given to a life of crime! the bare thought of their sad fate makes my flesh creep. Doesn't it make you tremble?

Those bad boys have already lost every trace of moral beauty. They are unlovely, vile, wretched creatures. Their lives are poisoned at the fountain, and will pour out streams of sin and misery until they come to an untimely end. Don't you pity them? Don't you shrink with terror at the bare idea of being like them?

Leave was granted.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Todd offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Internal Improvements to originate a bill compelling a change of grade on the New Orleans and Carrollton Railroad.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Smith offered a resolution that the President be authorized to appoint two additional Pages for the Senate.

Mr. Wilcox offered a substitute that an Assistant Doorkeeper be elected, and act also as messenger.

The substitute was adopted.

On motion the vote upon the substitute was reconsidered, and the substitute withdrawn by Mr. Wilcox.

The resolution of Mr. Smith being then before the House,

Mr. Whitney moved to lay it on the table.

The yeas and nays were ordered, resulting:

Yeas: Braughn, Day, Jenks, E. L. Jewell, F. L. Jewell, Lynch, Monette, Packard, Ray, White, Whitney, Wilcox, Williams—13.

Nays: Anderson, Bacon, Campbell, Coupland, Egan, Foute, Kelso, Poindexter, Smith, Wittgenstein—10.

The resolution of Mr. Smith was laid on the table.

Mr. Wittgenstein moved to proceed to the election of Assistant Doorkeeper.

Adopted.

Mr. Day nomitated Mr. Perrin.

Nominations closed.

Mr. Perrin received 23 votes.

Mr. Perrin was declared elected.

Mr. Day gave notice—

First, that on a future day he would introduce a bill to provide for the registration of the qualified electors of the State.

Second, that he would introduce a bill to repress and prevent larceny.

Third, that he would introduce an act to amend article ninety-nine of the State Constitution.

Mr. Campbell introduced, according to notice, the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee of three Senators be appointed by the President of the Senate to inquire and report to the Senate the names of the sufferers by the massacre of the thirtieth of July, 1866, the disposition made of the dead and wounded by the municipal authorities.

And asked that it be read.

The resolution was read.

Mr. Campbell introduced, according to previous notice, the following joint resolution:

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives. That in honor of the martyred dead of the thirtieth of July, 1866, both Houses of the General Assembly will adjourn over from the twenty-ninth to the thirty-first day of July, and that they do recommend to the good citizens of this State the observance of that day by the observing of suitable ceremonies in respect to the memory of those who on that day laid down their lives in the cause of liberty and equal rights to all.

And asked that it be read.

The joint resolution was read.

Mr. Anderson asked for a suspension of the rules to introduce a bill entitled an act relative to public roads.

The rules were suspended. The bill was introduced and read for the first time.

The rules were then suspended and the bill was read a second time.

On motion of Mr. Anderson, the bill was then referred to the Committee on Corporations and Parochial Affairs.

The order of the day was then called.

Mr. Lynch called up House bill No. 7—an act relative to the public printing—introduced by W. L. McMillen.

The bill was read for the first time.

On motion of Mr. Ray, the rules were suspended, the bill read for the second time, and referred to the Committee on Public Printing.

Mr. Ray called up Senate bill No. 7—an act to provide for the removal of causes pending in the Supreme Court, under the Constitution of 1864, to the Supreme Court established under the new Constitution.

The bill was read by the Secretary.

Mr. Ray moved that the bill be adopted section by section.

Adopted.

The first section was then read.

Mr. Bacon moved that the first section be amended by striking out the words "ipso facto" in the tenth line, and insert the words "to be" at the beginning of the twelfth line.

On motion of Mr. Ray, Mr. Bacon's amendment was laid on the table.

Mr. Jewell moved to amend by inserting the words "and the same are hereby" after the words "ipso facto" in the tenth line.

On motion of Mr. Ray, the amendment was laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. Ray, the first section was then adopted.

On motion of Mr. Ray, the second section was read, and the following corrections made;

In line thirteen, strike out "kinds of appeal" and insert "causes."

In line fifteen, strike out "case" and insert "cause."

In line nineteen, strike out "case" and insert "causes."

Debate ensued with regard to section second, when,

On motion of Mr. Ray, the whole bill was recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary.

Mr. Ray moved it be adopted section by section.

Adopted.

The first section was then read.

Mr. Ray moved to strike out "or sooner, if possible," in the eighth line; and in place of the words "asked by" in line eighteen, to insert the words "prayed for."

Amendment adopted.

On motion of Mr. Ray, the first section was then adopted as amended.

The second section was then read, and, on motion of Mr. Ray, adopted.

On motion of Mr. Ray, the bill was then adopted as a whole.

On motion of Mr. Ray, the bill was ordered to be engrossed and read the third time.

The bill was read the third time.

The bill was then adopted.

On motion of Mr. Ray, the bill was adopted by its title.

Mr. Ray called up Senate bill No. 17, an act to transfer all causes now pending before the courts of the State under the Constitution of 1864 to the courts created by the Constitution of 1868.

Mr. Ray moved that the bill be adopted section by section.

The first section was then read.

Mr. Ray moved the adoption of the first section.

Adopted.

The second section was then read.

Mr. Ray moved the adoption of the second section with a proviso.

The second section, with the proviso, was adopted.

Section three was then read.

Mr. Ray moved to amend by inserting the word "original" at the commencement of the twelfth line, and by inserting in lines twelve and thirteen, in place of the words "books, dockets and minutes of," the words "of suits not finally disposed of in accordance with this act in."

The amendment was adopted.

Mr. Ray moved the adoption of section three, with the following proviso added:

Provided that all costs in said transferred suits shall be paid before said suits shall be filed in the said Seventh District Court, and that the receipt of the Clerk of the Third District Court shall be evidence of the payment of such costs.

The section, with the proviso, was then adopted.

Section four was then read, and on motion of Mr. Ray adopted.

Mr. Ray moved to reconsider the vote adopting the proviso to section two.

The vote was reconsidered.

Mr. Ray moved to strike out the proviso.

Adopted.

Mr. Ray moved that the bill as amended be adopted as a whole.

Adopted.

Mr. Blackman moved that the title be amended by inserting in place of the words "of the State," the words "of the parish of Orleans."

Amendment adopted.

Mr. Bacon moved that the bill be engrossed for a third reading.

Adopted.

Mr. Ray asked that the rules be suspended and the bill read a third time.

The rules were suspended, and the bill read the third time.

The bill was then adopted on its final passage.

The bill was then adopted by its title.

Mr. Lynch moved that the rules be suspended for the introduction of a joint resolution referring to the appointment of a joint committee of the General Assembly to examine into the accounts of the Auditor of Public Accounts and Treasurer of the State.

The rules were suspendeded, and the joint resolution read and adopted.

The President announced the following standing committes:

On Corporations and Parochial Affairs—Campbell, O'Hara, Wittgenstein, Bacon, Futch.

On Claims—O'Hara, Kelso and Bacon.

On motion of Mr. Day, the Senate adjourned.

C. H. MERRITT,
Secretary of the Senate.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE.

Sixteenth Day's Session.

The House met pursuant to adjournment, Speaker Lowell in the chair.

The roll being called seventy, members answered to their names, as follows:

Speaker Lowell, Abbott, Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Bennett, Buckingham, Belot, Brewster, Barbee, Burrel, Bergeron, Collins, Calhoun, Cuny, Deslonde, Dewees, Dufresne, DeGrange, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Esnard, Faulkner, Fouts, Guigonet, Gair, Garstkamp, Guidry, Hill, Haskell, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Kent, Le Blanc, Leroy, L'Hoste, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McCullen, Mahier, McVean, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, Morand, Mathews, Magee, Noble, Page, Pierce, Prescott, Rey, Slaton, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, Waters, Wilson, H. Williams, N. Young, Zoelly—70.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Kingston.

On motion of Mr. Garstkamp, of Jefferson, the reading of the journal was dispensed with.

The following corrections to the minutes were ordered:

In the disposition of the bill reported by the Committee on Education, it should have been mentioned that a suspension of the rules had been asked and refused, and consequently the bill lies over under the rules.

In the notice given by Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, of his intention to introduce a bill entitled an act to amend the twenty-ninth article of the Constitution of the State, it should have been the ninety-ninth article, instead of the twenty-ninth of the Constitution of the State.

Under the head of notices of bills, and after the following paragraphs, the following bill should have been inserted:

Under a dispensation of the rules, Mr. Reese, of Lafourche, introduced the following bill, which underwent its first and second readings, and was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By D. H. Reese, of Lafourche:

An act to facilitate parish officers in furnishing bonds, and for other purposes.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That it shall be lawful for all persons elected or appointed to office in any parish of this State, who by the laws thereof are required to furnish bonds, to furnish as bondsmen any person or persons resident of this State, and owning a sufficient amount of property within the State.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That in all cases where an officer furnishes bondsmen from without the parish in which his office is located, it shall be the duty of the Clerk of the District Court, or parish Judge of the parish in which the property of the said bondsmen is situated to certify to the sufficiency of the bond, and the certificate, or a certified copy thereof, together with the bond, shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court for the parish in which the office aforesaid is established.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That if after the expiration of thirty days from the passage of this act any officer who was elected to office on the seventeenth and eighteenth days of April, 1868, and has failed to furnish the bond required by law, such office shall then be considered vacant, and it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint some suitable person to perform the duties of such office.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

On motion a leave of absence of four days was granted to Mr. Mollere, of Assumption.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

None.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans, acting chairman of the Committee on Elections and Qualifications, asked to be relieved from further services on that committee.

Mr. Wren, of Bossier, moved that the request be granted.

The motion was laid on the table.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans, offered the following resolution, which was read under a dispensation of the rules:

Resolved, That a committee of three members of this House be appointed by the Speaker to inquire and report as to the safety of the Canal street ferryboats plying between this city and Algiers.

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, moved to suspend the rules in order to place the above resolution on its several readings and final passage, which was carried by a rising vote of 53 yeas to 3 nays.

The resolution then went through its several readings and was adopted.

Mr. Isabelle, of Orleans, asked permission to introduce the following resolution, and asked that the rules be suspended in order to place it on its first reading.

The rules being suspended, the resolution was read as follows:

Joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana.

Resolved, That a committee to consist of two members of the Senate and three members of the House of Representatives be appointed, which committee shall have authority to take possession of the ballots cast at the election held on the seventeenth and eighteenth days of April, 1868, at the city of New Orleans, for municipal officers thereof; to recount said ballots; to take such action as in their judgment may enable them to ascertain the number of legal votes cast for each of the candidates; to investigate the conduct of said election; to send for persons and papers: to employ clerks, not to exceed twelve in number, to assist in carrying out the objects of this resolution; and the said committee are instructed to report at the earliest practicable moment to the General Assembly the result of their labors.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, asked permission to introduce the following resolution, and to have it read under a suspension of the rules.

Permission was granted and the rules suspended.

The resolution was read a first time and lies over.

Resolved, That the members of this House and the citizens of Louisiana, without distinction of race and color, be invited and requested to join in the grand illumination and celebration to come off on next Saturday night, under the auspices of the Democratic party of this city in honor of the restoration of Louisiana to the Union under a Constitution guaranteeing equality of civil and political rights to all citizens.

Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, asked permission to introduce the following joint resolution, which was granted, and then underwent its several readings under a suspension of the rules, adopted, and ordered to be sent to the Senate for concurrence:

Joint resolution for the State bonds and other property now detained at Washington by the Federal authorities.

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That for the purpose of recovering the State bonds and other property now detained at Washington by the Federal authorities, the Governor of the State is hereby authorized to communicate with such authorities and to appoint some proper person to receivesuch bonds and other property.

Mr. Wren, of Bossier, asked permission to introduce the following resolution, and that the rules be suspended in order to place it on its several readings and final adoption.

Permission being granted and the rules suspended, the resolution went through its several readings and was adopted.

Resolved, That the Warrant Clerk be authorized to pay the Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms pro tem. for his services.

Mr. Gray, of St. James, asked permission to introduce the following resolution, which was granted:

Resolved, That the Committee on Elections and Qualifications be discharged from further services.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans, moved that the rules be suspended in order to place the resolution on its several readings and passage.

The rules were not suspended and the resolution lies over under the rules.

By Mr. Morey, of Ouachita:

A Joint Act to regulate the publication of legal notices, the journal of the Legislature and the laws enacted by it.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That it shall be the duty of the Governar, upon the passage of this act, to designate one newspaper in each and every parish in the State in which all legal advertisements required by law to be made in a newspaper, viz: Orders of publication, attachments and non-resident's notices, sales of lands by decrees, executions, mortgages, and for taxes by sheriff's clerks and all other officers, together with all other advertisements required by law to be made and published in a newspaper, of whatever nature, shall be published, which newspaper shall be printed and published in the parish in which it shall be designated, and that in case there is no loyal newspaper published in a parish, then and in that case all the legal notices shall be published in a loyal paper most convenient to said parish, to be designated by the Governor, for the publication of legal notices.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That each newspaper so designated shall be the official newspaper for the parish or parishes for which said newspaper shall be so designated, in which all the legal advertisements of such parishes shall be made as required by law. And it shall be the duty of the editor or publisher of such newspaper, upon the payment of the printer's fee, to file in the Clerk's office of the Court having jurisdiction, his affidavit, with the printed copy of such advertisement appended, together with his receipt for the payment of the printer's fee, paid by the party at whose instance or for whose benefit such advertisement shall have been made and to be collected as other costs. The said affidavits shall give the date of the newspaper in which the advertisement appeared, and be filed and recorded by the Clerk as legal evidence of the publication of the same, to be read or a certified copy thereof, in all courts of law and equity; and any such publication made contrary to the provisions of this act, in districts where newspapers are so designated, shall be null and of no effect.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That the compensation to the publishers of newspapers in this act shall be one dollar and fifty cents per square for the first insertion and seventy-five cents for each subsequent insertion of the publication of the notices hereinbefore mentioned, one square being ten lines solid agate.

SEC. 4. That no such paper so designated shall become an official newspaper for the publication of legal advertisements for any parish which it may be so designated, unless such appointment shall be confirmed by the Senate.

SEC. 5, Be it further enacted, That the Governor is hereby directed to designate at least one paper, and not more than two, in each Congressional district in the State, for the publication of the journal of the two Houses of the Legislature and for the publication of the laws enacted by them. The fees to be charged for the publication of the journal one dollar per square. The measurement of the journal and laws to be the same as that specified in section three for legal advertisements.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That all acts or parts of acts not consistent with the foregoing are hereby repealed.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Referred to the Committee on Judiciary and 200 copies of the bill ordered to be printed.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Education, through Mr. Rey, of Orleans, made the following report, which was accepted:

COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION, New Orleans, July 17, 1868.

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives:

The Committee on Education beg leave to report progress, and inform you that with the assistance of the State Superintendent of Public Education they are preparing a bill which will embrace a whole and harmonious system of schools for the State, which will be submitted to you at some future day.

HENRY L. REY,
Chairman:
F. C. ANTOINE,
E. W. DEWEES,
D. C. FOUTS,
P. G. DESLONDE,
JOSEPH MANSION,
W. H. PIERCE.

The Committee of Ways and Means reported the following House bill No. 21, heretofore referred to them, and recommended its passage:

By D. H. Reese:

An Act to Facilitate Parish Officers in Furnishing Bonds, and for Other Purposes.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That it shall be lawful for all persons elected or appointed to office in any parish of this State, who by the laws thereof are required to furnish bonds, to furnish as bondsmen any person or persons resident of this State, and owning a sufficient amount of property within the State. And when such bondsmen are residents of the parish for or within which the officer is elected, the approval of the Parish Judge of said parish of the sufficiency of such bond shall only be required.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That in all cases where an officer furnishes bondsmen from without the parish in which his office is located, it shall be the duty of a Clerk of the District Court, or Parish Judge of the parish in which the property of the said bondsmen is situated to certify to the sufficiency of the bond; and the certificate, or a certified copy thereof, together with the bond, shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court for the parish in which the office aforesaid is established.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That if after the expiration of thirty days from the passage of this act any officer who was elected to office on the seventeenth and eighteenth days of April, 1868, and has failed to furnish the bond required by law, such office shall then be considered vacant, and it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint some suitable person to perform the duties of such office.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Mr. Noble, of Orleans, offered the following amendment:

In the third section I move to strike out the words "appoint some suitable person," and insert "issue writs of election," in order that the vacancy may be filled, and insert after the word "office" the words "may be elected as required by law."

Mr. Gair, of East Feliciana, moved to lay the amendment on the table.

Carried.

Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, moved that the bill be placed on its second reading.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The following majority report from the Committee on Elections and Qualifications was made through its chairman pro tem., Mr. Carr, of Orleans, and received:

To the Speaker and Members of the Honorable House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The report of the Committee on Contested Elections and Qualifications appointed by your honorable body—

That in the case of Stephen Umphreys, contesting the seat of J. D. Wemple, your committee reports that the said J. D. Wemple being ineligible, that the said Stephen Umphreys be admitted to his seat as a Representative from the parish of De Soto.

MORTIMER CARR,
Chairman, pro tem.
HARRY LOTT,
DENNIS BURREL,
F. C. ANTOINE.

Which was received.

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, submitted also a minority report from the same committee, as follows, and which was received:

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

We the undersigned members of the Committee on Elections and Returns, appointed by your honorable body, beg leave to submit the following minority report:

The contest between S. G. Umphreys and J. D. Wemple is based upon the ineligibility of J. D. Wemple.

The evidence adduced shows that prior to the war said Wemple did hold office as a member of the Legislature of the State of Louisiana, but no facts have been elicited to show that he either held office under the Confederate government, or gave aid and comfort to the same.

J. D. Wemple states that he was always a Union man, and did not give aid and comfort to the rebellion. He acknowledges to have acted in the capacity of clerk for the Receiver of Public Money, but he did it to gratify a friend, without compensation, and without taking any oath or giving any bond.

Should the House decide that said Wemple is ineligible, we protest against S. G. Umphreys being admitted to a seat as Representative from the parish of De Soto, as it is clear that he is not the choice of the legal voters of said parish, and we recommend that the case be referred back to the people, where the power of selecting their Representatives properly belongs.

Very respectfully,
C. B. PRATT.
M. D. KAVANAGH.

Mr. McVean, of Caddo, moved that the report of the majority be adopted.

Mr. Kavanagh moved to postpone the consideration of both reports until Monday next.

Mr. Garstkamp moved to lay the motion on the table.

Yeas and nays demanded, resulting as follows:

Yeas: Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Belot, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dewees, Dufresne, Demarest, Evans, Esnard, Guigonet, Gair, Garstkamp, Guidry, Hill, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Le Blanc, Leroy, Morris, Mahier, McMillen, McVean, Murrell, Morrison, Morand, Mathews, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, William C. Williams, H. Williams—46 yeas.

Nays: Abbott, Bennett, Buckingham, Brewster, Barbee, Bergeron, De Grange, Faulkner, Fouts, Haskell, Kavanagh, Lott, McCullen, Magee, Noble, Pratt, Page, Pierce, Prescott, N. Young, Zoelly—21 nays.

Motion to lay on the table prevailed.

Mr. Kavanagh, of St. Landry, moved that permission be granted to Mr. J. D. Wemple to address the House in his defense.

Mr. Rey, of Orleans, moved that half an hour be granted to Mr. Wemple.

Carried.

Mr. Wemple then addressed the Chair.

Mr. Reese was called to the Chair.

After which, documents accompanying both reports were read.

Mr. Isabelle objected to the reading of the documents.

The Chair decided that as the majority report had introduced documents in evidence that the minority report had the same privilege.

Mr. McVean appealed from the decision of the Chair, which resulted as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Adolphe, Bennett. Buckingham, Brewster. Bergeron, De Grange, Faulkner, Fouts, Haskell, Hanlon, Kavanagh, Le Blanc, Lott, McCullen, Melvin, Magee, Noble, Pratt, Page, Pierce, Slaton, Wren, N. Young, Zoelly—26 yeas.

Nays: Alexander, Belot, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dewees, Dufresne, Evans, Esnard, Guigonet, Gair, Garstkamp, Guidry, Hill, Honore, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Leroy, Morris, Mahier, McVean, Murrell, Morey, Morand, Mathews, Raymond, Rey, Smith, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, William C. Williams, H. Williams—37 nays.

The decision of the Chair was not sustained.

Mr. Faulkner moved to adjourn until Monday at twelve o'clock M.

Lost.

Mr. Raymond, of Jefferson, called for the previous question, which was not ordered.

Mr. De Grange, of Orleans, moved to adjourn.

Lost.

The question recurring on the original motion to adopt the report of the majority, the yeas and nays were demanded and ordered.

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, moved to divide the report of the majority of the committee into two parts, and that the vote be taken separately on each.

The Speaker decided that the question could be divided, and so ordered it.

The yeas and nays being taken on the first part of the report resulted as follows:

Yeas: Abbot, Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dewees, Dufresne, Demarest, Evans, Esnard, Guigonet, Gair, Garstkamp, Guidry, Hill, Honore, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Le Blanc, Lee, Leroy, Lott, Morris, Mahier, McMillen, McVean, Murrell, Melvin, Morand, Mathews, Page, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, William C. Williams, H. Williams—50.

Nays: Bennett, Barbee, Bergeron, De Grange, Faulkner, Fouts, Haskell, Hanlon, Kavanagh, Magee, Noble, Pratt, Pierce, Slaton, Zoelly—15.

The first part of the report was consequently declared adopted.

The question now being on the second part of the report,

Mr. De Grange, of Orleans, called for the yeas and nays, which were ordered, and resulted as follows:

Yeas: Messrs. Abbot, Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Deslonde, Dewees, Dufresne, Demarest, Evans, Esnard, Guigonet, Gair, Garstkamp, Guidry, Hill, Honore, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Le Blanc, Lee, Leroy, Lott, Morris, Mahier, McMillen, Mcvean, Murrell, Melvin, Mansion, Morand, Page, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor, Tureaud, Washington, Wren, William C. Williams, H. Williams—50 yeas.

Nays: Messrs. Bennett, Buckingham, Barbee, Bergeron, De Grange, Faulkner, Fouts, Haskell, Hanlon, Kavanagh, Magee, Noble, Pratt, Pierce, Slaton, Zoelly—16 nays.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Judiciary made the following report, which was received:

JUDICIARY COMMITTEE ROOM, July 17, 1868.

To the Honorable Speaker and Members House of Representatives:

GENTLEMEN—Your Committee on Judiciary having considered the bill herewith returned, an act entitled an act granting certain powers to Parish Judges, report favorably.

P. HARPER,
Chairman;
B. C. WREN,
A. L. LEE,
W. L. McMILLEN.

And the House bill No. 9, reported by the committee, was, on motion of Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, placed on its third reading and final passage as follows:

An Act granting certain powers to the several Parish Judges.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the several Parish Judges shall have the power, in the absence of the District Judge from the several parishes, or when he is interested, to act in cases before the District Court in granting orders of arrest or attachment, sequestration, provisional seizure, order of seizure and sale, to issue writ of possession and distringas; to grant orders setting aside sequestration and fixing the amount of bonds therefor; to grant injunctions in all cases, and to fix the amount of the bonds, except in cases where it is now fixed by law; to grant appeals and fix the amount of bonds thereof when the same is not fixed by law; to issue commissions to take testimony of witnesses residing out of the parish, and in the parish where it is made to appear that witness is about to depart or where from other causes the party desiring his testimony may have cause to apprehend that he will otherwise be deprived of it; and to appoint a commission to execute the same; and to fix the return day thereof; and to appoint curators ad hoc in all cases; and that Parish Judges are empowered to grant these orders or writs when application is made to them in proper form according to the laws of this State therefor, and when the party or his attorney make oath that the District Judge is absent from the parish or that, being interested, he is unable to give the order.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That all laws or parts of laws in conflict with this act be and are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Mr. Raymond, of Jefferson, moved that Mr. Stephen Umphreys be sworn in.

Carried.

Chief Justice Hyman administered the oath and Mr. Umphreys took his seat.

The Committee on Enrollment made the ollowing report, which was received:

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives:

Your Committee on Enrollment respectfully report that the following bills have been duly engrossed, viz:

An act, No. 26, making a new division of the State of Louisiana into five Congressional districts; and

An act, No. 21, to facilitate parish officers in furnishing bonds, and for other purposes.

O. H. BREWSTER,
Chairman Committee on Enrollment.

The Committee on Contingent Expenses made the following report, which, on motion, was adopted:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, Rooms of Committee on Contingent Expenses, New Orleans La., July 18, 1868.

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives:

GENTLEMEN—Your Committee on Contingent Expenses having considered the resolution offered by the member from St. James, authorizing the Committees on Charitable and Public Institutions, Internal Improvements, and Parochial Affairs to hire a suitable room outside of the House for the use of said committees, beg leave to report favorably thereon, provided, that the rent of such rooms will not exceed fifty dollars per month.

FRANK MOREY,
Chairman of Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Mr. Lott, Chairman of the Select Committee, submitted the following report:

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE TO VISIT THE AUDITOR.

Your committee report that the difficulty lies in the apparent withholding of the Governor's signature to the bill transferring certain funds from the special to the general fund.

Your committee are of the opinion that the Governor did sign the bill, and that his signature was afterward withdrawn.

HARRY LOTT, Chairman.

Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, offered amendments to House bill No. 21, as follows:

Strike out in section first the words "the approval of the Parish Judge of said parish of the sufficiency of said bond shall only be required," and insert "it shall be the duty of the Parish Judge of said parish to determine the sufficiency of said bond and accept the same."

In section second strike out the words "Clerk of the District Court," and insert the words "Recorder, and recorded in the mortgage book of said Recorder."

The amendments, on motion of Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, were adopted.

House bill No. 21, as amended, was adopted on its third reading, and ordered to be sent to the Senate for concurrence.

BILLS ON THEIR THIRD READING.

The following bill passed its third reading, and was adopted and sent to the Senate for concurrence:

House bill No. 31, an act to facilitate parish officers in furnishing bonds, and for other purposes.

The following bill, on motion of Mr. McVean, of Caddo, was referred to a special committee of five, one from each Congressional district:

RESOLUTIONS.

By Mr. Leroy, of Natchitoches:

Be it resolved, That the Postmaster of the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana is hereby authorized to subscribe for two weekly newspapers published in this State for the members giving him the names of the papers they desire.

Lies over under the rules.

By Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne:

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, That the thanks of this House be and they are hereby tendered to the patriotic and loyal citizens of New Orleans for the prompt and enthusiastic manner in which they responded to the invitation to attend the Democratic mass meeting on Saturday night last, so courteously extended by Hon. W. L. McMillen.

2. Resolved, That we hail with unbounded satisfaction the great civil reaction that is now taking place in the hearts of the loyal people from Maine to California, and view it as an unmistakable indication that anarchy and misrule are about at an end.

Lies over under the rules.

By Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne:

WHEREAS, Article thirty-four of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana says that

"Each House of the General Assembly shall judge of the qualifications, election, and returns of its members; but a contested election shall be determined in such manner as prescribed by law;" and

Whereas, Article one hundred and forty-nine says, "All rights, actions, prosecutions, claims, contracts and all laws in force at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, and not inconsistent therewith, shall continue as if it had not been adopted, except the following laws:

An act in regard to the New Canal and Basin;

An act relative to crimes and offenses;

An act relative to slaves;

An act relat ng to the punishment of apprentices;

An act relative to parish and city taxes;

An act granting ferry privileges to C. K. Marshall;

An act relative to levee bonds;

An act to organize the police of New Orleans; and

Whereas, A majority of the Committee on Elections and Returns appointed by this body are of opinion that the committee should not be governed by the existing laws of the State: therefore

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, That the Committee on Elections and Returns be and they are hereby instructed to take the law of Louisiana in regard to contested elections as their guide, and that they be governed by the letter and spirit of the same.

Lies over under the rules.

Under a suspension of the rules the following resolutions were adopted:

By Mr. Kent, of St. Helena:

Resolved, That the rules of the House shall be so changed that the Committee on the Penitentiary shall consist of seven instead of five members.

By Mr. Isabelle, of Orleans:

Resolved, That 100 additional copies of the metropolitan police bill be printed for the accommodation of the members.

By Mr. Demarest, of St. Mary:

Resolved, That the chairman of each of the standing committees of this House be and is hereby authorized to call upon the Sergeants-at-Arms of this honorable body for all necessary furniture for the furnishing of rooms of their respective committees, and it shall be the Sergeant-at-Arms's duty to furnish said rooms.

By Mr. Mansion, of Orleans:

WHEREAS, It is necessary for the clerks of each committee to have a copy of the journal which publishes the proceedings of this House for the performance of their duties.

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms is hereby authorized to furnish every day to each clerk of said committees one copy of the New Orleans REPUBLICAN.

By Mr. Harper, of St. Charles, moved that the Sergeant at-Arms be instructed to furnish the Judiciary Committee with a copy of the Revised Statutes of 1856, a copy of the Civil Code and Code of Practice; also a copy of the Statutes of the State for each year since 1856.

By Mr. Carr, of Orleans:

Resolved, That the Committee on Elections, in order to expedite business, may require depositions of witnesses of the respective parties to be taken before any Justice of the Peace in the city of New Orleans.

Either party intending to so take depositions of witnesses shall give the opposite party or his attorney one day's written notice of the time of taking such depositions, and before what Justice of the Peace.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Election and Qualifications through its chairman, Mr. Carr, reported as follows:

On motion the report was adopted.

To the Speaker and Members of the Honorable House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The Committee on Contested Elections and Qualifications appointed by your honorable body, beg leave to report that they have fully investigated the cases of J. Battel Payne against C. A. Eager, and Isaac Fuller against W. Pope Noble and C. R. May, and that after a careful examination they find no grounds of contests. Therefore your committee respectfully recommend that said C. A. Eager, W. Pope Noble and C. R. May be allowed to take their seats as Representatives from the Tenth Representative District of the parish of Orleans.

Respectfully submitted,
M. CARR, Chairman;
DENNIS BURREL,
HARRY LOTT,
F. C. ANTOINE,
C. B. PRATT,
M. D. KAVANAGH,
Committee on Elections and Qualifications.

Under a suspension of the rules the following joint resolution, offered by Mr. Deslonde, of Iberville, passed its first reading:

Joint resolution directing the appointment of a committee to inquire into the best plan of supporting paupers.

WHEREAS, The article 126 of the Constitution directs that "it shall be the duty of the General Assembly to make it obligatory upon each parish to support all paupers residing within its limits;"

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives each appoint a joint committee from their respective chambers to inquire into the best plan of supporting paupers, with a view of submitting a bill for the future action of the Legislature, that shall direct a uniform, practical and economical system of supporting paupers by the several parishes.

Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, under a suspension of the rules, offered the following joint resolution:

Joint resolution authorizing the Governor of the State to negotiate a loan of $250,000 (two hundred and fifty thousand dollars) for the use of the State.

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the Governor of the State be and he is hereby authorized to negotiate a loan for the use of the State of the sum of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, said loan not to extend for a greater period than twelve months from its inception, and moneys received therefrom to be placed to the credit of the General Fund in the State treasury.

Be it further enacted, etc., That for the purpose of effecting the said loan the Governor be and he is hereby authorized to sign and issue or pledge collateral security for the payment of the obligations incurred in pursuance of this resolution such number of the bonds known as the levee bonds, authorized by act 115, Legislature of 1867, as may be necessary to effect said loan.

All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this resolution are hereby repealed.

Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, moved that the constitutional rules be suspended, in order to place the joint resolution on its final passage.

After some discussion the last motion was withdrawn.

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, moved that the rules be suspended in order to place the joint resolution on its second reading.

Carried.

The joint resolution passed its second reading, and was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. 150 copies ordered to be printed.

Under a suspension of the rules Mr. Wren, of Bossier, offered the following bill:

An act to protect the health of the city of New Orleans and of the town of Algiers, on the right bank of the Mississippi river, parish of Orleans.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That hereafter it shall be unlawful to land, keep, or slaughter any cattle, beeves, calves, sheep, swine, or other animals, or to have, keep or establish any stock landing yards, pens, slaughterhouses or abattoirs at any point or place within the city of New Orleans, or the parish of Jefferson, or at any point or place on the left bank of the Mississippi river extending ten miles from the Waterworks, or at any point or place within the parish of Orleans, right bank, above the present line of the New Orleans and Opelousas railroad.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That any person or persons, firm, or corporation exercising or carrying on any business or doing any act in contravention of any of the provisions of this act, shall be amenable to the Board of Health of the city of New Orleans in the sum of one thousand dollars ($1000) for each offense, to be recovered, with costs of suit, in the manner provided by law; and the said Board of Health is hereby charged and directed to enforce a strict compliance with the provisions of this act.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That all laws or parts of laws contrary to or in conflict with this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall go into effect from and after the thirtieth of September, 1868.

Which passed its second reading, and was referred to the Committee on Public Health and Quarantine.

Mr. Hanlon, of Orleans, offered the following amendment:

Moved to refer it to a select committee of eleven, composed as follows: Two from each District of the city of New Orleans, one from the parish of Jefferson, one from the parish of St. Bernard, and one from the parish of Orleans (right bank).

Yeas and nays were demanded, and the amendment was lost by the following vote:

Yeas: Antoine, Adolphe, Bennett, Buckingham, Belot, Barbee, Bergeron, Carr, De Grange, Evans, Esnard, Fouts, Guigonet, Garstkamp, Haskell, Hanlon, Honore, Hutchinson, Isabelle, Kent, McCullen, McVean, Melvin, Mansion, May, Magee, Noble, Pratt, Raymond, Reese, Ray, Slaton, Umphreys, Zoelly—34.

Referred to the Committee on Judiciary, and two hundred copies ordered to be printed.

By Mr. Isabelle, of Orleans:

House bill No. 51, an act to provide for the registration of all qualified voters in the State, the conduct of elections, and the mode of contesting the same.

Referred to the Committee on Registration, and two hundred copies ordered to be printed.

Mr. Noble moved that Mr. Eager be sworn in.

Carried.

The oath of office was administered by Chief Justice Hyman.

Under a suspension of the rules, Mr. Raymond, of Jefferson, offered the following bill, which passed its first and second readings:

House bill No. 50, an act entitled an act to incorporate the town of Gretna, parish of Jefferson, State of Louisiana, and was referred to the Committee on Corporation.

Under a suspension of the rules the following joint resolution, offered by Mr. Wren, of Bossier, passed on its first and second readings:

Resolved, That the Senate and House of Representatives appoint a joint committee of five, viz: two from the Senate and three from the House, to investigate and examine the act created by the late Legislature, whereby four millions of dollars in levee bonds were issued, and to ascertain what disposition has been made of the same.

Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, moved that the constitutional rule be suspended in order to place the joint resolution offered by Mr. Wren on its final passage.

Carried.

Yeas and nays demanded, and the resolution was adopted by the following vote:

Yeas: Abbott, Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Bennett, Buckingham, Belot, Brewster, Barbee, Burrel, Bergeron, Calhoun, Carr, Dewees, Dufresne, DeGrange, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Eager, Esnard, Faulkner, Fouts, Guigonet, Gair, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, Haskell, Hanlon Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Kent, Le Blanc, Leroy, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McCullen, Mahier, McMillen, McVean, Melvin, Morey, Moran, May, Mathews, Magee, Noble, Pearce, Pratt, Page, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Slaton, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor, Tureaud, Walsh, Washington, Wren, Wilson, Umphreys, William C. Williams, H. Williams, Zoelly—71.

Nay: Lee—1.

And the joint resolution was ordered to be sent to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, moved to adjourn.

Lost.

Secretary of the Senate was announced, asking concurrence of the House in the following joint resolution:

1. Joint resolution requesting the late Warrant Clerk of the Constitutional Convention to furnish the General Assembly with a statement separately of warrants issued by him, to whom, etc.

2. A joint resolution providing for the appointment of a joint committee of five members of the General Assembly to investigate the conduct of the late elections, and the present condition of peace and order in the State.

BILLS ON THEIR THIRD READING.

House bill No. 37 being on its third reading,

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, moved to strike out the words, "one assistant superintendent."

Mr. Isabelle, of Orleans, moved to lay the motion to strike out on the table.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, raised the following point of order:

That the motion to strike out not being an amendment, the motion to lay on the table could not be entertained.

The Chair decided that the motion was in order.

The motion to lay on the table prevailed by the following rising vote:

Yeas 32, nays 22.

Mr. Noble, of Orleans, moved to lay on the table, subject to call, the bill offered by the Committee on Education.

Carried—Yeas 35, nays 29.

SENATE BILLS FOR CONCURRENCE.

By Mr. Lynch, of Carroll:

A joint resolution requesting the Warrant Clerk of the late Constitutional Convention to furnish the General Assembly with a statement separately of warrants issued by him, to whom, etc.

Leave of absence of ten days was granted to Mr. Murrell, of Lafourche.

On motion of Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, the House adjourned until to-morrow at twelve o'clock M.

WM. VIGERS,
Chief Clerk House of Representatives.

Twenty-First Day's Session.

WEDNESDAY, July 22, 1868.

The House met pursuant to adjournment, Speaker Lowell in the chair.

The roll being called, sixty-three members answered to their names:

Speaker Lowell, Alexander, Adolphe, Bennett, Buckingham, Belot, Brewster, Bergeron, Collins, Calhoun, Deslonde, Dewees, Dupart, Evans, Eager, Guigonet, Gair, Garstkamp, Guidry, Hill, Haskell, Hanlon, Hutchinson, Holland, Le Blanc, Leroy, Lott, Morris; Mollere, McCullen, Mahier, McVean, Melvin, Mansion, May, Mathews, Magee, Noble, Pearce, Pratt, Page, Pierce, Prescott, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Slaton, Smith, Sterrett, Tate, Taylor, Tureaud, Walsh, Washington, Wren, Wilson, William C. Williams, H. Williams, N. Young, D. Young, Zoelly—63.

Prayer by Rev. C. P. Lemaistre.

On motion of Mr. Rey, of Orleans, the reading of the journal was dispensed with.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, presented the following petition, which on motion was referred to the Committee on Claims:

To the Honorable Members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened:

The undersigned, Benjamin Weil, of New Orleans, respectfully represents that on the twenty-eighth of November, 1866, the State Auditor (as authorized by the sixteenth section of the revised statutes of Louisiana, page twenty-eight), issued to him fifteen certificates of indebtedness, amounting in the aggregate to $140,894 32 100 (one hundred and forty thousand eight hundred and ninety-four dollars and thirty-two cents) for goods delivered to the State; that said certificates were duly approved by Hon. J. M. Wells, then Governor of Louisiana; that they are justly due, and still unsatisfied in whole or part, and not convertible into available means.

He, therefore, earnestly begs that an appropriation be made to pay them.

Very respectfully, B. WEIL.

New Orleans, July 20, 1868.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Raymond, of Jefferson, offered the following resolution, which lies over under the rules:

Resolved, That after this day the House of Representatives meet at ten o'clock A. M. in place of twelve o'clock M., as we have business of great extent and importance which we will not be able to attend to without the House of Representatives meet at an earlier hour than twelve o'clock M.

Under a suspension of the rules Mr. Carr, of Orleans, offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS, The examinations into cases of contested elections in this House and in the Senate have elicited the fact that most startling and outrageous frauds were committed at the late election in the city of New Orleans, and abundance of proof exists that the many present officers of the city of New Orleans owe their election to frauds; and

Whereas, the present charter of the city of New Orleans, adopted in the days of slavery, is unsuited to the present times, and replete with various defects; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Speaker appoint a special committee of five members of this House from the city of New Orleans to frame and report a new charter for the city of New Orleans, guaranteeing fair elections and equal taxation, and securing the same rights to all citizens of said city.

Mr. Hanlon, of Orleans, moved to refer the above resolution to a select committee composed of one member from each ward of the city of New Orleans.

Mr. Wren, of Bossier, moved to lay the motion on the table.

Carried.

On motion of Mr. Carr, of Orleans, the resolution was adopted.

RERORTS OF STANDING COMMITEES.

None.

Select committees report progress.

NOTICES OF BILLS.

By Mr. McVean, of Caldwell:

An act empowering the Governor to fill all vacancies under the provisions of Article 120 of the Constitution.

Lies over under the rules.

By Mr. William H. Pierce, of Livingston:

An act granting to Gabriel Mullen the exclusive right to build a toll bridge across Amite river.

Lies over under the rules.

Under a suspension of the rules the following joint resolution, offered by Mr. Faulkner, of Caldwell, underwent its several readings, was adopted and ordered to be sent to the Senate for concurrence:

A Joint Resolution authorizing the Acting Clerk of the District Court and Parish Recorder of the parish of Caldwell to count and compile the votes cast for Justices of the Peace for Ward No. 4, of said parish of Caldwell, and the Sheriff of said parish to make return of the result thereof to the Secretary of State as soon as practicable.

WHEREAS, At the election held in this State on the seventeenth and eighteenth days of April, 1868, for State, parish, judicial, and municipal officers, the military registrars and election officers made no return of the votes cast for Justices of the Peace and other municipal officers of the parish of Caldwell; and

Whereas, There is no Justice of the Peace for Ward No. 4 in the said parish, which embraces the town of Columbia (an incorporated town) and the courthouse of said parish, and it is indispensable to the civil and criminal administration of justice therein that there be a qualified Justice of the Peace in said Ward; therefore

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the Clerk of the District Court and Parish Recorder of the parish of Caldwell count and compile the votes cast for Justices of the Peace in and for Ward No. 4 of said parish on the seventeenth and eighteenth days of April, 1868, and that the Sheriff of said parish make return of the result thereof as soon as practicable to the Secretary of State, and the Governor of the State issue a commission or commissions to the successful candidates for a Justice or Justices of the Peace for said ward.

Be it further resolved or enacted, That said act or joint resolution will take effect immediately after its passage.

Mr. Brewster, of Ouachita, under a suspension of the rules, offered the following bill, which went through its first and second readings:

House bill No. 54, an act fixing the compensation and providing for the payment of the officers and employes of the General Assembly.

Mr. Burrel, of St. John Baptist, moved to lay the bill on the table.

Lost.

Mr. Abbot, of Concordia, moved to amend by allowing pages $3 instead of $1 50.

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, moved to lay the amendment of Mr. Abbot on the table.

Carried.

The bill was then referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

BILLS ON THEIR FIRST READING.

By Mr. Milton Morris, of Ascension:

House bill No. 55, an act to establish a uniform rate of taxes and licenses on trades, professions and occupations throughout the cities, towns, villages and parishes of the State of Louisiana.

By Mr. Isabelle, of Orleans:

Joint Resolution relative to a certain salary.

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That W. W. Handlin having performed the duties of Judge of the Third District Court of New Orleans during the whole business season up to the fourth of July, 1864, is entitled to his salary for four months during the vacation or summer months, until his successor was installed in office.

By Mr. May, of Orleans:

House bill No. 17, an act to amend the second clause of the thirty-first section of act No. 346, passed March 15, 1855.

MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE.

The Secretary of the Senate appeared and announced that the bill making a transfer of the special fund to the general fund had been returned without the signature of the Governor, and that the Senate had passed the bill over the veto of the Governor.

The Senate asked concurrence in the joint resolution requesting the General Commanding the armies of the United States to furnish the civil authorities of this State such forces as may be necessary to secure peace and good order in the State.

Mr. Isabelle, of Orleans, introduced the following bill:

House bill No. 56, an act in relation to the New Orleans, Mobile and Chattanooga Railroad Company, a corporation of the State of Alabama, and authorizing and empowering said company to exercise and enjoy its corporate powers and franchises in the State of Louisiana.

Under a suspension of the rules the bill passed its first and second readings.

Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, moved that the bill be referred to a committee of the whole and it be made the special order of the day for Monday next, at ten o'clock A. M.

Lost by a rising vote—yeas 23, nays 38.

The bill was then referred to the Committee on Railroads, and 150 copies ordered to be printed.

Under a suspension of the rules the following bill passed its first and second readings:

By William C. Williams, of East Feliciana:

House bill No. 59, a bill for the organization of the militia of the State of Louisiana.

Referred to the Committee on Militia, and 150 copies ordered to be printed.

The veto of the Governor on House bill relative to the transferring of the special fund to the general fund was taken up.

Mr. Isabelle, of Orleans, moved to reconsider the action of the House and that the bill be passed over the veto of the Governor.

The yeas and nays were called and resulted as follows:

Yeas: Abbot, Alexander, Adolphe, Antoine, Bennett, Buckingham, Belot, Brewster, Burrel, Bergeron, Calhoun, Carr, Dewees, Demarest, Dupart, Evans, Eager, Esnard, Faulkner, Guigonet, Gair, Garstkamp, Guidry, Hill, Haskell, Hanlon, Hutchinson, Holland, Isabelle, Kavanagh, Le Blanc, Leroy, Lott, Morris, Mollere, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, May, Mathews, Noble, Pratt, Pierce, Prescott, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Slaton, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor,

General Cyrus Bussy.

We are right glad to see our honored friend again in our midst. He and his family reached here on the evening of the 4th, and are stopping at the City Hotel. The General is in excellen health and spirits. He is an ornament to the church and the city.

Ames Methodist Episcopal Church.

There will be preaching every Sabbath at 11 A. M., in Dr. Newman's church, corner of St. Charles and Calliope streets, and social meetings for conference and prayer every Sunday and Thursday evening from eight to nine o'clock in the lecture room. You are invited.

Mississippi Conference.

It may not be known by some of our ministers that the last General Conference created a new Conference of the State of Mississippi, the first session of which will be held this winter, probably at Vicksburg.

We are led to speak of this by having received letters on certain matters, which should be addressed to the Presiding Elders of the districts from whence the letters were sent.

Inforationm Wanted.

By Mrs. Maria Curtis, of her brothers Isaac and Edmond, Thomas and her sister Sophia. Her brother and herself were sold from Tennessee, by Lawrence Sipherd, in 1837. Her brother that was out here with her is named Isum. When last heard from they lived in Lebanon, Tennessee.

Address Mrs. Maria Curtis, in care of Rev. Evens Green, Green's Chapel, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Beautiful Epitaph.

In the country grave-yard, where sleep in peace honored parents, we were wandering last summer, and on a tablet erected to the memory of a beloved wife, we found the following touching epitaph:—[Ed.

"The heart was throbbing
Is calmly at rest,
Hands that were busy
Are laid on her breast,
Eyes that were brilliant
Ne'er shall unclose,
Beautiful sleeper,
How sweet thy repose."

Editorial Enterprise.

Our enterprising young friends, Roberts & Joyner, who lately established a Republican journal in St. Mary's Parish, at the earnest solicitations of citizens, send us quite a complimentary letter, from which we make the following extracts:

"We have truly had a pretty hard road to travel so far; open insult and personal violence have been employed; but we have taken a high stand and intend to maintain it. No notice has been taken by us of the many slights and indirect insults we have met with on all occasions, until recently, and I am happy to say we are surely winning our way. Since the affair in our office, the feeling has rapidly subsided, and now we can walk Main street from one end to the other generally without audible comment from men or boys. * * We are struggling along manfully, and intend to leave no stone unturned to give a respectable and reliable paper to this parish. We are doing our own work and living as economically as possible, determined to succeed and content to abide our time. With Grant's election, which can hardly be doubted, we expect a cessation of persecution of Union men and a decided revolution in public feeling. All goes on slowly here but surely; the Democrats have lost much of their aggressiveness, and grown quite indifferent."

Democratic Programme.

We venture the judgment, from events transpiring in the parishes, that a deliberate purpose has been formed to disarm and devote to death the Republicans of our State, whenever this is practicable. Any and every circumstance is seized upon as the pretext—some personal difficulty, a newspaper article or a political meeting and "the citizens rally to protect their wives and children from the enraged and murderous negroes." This is the usual phraseology employed to express their idea and purpose, which is to kill off "niggers and saddle baggers." No appeal to law is thought of or desired, with the instinct of the slave driver, these "citizens" rush to the weapon of the ruffian and the argument of the murderer.

It is wonderful to see how coolly the papers in the interest of the rioters say in their report of the Opelousas massacre: "The plantations were visited and the negroes made to understand that unless they surrendered their arms, they would be taken out and shot," and "the whites pursued them and only desisted after killing all they found with arms in their hands." Then the usual climax, corresponding with Millican, Texas, Camilla, Georgia, Shreveport and the New Orleans massacres, "over a hundred negroes were killed and about fifty wounded; the whites had four wounded, but none killed."

In a labored editorial of the 6th inst., this massacre is commended by the New Orleans Crescent as salutary and necessary in order "to save white civilization from the tide of African barbarism, which threatens to overwhelm it." Save us from this sort of civilization; it is worse than bogus, Christendom and humauity abhor it. The same paper reports "a negro riot" in Shreveport, in this absurd manner. A drunken teamster fired his revolver in the air, whereupon some negroes seized and bound him to a tree, but soon released him; immediately a few other negroes, from an adjoining plantation, came up, and without any provication, shot Messrs. Ogden, Brownlee and Thompson, white citizens. Then "the citizens" of Shreveport turned out en masse and killed about nineteen negroes, after which everything was quiet! Unquestionably this was one of the struggles "to save white civilization from the tide of African barbarism." No word is said of appeal to law, no hesitation shown as to the proper course to be taken. Who are these "citizens" so often referred to as above all law, and who are so prompt to execute vengeance? They are the scum of society, worthless, infamous, mercenary outlaws. Such men are instructed by the New Orleans Times, Crescent and like journals, to administer to such as differ with them politically the "salutary" discipline of the revolver and bowie knife.

In the St. Landry affair the rioters have been more than usually unfortunate in their pretext. Their first victim, Mr. Bentley, is a youth of eighteen years, who has for three or four years been teaching school under the Freedmen's Bureau. He has always sustained an excellent character, is unusually amiable and talented, and the last man to give an affront or do an act of injustice. It is to his honor that the proprietors of the St. Laundry Progress employed him as one of its editors. On Monday morning, September 29th, three men, with white skins, entered his school, in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Opelousas, drew their pistols and proceeded to brutally whip this unarmed boy. How chivalric! how brave! and this for an honest statement, susceptible of proof, which these heroes professed to consider offensive. The Church was crowded with school children, who naturally made some ado, and this drew to the place many of their parents and friends, who of course were indignant and excited about the outrage upon their friend. They were disposed to defend Mr. Bentley, but he calmed and sent them home, saying he would appeal to the laws for redress. He at once made complaint, and warrants were made out for the arrest of the parties; no officer, however, would serve them, but instead, an alarm was spread that the negroes had arisen and were bent upon terrible carnage. No gatherings of armed colored men took place in or around the town, excepting one small company from the prairie, who had heard that fighting was going on in Opelousas. This party was met near town and dispersed. At first the advantage was with the colored men, but large reinforcements came from the town and several negroes were killed and wounded. The rioters then proceeded to search dwellings and visit plantations, plundering arms and committing outrages upon colored and white Republicans. Mr. Durand, a French citizen, and one of the editors of the Progress, was seized, dragged off and probably murdered. Active search was made for Mr. Bentley and other obnoxious persons. The Progress office was broken open, the press destroyed, and its types strewn in the street. A young gentleman connected with the paper, and chairman of the parish Republican committee, Mr. F. D'Avy, was shot, in bed, but escaped with a slight wound. Probably the number of the colored people killed and wounded will never be known. It was such an occasion as the chivalry know how to improve. The statements we have given may be relied upon, as they were obtained from a gentleman who was present during the riot, and they are confirmed by other witnesses. We have churches, schools, preachers and teachers, in this and adjoining parishes, and we appeal to the country and the laws for the protection guaranteed to us by the constitution. Shall we have it or shall we and our people continue to be the victims of the Democratic programme?

New Orleans United States Custom-House.

We do not know that there ever was a time when the utterance of the words "New Orleans Custom-House" did not suggest to the mind fraud, bribery, theft and rascality in general. But we do know that of late it has not had the reputation of being managed by saints. And if the business thereof has been transacted with any aim at honesty and integrity, then the managers have been badly defamed.

We generally expect that the party in power, or the appointing power, will, under all ordinary circumstances, have the chief offices filled with men from their own ranks, and perhaps we might expect that most of the appointees and laborers would be from such party. But when the enemies of the country are found among that party, whom the President, the appointing power, would favor, we do not consider the circumstances ordinary, and therefore we look upon the late action of the Collector of Customs as a piece of gross injustice.

We bear no hatred toward those who were lately rebels, and who did their best to destroy the Government, and who have to-day no regrets for their course, but rather glory in it; yet we do decidedly affirm that they have not as good a claim to the offices or the position of laborers in the Custom-House as the men who fought against them and periled their lives to save the country. In other words, the employes of a government should in all justice and wisdom, be the friends of that government and not its enemies; who, in their hatred, sought to destroy it; who hate and curse it to-day while it feeds them, and who hourly wish it to be sundered: who, regarding it as an enemy now the same as during the war, apparantly think it no crime to rob and defraud it to the greatest extent in their power. Especially do we consider it an outrage on justice and common sense to allow prominent enemies of our country and leaders in the great rebellion to have such influence and control over the collector, that at their bidding scores of Union men and ex-officers and soldiers of the Federal army are kicked out of employment to make places for twice as many ex-rebel officers and soldiers, some of whom are from the worst class of society.

But to the men thus thrust out we say be patient. The present administration will not last long. Grant will soon be at the helm of State. Such acts of injustice as has been shown you together with the wanton attacks on, and slaughter of Union people through the South, as at Camilla and Opelousas, will only tend to bring about this much desired end. They will make votes by the ten thousands for Grant.

Be patient, for the coming spring will bring a change. This Custom-house and others too will doubtless have a cleansing. To the one who shall then seek to be an employe therein, the best recommend toward securing a situation, will not be that signed by a prominent ex-rebel officer, nor the ground of that recommend be that said applicant was a soldier in the Confederate Army. No! Such recommends will not be required then, and therefore you, the friends and defenders of your country, will stand some chance for employment by her. Therefore, we say again, be patient.

But as to the article which called forth these remarks we give it below as it appeared in the New Orleans Republican of the 5th inst.

A Card.—We, the undersigned, recently discharged employes of the Customhouse, port of New Orleans, beg leave to present the following statement of facts in connection with our discharge and of the class of men appointed in our stead:

That on the thirtieth of September, 1868, we received a notice as follows:

Sir—Your services after this date will be no longer required.

To ——

PERRY FULLER, Collector.

Said notices being unaccompanied with our payrolls, while many have families and are thus deprived of the means to go elsewhere and are unable to procure employment here.

There were a number of clerks in the Auditor's office who were requested to furnish the department with their political status in writing.

We were discharged mainly through the influence of Colonel J. O Nixon, Colonel J. B. Walton, T. L. Macon and others, late of the Confederate army, and General J. B. Steedman and Colonel W. M. Smallwood, ex-officers of the United States army.

That many of us have served in the United States army during the late war in defense of the Union; and we have now been discharged to give place to those who sought in armed hostility to destroy the Government which is a direct violation of an act of Congress, and a circular issued from the Treasury Department, thereby making treason honorable, and bringing into contempt those who responded to the Government in her hour of danger.

That by way of retrenchment sixty-five Union men were discharged, and one hundred and fifty new appointments made of the class above mentioned.

When such characters as Eugene Du-Pratt and Lucien Adams are appointed as successors of honorably discharged United States officers and soldiers, and other good loyal men, we may well pause and reflect on the present issue.

In conclusion, we would most respectfully urge upon all good Republicans the necessity of considering well what would be their fate were the Democrats able to rule the government under Seymour and Blair for the ensuing four years.

The Situation.

Every intelligent citizen must contemplate the present situation of Louisiana with profound regret. The baser passions of human nature have gained the mastery and now rule the land. Goaded by the misfortunes of an ill-starred war; rendered desperate by successive years of financial failure; stung to the inner soul by the loss of political power, and exasperated to desperation by the elevation of former slaves to be rulers in the land, the Democrats have reached a point when they consider patience no longer a virtue. Forgetting that in the opinion of every right-minded man, they themselves are the cause of their own misfortunes; and instead of struggling lawfully against their real and imaginary ills, they are flying to those they know not of. Every where there is a resort to arms, and, as of old, force is invoked to carry their point. Grim, ghastly murder holds high revels in the State. Mobs and violence rule the hour. Denuded of troops, the interior parishes of Louisiana are without law and order, and the most glaring crimes go unpunished. The helpless are without protection and loyal industry is without defense. Editors are caned for the free expression of opinion; newspaper offices are destroyed; churches are fired: colored citizens are forcibly disarmed, and men and women are brutally murdered. Nor is it safe for certain citizens to travel in the interior of our State: indeed, some of our Legislators dare not return to their homes. That this is not an overdrawn picture of our present situation, no one will will deny. The above facts are reported in the Democratic press of this city.

If we candidly inquire into the cause of this condition of society, it will be found in the struggle for political power. It is not in the bruited fact that "carpet-baggers" are in power, for four-fifths of all the offices in this State are filled by "old citizens," and even if the four-fifths were "carpet-baggers," this would be of nothing worth, as nineteen-twentieths of the leading Democrats throughout Louisiana are "old carpet-baggers" and it is only a question of difference of five years on an average. All the brains, all the wealth, all the intelligence of Louisiana is imported, and the "new carpet-baggers" are only a late importation. Foreign goods usually command a higher price. The cause is not to be found in the comparative economy and extravagance of the two parties. The whole expense of the Constititutional Convention of 1868, is only $240,000, while the last Democratic Legislature we had, spent and squandered THREE MILLIONS of dollars. Sheridan's Common Council was denounced for its profligacy, and the Times is loud in its denunciation of the rascality of the present "City Fathers." The truth is, professional politicians are professional plunderers of the public crib, whether Democrats or Republicans; yet the public have greater reason to look for economy from the latter than from the former. Much has been said against the Printing bill, and the Republicans are held responsible for its passage; yet leading citizens of New Orleans, of the Democratic persuasion, have been laboring for months to have this same Republican General Assembly to pass a bill exchanging FIVE MILLIONS of old Confederate bonds for $5,000,000 of negotiable State bonds. The holders of these bonds gave dinners to certain Republican Legislators, and by more solid influence secured the passage of the bill but which was reconsidered by the personal influence of two staunch Republicans. "Pot shouldn't call kettle black."

Nor do the parties differ as to the relative positions of the colored man and the white people. If the Democrats are unwilling to the elevation of the negro above the white man, the Republicans are no less unwilling, and such a predominance is no part of their political creed. Should the blacks attempt such a predominance of race, the Republicans would join any and every white man against them.

What then are the points of difference?

1. The Republicans believe in the political equality of the black man; in his eligibility to any office within the gift of the people; the Democrats don't.

2. The Republicans accept the Congressional plan of reconstruction; the Democrats deny that Congress is a constitutional body.

3. The Republicans are in favor of free speech and a free press, but the Democrats favor the stoppage of the former, and mobs and the destruction of the latter by riots.

4. The Democrats aim at the election of Seymour and the restoration of Confederates to power; the Republicans go for Grant and the eternal rule of loyalty.

The Republicans are in power and the Democrats want to be. This third point is the dagger point. To restore power, the supporters of Seymour and Blair would not object to stand on the reconstruction platform and would even dare to sit beside a negro in the General Assembly. Power would cover a multitude of sins and make black white as of yore. There is all the difference in the world between a Democrat in office and out of office. And the great struggle on the part of the Democracy is for official power. All ther rights are conserved under the State Constitution, and if they don't rule the land it is because they can't.

Presidential Electors.

We are in favor of the election of Presidential electors by the people rather than by the legislature. We believe such an election would be wise and honorable. It would be a fine expression of the popular will which would reflect imperishable glory upon our political institutions, the intelligence of our citizens, and upon the Republican party. And confident that the State will go for Grant and Colfax, such an election would do much toward the pacification of our whole people. It would be an open, constitutional contest between the parties now struggling for power, and would be a development of relative strength which would reveal the future of Louisiana. In such an election the Republicans have everything to gain; the Democrats everything to lose. With a party majority of 20,000 it would be dishonorable to shrink from such a contest, it would be a confession of fear and weakness if not downright cowardice: and whoever, whether man or party, evinces such contemptible traits of character is not deserving the respect of the Southern people. Pluck commands a premium in the South, and it is about the only thing that does. All that the Republicans have thus far gained in Louisiana has been by the exhibition of a sublime courage worthy of this or any other age. A little more pluck, gentlemen, a little more pluck. Throw your banner on the outer wall bearing the magical words: "Grant and Peace, Colfax and Honesty." Teach the Democrats that you are a "foeman worthy of their steel," and that on a fair field you can conquer.

It is objected, however, that in the country parishes a fair election can not at this time be held, that the colored voters will be intimidated, that the Democrats have resolved to carry the election at the point of the knife. This is possible, and judging from the recent scenes in Opelousas and Shreveport it is even probable. But such a contest would not be a fair one; to engage in it would be madness rather than courage, the responsibility of not holding an election would then be with the Democrats, where it logically belongs, and they shall bear it. But before the proper authorities determine not to hold such an election let the Governor of Louisiana call upon General Rousseau for troops to be stationed in every parish, for the protection of our citizens in the exercise of their civil and political rights, and in doing so he will have done his duty and will receive the approval of his countrymen.

One word further. The Crescent, of October sixth, threatens trouble—bloodshed—if the Legislature shall cas the electoral vote. The following is its langnage:

It is reported that the insane members of the Dryades street concern are discussing the expediency of taking on themselves the task of casting the electoral vote of Louisiana. We have heard of a camel which had long endured a great load, but whose back was at last broken by a feather. This gross and crowning outrage would be something more weighty than a feather, and the camel might not be able to bear it even if it should try. We do not think, however, that even the Dryades street legislators are so crazy as to try this ridiculous experiment.

Such a threat is unworthy of so respectable a journal as the Crescent, and especially at this time when Colonel Nixon is the head of a party clamoring for the "Constitution as it was." Will Colonel Nixon and his Democratic followers submit to the Constitution of the United States in this matter? If so, here is the law:

Article II: Section I; P. II: "Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress, but no Senator, or Representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States shall be appointed an elector."

A Democrat musician, who recently performed for a Republican demonstration in South Boston, has been converted through the influence of a stone thrown at a transparency in the procession by one of the "unterrified," but which, unfortunately for them hit him. He says that stone will be the means of giving General Grant one more vote.

The Storm and Flood.

On Thursday afternoon, of last week, the equinoctial storm commenced. The rain was accompanied by a high wind, both of which seemed to increase until a late hour Friday night.

The wind drove in the waters into Lake Ponchartrain, until that body of water broke over its usual bounds, making gradual encroachments on the lands toward the city. It finally reached the back streets on Saturday, either by breaking through or overflowing the embankments which have been made in the rear of the city, for protection from high water.

People in the three upper districts of the city who left their houses high and dry in the morning had to wade to them in the evening, on their return. The water continued to rise, until, on Sunday the sidewalks were covered as far in as Liberty street, and the carriage road as far as Franklin street.

The street cars on Canal and other streets, extending to the rear of the city, ceased running, and also the steam cars on the Ponchartrain Railroad. It is said that this is the first time that the cars have ever been prevented by high water from running, since the building of the road, which is nearly twenty years.

Many families, who lived in one story buildings, were obliged to leave home for a few days. The vegetable gardens in the rear of the city must have been greatly damaged.

Many of the milkmen had to drive in their cows on to higher ground. Some failed, through the absence of bridges, which the water carried away, to provide their customers on Sunday morning with their usual supply of Mississippi water and milk. As many of the cows got so water-soaked, we predict that the mixture, bought as milk, will for some days taste more strongly than ever of water. We hope, if this be the case, that all will bear in mind the misfortune that has overtaken, and therefore exercise due forbearance towards the cows, as they have tried heretofore to do the fair thing.

Members of the Howard Association, we understand, made visits to the overflowed portions of the city, in boats, to provide for the wants of the suffering poor. There were many, doubtless, who needed their aid, and we are glad to know that this Association had the means as well as the good will to care for them.

We heard that one of the light-houses on the route to Mobile had been destroyed by the storm.

As the water has risen so much higher than usual through the effect of this storm, there is reason to fear much destruction of property and even loss of life at other points on the coast, especially on the Texas coast. There is scarcely a chance to hope otherwise. Yet up to our present writing we have heard of no great calamities.

What Do They Mean?

The New Orleans Times and other papers of its kith and kin, have a malignant meaning in exaggerating the number of colored persons killed and wounded in the late massacre at Opelousas. While it is a well ascertained fact that not twenty-five, all told, were killed and wounded. Yet the Times states that one hundred were killed and fifty wounded. Now the palpable object of this exaggeration is two-fold: to excite Democratic sympathy in the North and to intimidate the blacks in the South. By the large numbers slain, it is sought to show that the whole negro population of Louisiana is armed and have conspired against the whites, who are exposed to all the horrors of a St. Domingo massacre, and that the slaughter of so many was a solemn necessity of self-preservation. Yet the Times blunders as usual in forgetting that which is calculated to awaken Democratic sympathy in the North, will as inevitably kindle Republican zeal and make for us a thousand votes to one gained on the other side. We, therefore, thank the Times for such reports, and while we deprecate the lie, we rejoice that "God maketh the wrath of man to praise him."

The intimidation of the poor freedman may be accomplished more easily, and many will not dare to manifest their political preference; yet we trust that our colored people will not lose their courage, nor throw away their confidence when the victory is so near. We do not say fight, but we say defend yourselves; we do not say arm yourselves, but we do say, "trust in God and keep your powder dry."

Never give an insult; never commence a fight; "suffer wrong rather than do wrong," but when white men, unauthorized, come into your little cabin to take your arms away, then defend yourselves; protect your wives and children, and God help you! Remember that these white men have no right to enter your little cabin and take away your property; that can be done only by the Sheriff or some appointed officer of the law.

And we are happy to know that the above sentiments are approved by such an eminent journal as the New York Methodist, in the following language:

Men are men, watever may be their complexion. At Camilla and elsewhere under the law of the land, they may meet to discuss the questions which involve the public safety. If the black freemen know that every white man about them is always armed, and especially if they know that clans are organized to overthrow the laws of Congress which have made them citizens; and, above all, if they know that this arming and organizing has in view the extermination of white Unionists, and the re-enslavement of the black, they ought to protect themselves, and unless they are unworthy of liberty, they will. All that is wanting to end this trouble is that the old citizens who lost their rights by rebellion, and have recovered them by pardon, shall respect the rights of the new citizens, made such on account of their devotion to the Union, and by the blunders and crimes of their former masters.

Legislative Extravagance.

Some of our legislators feel liberal; indeed, they feel decidedly rich, and fancy that their sole business in the General Assembly is to appropriate money.

Mr. Braughn reports in favor of the purchase of a museum of old coins at a cost of $20,000. Mr. Desloude wants the State to pay $560 for a portrait of Washington. Then in the House, certain gentlemen attempt to rush through a bill without having it read, to authorize the issue of $5,000,000 of new State bonds, in exchange for certain treasury notes, which had been issued in aid of the rebellion. This infamous bill actually passed, and many of the members voted for it from the mendacious story that it was for the benfit of "Union widows and orphans," but thanks to Messrs. Lee and McMillen, the bill was reconsidered, and thanks to the gentlemen who, by this time came to understand the iniquity, the bill was indefinitely postponed. The following is the roll of honor and of dishonor, for indefinite postponent:

Yeas: Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Buckingham, Brewster, Burrel, Bergeron, Collins, Cuny, Crawford, Demarest, Evans, Eager, Esnard, Gair, Garstkamp, Hanlon, Harper, Hutchinson, Holland, Hall, Heidenhain, Isabelle, Kent, Lee, L'Hoste, R. Lange, Morris, Mollere, McMillen, Melvin, Pearce, Pratt, Page, Pierce, Raymond, Rev. Sterritt, Sims, Taylor, Tureaud, Umphreys, Walsh, Washington, Wren, Wilson, H. Williams, Wiltz, D. Young—40.

Nays: Abbot, Dewees, Faulkner, Lott, V. M. Lange, Murrell—6.

We trust that from this time forth greater economy will be practiced, for we can assure the honorable members of our General Assembly that the Republican tax-payers of this city and State, are even now bitterly complaining of your extravagance, and it is more than whispered that new party combinations will spring up in our midst to rescue the credit of our State from the impending danger of utter ruin.

Artificial Stone.

Making stone is a business in St. Louis. There is a concern there which makes out of common sand a mantel equal to one of white marble, and sells it for about ten dollars. The sand in a few hours is converted into rock precisely similar to the strata and ledges beneath the earth, that have required ages of aqueous and igneous action to form them. The process is strictly scientific and chemical. The materils used are common brown or white sand, soda, flint, chlorine, and calcium. The flint, which is the cementing agent, is melted by being subjected to heat, in connection with soda. Flint, in its chemical constitution is an acid, and like all other acids readily combines with an alkali. Combined with soda, the flint, (silica) forms a silicate of soda—a thick, viscid, transparent substance very much like glue. If it is too thin when first made, it is reduced by evaporation in pans till it reaches the proper consistency. It is then mixed with the sand, in a mill from which the mixture comes forth a good deal like wet brown sugar. This substance is called "pug." It is very plastic and works as easily in the hand as wet clay or putty. Each moulder has a quantity of the "pug" placed in a box on the end of his work-bench, from which he takes handfuls as he requires it to press into the mold. It matters not whether the mold is a rosette, a diamond, a flowar, or a leaf ornament—a keystone, a vase, a pedestal, or the section of a mantelpiece—he moulds anything and everything with equal ease, beauty, and accuracy; and when the form is taken from the mold the product is a plastic ornament more perfect and beautiful than a carver could execute in a week of constant and patient labor.—New York Sun.

"Where are the victories you promised us?" said Horatio Seymour sneeringly, in a dark period of the war, just before the glorious illumination of Vicksburg and Gettysburg. Now the Democratic leaders all over the country, who had relied upon the popularity of his nomination, as they witness the returns from Vermont, Maine, Colorado, and New Mexico, repeat the inquiry: "Where are the victories you promised us?"

The advantage of having a watch which strikes the hours was experienced by a gentleman in New York a few evenings since. As he was entering Niblo's his watch was taken. There were some ten or a dozen around him, and he immediately said: "Gentlemen, I have lost my watch. If you will keep quiet it will strike in one minute." The thief started for the door and was captured.

A correspondent writing from Germantown, Ohio, September 10, says that Ohio will ride through the storm with her banners flying with 30,000 majority for Grant. Schenck's Congressional District is sure. The Republicans will defeat Vallandigham easy. The letter concludes thus: "I thought when I was in New York that there was no person but Seymour, but we have got some one else out here."

When you hear a man say, "life is but a dream," tread on his corns and wake him up. Life is real.

Opelousas District.

ENTERPRISE IN DONALDSONVILLE—COLORED MAYOR—BENEVOLENT SOCIETY—SABBATH DESECRATION.

The little coast steamer, Hetty Gilmere, brought us in due time to Donaldsonville. Several new dwelling and warehouses have been recently erected; one very commodious establishment, occupied by an enterprising old citizen, Mr. Marx Israel, gives evidence that considerable business is now being done. The new Mayor, though a man of color, is giving great satisfaction; an excellent colored Constable is also on duty in the place. Good day and Sunday schools are now kept in the Methodist Church, and religious services as usual, with a good degree of interest.

The Benevolent Society is doing great good among the sick and burying the dead; its large toomb is nearly completed. Brother Kennedy is called upon by all classes and colors to visit the sick and attend funerals; he is very popular among the people. We learned that on the morrow a great political meeting was to be held by the Republicans, and that on the Sabbath previous the Democrats had a mass meeting; no interruption was anticipated, but it is sad to have the Lord's day thus desecrated. It is gratifying to know that our preachers and people in the parishes are using all their influence against this old and evil custom.

POLITICAL MEETINGS—ALMOST A RIOT. REPUBLICAN PAPER.

Bayou Lafourche is very low, a mere pond; only the smallest boats now run. The roads were good, and by Brother Kennedy's kindness, we enjoyed a pleasant ride to Napoleonville. This little village was the scene of much excitement, from the fact that two political meetings were being held the same day. Crowds thronged the streets, flags were waving and music helped on the enthusiasm of the people. At the Courthouse the Republican hosts were gathered, and in a grove near town the Democrats had a barbecue. They had more beef, whisky, red caps and music than the the Radicals, but the latter greatly excelled in numbers and enthusiasm, though mule carts, penies and promises were freely given to induce freedmen to attend the Democratic meetings. At an early stage of the proceedings a riot seemed imminent. While the Republicans were passing the ether meeting, some excited colored men cheered loudly for Grant and Colfax; some of the chivalry resented this as insulting, and at once rushed at the offenders, who, unlike the Democrats, had no arms; they broke column, and at a neighboring lumber yard supplied themselves with weapons. Wiser counsel, however, prevailed, and mostly by efforts of Republicans, quiet was restored. We met here the editor of the new Republican paper, styled The Weekly Advocate—our namesake in part, is a neat looking journal. The number we saw contained a spicy article by Senator Poindexter.

NO CHURCH AT NAPOLEON—DEDICATION AT WOODLAWN—KIND EMPLOYER—SABBATH SERVICES.

At Napoleonville our brethren have been much discouraged about their church building. A lot was given them by the late Dr. Kitredge, who died before making the legal transfer. They hope the executors will be as generous to them as the Doctor. We were very comfortably cared for by Brother Johnson, at Woodlawn; eat an excellent dinner at Harris' and enjoyed our visit greatly among these kind people. The new Methodist Episcopal Church was ready for the dedication, and it was a glorious time. The house is thirty by fifty, well built and neat in appearance; doing great credit to its builders and donors. It will be completed without going in debt. It is due to Colonel W. W. Pugh, to say that he has acted in the most honorable and kindly manner to his employes in this matter, against the inclinations of his neighbors. he sold for church purposes three acres of his plantation, and in may ways has encouraged his people in the work of building a house for religious worship. Though a Democrat and a prominent politician, with a club meeting held in his warehouse, the freed people have the kindest feeling towards him, and are glad to be in his employ; yet, so far, but one has joined his party.

Sunday morning an excellent sermon was preached by Brother Brooks, a local preacher, from the words, "Feed my sheep." It was full of instruction, encouragement and warning. The duties of ministers and members were faithfully laid down. In the afternoon the elder preached; no preparations were made for the Lord's supper because of some members requiring discipline; several were under censure for delaying legal marriage. They have a faithful superintendent who fails not to exhort and reprove, giving to each their portion. Many humble and true children of God are in Woodlawn church, and with due regard to the Bible and the Discipline, it will prosper. It was a day of glory and delight, and the beginning of precious seasons on old Lafourche.

BRAGG PLACE—CROPS GOOD—THIBODAUX—NEW CHURCH—COOLIES.

Monday with fair weather and good road, our journey to Thibodaux was very pleasant, on the way a visit was made to the old Bragg place where some of the old Colony people still reside. The schoolhouse is gone and many other changes made. The crops along the bayou are good; cane, corn, potatoes, rice, all have yielded largely this season. Political feeling is warm but no such, disgraceful outrages and proscription for opinion as is common in some parishes, have afflicted our people here.

At Thibodaux I happened to be present at the meeting of the Parish Committee and was gratified to see how orderly and business-like were their proceedings. Most of them were men of color, all were self-reliant and intelligent, and no fear was entertained as to interruption. I also attended a meeting of the benevolent society, an excellent organization which is doing much good. Preached in the Methodist Episcopal Church and examined the condition of the society. Brother Grimes has here a large and interesting circuit, with very little help; the church is feeble, and small progress is made. They have a fine church building, a good school, an active minister, and a few true children who love the old church and thei Lord better than sin and Satan. Tuesday, Brother Grimes kindly engaged a team and took me to his appointment down the bayou. At Brother Bibolet's we had the usual old-fashioned Christian hospitality, and received a good report of the class. Several miles farther down, near Raceland, we looked at a piece of ground given to us by some friends for a church and graveyard. Brother Bibolet gives a house to be removed to the spot, and a cash donation of a hundred dollars, others will give smaller sums, and the church is to be at once erected. Below Raceland a large class is organized and a day school held: here also is a prospect for church building. It will interest our readers to know that one of the teachers of our day schools, on Lafourche, is a genuine Chinaman; an intelligent and good man, who came out with others as a laborer. They have all become disgusted with plantation work as unfitted for them, and have found other occupations. The experiment of substituting coolies for negroes has signally failed.

From the Churches.

Rev. E. Jackson writes from Washington, Louisiana:

On Monday Brother Bryan left us after holding the Quarterly Meeting. It was an interesting time, but much interrupted by the excitement among the people. At eight o'clock the Democrats raised a riot in Opelousas. I am not able to tell you the particulars. Edward and myself, with more of our people, have been under arrest and every one is in confusion and fear. I am happy and glad you were not here, as it is most certain from threats I have heard, that your life would not have been safe. I hope you will not think of going anywhere while the times are so dangerous. I have had shutters made and put up to protect the windows of our church.

The school teacher at Washington writes:

"There has been a great riot in Opelousas, in which many colored and white people were killed and wounded. It came from some white men going into Mr. Bentley's school and beating him for something he printed, which they did not like. My school, too, is broken up, and I am arrested for fear I would go and fight, but I thought it best for me to stay at home. Thank God, my life is still spared, but all of us colored people are in danger of being murdered.

Rev. Mr. Bryan writes from St. Martinsville, with account of his Quarterly Conference:

I write to let you know the proceedings of our third Conference, held Saturday and Sunday, September 19 and 20. I had given notice to all the officers of the churches in my circuit, and fifteen were present.

Rev. J. M. Bryan, chairman, and Daniel Smith, secretary. All but one member stood good examination. Perry Bean was expelled for immorality. Four appointments were reported. St. Martinsville 120 members; Cote Gelee 40; Lafayette 90; Breux Ridge 12. Total, 262 members. 31 conversions, 75 baptism, adults, 25 infants, 2 deaths, 2 preachers, 8 exhorters, 3 Sunday Schools, 2 day schools. We had a good delegation from Lafayette. Mr. Williams is doing well there. I gave him Sunday School books and papers for his school. We are trying to do our duty, but there is much confusion here at this time, from what happened at the mass meeting. The crops are good; the people are getting in their cotton, corn, rice, ground peas, by great quantities.

Rev. Mr. Fenner writes from Monroe, Louisiana:

I am still here doing what I can. It is unsafe to go out, as the brethren tell me. The Democrats are raging all through these parishes so that we dare not travel. They are killing and threatening all the poor colored Radicals they can catch, and say they won't give work to any that don't join them, and won't allow any to travel who has not a Democratic pass in his pocket as a permit. On the twenty-eighth, at night, they went to Mr. Bar Joses and fired into the quarters among the people, but as God would have it, none were killed. The boys returned the fire and wounded some of the riotous body. I can not report any travels or revivals, nor do I wish to tell my troubles and sorrows. I still remember my God, who is all my trust; my hopes and prayers are toward him. Oh God, save me from the hand of the enemy, save my person from harm and my soul from Satan and sin; in this gloomy hour be thou near to me. Brother Harson is doing his best out on the circuit, and Brother Henry is working below Monroe. But I hear sin progresses, religion grows cold, Christians are careless. The church house here is badly in debt. Brother Nichols has paid Mr. Burrell, the builder, eighty dollars received from the Bureau, which is all that has lately been paid, and the house is in a bad condition. No seats have been made, though we have the lumber.

I am glad to say the box of books has come. Mr. Roach gave a third to me, another to Brother Sims and one to the Sabbath school at Trenton. He told me to make a statement about the condition of our building and he would see what help could be given to us. He is also willing to pay me as an assistant teacher in the day school. I have taught since last March, without getting pay enough to buy my bread. I am not able to express what I feel about the sad condition of our people. I can not get about, but I send out word to my leading brethren to hold on, do the best they can, and wait for the salvation of God, for there's a better day acoming. Brother Sims is here in a store, but will return to Bastrop after the election.

CANTON, MISSISSIPPI.—A letter received from the pastor, Rev. Alfred Handy, reports prosperity on this circuit. He writes:

"When I came here last Conference, the church had been recently dedicated. There were then something over one hundred members. Now it numbers about two hundred and seventy-five, though we have had many troubles to pass through. At this time we are just closing up our pretracted meeting. It has continued about four weeks.

Many of our people in this, Madison county, never hear the gospel. We have no school but the Sabbath school in many places. Miss Mary Close is getting along well in her day and Sabbath schools. She helps us much and is beloved by all her scholars.

Rev. James Lynch recently held our Quarterly Meeting. We had a good meeting. Eighteen received in the church. Eight dollars and a half received for the support of the pastor.

Mr. Editor, I wonder sometimes what I shall do for supplies and clothing for my family. Winter is drawing near and I shall want fuel also. But we have good hopes of the cotton crop. Corn and peas, and pumpkins, too, are plenty.

Sharon church numbers a hundred members. Brecksville Chapel, thirty-eight members, Ross Chapel, forty-three members. All we need is preachers and the old mother church will sweep Madison County as fire in a dry stubble."

LIVE OAK CHURCH.—Rev. Amos Gunby writes from Washington parish, not so much of prosperity as of persecution:

"The whites still continue their innocent (?) amusement of shooting at colored people. They are particularly angry with him, as they think, were it not for his influence they could persuade the colored people to vote for Seymour and Blair.

Brother Gunby still remains at his post. Having been under fire in the Union army, he is not easily frightened."

NATCHITOCHES.—Rev. E. Hayward writes very encouragingly of the work on his circuit. He says:

"I have an appointment sixteen miles out from Natchitoches. From this place there came a sinner man, one year ago this month, and asked me if I would not go out there and preach for them. At once it came to my mind at the time, in the latter end of the year 1739 when eight or ten persons came to Mr. Wesley in London, who appeared to be deeply convinced of sin and earnestly gaining for redemption. So I went in the name of the Lord and tried to preach to them in the best way I knew how. After preaching in the morning I had a conversation with some of the people, and one man told me that he was twenty-five years old, and that he had never heard a sermon before in his life and he was born right there.

An old man and his wife told me that they came from North Carolina thirty years previous, and it was the first time they had ever been to any meeting.

My dear brethren, the gospel is much needed in some parts of the country, while other parts are overflowing. I am glad to say that we now have a great number of people at this appointment, out of which there are fifty members and probationers.

The Lord is blessing the labors of the old Mother Church. I pray that it may go on and never stand still until we shall see sons come from afar, and daughters from the end of the world."

The New Orleans Times on Alexander H. Stephens.

Alexander H. Stephens, who never omits an occasion to express his disgust of political life, and deliver a lugubrious opinion upon the prospects of the country, who expects to leave to the world a written record as dreary as Josephus and as dull as Confucius, is now at Washington overhauling the rebel archives for the purpose of writing another book.

Much as we respect Mr. Stephens as a gentleman, and value his early services to the country, we hardly think him a proper historian for the South. Always doubting, weak in his adhesion, and slothful in his opposition to any measure; with no decided opinions outside of the most vague generalities, we do not know of a Southern statesman whose retirement and silence would be more appreciated by his countrymen in these stirring times, when we want only the good counsel of men of nerve, and hearts stout enough to face difficulties, with the full consciousness of there being light beyond. We look upon political croakers as the west enemies of the South, save, perhaps, those who parade a melancholy Christian resignation as an excuse for dallying with the dangerous issues of the times. The conservatism manifested by Mr. Stephens in showing such an overanxiety to court the good opinion of both antagonistic parties at the expense of unkind stabs to his friends, and puerile praise of his enemies, is too essentially selfish to command our toleration. Mr. Stephens probably owes his general immunity from criticism to the fact that for many years he has been a confirmed invalid, and the excuses conceded him have grown customary just like hoops and chignons; but, as there apparently remains enough vitality in him to write several books, and even gratify a yet unsatiated political ambition, we think the time has come to judge him by the ordinary standard, in which case his measurement as a real friend to the South may be found considerably less than heretofore estimated. If he has any opinions that may be serviceable in our present crisis; if he can point out a policy for the good of his people; if he can even defend their reputation or cheer them in their sufferings let him do it, and earn their gratitude. But if he persists in playing the maudlin sexton among the rebel archives, and only answers our appeals for aid with Mawworm groans and dusty records of A. H. Stephens's past services, let him consult the interests of his people by a well guarded silence and honorable retirement. He may then live in future generations as a Cincinnatus; on the other hand he bids fair to grace this one only as a Verges. There is something belittling in every public act he undertakes. Even his present mournful journey to Washington and the tomb of the Confederate archives, is unworthy of him, affording, as it does, an opportunity for his and our enemies to hold him up as an example of how martyrdom should be borne, and a model for all late Confederates to follow; as though we could all be writing doleful books with tears and lamentations, or the young blood of the day wrap itself in valetudinarian sack-cloth and ashes, and go forth from its homes like wandering Dervishes. That this dubious praise flatters Mr. Stephens is too evident; it is illustrated in his cringing concessions to, and associations with men whom he once taught us to despise, and for whose principles he has often called God to witness his abherrence. It is lamentable to see one of our statesmen in whom we have had such pride, so fallen. We would fain draw a vail upon the humiliating picture. His politics and his usefulness are wholly of the past; dead rotten, and entombed; whether for good or evil will probably not be determined in our age. If he chooses, let him weep in secret, and not parade his grief to the doubtful sympathy of the world.—Times of September 25.

A Newspaper Article.

A good article for a newspaper is a thing of its own kind, not so easily produced as perhaps many imagine. It demands art and skill. What is it in some of its leading qualities?

First of all, it has a good title—short, terse and eminently suggestive. In this respect it is well advertised. Whether an article will be read or not depends very much upon its title. One can generally make a tolerably fair guess at its character, even before reading it, by simply reading the title. This is the first thing upon which the eye falls, and the first to make an impression. Hence the title should always be well selected.

Next to the title comes the idea of the article—mainly one, and but one, and that, too, sufficiently important to give an ample occasion for a few well written paragraphs. A newspaper article is not a book, with a series of elaborate chapters, or an exhaustive essay; but rather a brief monogram for cursory reading, to be read at least once, and perhaps never read again. The writer must make his impressions with the first blow, not expecting to get a second chance at the same reader. For this purpose he wants but one positive and central idea, sufficient in itself and sufficiently developed to do the work of the moment in a moment. This idea he should have well in hand when he starts, knowing what he wants to do with it, and trusting to mere luck and chance as to what he shall write. It should also be a living idea, one that can be worked up into a vigorous and impressive article. An opportune article that is timely, and says just the right thing at the right time, thus hitting the nail upon the head—tells upon human thought.

The greatest possible directness in approaching the idea is a third quality of a good newspaper article. Such an article wants no exordium, and needs no peroration. The better way is not to skirmish with the reader, or dig trenches toward him; but to pitch the main thought into his face immediately, and then keep pitching it at him for a few moments, and then come to a dead pause, making no apology for the abrupt beginning and none for the ending, and always having the good sense to make the fewest possible references to one's self. Write to the reader as if you were talking to him, and both were in a hurry and neither had any time to waste upon mere formalities. This will always please him best.

Short articles are always the ones most likely to be read; and, of course, long ones are the most likely to be unread. One column is better than two, and some times half a column is better than either. Two columns need a very weighty theme and a first class writer. On this subject every writer may judge of others by himself. Seldom has he time or patience to wade through a long article; and what is true of himself is equally true of nine men in ten. The writers who write for the greatest number of readers generally do not exceed a column of an ordinary sized newspaper. They know when to stop.

The style of newspaper writing should be simple and compact, progressive in order of thought; stating a few ideas very clearly, and suggesting a great many more. The people are the readers; and what they want is plain Saxon English, full of meaning, and well put together. There is a choice among words, and, of course, the best words are always those that will do the most execution. Long and involved sentences, loaded with allusions unintelligible to most persons, and that too without any suitable arrangement into paragraphs, are not the thing for the popular mind. They do not make a readable article.

Absolute honesty and sincerity of heart in the writer are essential to a good article. These qualities will make his rhetoric spontaneously eloquent. The words he uses and the figures he employs, will glow with the fervors of his own spirit, and awaken corresponding fervors in others. The reader will instructively feel that he is dealing with an earnest mind. Genuine feeling is half the battle in writing a good article.

And now, all ye newspaper writers, we beg of you to have a little compassion on type-setters and proof-readers. Write legibly. Spell your words correctly and be sure to put capital letters where they ought to be. Punctuate your sentences according to the best approved system. Divide the matter into paragraphs according to the nature and current of thought, and not leave this for the printer to do. Attend to these things, and we promise you that type-setters and proof-readers will not only be grateful, but also give your articles to the reading public just as they are written.

Children Leading their Parents to Christ.

From the Life of Stephen Grellet, published in the Friends Review, Philadelphia, the following interesting article is taken. It seems that Stephen Grellet and his fellow-laborers, while in Russia, prepared a series of Scripture lessons by cutting up several Bibles, taking a verse here and another there, and pasting them in a book, under several heads. These "lessons" were adopted by the Emperor for the use of the schools in Russia. The happy results of this use of them is thus told in Stephen Grellet's diary:

"First of second month. At one of our late visits to the Prince Alexander Galitzin, he related to us an interesting circumstance that occurred lately in Finland. Some children, from seven to nine years of age, were so brought under the sensible influence of the spirit of God, convincing them of their sins, that, on their going to or from school, they retired into the woods, and there put their prayers to the Lord, with many tears. By degrees their number increased. The parents of some of them found them thus engaged, and with rebukes and stripes dispersed them; but the parents of others, who had noticed the increased sobriety and good behaviour of their children, encouraged them to meet together in their houses, and not to go out into the woods. The children did so, and some of these parents, observing their religious tenderness, and hearing their solemn prayers to the Lord, the Redeemer and Saviour of sinners, felt themselves strong convictions of sin. They joined their children in their devotions, and a great reform took place in that part of the country. This excited the angry feelings of the priest, who was a bad man, and a drunkard. He went to the magistrate, to enter his complaints against both children and parents. The prosecution ensued in their all being sent to prison.

They had been some months in confinement when the Prince Alexander Galitzin heard that children were in prison on account of religion. He thought it so strange an occurrence that he sent confidential persons to inquire into it. They found so much religious sensibility and tenderness in the children, that they were greatly surprised, especially at the simplicity with which they related how they had been brought under trouble because of their sinful hearts, and how they had felt that they must pray to the Lord Jesus Christ, who alone could forgive them and enable them to live in a state of acceptance before God. Being inquired of if their parents or others had not put them on doing this, they said that so far from that, they were afraid that their parents or any one else should know how it was with them, that they retired privately in the woods to pray and cry with tears unto the Lord. The parents also stated that the children had been the instruments of bringing them to a sense of their sinful lives, and to seek to the Lord that he might give them a new heart and pour forth his Spirit upon them. Moreover, it was found that the conduct of these people and children had been such during their imprisonment as to comport with their Christian profession. The prince ordered their release, and had the priest and magistrates severely reprimanded, and removed from their offices. The Emperor having heard of all this, and of the great sufferings to which these families are reduced in consequence of their long imprisonment, which took place last year before harvest, ordered that all their losses should be liberally made up to them, making ample provision also for their present support.

The prince told us of some other instances that occurred lately in Russia, of children who have been brought under the influences of the Holy Spirit, and rendered instruments of good to their parents and others; they felt it their filial duty so tenderly to plead with them, on account of their drunkenness, swearing, and other vicious habits, as to prevail upon them to forsake their evil ways."

HOW TO FRESHEN SALT FISH.—Many persons are in the habit of freshening mackerel or salt fish, never dream that there is a right way to do it. Any one who has seen the process of evaporation going on at the salt works, knows that salt falls to the bottom. Just so it is in the pan where your makerel and white fish lies smoking; and as it lies with skin side down, the salt will fall to the skin and remains there, when, if placed with the flesh side down, the salt falls to the bottom of the pan, and the flesh comes out freshened, as it should.

MAYOR CONWAY ON PROTECTION LEVEES. Mayor Conway ought to be aware that in recommending the construction of protection levees in the rear of the city he encroaches upon the jurisdiction of the Drainage Commissioners, who act under a State law. Already the jealousy of these Commissioners is slightly aroused, and Mr. Conway will find himself involved in a controversy with them unless he consults the State laws and ascertains where his duty begins and ends.

CARMINA COLLEGENSIA:

A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges, with Pianoforte Accompaniments; to which is added a Compendium of College History, Collected and Edited by H. R. WAITE.

This is the most extensive Collection of Student Songs presented to the public. Every college in the United States having been solicited to contribute to its pages, nearly a thousand songs were received, from which great care was taken to select those most valuable in reference to quality, permanency, and general interest; only such being used as possessed intrinsic merit, or cast light upon some peculiar college custom.

Prices: In cloth, emblematically embossed, neat, and durable, $2 25. Superior edition, on extra paper, full cloth, emblematically embossed, gilt edge, $3.

Mailed, postpaid.

HOW TO FRESHEN SALT FISH.—Many persons are in the habit of freshening mackerel or salt fish, never dream that there is a right way to do it. Any one who has seen the process of evaporation going on at the salt works, knows that salt falls to the bottom. Just so it is in the pan where your makerel and white fish lies smoking; and as it lies with skin side down, the salt will fall to the skin and remains there, when, if placed with the flesh side down, the salt falls to the bottom of the pan, and the flesh comes out freshened, as it should.

AMERICAN MUSICAL CLASS BOOK,

Designed for Female Colleges, Institutes, Seminaries, and Normal and High Schools. Containing Elementary Instructions, Vocal Exercises and Solfeggios, and a valuable Collection of Duets, Trios, and Concerted Pieces.

By T. Bissell—Price 75c.

Among the numerous works of the kind this cannot fail of a prominence, since its peculiar features are such as will commend it at once to the patronage of those for whom it is chiefly intended. Its rudimental lessons proceed with a regularity of precision that cannot fail to fix permanently on the mind of the pupil the essentials of success in future studies. The exercises are in a form to attract the attention, and the selection of music is one of the best, if not the superior of all similar collections. Principals of Educational Institutions, Music Teachers, and others interested in books of this class, will find it advantageous to examine this volume. THE GERMANIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, established in 1860, and based upon the most approved principles of Life Insurance security, presents its claims for consideration, believing that its solid foundation already secured by the faithful and efficient management of its officers and Board of Directors will give it the preference above all other similar institutions.

It is purely Mutual, as the net profits are distributed among the parties insured, the interest of the capital stock being only five per cent according to its charter.

It assumed the system of cash payments at the commencement of its existence, and maintained it faithfully until now, and promises the same for the future, thereby securing to policy holders the full amount for which they are insured. The advantage of this system over the half cash and half note system is patent to every careful observer, but will be more fully illustrated by the following statement and table:

If a person of thirty years of age insures his life for the amount of $1000 in one of the credit companies, and pays a premium of $28 30 per year, with a note for half of the premium, then by means of this note and interests thereon the amount will become less and less in the following proportions:

| | |
|---|---|
| After 10 years the $1000 will amount to | $887 44 |
| After 15 years the $1000 will amount to | 795 28 |
| After 20 years the $1000 will amount to | 666 02 |
| After 25 years the $1000 will amount to | 484 73 |
| After 30 years the $1000 will amount to | 220 45 |
| After 33 years the $1000 will amount to | 32 53 |
| After 34 years the $1000 will amount to | Nothing. |

So that after a lapse of 34 years the whole amount will be eaten up, notwithstanding the parties insured paid their money in good faith.

The large dividend of 40 per cent declared last January is evidence of the care and success with which the Managers have conducted the enlarged and rapidly increasing interests of the Company, and vouches for its future brilliant and permanent prosperity.

Parties contemplating an assurance on their lives will do well to examine the status of this Company, every facility for which will be given by the

"The doctor prescribed, as an experiment—what had been suggested by Dr. (O. W.) Holmes on his late visit—'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma,' a teaspoonful in a wineglass of water, to be taken every four hours. A good night was the result."

In no case of purely Asthmatic character has it failed to give prompt relief, and in many cases a permanent cure has been effected. No danger need be apprehended from its use. An infant may take it with perfect safety. [See circular.]

Referred to the Committee on Claims.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Alexander, of Orleans, offered the following resolutions, which lies over under the rules:

Resolved, That the Committee on Judiciary be requested to report immediately on the resolution referred to said committee relative to the recounting of the ballots cast at the late election for municipal officers.

Lies over under the rules.

Mr. Burrel, of St. John Baptist, offered the following resolution, which was adopted under a suspension of the rules:

Resolved, That a committee of five members from the House be appointed to investigate the issue of city notes, and more particularly the issue of one million of the same issued under the municipal adminitration of Mayor John T. Monroe.

Mr. Morey, of Ouachita, offered the following motion, which lies over under the rules:

It is moved that on and after the first day of August, 1868, the number of pages employed in this House and by the various committees shall be reduced to twelve; the four in addition to the eight now regularly employed in the House to be selected by the Speaker.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Claims, through its chairman, Mr. McVean, of Caddo, submitted the following report, which was received and accepted:

Your Committee on Claims have to report upon the petition of J. Madison Wells for salary: That as there are many legal points to be investigated and considered in the case, they would respectfully recommend that the following act be passed, which will authorize him to bring suit against the State in any District Court of New Orleans of [illegible] jurisdiction, to wit:

WHEREAS, J. Madison Wells, a resident of Jefferson City, parish of Jefferson, State of Louisiana, alleges that he has a certain just claim against the State of Louisiana, therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Assembly convened, That J. Madison Wells is hereby authorized to bring suit against the State of Louisiana in any District Court of New Orleans of competent jurisdiction, and service of citation on the Attorney General shall be a sufficient notice, any law to the contrary notwithstanding.

J. H. McVEAN,
Chairman on Claims;

On House bill No. 49, favorably, with the following amendment: $100,000 instead of $250,000.

On the petition of the Southwestern Bible Society by the following act, which passed its second reading.

Be it enacted, etc., That whereas the Southwestern Bible Society of New Orleans, incorporated in 1850, is an institution for purely religious and benevolent purposes, and as such is supported by the voluntary contributions of the public, and makes no profit in the sale of its Bibles and Testaments, which constitutes its stock, but disposes of them at cost, or by actual donation.

SECTION 1. That the bill of assessment of taxes now collected, to the amount of $174 20, and the daily increments thereto on the Convention tax to date hereof, be and the same is hereby remitted.

SEC. 2. That the property of said society, to-wit: their house and lot at No. 163 Camp street. New Orleans, and the stock of Bibles and Testaments usually kept on hand for the purposes above recited, be and the same are hereby exempted from taxation under any and all of the provisions for assessment, any law or color of law to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Committee on Pensions, through its chairman, Mr. Antoine, of Orleans, reported as follows:

PENSION COMMITTEE ROOM, New Orleans, July 23, 1868.

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives:

Your Committee on Pensions beg leave to report, and do recommend the passage of an act entitled an act for the relief of the veterans of 1814 and 1815:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the sum of two hundred dollars be and is hereby donated annually to each of the surviving veterans of the war of 1814 and 1815, being residents of the State and in necessitous circumstances, from any amount in the State treasury not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That whenever any person claiming to be a veteran of 1814 and 1815 shall show proper vouchers to the Auditor of the State he is entitled, according to the provisions of the first section, to the amount thereof donated. The Auditor shall issue a warrant to the said applicant for the same.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this are hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

F. C. ANTOINE,
Chairman;
E. S. WILSON,
W. C. WILLIAMS,
P. GUIGONET.

BILLS OF THE SENATE FOR CONCURRENCE.

The following entitled bills and joint resolutions were placed on their third reading, concurred in, and notice ordered to be sent to the Senate:

An act relative to the First and Second District Courts for the parish and city of New Orleans. By John Ray.

An act relative to the trial of contested election cases. By John Ray.

Joint resolution referring to the appointment of a joint committee to examine into the accounts, vouchers, etc., of the offices of Auditor of Public Accounts and Treasurer of the State. By Mr. Lynch.

Joint resolution requesting the Warrant Clerk of the late Constitutional Convention to furnish the General Assembly with a statement separately of warrants issued by him, to whom, etc. By Mr. Lynch.

The Speaker ordered to be read the following communication, which was referred to the Committee on Elections and Qualifications:

OPELOUSAS, La., July 15, 1868.

Hon. Charles W. Lowell, Speaker of the House of Representatives, State of Louisiana:

SIR—I have the honor to forward you, in compliance with instructions, the following resolutions—the report of the Committee on Petition—which were unanimously adopted by a convention of the Republican party of St. Landry, held yesterday, and respectfully ask that it be presented to the honorable body over which you preside.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant.
EMERSON BENTLEY,
Secretary of Republican Convention.

WHEREAS, At the late election certain parties were elected to the various parish offices, which they were disqualified from holding by virtue of the reconstruction acts, and the new Constiiution of the State of Louisiana; and,

Whereas, It is generally known, alleged and believed that numerous frauds were committed by the parties conducting the election; by allowing armed men to intimidate peaceable voters; by allowing deputy sheriffs to exchange ballots before depositing; and by tampering with the boxes, thus depriving the Republican candidates of the various offices to which they were elected by a majority of the people; and.

Whereas, Bands of men, armed and disguised, traverse the parish nightly, committing murder and outrages with impunity from the penalties attached to their crimes, and by serving notices of a threatening character upon leading Republicans and peaceable citizens deprive them of peace, liberty and happiness; therefore, be it

Resolved By the Republican party of St. Landry in convention assembled, That it is the opinion of this body that unless the strong arm of the Government be extended to us, the loyal people of St. Landry, free speech will be dangerous, justice at law a mockery, and the material interests of the parish will be depressed, and we respectfully petition our Legislature and his Excellency Governor H. C. Warmoth, for the sake of peace, law, order and justice, to promptly take such action in the premises as may be in their power for our relief; also be it

Resolved, That the Secretary forward copies of these resolutions to the presiding officers of both branches of the General Assembly, to his Excellency Governor H. C. Warmoth, to S. B. Packard, chairman of State Executive Committee, and to the New Orleans Republican for publication.

H. L. FRILOT,
Chairman;
EMERSON BENTLEY,
Secretary;
WILLIAM MERCER,
FELIX LEVASSIER,
SWAN A. MILLER,
Committee on Petition.

Mr. Demarest, of St. Mary, moved to reconsider the vote to postpone the consideration of the bill relative to the loan of $100,000, as reported by the Committee on Ways and Means, and to lay the motion to reconsider on the table.

Carried.

Mr. Dewees, of Bienville, moved that House bills Nos. 18 and 23 be referred to a select committee of seven.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans, moved to amend by referring the bills to a select committee composed of members from the parishes of Orleans, St. Bernard and Jefferson.

Carried.

Mr. Faulkner moved to adjourn.

Lost.

Mr. Dufresne, of Iberville, moved that leave of absence of ten days be granted to Mr. Deslonde, of Iberville.

Carried.

Mr. Gray, of St. James, asked leave of absence for ten days for Mr. Tureaud, of St. James.

Granted.

On motion of Mr. Faulkner, of Caldwell, House adjourned until to-morrow at twelve o'clock M.

WILLIAM VIGERS,
Chief Clerk House of Representatives.

Twenty-Third Day's Session.

FRIDAY, July 24, 1868.

The House met pursuant to adjournment. Speaker Lowell in the chair.

The roll being called, sixty-eight members answered to their names:

Speaker Lowell, Abbot, Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Bennett, Buckingham, Belot, Barbee, Burrel, Bergeron, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Dewees, Dufresne, Demarest, Dupart, Eager, Esnard, Faulkner, Guigonet, Gair, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, Haskell Honore, Hutchinson, Holland, Kent, Kavanagh, Lee, Leroy, Lott, Morris, Mollere, McCullen, Mahier, McVean, Melvin, Mansion, Morey, Morand, Mathews, Magee, Noble, Pearce, Pratt, Page, Raymond, Reese Rey, Slaton, Smith, Taylor, Tureaud, Walsh, Washington, Wilson, Umphreys, H. Williams, N. Young, Yorke, D. Young, Zoelly—68.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Turner.

On motion of Mr. Gair, of East Feliciana, the reading of the journal was dispensed with.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. Rey, of Orleans, presented the following petition, which was referred to the Committee on Elections and Qualifications:

To the Honorable the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana:

The undersigned, a loyal citizen of the State of Louisiana, and a resident of the parish of St. Martin, respectfully represents to your honorable House—

That he was a candidate in said parish at the election held in said parish on the seventeenth and eighteenth days of April, 1868, for the House of Representatives; that your petitioner and E. Dutage were candidates of the Republican party, and supported by them for Representatives in said parish aforesaid; that both of them received a majority of legal and qualified votes in said parish, and are entitled to be admitted to their seats as Representatives from said parish. He alleges the following grounds why J. B. Bergeron and L. P. Briout are not entitled to their seats in your honorable body as Representatives from said parish:

First—Both of said persons are disqualified from voting either or holding their seats as Representatives from said parish by virtue of article ninety-nine of the Constitution; because they were in open rebellion against the authority and Government of the "United States," and levied war against the same, and held a military office for more than twelve months in the so-called Confederate army.

Second—Frauds were practiced to a large extent by Bergeron and Briout, and by their friends and adherents, at the various election precincts in said parish at the election held on the seventeenth and eighteenth days of April last, by force and by intimidation, compelling a large number of legal voters who presented themselves at said polls, and offered to vote for your petitioner and his colleague, to vote for the said Bergeron and the said Briout; to wit, more than five hundred.

Third—That a large number of legal and qualified voters of said parish who intended and were desirous of casting their votes at said election for your petitioner and his colleague, and who would have attended said election, but were overawed by violence, threats and intimidations used, exerted and practiced by the friends and supporters of said Bergeron and Briout—to wit, at least five hundred.

Fourth—Various other illegal and fraudulent acts committed at said election by the supporters, friends and adherents of the said Bergeron and Briout, which tended to deprive your petitioner and his colleague of a fair election, and which he avers will be fully proven in such manner as your honorables may direct.

Your petitioner further avers that the return of said election was made under military orders to Brevet Major General Buchanan, who claimed to exercise and determine the result of said election at his own time and pleasure, without any legal authority to do so, and your petitioner was ignorant of the result of the examination of said returns by the said Brevet Major General Buchanan until within a short time ago, and no official announcement was made by the said Brevet Major General Buchanan in the parish of St. Martin, of the result of the election for Representatives from said parish to the Legislature, whereby he was prevented from complying with the law of the State in relation to contested elections; wherefore he prays relief in the premises from your honorable body, and as in duty bound he will ever pray.

SAMUEL WAKEFIELD.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms be and is hereby authorized not to receipt for any stationery or other articles purchased for the use of this House, or for any of the committees thereof unless the same be selected by him.

Mr. Page, of Jefferson, moved to refer the resolution to the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Mr. Gair, of East Feliciana, moved to lay the motion to refer made by Mr. Page on the table.

Carried.

On motion of Mr. Carr, of Orleans, the original resolution was adopted under a suspension of the rules.

Under a suspension of the rules the following resolutions were adopted:

By Mr. Gray, of St. James:

Resolved, That there be printed for the use of the House 300 copies of the Order of Business of the House, and of the standing committees.

By Mr. Carr, of Orleans:

Resolved, That the Committee on Penitentiary be instructed to proceed to Baton Rouge and Clinton to inspect and inquire into all matters connected with the Louisiana State Penitentiary, and report to this House as early as practicable.

Under a suspension of the rules Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, offered the following resolution, which, on motion of Mr. Evans, of Jefferson, was laid on the table by a rising vote of 44 yeas to 13 nays:

Resolved, That on and after the first of August the number of clerks of committees be reduced to ten, to be selected by the Speaker from those now employed, and assigned by him to such committees as in his judgment may most require their services, excepting those employed by the Enrolling Committee.

NOTICES OF BILLS.

By Mr. McMillen, of Carroll:

An act to confer jurisdiction in certain cases to the Third District Court of the parish of Orleans.

BILLS ON FIRST READING.

By Mr. Belot, of Orleans:

Bill No. 65, an act to fix the salaries of each of the two Coroners designated by the new Constitution of 1868, and elected by virtue thereof, the one for the First and Fourth Districts and Algiers, and the other for the Second and Third Distsicts of the city of New Orleans, parish of Orleans.

By Mr. Guigonet, of Avoyelles:

Bill No. 61, an act to enforce article 151 of the Constitution of Louisiana.

Under a suspension of the rules, Mr. Page, of Jefferson, called up his bill No. 62, which was placed on its second reading, and on motion of Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, 150 copies of the bill were ordered to be printed.

An Act for the purpose of suppressing the issue of the certificates or notes known as City Money, issued by the city of New Orleans.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That from and after the passage of this act, the Treasurer of the city of New Orleans shall not pay any bill or other demand, amounting to one thousand dollars ($1000) or more with certificates or notes known as City Money, and from and after the first day of November, 1868, the said Treasurer is hereby prohibited from issuing for the payment of any bill or claim whatever what is known as City Money.

SEC. 2. That after the passage of this act, for the payment of all the current expenses of the city of New Orleans, until such time as the treasury is relieved from its present financial embarrassment, the City Council shall order the Controller, and he is hereby authorized to issue his warrants, payable in certificates of indebtedness, bearing eight per cent. interest per annum, payable in United States currency, and to be redeemed whenever the City Treasurer has United States currency for that purpose; said certificates of indebtedness to be countersigned by the Mayor, and to be numbered and registered in a suitable book kept for that purpose in the Controller's office.

SEC. 3. That it shall be the duty of the City Treasurer, in his weekly report, to notify the public, through the City Council, of the amount on hand in United States currency, which can be applied to the redemption of such certificates of indebtedness. He shall begin with No. 1, and redeem from time to time as many as the funds will cover; and he shall take them in the order in which they were issued.

SEC. 4. That all employes and all persons hereafter contracting with the city shall and do agree to receive such certificates of indebtedness in pay of their claims against the city, as provided in this act.

SEC. 5. Should the holders of the certificates of indebtedness, from any cause, fail to have presented for payment their certificates of indebtedness, after public notice has been given that the city is ready to pay said certificates of indebtedness, the accruing interest upon them shall discontinue from and after the time of such public notice.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That the city of New Orleans is authorized and required to collect every year from the owners of real estate a tax of one-half of one per cent., in addition to taxes collected for other purposes, until enough has been collected to redeem all the floating certificates or notes known as "city money" of New Orleans; and that the first year's installment of tax shall be due on and after the passage of this act, and shall be collected within the year 1868.

SEC. 7. That for the purpose of getting out of circulation the city money as first as possible, all taxes becoming due to the city may be paid one, two or three years in advance; and when paid in advance the last made assessment roll shall fix the amount of tax to be so paid. It is provided, however, that when improvements are afterward made so that additional tax should be paid thereupon the taxes upon such improvements must be assessed and paid thereafter.

SEC. 8. That if by strict examination made during the year 1869 it be found that the provisions of this act, granting the collection of an annual tax of half of one per cent, will not furnish enough to liquidate these city certificates or notes known as city money during the year 1870, then the City Council may increase this tax, and they shall thereafter enforce the collection of an annual tax of three-fourths of one per cent, and continue the same annual tax until enough has been collected to extinguish the whole amount of the city certificates or notes known as city money.

SEC. 9. All the plates for the printing or making of the certificates or notes known as "city money" (if any there are) remaining in the hands of the officers of the city or in the hands of the printers, or in any other place, must be destroyed. All blank sheets or certificates or notes known as "city money" on hand, and not signed or only partly signed, must be destroyed.

Should any of the said plates or blank sheets be found in the possession of any person or persons after the first day of October, 1868, it will be considered in violation of law, with the intention of committing forgery; and all persons so offending shall be prosecuted as directed for the punishment of forgery.

SEC. 10. All city money necessary for the payment of the demands permitted to be paid with this "city money" up to the first of November, 1868, as provided by section first of this act, may be retained for that purpose. All certificates or notes known as "city money" not wanted for that purpose must be destroyed. All certificates or notes known as "city money," paid into the treasury after the first of November 1868, and the certificates of indebtedness when redeemed by the city, shall at the the same time they are received be defaced by whomsoever shall receive them, in the same manner as the paying tellers of the banks cancel the bank checks.

SEC. 11. On the first, second, or on the third day of each and every month from and after the passage of this act, the plates for the printing and the making of certificates or notes known as "city money," that is such of them as can be or may be provided; the certificates or notes known as "city money," and the certificates of indebtedness that have been redeemed, shall, by the supervision of the chairmen of the Finance Committees, with the Mayor, the Controller and the Treasurer, be destroyed. And should these officers fail to see that the several sections and parts of sections of this act are fully carried out and executed, according to its full intent, then the chairmen of the Finance Committees, the Mayor, the Controller, and the Treasurer shall, on refusing or neglecting to carry out this act, be indicted before the Criminal Court, and on conviction for each offense be, each or all of them, as the case may be, sentenced to imprisonment for a term of not less than ten days or more than two years, and to pay a fine of not less than two hundred or more than two thousand dollars.

All securities who are held for the faithful performance of the duties of the chairmen of the Finance Committees, the Mayor, the Controller, and the Treasurer, shall be adjudged liable to pay the fines imposed by the Court when any of these parties are convicted of offenses against this act.

SEC. 12. That all acts or parts of acts in conflict with the foregoing be and the same are hereby repealed.

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEES.

Mr. McVean, of Caddo, chairman, submitted the following majority report:

To the Speaker and Honorable Members of the House of Representatives:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee beg leave to submit the following report on the act making a new division of the State of Louisiana into five Congressional Districts:

After a careful examination they report back the bill to the House with the following amendments, and recommend the passage of the same.

J. H. McVEAN,
Chairman;
CHARLES LEROY,
DENNIS BURREL,
A. L. LEE.

Mr. Noble, of Orleans, submitted the following minority report:

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana:

GENTLEMEN—I oppose the "act making a new division of the State of Louisiana into five Congressional Districts" as a whole, and each division therein proposed, and for the following reasons:

1. The addition of a large number of enfranchised citizens to the voting population does not require a new division into Congressional Districts until such time as the census of the United States shall determine the total population of the State, and the representation shall by these conclusions be accurately fixed.

2. As the theory of representation in Congress is based upon the total population of the State, and not upon the number of voters, it is premature to proceed into a division into Districts until this total resident population shall have been fixed in accordance with law.

W. POPE NOBLE,
Tenth Representative District, Orleans.

On motion, both reports were received.

Mr. Carr moved that the bill be considered engrossed, and placed on its third reading and final passage.

Carried.

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, called for the yeas and nays on the final passage of the following bill:

An act making a new division of the State of Louisiana into five Congressional Districts.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That until otherwise directed by law the State of Louisiana shall be divided into five Congressional Districts, and the qualified electors of each district shall choose one Representative to Congress, as follows:

The First Congressional District shall comprise all that portion of the parish of Orleans on the right bank of the Mississippi river, and so much of said parish on the left bank of said river as is below and east of Canal street, in the city of New Orleans, comprising the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth Representative Districts of the parish of Orleans, and the parishes of St. Bernard, Plaquemines, St. Tammany, Washington and St. Helena.

The Second Congressional District shall comprise all that portion of the parish of Orleans on the left bank of the Mississippi river above and west of Canal street, in the city of New Orleans, comprising the First, Second, Third and Tenth Representative Districts of the parish of Orleans, and the parishes of Jefferson, St. Charles, St. John, St. James, Lafourche and Terrebone.

The Third Congressional District shall comprise the parishes of St. Mary, St. Martin, Assumption, Ascension, Vermillion, Calcasieu, Lafayette, St. Landry, Iberville, East Feliciana, East Baton Rouge and West Baton Rouge.

The Fourth Congressional District shall comprise the parishes of West Feliciana, Pointe Coupee, Avoyelles, Rapides, Sabine, Natchitoches, DeSoto, Caddo, Bossier and Winn.

The Fifth Congressional District shall comprise the parishes of Claiborne, Bienville, Jackson, Union, Morehouse, Carroll, Ouachita, Madison, Caldwell, Franklin, Tensas, Catahoula and Concordia.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this act be and the same are hereby repealed; and that this act shall be in force and take effect from and after its passage.

Yeas: Abbott, Alexander, Antoine, Adolphe, Belot, Collins, Calhoun, Carr, Cuny, Dewees, Dufrense, Dupart, Evans, Faulkner, Guigonet, Garstkamp, Gray, Guidry, Hill, Honore, Harper, Hutchinson, Isabelle, LeBlanc, Lee, Leroy, Lott, Morris, Mollere, Mahier, McMillen, McVean, Mansion, Morey, Morand, Mathews, Pearce, Page, Raymond, Reese, Rey, Smith, Sterrett, Taylor, Walsh, Wren, Umphreys, William C. Williams, H. Williams, Yorke, D. Young—51 yeas.

Nays: Bennett, Buckingham, Barbee, Bergeron, DeGrange, Kent, McCullen, May, Magee, Noble, Pratt, Pierce, Wilson, Waters, N. Young—15 nays.

Bill adopted and ordered to be sent to the Senate for concurrence.

An act to organize the Supreme Court, and to fix the terms thereof.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the State shall be divided into four districts, from each of which district one Associate Justice of the Supreme Court shall be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate—the districts to be as follows:

First District—The parishes of Plaquemines, St. Bernard, that portion of the parish of Orleans on the right bank of the Mississippi river, and that portion of the city of New Orleans which lies below the line extending from the river Mississippi along the middle of Julia street, until it strikes the New Orleans canal, and thence down said canal to the lake.

Second District—That portion of the city of New Orleans which is situated above the line extending along the middle of Julia street until it strikes the New Orleans canal, and thence down said canal to the lake; and the parishes of Jefferson, St. John the Baptist, St. Charles, St. James, Ascension, Assumption, Lafourche Interior, Terrebonne, West Baton Rouge and Iberville.

Third District—The parishes of St. Tammany, Washington, Livingston, St. Helena, East Baton Rouge, East Feliciana, West Fe iciana, Pointe Coupee, Avoyelles, Tensas, Concordia, Lafayette, Vermilion, St. Mary, St. Mart.n and St. Landry.

Fourth District—The parishes of Calsasieu, Rapides, Sabine, Natchitoches, De Soto, Caddo, Bossier, Claiborne, Bienville, Caldwell, Union, Ouachita, Morehouse, Jackson, Franklin, Catahoula, Madison, Carroll and Winn.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Chief Justice shall be appointed from the State at large by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Supreme Court shall hold its sessions in New Orleans from the first Monday of November until the close of the month of June, at Monroe commencing on the second Monday of July, at Alexandria on the second Monday of August, and at Opelousas on the first Monday of September of each year.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, etc., That appeals from the parishes of Orleans, Jefferson, St. Charles, St. James, St. John the Baptist, Ascension, Assumption, Lafourche, Terrebone, Plaquemines, St. Bernard, Iberville, St. Helena, Washington, St. Tammany, Livingston, East and West Baton Rouge, East and West Feliciana, Pointe Coupee, Concordia, Tensas, Madison and Carroll shall be returned to the Supreme Court at New Orleans.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, etc., That appeals from the parishes of St. Mary, St. Martin, St. Landry, Lafayette, Vermilion, Calcasieu and Avoyelles shall be returned to the Supreme Court at Opelousas.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, etc., That appeals from the parishes of Jackson, Union, Morehouse, Catahoula, Caldwell, Ouachita, Franklin, Claiborne and Bienville shall be returned to the Supreme Court at Monroe.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, etc., That appeals from the parishes of Rapides, Natchitoches, De Soto, Sabine, Bossier, Caddo and Winn shall be returned to the Supreme Court at Alexandria.

Sec. 8. Be it further enacted, etc., That appeals from the parishes of East Feliciana, West Feliciana, East Baton Rouge, Livingston, St. Tammany, St. Helena and Washington shall be returnable on the fourth Monday of February of each year.

Sec. 9. Be it further enacted, etc., That appeals from the parishes of Carroll, Madison, Tensas and Concordia shall be returnable on the second Monday of February of each year.

Sec. 10. Be it further enacted, etc., That appeals from the parishes of St. James, Ascension, Assumption, Lafourche, Terrebonne, Iberville, West Baton Rouge and Pointe Coupee shall be returnable on the fourth Monday of January in each year.

Sec. 11. Be it further enacted, etc., That in all cases of appeal the Judge of the court from which it is taken shall make the appeal returnable to the Supreme Court at the next return day for appeals from the parish, if there shall be time enough after granting it to give the notice required by law, and to prepare the record; if not, then he shall fix the return day for the following term.

Sec. 12. Be it further enacted, etc., That upon the return day for appeals from the several parishes, as fixed by law, the Supreme Court shall take them up by preference, and in their order, and continue from day to day until they are disposed of.

Sec. 13. Be it further enacted, etc., That in all cases in which the right to office is involved, and an appeal is taken from the judgment of the District Court, returnable before the Supreme Court holding its sessions in New Orleans, it shall be returnable in ten days after judgment of the lower court, and the Supreme Court, on the motion of either party, shall proceed to try the same by preference.

Sec. 14. Be it further enacted, etc., That persons in confinement, under a judgment of conviction rendered in a criminal prosecution from which an appeal has been taken, shall have the right to make it returnable before the Supreme Court at its next term, whenever held, and to have it tried by preference. All criminal cases shall be tried by preference over civil cases.

Sec. 15. Be it further enacted, etc., That in suits pending on appeal, in which a police jury or municipal corporation is plaintiff or defendant, it shall be the duty of the Supreme Court, if in session in the district in which the appeal is pending, on the affidavit of the attorney representing the police jury or corporation, that the case is one of serious public interest, and in which a speedy decision is desirable, to set the cause for hearing by preference.

Sec. 16. Be it further enacted, etc., That no appeal to the Supreme Court shall be dismissed on account of any defect, error or irregularity of the petition or order of appeal, or in the certificate of the Clerk or Judge, or in the citation of appeal or service thereof, or because the appeal was not made returnable at the next term of the Supreme Court, whenever it shall not appear that such defect, error, or irregularity, is imputed to the appellant; but in all cases the Court shall grant a reasonable time to correct such errors or irregularities (in case they are not waived by the appellee.) and may impose on the appellant such terms and conditions as in their discretion they may deem necessary for the attainment of justice, and may also impose such fines on the officers who shall have caused such irregularities as they may deem proportioned to the offense.

Sec. 17. Be it further enacted, etc., That in all cases of appeal to the Supreme Court, or other tribunals in this State, if the judgment appealed from be affirmed, the plaintiff may, on return of the execution that no property has been found, obtain a decree against the surety on the appeal bond for the amount of the judgment, on motion, after ten days' notice, which motion shall be tried summarily and without the intervention of a jury, unless the surety shall allege, under oath, that the signature to the bond purporting to be his is not genuine, or that the judgment has been satisfied.

Sec. 18. Be it further enacted, etc., That the Supreme Court may be adjourned from day to day by one of its Judges until a quorum be convened.

Sec. 19. Be it further enacted, etc., That all laws contrary to the above, or on the same subject matter, be and are hereby repealed.

Sec. 20. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall be in force from and after its passage.

Under a suspension of the rules, Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the Chaplain of the House of Representatives be entitled to receive five dollars per day during the session of the Legislature, to be drawn upon the approval of the Speaker of the House.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

Mr. Pratt, of Claiborne, submitted the following minority report on House bill No. 23, which was received:

MINORITY REPORT.

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana:

The undersigned member of the Judiciary Committee appointed by your honorable body, desires to present the following reasons for his non-concurrence in the report of the majority recommending the passage of House bill No. 23, authorizing the appointment of a committee to recount the ballots cast on the seventeenth and eighteenth of April last for municipal officers of the city of New Orleans:

First—I can view it in no other light than a party measure, designed to alter the result of the election as promulgated by the proper authorities constituted for that purpose.

Second—That while the Legislature is judge of the election and qualifications of its own members, I can find no authority delegated to them by the Constitution to interfere with the municipal elections in New Orleans or any other city in the State.

Third—That by a recent act of the Legislature the courts of the city are opened for the investigation of fraud and the trial of contested election cases, and I therefore consider the courts the proper tribunals for these questions to be brought before.

Fourth—That it will involve the expenditure of money in the hiring of Clerks necessary to carry on the investigation, and I regard it as another extravagant piece of legislation for the support of party paupers, which can not possibly result in any good to the State.

Fifth—Because I regard it as an initiatory step toward "addressing out of office" the municipal officers of the city of New Orleans, and establishing an unwise precedent which may one day be cited in justification of acts that would thwart the will of the people, and prove a great detriment to the best interests of the city.

Sixth—Because I consider the ballot-box the bulwark of our liberties, the only medium for the correction of abuses and the only refuge of the people in the hour of oppression, and any attempt to tamper with it should be discountenanced by every friend to republican government and every votary to American liberty.

I earnestly call the attention of the House to the above facts, and recommend that the joint resolution do not pass.

On motion of Mr. McVean, of Caddo, the majority report made by the Committee on Judiciary, recommending the adoption of the joint resolution in relation to the recounting of the votes cast at the late municipal election, was adopted and the bill ordered to be engrossed.

Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, submitted the following report, which was accepted:

REPORT OF THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS RELATIVE TO OUTSTANDING AND SUSPENDED TAXES DUE TO THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

Your committee respecfully report that as nearly as they can ascertain the outstanding unpaid taxes due to the city of New Orleans, the collection of which was suspended by ordinance until 1870, are as follows:

| | On real estate. | On personal property |
|---|---|---|
| For the year 1861 | $8[illegible],602 00 | $171,447 56 |
| For the year 1862 | 66,234 00 | 114,987 22 |
| For the year 1863 | 61,562 36 | 47,950 05 |
| For the year 1864 | 111,668 45 | 114,274 38 |
| For the year 1865 | 133,709 50 | 68,918 15 |
| Total | $455,776 31 | $517 577 36 |

Amounting to $973,353 67.

Slaves were classed as real estate, and the tax of 1861 and 1862 was in part on such property. Not only is that property no longer in existence, but a large amount of the property classed as personal for those years has disappeared. An erroneous impression prevails as to the amount of back taxes due, which is less than one million of dollars. Of this sum probably not more than four hundred thousand dollars is now available and collectable. A large per centage of tax on personal property is lost in our city as in all others, and the loss is greater in proportion as the collection of such tax is delayed. The tax ought to be collected in the same year as assessed, and unless so collected a loss inevitably accrues.

Your committee respectfully propose the accompanying bill "to provide for the collection of taxes in the city of New Orleans, and suspend the further issue of city notes," as a substitue for House bill No. 7.

Under a suspension of the rules, Mr. McMillen, of Carroll, offered tue following resolution which was adopted:

Resolved, That the Committee of Ways and Means be instructed to examine into and report to this House at the earliest possible day the authority, if any, under which the city notes of the city of New Orleans have been issued, and the amount of the several issues; and in order to make the examination full and satisfactory, the said committee is hereby authorized to send for books, persons and papers.

Mr. Carr, of Orleans, moved to recommit the bill as reported by the committee with the substitute of Mr. McMillen.

Mr. Lee, of St. Bernard, moved to amend by making the bill the special order of the day for Wednesday at one o'clock P. M.

Carried.

Mr. Holland, Chairman of the Committee on Enrollment, made the following report, which on motion was received:

New Orleans, July 27, 1868.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Enrollment respectfully report as duly enrolled a joint resolution authorizing the acting Clerk of the District Court and Parish Recorder of the parish of Caldwell to count and compile the votes cast for the Justices of the Peace of Ward No. 4 of said parish of Caldwell, and the Sheriff of said parish to make return of the result thereof to the Secretary of State as soon as practicable.

WILLIAM M. HOLLAND,
Chairman Committee on Enrollment.

Mr. Harper, Chairman Committee on Judiciary, submitted the following report, which on motion was adopted:
